Last week The News printed an editorial extract from the Minneapolis Evening Journal which took the ground that jealousy among Republican leaders did as much as anything else to bring about the disastrous result in Minnesota in the November campaign. The Journal observes that it can name a dozen men who claimed leadership in the Republican party in Minnesota, everyone of whom wants something for himself, and is determined that others against whom he cherishes a bitter resentment, shall not have any political preference if he can help it, and would rather have the party defeated than have these men get any favors. We don't know where the Journal gathered this particular information, but we do know that it printed the truth as nearly as it could be given. It is an unvarnished fact that the envy, jealousy and selfish ambition of man has done more than anything else to bring the Republican party into its present condition. It has been a sort of rule or ruin policy with some men, and these men seemed to care more for themselves and their political future than they did for the party whose principles they pretended to espouse. Instances have been known where a prominent Republican has drawn his political knife on men in his own party, for no other reason than because he feared that the man might prevent dishonest intrigue in the future. The tendency in off years in Minnesota has been more toward the promotion of party principles. Knives have been religiously held on the grind-stone until such a time as the owners could use them to destroy a member of their own party who at some time may have had the courage to voice his honest convictions and voted for the men in conventions who seemed to him to be best fitted for the positions. Even with the writer's limited experience in politics, he has noticed more of this political blood-letting in Minnesota than would kill half a dozen pary organizations in States less strong than ours. Men in some instance have utterly disregarded the welfare of the party in order to promote their own success at the polls. Candidates for the petty office of coroner have been known to trade the head of the ticket in order to get votes for themselves. Other candidates have been known to make similar sacrifices of their colleagues on the ticket. But then, this is not all. A few men who have been prominent in the councils of the party have taken the off year as a time for seeking personal revenge. The result might indicate to chronic growlers that there was some mismanagement, while at the same time the members of the committees in charge of the campaign throughout the State did all in their power to further the cause of the party and its candidates. But it is hard for any committee to secure the full measure of votes for its candidates when a few prominent Republicans [illegible]cretly doing all in their power to defeat one or more nominees. We sincerely believe that a political party should give the widest latitude of opinion possible to its members, and no man should be insulted or ostracised because he differs from some of the party leaders in matters of secondary importance. But no man can be a loyal party man who does not give his support to the chosen candidates of the party with which he affiliates. A man goes into a party organization with a full knowledge of its principles, but he cannot become a member in good standing unless he faithfully supports the nominees presented to him by the honest vote of the majority of the representatives of such party in convention assembled. In other words, his initiation is only complete when he supports the candidates on election day. It is this pretending to be a Republican, and the secretly conniving at the defeat of the candidates of the Republican party, that has done so much to bring about the disastrous results keenly felt last November. A political party is like an army, save that the leaders of the former are chosen by the popular suffrage of their fellow citizens; but these leaders once chosen, should receive the honest and combined support of every man professing the pary tenets, no matter what his personal or private grievances may be. No party is organized for the purpose of assisting in personal revenge or for the airing of the personal grievances of its members. By what right then can men, who have helped to defeat Republican candidates come before that party and ask for its confidence? There is no doubt but what during the campaign of 1890, men who now pretend to be faithful Republicans, ignored the honestly nominated candidates of the party, and trained their heaviest guns upon some of their party associates. Some of them, it is rumored, expended money and made treasonable moves because they had a personal grudge against a candidate who was victorious in convention in a square and fair contest. It will not be long before some of these men will bob up serenely and try to secure some of the highest honors within the power of the Republican party of Minnesota to bestow. If we can judge from the past history of politics in this State, such men will be most likely to be honored. The bolter in Minnesota in the Republican party seems to have had smooth sailing in the past. There are instances where men openly opposed a ticket during one campaign, and in the next campaign secured prominent positions either by nomination or by appointment in the councils of the party. No man who has not faithfully supported the nominees of an honest majority has any rights in the Republican party that the rank and file are bound to respect. Such men have placed themselves outside of the lines of the party. The only way for the Republican party in Minnesota to present a solid front is for the sinners to confess their errors and ask forgiveness for past political treason, and be taken back on probation a while before they are recognized as members of good standing in the party. The writer has no ambition in the direction of political favors, but believes that unless this tendency to knife every one who has the manliness and courage to speak his convictions, is checked, it will result in the ultimate and everlasting defeat of the party at the polls. The Minneapolis Evening Journal deserves much credit for calling attention to such infamous methods at this early date. It is to be hoped that the traitorous members of the party will profit by the advice, for if they do it will be possible to rule again by the accustomed majority. If the members of the Republican party will put aside their grievances, and get together on a common and honest ground, the party will gain the ascendency by an old fashioned Republican majority in 1892. And six if not seven Republican congressmen will have seats in the lower house of the national legislature.

LINEN MILL DATA.

Spindlers to Be Whirring in Thirty Days Now—A Valuable Report

Minneapolis Journal.

The Minneapolis linen mills received last week two more carloads of spinning machinery from Scotland. Manager Bayless hopes, with no further delay, to have the spindles whirring within 30 days. The company is receiving many samples of flax and tow grown in his state, and much interest is being manifested in the new industry. It is not, however, expected to get a regular supply for the mill from Minnesota until after the next harvest, but the mill will be supplied largely during the interim with fibre from Canada.

The special committee of the legislature on flax and hemp fibres, of which Hon. Chas. M. Bell of St. Paul as chairman, has just submitted a very valuable report to the legislature giving the result of their investigations. The report is thorough and exhaustive and contains letters from some of the best known flax growers and manufacturers of the state. The committee is desirous that the legislature give it a large circulation among Minnesota farmers, holding that the legislature could not expend a few thousands at this time more judiciously than in printing and circulating an edition of at least 100,000 copies of this report. Pensions Helped Avert the Panic.

National Tribune.

The danger of a panic, which seemed so alarmingly imminent at the beginning of last winter, is now definitely past, and the country, recovering from the temporary scare, has started on a new career of prosperity, which we are sanguine will be long-enduring. There is no doubt in the mind of any man, at all familiar with the facts that nothing did more to avert the panic than the large pension disbursements. So long as the Pension Bureau was diffusing among the common people about $33,000,000 every three months, there could not be a severely stringent lack of ready money in the country. This $33,000,000 did the work that 10 times that amount would not have done in the hands of bankers and money lords, for it did not lie idle a day. It was turned over and over constantly from the very moment it was received from the Pension Agents' hands. Everybody got some of it, everybody's business was helped by it, and every wheel of industry and trade was lubricated by it.

More money was paid the bondholders than the veterans, but that paid the bondholders was nothing like the help to the country that the pension payments were. It went into the vaults of New York capitalists and bankers, to be used in stock speculations and other operations of no especial benefit to the people. One hundred dollars of pension money probably paid inside of three months, many thousand dollars of debts to butchers, bakers, workingmen, dry-goods merchants, grocers, etc., where $1,000 paid the bondholder lay idle in the bank, or was put up as margins on a stock speculation. Had there been a panic it would have cost the country many times as much money as has been paid out for pensions since the system began. The aid given, therefore, in averting a panic by paying out some $184,000,000 for pensions was an excellent investment for the country, from a purely financial point of view.

Strange Revolution in Women's Dress—Will American Ladies Dare Adopt It?

Some predict that the great change in the fashioning of the clothes which are to be worn by women this coming season is the most wonderful victory of the nineteenth century—if fashion leaders can be induced to adopt it, and appear just once in public so arrayed.

Men will hold their breath in wonder at the marvelous change it makes in lovely woman. "Few of the fair sex can help being beautiful in these glove-fitting costumes," says a writer in a recent number of The New York and Paris Young Ladis' Fashion Bazar. "The magazine is the only one in Europe or America which makes a specialty of giving those inclined to stoutness an unrivaled appearance of sculptured slimness," said Her Royal Highness the Princess of Wales. Madame Patti has ordered from the Paris house four magnificent costumes, the designs of which appear in the April number of this Fashion Bazar—and in this magazine only.

Mrs. Harrison is greatly fascinated with the exquisite gem, costume No. 4, in the April number. It is expected she will give an order for an exact counterpart of it, the whole front of which will be incrusted with pin-head diamonds. This gown alone will be worth a king's ransom.

Open The Crookston House.

Pauline Harvey and Troupe Open the Crookston House.

Grand Forks Plaindealer.

Mr. O. H. Truesdell, formerly with the Wilson Theatre company is in the city today. After the disbandment of the Wilson Company at St. Peter, Mr. Truesdell assumed the management of the Boston Comic Opera Company, Miss Pauline Harvey, prima Donna, and is destined to Crookston to make arrangements for the opening of the new opera house there by that company on April 13th, 14th and 15th. The company will play three nights in Grand Forks, April 16th, 17th and 18. In all likehood a number of our citizens will patronize the opening of the new Crookston opera house. There's some talk already of a special train being chartered for the occasion.

Marshall County Leader:—The St. Hilaire Spectator last week contained foreclosure publications for twenty-eight farm mortgage sales. The Crookston papers are not far in the rear and there are more than a dozen other papers in Polk county engaged in the same work. The great bulk of this foreclosure business may be set down as a direct result of the nefarious interest legislation going on at St. Paul. It will be a great snap for the newspaper men in this part of the state if the interest bill becomes a law, however. The notices referred to above if paid for at legal rates will alone keep the wolf from Bro. Ives' door for many moons.

Leaflets giving desirable information about "Soil Cultivation," "Sugar Beets," "Flax Fibre," and "Poultry Raising," sent free by F. I. Whitney, G. P. & T. A., Great Northern Railway, St. Paul, Minn. or furnished by Agent Fegan, of this place.

Navy or common white beans can be profitably raised in Minnesota and the Dakotas. As a large quantity of beans is now imported from foreign lands, there is no present danger of overdoing the industry.

Celery is something every farmer should have in his garden. And there should be a good many substantial products in the farm and town gardens. We should produce more of the things we eat than we do. Let us begin the diversity this year; it is coming to that and the sooner we get at it the better. The man who is tied up to one crop is going to lose in the end.

The chicken business is a matter of wonderful importance to the table comfort and the financial outlook of the American farmer. Government statistics show that the annual expenditures in this line is over $500,000,000; and, despite the immense production of eggs, several million dollars worth are annually imported to meet the deficiency of the home supply.

It has been asserted that a given amount of food and attention will produce as many pounds of chicken flesh as it will of hog flesh. If so, why cannot farmers make poultry raising profitable and eat nutritious chicken meat instead of so much bacon? A pound of bird meat will produce more good brain, physical strength and muscular power than a pound of fat bacon.

Few will question the claim that the more a man knows about his business the more profitable he can make it. Competition is so close now in everything that the best posted man is usually the successful one. Farming is a science, and every farmer should not only have the best books relating to his business, but he should take agricultural journals as well as his home papers,

The Agricultural Experiment Station at St Anthony Park, Minn., will supply seed free to Minnesota farmers who are willing to experiment with sugar beets. Practical co-operation is desired. Address Prof. W. M. Hays, at St. Anthony Park. The farmers of North Dakota can get a supply from H. F. Helgesen, Commissioner of Agriculture and labor, Grand Forks, N. D. It can also be had from the Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

Rufus Hatch, the banker and rail road king, made his start in raising vegetables. All cannot make millions of dollars, but all farmers should raise millions of vegetables.

Havermeyer, the great sugar refiner of New York, has a poultry farm, with from 1,200 to 1,500 chickens. He supplies his own table and makes $1,000 or more a year, besides.

The timber culture and pre-emtion laws have been repealed. Public lands can now be taken only under the homestead act. The best free lands yet remaining are found in Minnesota and the Dakotas.

Stockmen should send to the Department of Agriculture, Washington D. C., for the work on "Diseases of Horses." It is illustrated with handsomely colored plates, and is sent free to applicants as long as the edition holds out.

The "Agricultural Grasses and Forage Plants" of the United States, published by the Agricultural Department at Washington, D. C., is a valuable work to any farmer who knows the worth of grass on a farm. Can be had by writing to your Congressman, or to the Department direct.

A good many people think a chicken unworthy of attention, but it is really a great industry. There is a duck farm in New England that netted the owner last year $4,000. Samuel J. Tilden was a great chicken fancier, and all the world knows that ex-President Hayes has a chicken farm,

Eugene Bosse of St. Paul Park, Minn., who has had long and successful experience in raising flax and making fibre, is willing to visit any locality, and render what service he can in connection with the erection of small mills, to enable a neighborhood of farmers to have flax straw turned into fibre. For particulars, address him at St. Paul Park, Minn.

A Tragic Affair.

St. Paul News.

The death of ex-Warden Randall, coming upon the day when the legislative committee made its report, together with all the circumstances connected therewith, renders it a political tragedy in real life.

Mr. Randall's death can be directly and entirely charged up to the scheme for his removal, and while his full and complete exoneration by an official legislative report, made the very day of his death, neither restores him to life nor assuages the grief of his family, it relieves his memory of any stain, and ought to touch even the callous hearts of the Executive and his newspaper tool, who pursued the man to his grave.

That his death was due to this affair is apparent on the statement of the facts. Summoned to California by the serious illness of his daughter, who was spending the winter there for her health under the care of her mother, he made the journey, leaving the very day when he turned over the keys to the prison to his successor. His stay was brief, and at the peril of his life he returned to appear before the legislative investigation committee. He arrived too unwell to give his testimony, and the return journey in his condition proved fatal. If he could have remained in California a few weeks his life need not have been sacrificed.

That, without his evidence being presented and without knowledge that his illness was to have a fatal termination, the committee should exonerate his management of the prison, shows the flimsy ground upon which the Governor removed him.

While this is the legacy Mr. Randall leaves for his family, it is difficult to characterize his assailants in a fitting manner. The committee report shows that the Governor used his evening newspaper organ as the tool, and that willing sheet delegated a reporter to work up the case, not for publication, but to submit to the Executive. This was faithfully done, and the reporter who was made the unwitting instrument for this persecution went before the committee and explained the matter in a manly way.

If such a thing is possible as the pricking of conscience in the case of the responsible parties in this matter, there ought to be some pangs of regret, as they see the coffin of Mr. Randall carried to the grave.

The Report shows that Warden Randall was humane in his treatment of prisoners, and that was his chief offending.

Two North Dakota Men.

How W. J. Murphy and Gilbert Pierce Succeeded.

Grand Forks Plaindealer.

Bud Reeve in Minneapolis Times: "North Dakota is not only a producer and exporter of wheat, but of editors, great men and capital. A few years ago one W. J. Murphy took Horace Greely's advice to young men to "go west." He left a Minnesota farm and located in Grand Forks. In a few short years he made an enormous fortune in Grand Forks, and a few days ago went to Minneapolis and paid $500,000 spot cash for the Daily and evening Tribune. That is the way North Dakota develops young men. Mr. Murphy's partner, Gilbert A. Pierce, is another example. He was sent to Dakota from Chicago to act as governor for the territory. He had never had any experience in the governor business when he came here, but he took right hold and soon picked it up, and when that job was ended the boys said, "Well done thou good and faithful servant," and gave him another job by sending him to the United States senate. He finished that job up in good shape in a brief year that most senators take six for, and now where is he? He threw up the Chinese mission at $12,000 for the golden opportunity to go in with Mr. Murphy.

North Dakota is sorry to loose two such men as Messrs. Murphy and Pierce. Only for her inexhaustible resources she could not stand it. The state, however thinks it is worth something for an advertisement. [illegible] that they are [illegible] that they did so well while [illegible]

Is It "Over Production"?

Farm Stock and Home.

Cotton is very low in price, so low that southern farming is more than ever "depressed," and the usual cry of "over production," and the usual appeal of farmer advisers to "curtail production," are heard on every side. The southern farmer is urged to grow less cotton and more grain and meat; while the northern farmer is now growing the latter at so small a margin of profit that he cannot afford to buy more of his southern brother's cotton, and so absorb the latter's "over production." It is safe to say that the so called over production of cotton in the south would have no existence if all families in the north were in condition to buy the cotton fabrics their necessities demand or tastes desire. With such a market for cotton in the north the southern farmer would not think of growing grain and meat, but would gladly exchange for them his more congenial product; this, in turn, would furish a larger market for the products of the north, instead of curtailing it, as now seems probable.

There are many wives and mothers who in their struggles to get sufficient cotton goods to comfortably supply home wants will regard the cry of over productions of cotton as a most cruel sarcasm. Strange, indeed, it is that in a country so richly endowed as this in all things that conduce to agricultural prosperity, and possessing such marvelous transportation facilities, the agriculturists in one section should be suffering for those things which another section has a damaging surfeit of. It is not strange, either, except that in a republic the people should be content to endure such unnatural and unnecessary conditions.

This is another evidence of the serious disturbances our industrial affairs, consequent upon the abnormal centralization of the nation's wealth and the resultant diminished purchasing power of our wealth producers. Give the industrialists of the country the opportunity of devoting to the purchase of necessaries, comforts and luxuries of life the money they are now forced to contribute to fictitious values, to capitalistic combines protection classes, etc., and there would be over production of cotton, wheat, meat, or any other essentials to comfortable living and doing.

"Over Production" of Wheat

Farm Stock and Home.

In 1882 the world produced 2,187,000,000 bushels of wheat; in 1884 only 3,000,000 bushels; in 1889, 1,950,000,000 bushels; less, in 1890, 2,040,000,000 bushels. These figures represent fairly the yields of the intervening years. In the meantime the world's population grows about 2 per cent pannum; if its consumption grew in the same proportion—and it would if every body were getting his oldtime allowance—the yield of 1883 should have grown to 2,526,920,000 bushels, instead of nearly 500,000,000 bushels less than that. Such an increase would have simply kept up the equilibrium between wheat and population, and should have kept prices up to the 1882 point; undoubtedly would have done so if natural trade laws had been operative, if supply and demand had been allowed to regulate prices. But we are told that "over production" of wheat was the cause of its abnormally low prices for a few years past. The "over production" does not seem to be of wheat, but by natural inference, of hunger. The people now living on the earth have over 16 per cent less wheat to eat than they had in 1882, yet there is an "over production" of wheat! Funny, isn't it?

A New Town.

Katispell, on the Great Northern Extension.

Grand Forks Herald.

Senator Comstock, of Minnesota, and his partner, A. A. White, of Moorhead, were in the city yesterday enroute home from a trip along the extension of the Great Northern toward the coast. It is their purpose to develop a number of townsites along the extension. They have just completed the purchase of one thousand acres of land in the center of the justly celebrated Flathead Valley, for the division headquarters of the Great Northern railway. The city will be called Katispell (Indian for Flathead.) The site is one of the most beautiful on the continent. Surrounded by towering mountains, near the head of a charming lake of the same name, the center of a rich mineral district, with unlimited deposits of coal and iron, great forests of excellent pine timber, the best agricultural land in Montana, an abundance of pure running water, good hunting and fishing and a very healthy climate, are said to comprise some of the resources which are expected to make Katispell one of the largest cities between St. Paul and the coast.

Farmers who will give systematic attention to the cultivation of sugar beets, and co-operate with the Agricultural Experiment Station, are requested to leave their names with Agent Fegan of the Great Northern Railway at Crookston, and seed and instructions as to proper culture will be sent free—analysis of beets will also be made without cost to the producer. DEFAULT HAVING BEEN MADE IN THE payment of the sum of five hundred thirty-five and 32-100 dollars, ($535.32) which is claimed to be due at the date of this notice upon a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by James E. Milton and Mary M. Milton, his wife, mortgagors, to Robert J. Adams, mortgagee, bearing date the 3d day of November, 1881, and, with a power of sale therein contained duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the 25th day of November, 1881, at 2:35 o'clock p. m., in book "8" of mortgages, on pages 529 to 533, and no action or proceeding having been instituted at law or otherwise, to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage viz: The northwest quarter of Section Ten (10), Township one hundred and fifty (150), Range forty-six, (46), west, containing one hundred and sixty (160) acres, in Polk County and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances; which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk County, at the front door of the Court House, in the city of Crookston, in said county and State, on the 25th day of April, A. D. 1891, at 10 o'clock a. m. of that day, at public vendue, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt of five hundred thirty five and 32-100 dollars, and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and twenty five dollars attorney's fees as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale, as provided by law.

WHEREAS, ALBERT GILMOUR AND Jane Gilmour, his wife, of Polk County, State of Minnesota, as mortgagors, did, on the 8th day of July, A. D. 1887, duly execute and deliver to Josiah Upton, of the County of Ontario, State of New York their mortgage bearing date of June 25th, A. D. 1887, whereby they mortgaged to said mortgagee the following described lands situated in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, to-wit: The se¼ se¼ Section 6, ne¼ ne¼ Section 7, and n½ nw¼ Section 8, Township 117, Range 44 west, containing 160 acres, to secure the payment of the sum of seven hundred and fifty dollars, with interest thereon, according to the conditions of one certain promissory note, with interest coupons attached, bearing even date with said mortgage, and made by said mortgagors to said mortgagee or order, which said mortgage was on the 8th day of July, A. D. 1887, at 4:30 o'clock p. m., duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for said County of Polk, in book 33 of mortgages, on pages 83-36; and

Whereas, default has been made in the payment of the sum of thirty-seven and 50-100 dollars due as interest on said mortgage on the 25th day of June, A. D. 1889, and on the further sum of thirty-seven and 50-100 dollars due as interest upon said mortgage on the 25th day of December, A. D. 1889, and on the further sum of thirty-seven and 50-100 dollars due as interest on said mortgage on the 25th day of June, A. D. 1890, and on the further sum of thirty-seven and 50-100 dollars due as interest thereon on the 25th day of December, A. D. 1890, and the said interest is still unpaid and due; and

Whereas, it was stipulated by and between the parties to said mortgage that if default should be made in any of the conditions or covenants therein contained on the part of the mortgagors to be kept and performed, that then and from thenceforth it shall be lawful for said mortgagee, his heirs, administrators, executors or assigns, to consider the whole sum hereby secured as immediately due and payable without notice to said mortgagors or any other party; and

Whereas, the said Josiah Upton, mortgagee, has exercised his option to consider and declare, and does hereby consider and declare the whole sum of money secured by said mortgage to be due and payable; and

Whereas, there is now due, and claimed to be due on said mortgage at the date of this notice the sum of nine hundred twenty five and 23-100 dollars, and no proceedings have been instituted at law or otherwise to recover the same or any part thereof.

Now therefore notice is hereby given that by virtue of a power of sale in said mortgage contained and therewith recorded, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the land therein described, which sale will be made by the Sheriff of Polk County, at the front door of the Court House, in the City of Crookston, in said County and State, on the 25th day of April, A. D. 1891, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon of that day, at public vendue, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay the sum due on said mortgage, together with taxes, if any, on said premises, and fifty dollars attorney's fees therein stipulated to be paid in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the date of sale as provided by law.

DEFAULT HAVING BEEN MADE IN THE payment of the sum of thirty-five dollars ($35.00) installment of interest, which became due and payable on the first day of December, A. D. 1888, and a further default having been made in the payment of the sum of thirty-five dollars ($35.00) installment of interest which became due and payable on the 1st day of December, A. D. 1889, and a further default having been made in the payment of the sum of thirty-five dollars ($35.00) installment of interest which became due and payable on the 1st day of December, A. D. 1890, upon a certain mortgage, made, executed and delivered by John K. Ostgord and Betsy Ostgord his wife, of Polk County and State of Minnesota, mortgagors, to The Netherlands American Land Company, of Amsterdam, Holland, mortgagee, bearing date the 10th day of June, A. D. 1887, and duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the 13th day of June, A. D. 1887, at 3:00 o'clock p. m., in volume "32" of mortgages, on pages 190 and 191.

And whereas a further default has been made in the conditions of said mortgage by the mortgagors failing and neglecting to pay the taxes assessed against, and levied upon, said premises covered by said mortgage prior to the date of the sale of lands for the payment of taxes, and the mortgagee, to protect the lien of its said mortgage, was compelled to pay and on the 4th day of May, A. D. 1889, did pay, in satisfaction of the taxes then due and delinquent on the said premises the sum of nineteen and six hundredths dollars ($19.06), and on the 31st day of March, A. D. 1890, did pay, in satisfaction of the taxes then due and delinquent on the said premises the sum of twenty-two and three hundredths dollars ($22.03); and the said defaults having each continued for a period of more than thirty days, the whole sum secured by said mortgage is hereby declared to be due and payable, as stipulated in said mortgage in case of a failure to comply with the conditions thereof; and that by reason of such defaults and declaration, there is claimed to be due and payable on said mortgage at the date of this notice the sum of five hundred twenty-three and eighty hundredths dollars ($523.80), and no action or proceeding at law or otherwise has been instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and by virtue of the statute in such case made and provided, said mortgage will be foreclosed, and the premises described in and conveyed thereby, viz: The east half (e½) of the northeast quarter (ne¼) and east half (e½) of the southeast quarter (se¼) of Section three (3) in Township one hundred forty-seven (147) Range forty-five (45), containing one hundred and fifty-nine and 50-100 (159.50) acres, more or less, according to the United States Government survey thereof, together with the hereditaments and appurtenances, will be sold at public auction to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt, interest, taxes, and twenty-five dollars as attorney's fees, stipulated in said mortgage to be paid in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; which sale will be made at the front door of the Court House in Crookston, in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, by the Sheriff of said County of Polk, at the hour of two o'clock p. m. on the 14th day of April, A. D. 1891, subject to redemption at any time within one year, in manner provided by law.

The prospects for good crops in the Red River Valley were never better. There seems to be plenty of moisture for all practical purposes.

Mr. A. Anderson was in the city last week. He has been selling horses at Devil's Lake a few seasons, has sold about $75,000 worth, and the present outlook indicates considerable losses. He says that before he went to Devil's Lake he had been selling horses in Polk County, sold over $100,000 worth, and the only loss sustained on the deal was about $300. He sold $1,300 worth of horses here last week. Tom Bjoin has been agent for him here and his deals have always been very satisfactory to Mr. Anderson.

L. C. Couvrette, one of the old-timers of Polk County, and a level-headed business man, says; "If I had from $10,000 to $15,000 to invest I would put it into Polk County farms right now. I tell you that any investment made in lands this spring will pay from 25 to 50 per cent on the money within two years! How do I know? Look at the number of inquiries we have for Polk County lands, the number of sales made and the number of people coming in to occupy the land, and you can easily see the reason for the faith that is within me. If I had 10,000 acres of Polk County dirt I would not sell a foot of it at present prices, for I know that present prices are at least one-half less than real actual worth. All we need is one more crop and good prices to boom us beyond any previous experience, and I believe we are going to get both this fall. Look out for better times in the future."

Comrade V. D. Carruth hands us a letter from a comrade in Kansas who is anxious to know about the prospects in the Red River Valley. We consider them better than for many years, as the prospects are excellent for the biggest crops we have ever had and the best prices therefor. We do not believe a farmer can sow or plant any crop that will be unprofitable in this market next fall, and as for the prospects for obtaining land, the opening of the Red Lake Indian Reservation, just as soon as arrangements can be completed, will afford excellent opportunities for obtaining government land Farming lands can also be bought near this city at figures that are extremely low for the real value, and these lands will prove in the end the cheapest, as they are nearer good markets. Breaking and backsetting costs from $4 to $4.50 per acre, but the best way is for a man to buy two good smart teams of oxen and do it himself. The best season for breaking is immediately after seeding, continuing as long as the grass is full of sap. Wood is mostly used for fuel on the prairie farms and can be had at from $2 to $4 per cord. Some use coal, which costs $9 per ton. Fall plowing is considered the best, especially for wheat, and most of it is done at that season. We have a herd law, so we do not have to fence unless we wish to. If you desire to rent a place for this season you should have been here before, however, there are yet chances. Good land can be bought at from $8 to $25 per acre, and a man can generally have as long time for payment as he desires. Good stock is plenty and cheap; good water in abundance and the very best climate on the footstool. We do not know of any country where the prospects are so good for prosperity in agriculture as right here in the Red River Valley country and especially in Polk County, the banner county.

CROOKSTON

Gets the Red River Valley College.

At the meeting of the directors of the Red River Valley College on Wednesday last, Crookston, having offered a cash bonus of $15,000 and a tract of land suitable for a site, was awarded the college. The Fargo delegation was very much disappointed as they came prepared to offer $15,000 and 17 acres of land, and they had no idea that the city of Crookston could come anywhere within gunshot of her offer—but that is where their April fool came in—Crookston got there just the same. To the indomitable energy and public spirit of L K. Aaker, Rev. Saugstad, Lewis Ellington, C. O. Christianson, and others, is due this grand achievement, for they have worked early and late to accomplish it, and at one time, when it seemed impossible to accomplish, they alone never gave up all hope, but they put their shoulders to the wheel and lifted all the harder. In time, when this new institution shall have got to work and people can see all that it means to our city, will the earnest labors of these gentlemen be appreciated at its true worth, and then we can begin to see what they have been trying to do for the best interests of our city, and this institution will be a fitting monument to them.

Indications point to a large immigration this spring, and with the crop prospects which we have we may expect a very prosperous year. Quite a number of land sales have been made during the past winter and spring and these farms each represent a new settler for Polk County. The prospects are that very much more building will be done this year than ever before and the buildings will all be of a permanent nature. A few of the largest will be the Red River College, Jerome's hotel, the large building on the corner of Main and Second streets, Fontaine & Anglim's new block, the addition to the new Odd Fellows block and several others that at present we are not at liberty to mention All this work, with the building of the new railroad and the Red River Valley saw mills running full time will make a demand for men and teams greater than ever before, and this, we believe, is but the dawn of an era of prosperity greater than ever before experienced in this county—a prosperity that will be substantial and lasting.

What They Say About the Boston Comic Opera Company.

Portland Oregonian: The Park in its palmiest days never held a more delighted audience or one more generous of applause than that which greeted the Boston Comic Opera Company last night. In point of numbers it far exceeded all expectations, taking into consideration the strong counter attraction of the Emma Juch Opera Company, the 700 chairs on the lower floor were all taken. The opera was a new version of Andrau's charming comic opera "La Mascot," of which it is to be said it possesses the beauty of the chief features of the original, while also possessing great scope for those whimsicalities of broad and grotesque humor so much in vogue on the stage to-day. In Miss Pauline Harvey is found a singer of great sweetness and an actress of charming face and perfect figure. The gobble duett and Peppo earned an enthusiastic encore. Wm. H. Newborough, as Lorenzo, and Geo. H. Whitman as Rocco, showed a highly entertaining vein of original comedy, Whitman's grotesque work being received with uproarous applause. Herman Waldo, the tenor, as Prince Frederick, was a distinct musical triumph, his fine stage presence and clear tenor voice earning him unstinted applause and two encores. The company is one of the best ever seen in Portland.

Vancouver, B. C., News: A great success was scored last night at the Imperial by the Boston Comic Opera Co., who presented the Mascot. The two principal characters, Bettina, the Mascot, and Fiametta, the Prince's daughter, were taken by Miss Pauline Harvey and Miss Bessie German. Both acted with great taste and ability and it is difficult to say to which is due the chief honors. Mr. Newborough made a capital Lorenzo, while Mr. Whitman's Rocco fairly brought down the house. The company is a good one.

This company will open the Grand Opera House in Crookston on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, April 13th, 14th and 15th.

Changes Hands.

Col. Ingalls and H. E. Wells Become the Proprietors of the Dacotah.

Grand Forks Herald.

Considerable suprise was manifested yesterday morning when it leaked out that Col. Ingalls and H. E. Wells had purchased a third interest in the Hotel Dacotah and would assume the management. Such proves to be the fact. The change, however, does not take place before May 1st, Major Coleman retiring from the management at that date. It is to be regreted that he should leave, having given the public excellent satisfaction and been a very popular landlord. Taking charge of the house after it has been doing business at a loss for some time for want of management, he has place it in one year on a paying basis and made it the most popular hostelry in the northwest without exception. Of Messrs. Ingalls and Wells, the new proprietors, but little need be said. They are will and favorably known to every traveling man in the northwest. While in charge of the Ingalls they have built up a large and paying business notwithstanding many obstacles. The Ingalls house will probably be closed when they go to the Dacotah. Both Col. Ingalls and his lieutenanll Mr. Wells, have had a long experince in the hotel, business and can scarcely fail.

National Economist:—It is a sad commentary on the future of agriculture, that an advance in the price of farm products is given by many of the eastern journals as the cause of the present financial crisis. If this be true, the logical conclusion would fallow that hard times in the country made better times in Wall street; that, in order to prevent future panics the farmer must continue to sell his products at a loss. Unless all signs fail the farmers of this country are going to change these conditions and hereafter stand square upon the demand of "equal rights to all, and special privileges to none."

Will Come Down.

Western Rural.

The partisan press which is so fiercely attacking every demand made by the farmers will come down off its high perch in 1892 and before. When men are angry they do and say things which they are unwilling to repeat in their sober moments. At the last election there was such a political revolution that one of the most natural results is anger upon the part of those whose political plans were interfered with. It is not an uncommon occurrence to pick up journals that were formrely at least half way in favor of the farmer, but which are now rampant objectors to every demand he makes, They are angry. But they will pass that stage in time. Happily few men remain mad forever. These editors will see sooner or later that they must meet the farmer at least half way. They will learn that it is the people who give power to political parties after all. When 1892 comes every political organization in the country, both new and old, will be found in close rapport with the producers of the country. The farmer is just at the breaking of the day. A better time for him is dawning, and we were never more mistaken in our lives than we shall be, if all political parties do not do their level best to serve him. But the partisan newspapers that are now attacking every principle that the farmer advocates, are preparing a large amount of crow to eat in the future.

National Economist:—Who will dare deny that the financial system of this government is faulty, when the crop cannot be moved without a panic, unless the National Treasury lends sixty millions to New York banks.

Here We Are Again.

Western Rural.

The discussion of the money question is getting monotonous to use and we think probably it is to our readers. But the newspapers that think that our money is just right, as it now is, keep up a steady flow of misrepresentation, and we know of no other way than to keep answering the sophistries and false statements that are made. The statement was made last week in one of our papers that the country had money enough now. An editor who makes such a statement is either an imbecile, an igoramus or a knave. The evidences that we have not a sufficiently large circulation are abundant and as plain as the sun in the heavens. If a borrower should go to a bank in Chicago for money to conduct a business outside of Chicago, he would be told that the demand here was enough to absorb all the money we have; and he would be told that in all the great money centers. It will not be disputed, we believe, by any sound minded man that twenty-five dollars per capita would be a small circulation; and yet we have not half of that circulation.

The paper in question, too denies that a circulation can be based on real estate, and cites the continental currency as evidence of the fact. A more utterly unfair reference could not be made. The continental money was founded on nothing for there was nothing in the country that had any absolutely known value. The government itself was an experiment. If the continental money had been fathered by a government as strong as the government of the United States is to-day, sustained by a country of known wondrous wealth, it would have been "as good as gold;" and if every dollar of paper money that is now in circulation is not resting for its value upon our land, we should like to see the operations of an imagination that would picture some other basis. Is it gold and silver that our paper currency is really resting upon? If so, about how much would it be worth if our farms were to be abandoned? This country is what it is and its money is what it is, simply because we are a great agricultural country; and it is marvellous stupidity that thinks we can impoverish our farmers and still maintain our prosperity or even maintain the value of our money. A thousand dollars issued upon a good mortgage upon real estate has the best basis of any money that every circulated in America.

Then this writer refers, as is customary for such writers to do, to the worthlessness of the confederate money "because the currency was inflated." We admit that the currency was inflated, but what has that to do with the present demand for more money or for a different kind of money? Nobody, as we have repeatedly said, wants one dollar more currency than is actually needed, and if we get more than is needed through any measure that has been proposed for increasing the circulating medium, we will put a stop to further issue. But we once more call attention to the fact that it was not alone the super. Abundancy of confederate currency that made it worthless. It was quite as much the fact that the government that issued it was not permanent and its permanency was questioned from the very beginning. Will the friends of Wall street please make a serious effort to be half fair in this discussion?

Advantages of Minnesota.

Northwestern Farmer and Breeder.

In all of the large cities of the East there are numbers of persons who live from "hand to mouth," never save enough to supply their wants a day in advance, and still they seem to be contented to live on in this way, vainly hoping that something may turn up by which their condition will be improved. It is strange enough that among these people marriages are quite common, and in this way, the number of paupers is constantly on the increase I do not know what the condition is to-day of that portion of the city of New York once known as the "Five Points," but many years ago, the squalid poverty of the dwellers therein was simply appalling.

I have stood near the Treasury Building in Washington, about the hour of closing for the day, and have seen the thousands rush out from its many portals and hurry off to their humble homes in all parts of the city and its suburbs. Not one of these felt sure of his place on the morrow. A change of administration, or the head of a department, might cause them to lose their positions. With such unstable tenure of office it would seem to me that their rest at night would be disturbed by dreams of what might be in store for them on the following day. Now, when we remember what inducements the West offers to all who will cast their lot with its people, is it not strange that the unemployed in the cities and the half paid clerks in Washington consent to remain and eke out a miserable existence, when they can get a home in this or other western States where, by the exercise of industry and economy, they can become their own masters?

Let me mention some of the advantages offered by the State of Minnesota to those who are willing to make their homes with us and engage in manufacturing enterprises. These may be summed up as follows:

1. A great variety of raw materials, so distributed that they can be obtained at a moderate cost at any points.

2. Numerous water powers in almost every part of the State; cheap wood from the ever-growing forests, or cheap coal from the coal fields of Iowa or Illinois.

3. A climate unsurpassed for health, and in every way favorable for industrial pursuits at all seasons of the year.

4. Convenience to markets, East, West, North or South by rail and by river.

5. A good supply of labor, which can be had for fair and moderate wages.

6. A large surplus of the very best of food for man and beast.

7. Homes, the fee simple of which can be bought by the savings of ordinary industry.

8. A desire on the part of the people of the State to have all kinds of manufacturing, for which facilities are here found, introduced and encouraged.

These are the essentials for securing the location of work-shops for the development of the immense resources of the State.

That Minnesota possesses these advantages as much as almost any known country is generally conceded, and the result, from the few large manufacturing enterprises that have been carried on here, demonstrated that these facilities have not been over-estimated.

St. Paul and Minneapolis, to all intents and purposes constituting one city, presents itself as the centre of this great manufacturing system. Look at the territory which would of necessity draw its supplies from this dual city. When the broad prairies west of us are brought under cultivation, and when the population shall be counted by the millions, what an immense market will be afforded for all we can manufacture.

Our railroad system, now in its infancy, is destined to be completed; railroads radiating in all directions will reach out their iron fingers to grasp and bring to our market the surplus of the vast empire west of us in exchange for the products of our factories. These who turn their attention to manufactures, will be, in due season, abundantly rewarded.

The immense army of people could not all engage in manufacturing, but many of them could find homes on unimproved lands and become producers instead of remaining consumers, assured of steady employment and a ready sale for all the surplus they can produce. Stock raising has always been profitable, and will continue to be until the West becomes so densely settled that stock cannot roam at large.

The Northern Pacific Railroad advertises for sale in Minnesota, North Dakota, Montana and Washington thirty-seven millions of acres at prices ranging from $1.25 to $6.00 per acre, on easy terms. The road owns only alternate sections; most of the others belonging to the Government, and can be secured in parcels of 160 acres without the payment of a dollar, by those who are willing to locate thereon and cultivate the same. These suggestions are purely in the interest of those who have no homes and no regular or permanent employment, and those who accept and act upon them will never cease to be grateful.

The above was written by Gen. R. W. Johnson of St. Paul, for N. Y. Christian Weekly. We republish it by request, and commend it to all our eastern friends. Opportunities are waiting for willing hands and heads not only in Minnesota, but everywhere throughout the Northwest. Come and see.

A BISHOP'S HORSE.

Our Dumb Animals.

In the Shattuck Cadet the story of a bishop's horse is told by Bishop Whipple to the boys of Shattuck Hall, Faribault, as follows:—

When I was elected bishop [of Minnesota] the State was still staggering under the panic of 1857. There was not a mile of railway. Our shipments of wheat, then very small, were by steamers on the Mississippi. We had a daily mail from Hastings, and twice each week one from St. Paul and Owatonna. I have been a week travelling from La Crosse to Faribault, and two days to St. Paul. A kind friend gave me a noble horse named "Bashaw," own cousin to the famous "Patchen." He was a kingly fellow, and had every sign of noble birth: a slim, delicate head, prominent eyes, small, active ears, large nostrils, full chest, thin gambrels, heavy cords, neat fetlocks, and black as coal. He was my friend and companion in nearly forty thousand miles travel, always full of spirit and yet gentle as a girl. I never struck him but once, and that was to save his life and mine on the brink of a precipice; and when saved the tears filled my eyes. He knew how I loved him, and he loved me as well as horse ever loved his master. He never forgot any place where he had ever been, and many a time he has saved our lives when lost on the prairie.

In summer heat and winter storm he kept every appointment, and it was done by heroic effort. It was no easy task to travel in winter over prairies without a house for twenty miles. I recall time after time when we were lost. I left New Ulm for the Lower Sioux Agency when the thermometer was 36 below zero at noon; there was an ugly, freckled sky and long rifts of clouds. I remembered the adage, "Mackerel backs and colts' tails, lofty ships take in sails." For seven miles there were houses in the distance, and then it was twenty miles across the prairie without a house.

We were in for it; our motto, "No step backward!" In about an hour we came to a place where the snow had been blown away; it was stubble, no sign of a road. I was lost. I turned the horses back to follow my sleigh track: the wind had obliterated it. I knew points of compass almost as well as an Indian. We started in the direction of the agency. The country was full of little coolies, and soon I had both horses down in snow-drifts. After great efforts we got back on the prairie.

Night had came on, not a star, the wind howling like wolves. I knelt down and said my prayers, wrapped myself in buffalo robes, threw the reins on the dashboard, and prepared to let the horses walk where they would until daylight. About midnight old Bashaw stopped so suddenly it threw me onto the dashboard. I jumped from the sleigh, and found an Indian trail which looked like a snake under the snow. I knew one end of it was at the agency, but which, I knew not. We followed the trail until we saw a light. Never did a horse neigh more joyously as he sprang toward it; we were saved. Dear old fellow! as I put him in his stall he nipped me with his lip, with a marvellous look out of those grand eyes, as much as to say, "Master, all's well."

The stage drivers of Burbank & Co.'s coaches knew, admired, and loved him. The honest, kindly fellows were my best friends, and I believe, thought me a better preacher for Bashaw's sake.

You will not blame me for my tribute of love to this dumb servant of God. I am half tempted to tell you of some speculations which have come to the wisest and best of men as to the immortality of these sentient beasts. John Wesley, Bishop Butler, and a host of others believed it. One of the most charming lectures I ever read was written by Judge Wilder to prove it. Revelation was given for men who have sinned, to bring them back to God their Father, not to tell us of the future of the brute creation. Memory is the faculty which blends our lives into a harmonious whole and carries with it the proof of a future life. A horse has it for all purposes, and can use it as much as we. The fact that there are wrongs which are never righted here, is a strong presumptive proof of another world where they are redressed. The brute shares in the evils which come from man's wandering from God. Just as man falls into the power of the devil and mars God's image, the poor brute suffers; and just as that image is restored, love, goodness, and mercy overflow on the brute creation.

Pardon my telling you so much of my dear old friend, who was, for more than twenty years, my missionary companion, and without whom I could not have done my Master's work.

The 25th Anniversary

OF THE G. A. R.

The members of Col. Cobham Post, No. 90, and Sons of Veterans, met at G. A. R. hall on Monday evening, at 7:30, pursuant to Gen'l Orders No. 18, and at 7:50 fell in to march to the old opera house on Broadway, where the services were to be held. Upon arrival the hall was found to be nearly filled with our citizens, ladies and gentlemen, and a goodly number of the school children, and the old veterans and the sons of vets silently followed the grand old flag to the front, where seats had been reserved for them. Upon the stage was seated His Honor, Mayor McKinnon, Rev. C. F. Sharpe, Rev. O. H. Elmer and the members of the Methodist Episcopal choir, and the organist. The stage was appropriately hung with bunting while the grand old flag of our country was numerously displayed, while in front appeared the G. A. R. badge with the words, "Col. Cobham Post, No. 90," upon the shield, while overhead hung this motto, "25th anniversary G. A. R." surmounting the badge of the order.

Commander Fontaine called the assembly to order, briefly outlining the object of the meeting, and announced the opening exercises, a song by the choir. He then introduced His Honor Mayor McKinnon, who spoke as follows:

Ladies and Gentlemen:—It is with sentiments of pride and pleasure that I find myself called upon to address this meeting, assembled for the purpose of commemorating the 25th Anniversary of the organization of The Grand Army of the Republic. And, indeed, I cannot think of any occasion more fit to stir up the best feelings of a true and loyal citizen of our great Republic than a meeting of this kind, recalling as it does, the sorrowful, yet glorious days of the Rebellion, when our noble constitution and its glorious privileges were in imminent peril, and where such heroic deeds of valour, courage and self sacrifice were performed by those noble men who fought, and preserved undivided what we so justly and proudly cherish. With pleasure indeed do I congratulate those veterans who are here to-night and who took such a noble part in the sanguinary conflict, and are here to-night to commemorate this organization. To the Sons of Veterans do I also offer my congratulations at having become members of this organization which I consider a guarantee of their behavior in the future should the country (from which God preserve us) ever require their services. To the Ladies, who by their presence here, testify their respect and admiration for the organization and its members, and who, as on all occasions where they are present, embellish the situation, and to the citizens, who present evidently for the same purpose, do I return thanks.

Before closing my address, I wish to say that a programe has been arranged which will be immediately carried out. This program is intended for the benefit of all present, and I invite you all to give it your attention."

The Commander then announced a song by the choir, who rendered, "Tramp, Tramp, Tramp, the Boys are Marching," in such a manner as to set every old vet's feet tramping in unison, and his heart to flutter like unto the days when we sung it as we used to sing it 50,000 strong, when we were marching through the southland. General Orders, No. 18, was then read by comrade I. U. Jennings, also circular letter No. 8, which was a brief synopsis of the history of the organization and progress of the G. A. R. On the 6th day of April, 1866, the first Post was organized at Decatur, Ill., by Dr. B. F. Stephenson, Surgeon of the 14th Illinois Infantry, but it was not until 1871, after Comrade Stephenson had answered the last roll-call that the order began to flourish and give token of the noble organization that it is to-day.

Comrade Jennings then read the following:

History of Col. Cobham Post No. 90.

Col. Cobham Post was organized on the evening of April 16th, 1884, the first meeting was held in Fortier Hall and thirty-seven Charter members mustered in by the Department Mustering Officer of the state department, A. E. Hammond, who installed the following officers elected for the first year:

W. H. Topping, Post Commander.
W. F. Zwickey, Senior Vice Commander.
T. A. Harris Junior Vice Commander.
W. H. Jennings, Adjutant.
K. D. Chase, Q. M.
L. B. Tooley, Surgeon.
A. M. Childs, Chaplain.
B. F. Zarracher, O. D.
W. R. Dunn, O. G.
Y. D. Carruth, Sergt. Major.

The number assigned to it by State Department was 90, and up to the present year the following named comrades have passed the Commander's Chair: W. H. Topping, T. A. Harris, O. H. Mix, B. F. Zarracher, O. H. Lucken, J. G. McGrew, and C. S. Spendley. Since its organization the Post has increased by muster and transfer card to 109 members, and during all these years no member has been lost by death, a record that perhaps no post in our state has equaled.

Through the organization of other posts in our part of the state and by transfers to our comrades who moved from among us our present number is 58.

The members have ever claimed the right to conduct the ceremonies, decorations and parade on Memoral day and the citizens of Crookston have unhesitatingly acknowledged that right and lent them their assistance and donated liberally of their means to that end so that the day has been fittingly observed each and every year since its organization. There has never been a Woman's Relief Corps organized here and we feel there is little need of any at least for the present, for the ladies of this place have ever held themselves in readiness to assist the soldiers in any of their undertakings when called upon or needed, and have lent valuable aid and assistance in times past by donations of flowers, arranging and decorating the halls, and furnishing music for the Decoration services, for all of which the Comrades are truly grateful.

This was listened to by the audience standing, the Post at "parade rest," and was followed by a brief, earnest prayer by Rev. O. H. Elmer. The choir then sang: "Tenting on The Old Camp Ground," which brought vividly to the mind of the old vet. the army "dog-tent" and the bivouac fire in the days when indeed we were "tenting to-night on the old camp ground," and war and desolation reigned supreme throughout the length and breadth of our beloved land.

This was followed by the address of the Rev. C. F. Sharpe, who briefly and eloquently outlined the object of the G. A. R. and some of the things it has accomplished, and we only regret our inability to capture the speech entire for the edification of those of our readers who were unable to be present to hear it. It was one of the finest speeches to which we have listened in many a day, a speech that did the heart of the old veterans much good and instilled into the hearts of the children and the youth a valuable lesson of patriotism.

At its close Commander Fontaine invited the audience to rise and join in singing "America," and the old building shook and quivered to the tune of the grand old anthem borne aloft on the sweet voices of the children, the cracked and weather-beaten voices of the old veterans and the cultured voices of the choir. The benediction was pronounced by the Rev. O. H. Elmer and the audience dispersed. Col. Cobham Post marching back to its quarters where an hour was spent in social converse and the weary old vets meandered to their several homes very much refreshed in spirit by the exercises.

KIND WORDS.

Barnesville Review: W. G. Cooke, publisher of The Polk County Journal, died on Wednesday, March 18th, at his home in Polk County. Mr. Cooke was one of the pioneers in journalism in the north part of the state. He helped to start a paper in Audubon, Becker County, in 1876. The next year he with his brother removed to Crookston where they have since published The Journal. His death was caused from a severe attack of La grippe which he contracted last winter.

Douglas County News: We regret to learn of the death, on March 18th, of W. G. Cooke, publisher of The Polk County Journal, at the age of about 37 years. He had been in the newspaper business in Minnesota since 1876. He was a gentleman whom it was a pleasure to meet and in his death the profession loses a shining light. His family have our sincerest sympathy.

Northfield News:—W. G. Cooke publisher of the Polk County Journal, died March 18, aged thirty-six. He was connected with The Journal fourteen years, and was universally respected for his good qualities.

Kittson Co. Enterprise:—It is with deep regret that we read the announcement of the death of W. G. Cooke publisher of the Polk County Journal, last week. Mr. Cooke has worked hard for the interests of the county in which he has so long lived and his loss will be keenly felt in that county. To the family and relatives the Enterprise extends its sympathy, yet what are words at such a time.

Mrs. E. E. Bangs and Miss Jennie Newland arrived on Sunday morning from a three months sojourn at Salt Lake City, Utah. Mrs. B. is very much improved in health and intends to return to Salt Lake City to live just as soon as she can close out her business interests here.

Mrs. J. B. Copeland received a telegram from Chicago on Tuesday evening of last week announcing that her father was dying. She left on the evening train for St. Paul and on Wednesday morning a telegram was received here announcing her father's death. Mr. Copeland, who was in St. Paul, went to Chicago.

Commissioner C. P. DeMers was down to attend the extra meeting of the County Board last week. C. P. proves a very faithful member—never misses a good meal of victuals nor a meeting of the Board. Says the farmers in his bailiwick are all making active preparations for a vigorous campaign all along the line this spring—will sow lots of wheat, barley and oats in the strong belief of good crops and good prices. He says county division is busted wide open—"oska spiel" this year.

On Tuesday of last week Register H. H. Dickmann took parson Elmer and a few friends and went out to the residence of John O'Breont, the object being to make John's last remaining daughter, Miss Amelia J. Mentzel, Mrs. H. H. Dickmann. The knot was duly tied and after a fine wedding breakfast the happy party returned to the city and had a happy time getting here. Those who were brave enough to tackle the country roads at this season of the year were: Mr. and Mrs. S. L. Collins, Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Palmer and Mr. and Mrs. Will Himmelsback. After a bountiful repast at the residence of Mr. S. L. Collins the happy couple took the evening train for St. Paul and other southern cities for a visit of a few days duration. The Journal unites with the many friends of the happy couple in congratulations.

WANTED.

A good girl to do house work on farm. Apply to [illegible] D. Childs, [illegible]

Benoit & Sylvester have got nicely settled in their new store on west Broadway and invite attention to their new drills on which they are doing a good deal of bragging—but they say the facts will warrant it all and more too. Go and see about that if you contemplate purchasing a drill this spring.

D. N. Harper writes The Journal that he has placed the Pillsbury wheat in the hands of A 1 farmers and expects that it will be the means of much good in better seed for the future. If the wheat is as he represents, it will indeed be the means of accomplishing great good in this county where much of it has been placed. Every one who gets it should take extra care to preserve it in its purity and prevent mixing.

POTATOES.

If you have a few potatoes to spare we will be glad to allow the highest market price on subscription. We can use from 25 to 50 bushels [illegible]

WHAT THEY SAY.

Capt. E. O. Davis: "Rev. Sharpe's speech to the boys on Monday evening was the finest oratorial effort I ever listened to in this city. What a contrast between the sentiments of such noble patriots and those held by the little snivelled up soldier haters."

O. H. Lucken: "Wasn't that speech of Mr. Sharpe's just a corker, though? How he did just pick the old vets up tenderly and just carefully sit 'em down so as not to stub their toes upon any rock they may have foundered upon since the war. My eyes, but it was a good one!"

Geo. Vine: "Had to do it, you know. Found that my business was growing to that extent that I had to have larger quarters. So I bought Steege out and here I am right on deck, next door to the post office, ready to supply anything and everything needed in my line. You may extend a cordial invitation to Journal readers to call and size me up."

Grand Forks Herald, April 7th. "Three ballots were cast in the third ward up till noon yesterday. Two judges and one clerk voting."

At the convention on Friday evening the following ticket was placed in the field:

For Mayor,
ALEXANDER McKINNON.
For Alderman at Large,
HALVOR STEENERSON.
For City Clerk,
E. C. CARRUTH.
For Treasurer,
L. C. COUVRETTE.
For Assessor,
D. JACOBUS.
For Justices,
C. O. CHRISTIANSON.
JOHN PATERSON.
For Constables,

Trefle Daoust was down from Lambert on Friday and dropped in to cheer The Journal man with a bit of the wherewithal. He says farmers are all encouraged to renewed efforts this spring and will put in lots of wheat, barley, oats and potatoes. Mr. D. intends to go into stock more, and will keep 15 to 20 cows for the cheese factory, as will many of his neighbors.

Services will be held in Christs Church at 11 a. m. and 730 p. m. Sunday the 12th inst also celebration of the Holy Communion in the morning, conducted by Archdeacon Appleby of St. Paul Minn.

Mr. Marin returned from the Red Lake country, last Thursday where he has been for some time scaling pine. Says there is not as much pine up their as has been represented and as for good soil the Indians have got all there is of it. He thinks they have non that will compare with Polk County soiln ayhow.

Grand Forks Herald:—Crookston will formally open her new opera house on the 13th inst. The Boston opera company will officiate. The building cost about $50,000. J. W. Ross the architect; B. O. Paulsness did the plumbing, and Boerth & Co. the decorating—all of whom hail from Grand Forks. Grand Forks congratulates her Minnesota sister. Both cities now have the most elegant opera houses in the northwest, outside of the large cities. A good delegation of Grand Forks people will visit Crookston to witness the initiatory performance.

Attention Ladies!

There will be a millinery opening at the store of Mrs. I. U. Jennings, on Robert street, on Friday and Saturday of this week. There will be on exhibition the very latest styles of millinery and the greatest variety from which to select just what you want. If you buy before looking at her exquisite patterns you will ever blame yourself. As to her low prices—go and see for yourselves.

All About Sowing.

It Is Discussed in All Its phases by Philosopher Reeve.

Minneapolis Times.

Park River, April 3.—'A sower went out to sow his seed, and as he sowed, behold, a whiskey jug rolled out from under his seat of his sower. What kind of a way is that to farm?"

This is the song of O. O'Reilly, proprietor of the Windsor house at Park River.

"What kind of a figure will prohibition cut in the next election?" was asked Mr. O'Reilly, as he sang in sweet cadences, "A sower went out to sow his seed."

"Well, I'll tell you. In my opinion, it will be as much of an issue as it was in the last campaign, and will carry the day. I have been a saloonkeeper a good part of my life, and I thank God today for prohibition. The last thing my mother ever said to me was, "that all the money I got out of whiskey and cards would do me no good.' The dear old lady was right. I see it now. One year, in a little town in Traill county, I took in $1,600, but you know card playing follows whiskey, and the misfortunes of the business are always equal to or greater than the profits.

"Then you know whiskey has a different effect on different men—some it puts ina good humor and some it makes quarrelsome. I always felt bound to abuse someone when I handled the stuff-and it is a wonder I have not been shot before this—I am glad it is out of the way. All the money I have taken in from it has done me no good, and I consider that I am two years behind in life for handling it—what does a farmer want with whisky? They all go home sober now. It is a terrible thing for a man to come to town and stay all day, and go home at night drunk to his wife and little children. Think of a farmer spending his time and money at the saloon and going home full of booze, when he ought to be sober and carry home shoes and food to his little ones. It is true, a few fellows have been closed up but on the whole Park River is better off. Messrs. McEnan and Dougherty are having a larger machine trade than ever. A sober man has more credit than a drunken one. Every farmer around Park River is feeling first rate and the prospects for a good crop the coming year were never better. And what in the world does a farmer want of whisky? Then I think it is time the people went in for prohibition for another reason. The whisky they sell nowdays is nothing more than a lot of poisonous compounds. If it was pure, and would not kill a man on sight, it would not be so bad. If prohibition is ever set aside, I hope the legislature will pass a law that no impure whiskey shall be sold. Talk about ammonia and alum in baking powder, and oleomargerine in butter. Give us pure drink as well as pure food, if they want us to stay on earth with them and be healthy and happy. Think of taking fine-cut tobacco, black-strap molasses, logwood, strychnine and alcohol and making a drink called whisky for the benefit of the farmers in North Dakota, and then claim they ought to cry after it. They better give them seed wheat. No, sir. I thank God that whisky has gone, and and that I have had a chance to get rid of it."

Mr. O'Reilly delivered his speech in earnest, and Park River shows every sign of thrift and prosperity.

Error of the Alliance.

Southerners Will Never be Paid for Their Emancipated Slaves

OFFICE OF THE
NEW YORK STATE FARMERS' ALLIANCE
CAMPVILLE, N. Y., March 31.

To The Editor of the Press:

No man of common honesty or sense can agree with the remarks of Professor Thomas N. Conrad, as reported in your excellent paper or March 2, favoring payment for the slaves, under any amendment of the federal Constitution or otherwise, emancipated by the war, and my views are such as prevail generally among the people of the Southern States.

It is true that the emancipation of the slaves impoverished their former owners, and so did the wasted fields, farms, fences, and in many instances burned dwellings, burned cotton, and destroyed food, provender and captured and seized animals; but war at best is always cruel and involves vast destruction of property, as well as of human life. These are things that cannot be paid for in money.

The war of the Rebellion of 1861-1865 was the greatest civil war of all ages, and the lives that were lost in it were far more valuable than the property that was destroyed, yet they never can and never will be paid for in money.

The Southern alliance, whose latent design seems to involve the destruction of the integrity, credit and unity and perpetuity of the nation—the first step deemed requisite in their progress being the defeat of the republican party—had as well dismiss from their minds all idea that the heirs of the former slave owners of the southern states will ever be paid for the slaves emancipated by the war under any amendment of the federal fundamental law or otherwise, for it will never be done.

The compensation of the country and its people for these vast sacrifices must be found in the priceless examples they furnish, and upon the grandest scale of the virtues of American patriotism, valor, manhood and devotion to what they sincerely belived their duty, on the part of those engaged in the great struggle. These, alone, are worth infinitely more then all they cost. They are of inestimable greater value to this, and to all coming generations, than all the money that will ever be paid into or paid out of the National Treasury. The sons of the Reublic in its future battles with foreign foes will have all the more confidence in themselves, and look with all the more disdain upon the array of its enemies, as they reflect that their forefathers fought at Chickamauga and Gettysburg, and that no soldiers ever surpassed them in valor; and they will be all the more worthy to stand under the flag of their country. Whatever sacrifices of blood and treasure may be necessary in the future war of this Republic with foreign nations its virtuous citizens, drawing inspiration from its past history, must and will feel that these cannot be greater then they have been, and must be cheerfully and manfully endured in order to uphold its glory and renown and promote its welfare.

But besides these and in other respects, its people must in the future, as they do now, find compensation for these great sacrifices of the last war in the benefits resulting to the general welfare, the closer union of the states and the unrivaled prosperity and glory of the greatest republic on the globe, and one which is the hope of oppressed humanity in every part of the world.

JOHN LIVINGSTON.
President New York State Farmers' Alliance.

Dr. O. Hagen, an elocutionist of renown will give an entertainment at the Opera House Thursday evening, April 9th under the auspices of the Crookston Literary Society. He will be assisted in a musical programe by members of the society. He comes highly recommended as the fellowing press notices indicate.

Toronto Saturday Night:—Mr O'Hagen is well nighperfect in his gesture and voice culture. His best selections are "Shamus O'Brien; King Robert of Sicily and a Critical Situation." Chatham Planet, "Mr. O'Hagen was the elocutionist of the evening, and it is sufficent to say that he will sustained his reputation of being one of the most accomplished elocutionist in the Province."

Under the Heel of A Trust.

The Sugar Trade of the Country Absolutely Controlled By the Trust Under a Recent Ruling.

St. Paul Dispatch.

Houston, Tex., April 3.—A very important communication has been received by a prominent planter in Houston, from the internal revenue department at Washington. The exact nature of the letter is not known, but it has been learned that it has reference to the new law giving a bounty of two cents per pound on all sugars of of a certain grade manufactured in the United State. The startling feature of the letter is the statement that the planters will be unable, under a certain construction of the law, to recover the bounty of 10 cents per pound if they manufacture what is known as seconds. A gent'eman who had seen the communication said the sugar trust, no doubt, had connived at the new law.

If this interpretation of the new law should not be changed or modified, said he, it will have the effect of preventing the planters from making sugars from seconds, which is the only produce they have which to enter into direct competition with the trust in control of the sugar business of the country, and give it the power to largely regulate prices. It can dictate the prices to be paid the planters for second and the price at which it will sell the refined sugar to the consumers. With this double barreled advantage the trust ought to make a good thing out of it.

For Sale Cheap

Four good brood mares and two good work horses cheap for cash or negotiable paper. Inquire of Knudson and Borlsug, at Alderman & Sylvester's livery stables

Todd County Argus:—The new sug schedule went into effect yesterday and just as soon as the merchants have disposed of the old stock of sugar on hand this most necessary article will be cheaper. It will add three pounds to the dollar's worth of granulated sugar and the purchaser will carry home sixteen pounds where a little more than a year ago he took home nine pounds. This last reduction is a result of the McKinley bill. A year hence when the good housewife gets her tinware cheaper sugar cheaper and the farmers buys his binding twine cheaper and gets his clothing just as cheap unless he is too stylish to wear anything except imported goods, there will be fewer maledictions pronounced on the McKinley bill. We confess that we begin to look at this measure in a different light than we did when it was passed.

Indian Depredation Claims.

Just before adjournment Congress passed an Indian Depredation law, that will probably put $50,000,000 in circulation. This law practically removes all restrictions and limitations, and every settler or his heirs can now get pay in full for all losses occasioned by Indians. Henry N. Copp, the well-known lawyer of Washington D. C., will send free of cost a copy of this law to all who will apply to them for the same.

Railroad Methods.

Western Rural.

There is no business enterprise like the railroad and no set of business men like railroad managers that so often refuse to pay their honest debts, or do it with such curt impudence. Men fail in business and while the principle of failure is, as we have sometime said grounded in dishonesty, most men who go into bankruptcy keenly feel the disgrace and unless bountifully endowed with cheek, hang their heads and feel that they are unworthy associates of upright, honorable men. Occasionally men feather their nests before announcing to creditors that payment is suspended, and are looked upon in commercial circles as the knaves which they are. But railroad men do things entirely different from other men. It is nothing more for railroad managers to default in payment of a debt than it is for them to eat their breakfast. It is likely that in the vast majority of such cases the leading men of the corporation have made thousand perhaps millions, out of the very road that announces its inability to pay its dividends. A road from which Gould or Vanderbilt has just made a million dollars is as likely to default in the payment of dividends as a road that has lost money all the time. We have now in mind a well known road that runs into Chicago, which, though doing all the business that its fine facilities enabled it to do and which made its managers rich paid no dividends for years. The stock of this road was largely held by poor people, but that made no difference to its managers. The stockholders might starve for all they care, so long as their own private fortunes were being built up. No man can harmonize the old failure of the Wabash with the fact that Gould has made millions of dollars out of it. Sometimes a dishonest man or company of men will transfer the title of their property to some trusted trustee who holds it for its owners while the process of swindling their creditors is going on to completion. But Gould and men like him are the only men who keep millions of property in their own name and refuse to pay paltry hundreds or thousands. Gould is a bankrupt to-day if he would pay his debts, and if he was an honest man he would turn over every dollar of his fortune, if it was necessary, to pay the debts of a road whose profits he has principally absorbed and which failed, even to the extent of not paying the labor employed upon it, under his management. When Gen. Grant met with financial disaster he made haste to devote his entire property to the satisfaction of the claims against him, and even Mrs. Grant gave up her property. That was in strict accordance with the principle of honesty, and nothing less would have satisfied the claim of those principles. In some quarters it was said that Mrs. Grant was foolish to make such a sacrifice, but that expression of opinion was no honor to those who made it and was a part of the monstrous prevalence of loose morals among a large class of our people. If a man owes a debt he is bound to pay it, if he values his reputation. He may be morally and not legally holden for the indebtedness or it may be questionable at times whether or not he is even morally liable. But if there is any doubt about it whatever, if he is not as sure that he is in nowise more responsible than would be a man who never heard of the matter, and was not in the remotest degree connected with it, it is his duty to sacrifice all he has to satisfy it.

But such a conception of honest duty is never found among railroad men. Their motto is to get all they can and keep all they get, and it would seem as if the public at large conclued that this was about right. Nobody will scarcely ever utter a word of suspicion as to Jay Gould's honesty, because he does not at least return the profits he has made from a road for the purpose of paying its debts and saving it from bankruptcy. [illegible] no general remark when the [illegible] nounces that on the first [illegible] several railroads de[illegible] payment of interest and [illegible] next week things appear to be [illegible] cordial [illegible] of course, and pass [illegible] dreams. But really thought, for they show a little plainer than the other startling feature of railroad management, what manner of men we have to deal with. They show that railroad managers are engaged in a game of robbery that takes in every chance; that they are utterly oblivious to everything but their own gain, and that they will really descend a little lower to make a dollar than any other class of men, except rum-sellers, will descend. The necessities of the widow and orphan usually appeal strongly to men. A man may be a pretty thorough rascal, but the helpless will cause him to pause and pity, if he is other than a railroad manager, or a keeper of a grog shop. There certainly can be no question that such classes of men need a strong hand upon them, and there can be no question that they would have one, if they did not possess a power that was worshipped. This is conspicuously true of both railroadmen and rum-sellers. The one has money, and the world rushes to the shrine of money, and falls on its knees in worship. The other possessess political power, and that is slavishly courted. And those two elements of our society are riding rough-shod over law. decency and the principles of honesty, doing every day what if a man without money or influence should do, would consign him to a felon's cell, and yet there is no legislature and but few newspapers that dare, or are inclined to say a word in remonstrance. The entire machinery of our government is at work to protect society against the depredations of small rascals, and if the rascals are only small enough the government succeeds in doing it. Our prisons are full of men who have stolen a few dollars or have been guilty of sleeping in the city parks because they had no bed to sleep in. But in our most elegant society and most conspicuous in commercial circles, leaders of all public movement, are the great rascals who have stolen millions and sleep in beds, safe from the eagle eye of the policeman, that were purchased by money that was filched from widows, orphans, industrious men and honorable men.

The world is largely wrong end up. Its judgment and moral sense are terribly warped. It is following the glitter of gold as a man follows the deceptive Jack o'lantern, and it is high time that it had turned round and took a good, square, honest and comprehensive view of things. It is time we had measured out justice to the big rascals, even if we are compelled to let the small ones go. If we have not enough justice to go round, it would be much better if we passed the man who is guilty of the unpardonable crime of being poor and paid attention to some who are unquestionably guilty of the crime of being rich. It is usually no crime to be rich. But sometimes it is. All the recognized thieves that ever prowled over New York City at midnight were never half as dangerous to society as one Jay Gould. Their depredations upon the rights and property of others are not near so extensive as his, and while they exert no influence whatever, his influence is great. Such men as he endanger the welfare of everybody in the land. There is no father who properly appreciates his responsibility toward his child who does not tremble as he thinks how great the admiration of his boy for Jay Gould will be as soon as he is old enough to read of the success of that distinguished financial cormorant. If there was no other reason why the fathers of this land should exert themselves to compel government to prevent the railroads from being used for an instrument of dishonest gain, regard for the welfare of the children should be sufficient. The youthful mind is early impressed with dash and glitter, and it makes no difference whether the dash and glitter is by bandits like the James brothers or bandits like Gould.

National Economist:—An exchange says that any measure calculated to benefit any one class is class legislation, and that as the sub-treasury plan is designed to help the farmers, therefore it is class legislation. Nothing could more completely misrepresent the purposes of the sub-treasury plan. It is not designed to help the farmer by giving him any class privilege, but to help him by stopping a class discrimination against him. There is now a discrimination against him by low prices in the fall when he is a seller, and high prices in the spring when he is a buyer in making his investment in crop. This results from the present fluctuation in the volume of money as compard to the demand in different seasons. Warehousing is not essential to the sub-treasury plan; it is only one method.

Mortgage Sale.

WHEREAS, ALBERT GILMOUR AND Jane Gilmour, his wife, of Polk County, State of Minnesota, as mortgagors, did, on the 8th day of July, A. D. 1887, duly execute and deliver to Josiah Upton, of the County of Ontario, State of New York their mortgage bearing date of June 25th, A. D. 1887, whereby they mortgaged to said mortgagee the following described lands situated in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, to-wit: The se¼ se¼ Section 6, ne¼ Section 7, and n½ nw¼ Section 8, Township 147, Range 44 west, containing 160 acres, to secure the payment of the sum of seven hundred and fifty dollars, with interest thereon, according to the conditions of one certain promissory note, with interest coupons attached, bearing even date with said mortgage, and made by said mortgagors to said mortgagee or order, which said mortgage was on the 8th day of July, A. D. 1887, at 5:30 o'clock p. m., duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for said County of Polk, in book 33 of mortgages, on pages 33-36; and

Whereas, default has been made in the payment of the sum of thirty-seven and 50-100 dollars due as interest on said mortgage on the 25th day of June, A. D. 1889, and on the further sum of thirty-seven and 50-100 dollars due as interest upon said mortgage on the 25th day of December, A. D. 1889, and on the further sum of thirty-seven and 50-100 dollars due as interest on said mortgage on the 25th day of June, A. D. 1890, and on the further sum of thirty-seven and 50-100 dollars due as interest thereon on the 25th day of December, A. D. 1890, and the said interest is still unpaid and due; and

Whereas, it was stipulated by and between the parties to said mortgage that if default should be made in any of the conditions or covenants therein contained on the part of the mortgagors to be kept and performed, that then and from thenceforth it shall be lawful for said mortgagee, his heirs, administrators, executors or assigns, to consider the whole sum hereby secured as immediately due and payable without notice to said mortgagors or any other party; and

Whereas, the said Josiah Upton, mortgagee, has exercised his option to consider and declare, and does hereby consider and declare the whole sum of money secured by said mortgage to be due and payable; and

Whereas, there is now due, and claimed to be due on said mortgage at the date of this notice the sum of nine hundred twenty-five and 23-100 dollars, and no proceedings have been instituted at law or otherwise to recover the same or any part thereof,

Now, therefore notice is hereby given that by virtue of a power of sale in said mortgage contained and therewith recorded, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the land therein described, which sale will be made by the Sheriff of Polk County, at the front door of the Court House, in the City of Crookston, in said County and State, on the 25th day of April, A. D. 1891, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon of that day, at public vendue, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay the sum due on said mortgage, together with taxes, if any, on said premises, and fifty dollars attorney's fees therein stipulated to be paid in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the date of sale as provided by law.

DEFAULT HAVING BEEN MADE IN THE payment of the sum of thirty-five dollars ($35.00) installment of interest, which became due and payable on the first day of December, A. D. 1888, and a further default having been made in the payment of the sum of thirty-five dollars ($35 00) installment of interest which became due and payable on the 1st day of December, A. D. 1889, and a further default having been made in the payment of the sum of thirty-five dollars ($35.00) installment of interest which became due and payable on the 1st day of December, A. D. 1890, upon a certain mortgage, made, executed and delivered by John K. Ostgord and Betsy Ostgord his wife, of Polk County and State of Minnesota, mortgagors, to The Netherlands American Land Company, of Amsterdam, Holland, mortgagee, bearing date the 10th day of June, A. D. 1887, and duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the 13th day of June, A. D. 1887, at 3:00 o'clock p. m., in volume "32" of mortgages, on pages 190 and 191.

And whereas a further default has been made in the conditions of said mortgage by the mortgagors failing and neglecting to pay the taxes assessed against, and levied upon, said premises covered by said mortgage prior to the date of the sale of lands for the payment of taxes, and the mortgagee, to protect the lien of its said mortgage, was compelled to pay and on the 4th day of May, A. D. 1889, did pay, in satisfaction of the taxes then due and delinquent on the said premises the sum of nineteen and six hundreths dollars ($19.06), and on the 31st day of March, A. D. 1890, did pay, in satisfaction of the taxes then due and delinquent on the said premises the sum of twenty-two and three hundreths dollars ($22.03); and the said defaults having each continued for a period of more than thirty days, the whole sum secured by said mortgage is hereby declared to be due and payable, as stipulated in said mortgage in case of a failure to comply with the conditions thereof; and that by reason of such defaults and declaration, there is claimed to be due and payable on said mortgage at the date of this notice the sum of five hundred twenty-three and eighty hundreths dollars ($523.80), and no action or proceeding at law or otherwise has been instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and by virtue of the statute in such case made and provided., said mortgage will be foreclosed, and the premises described in and conveyed thereby, viz: The east half (e½) of the northeast quarter (ne¼) and east half (e½) of the southeast quarter (se¼) of Section three (3) in Township one hundred forty-seven (147) Range forty-five (45), containing one hundred and fifty-nine and 50-100 (159.50) acres, more or less, according to the United States Government survey thereof, together with the hereditaments and appurtenances, will be sold a public auction to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt, interest, taxes, and twenty five dollars as attorney's fees, stipulated in said mortgage to be paid in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; which sale will be made at the front door of the Court House in Crookston, in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, by the Sheriff of said County of Polk, at the hour of two o'clock p. m. on the 14th day of April, A. D. 1891, subject to redemption at any time within one year, in manner provided by law.

GOOD ADVICE

To the Farmer.

BY A FARMER'S BOY.

FRED W. DAVIS.

A railroad man gives good advice,
To the farmers of our land.
There isn't a happier people
Than the farmers as a band.

"Keep live stock in variety,"
He says, and tries to teach
Us poor ignorant farmers
How to "grow flax and grow rich."

We need "ten thousand incubators,"
And as many "scutching machines,"
And we need not live in poverty,
If we "grow onions and beans."

How happy may the farmer be,
After working from sun to sun,
If he will play through the hours of night
By making the scutcher fun.

And happy might the housewife be,
If she'd a spinning wheel obtain
And work all night "making binding twine,"
To bind the golden grain.

We have "no time for politics,"
"Insects" take up our time,
We leave that to the editors
Or the Great Northern R. R. line.

Our children need not go to school,
They can get their learning later,
They have all that they can do
To "attend to the incubator."

Happy is the farmer,
Because happy is his lot,
And every prosperous farmer
Has "a fowl within his pot."

But he can't afford to celebrate
The fourth day of July,
When his "onion patch" is smothered
By pig-weeds, near knee high.

Cattle raising is a paying thing,
While beef is up so high,
It is worth two cents per pound now,
T'will be one cent bye-and-bye.

And now I wish to end my rhyme
By giving some good advice,
So I'll say: "Buy an incubator,"
No matter what's the price."

EUCLID, Minn., 1891.

TO THE EDITORS AND PUBLISHERS ASSOCIATION:—Mr. F. C. Whitney, of the Great Northern, has seen fit to give you a pointer as to what you should say to the farmers. I wish to add a few remarks as I am an old farmer, a farmer from way back in the good old pod augur days.

First, in regard to bringing in new immigration to Minnesota; by all means we must have a new set of farmers in this country in order to do anything, for the ones that are here now are about "played out," that is to say they have spent all the money they brought here and have mortgaged their property for all it is worth, so you see we need a new lot of farmers or the railroads and money loaners can do no more business. "Farmers, keep out of politics!" Oh yes, keep out of politics and stick to your onions, except on election days and then go and vote for the grand old party, half of you, the other half vote for the grand old democratic party; that is the way to get refrom. Don't stop to talk with a friend, but get back to your onion patch, for if you should stop to talk a moment you might get an idea in your head, and ideas are bad things for the farmers, besides your onion patch might suffer.

Next, tell them to raise flax and pull it and scutch it and spin binding twine by hand. Why, there was a man somewhere around St. Paul who raised and pulled six acres of flax and manufactured it up at a great profit, and it did not interfere in the least with his other work. Tell him he is the King of Liars. Don't tell the farmers to stop and think a minute and see how long it would take a man to pull and prepare six acres of flax; that might put a damper on it; don't tell them that our falls are very dry and the flax would not rot so they could scutch it. There has of late been a great deal written about how to make the boys stick to the farm. Now we have it; get each one of your boys one of Jim Hill's scutching machines and set them to scutching flax, and I will bet a cent that they will stick to the farm, for if a boy ever loved anything it will be a scutching machine, and if your wives are a little downhearted and feel that their lot is a hard one, get them a spinning wheel and set them to spinning binding twine; that will put a smile on their faces, and in the fall of the year, after the crops are all sold and the debts partially paid, your family without clothes, the cold weather pinching their limbs, and they feel downhearted and sad, you set them to pulling flax and it will do your heart good to see how their countenances will brighten up, and when their backs begin to grow crooked and their heads to ache, and they want to know what this is all for, simply tell them, so that Mr. Whitney's and Mr. Jim Hill's daughters may wear diamonds and dress in silk and satin and fare sumptuously, and that will take the kinks out of their backs. But don't forget to tell the farmers to keep out of politics; tell them to make butter for there is money in butter. Why, I made a three gallon jar of butter and shipped it 14 miles on Jim Hill's road and did not have to pay only thirty cents freight; don't tell them to figure up and see how much it would have cost if I had shipped it to St. Paul, distance 300 miles, as it might have a discouraging effect, and you must avoid such things. Grow potatoes. Yes, by all means, grow potatoes and ship them to St. Paul and sell them for 25 cents per bushel; don't tell them the freight is so high it won't pay; don't tell them that the reason potatoes are so high this year in St. Paul is because potatoes were a blank failure last season, for they might stop and take time to reason this way: Now, if I plant ten acres of potatoes and get a good crop, the price will be low and they will not bring enough to pay the freight, and I will get left; or if I have a failure of crop I am left. Oh yes, by all means tell them to raise potatoes. Go back to the good old days; sell your mower for old iron; cut your grass with a scythe, rake it by hand; don't spoil your boys by letting them ride on a mower; do your plowing with a walking plow—it spoils boys to ride a gang plow and plow two furrows at a time; you will get your plowing done too soon and your boys will have time to do a little thinking, and just so sure as you give the boys time to think, just so sure they will leave the farm. Yes, get back to the good old days.

Raise sheep—put emphasis on raise. They tell the farmers it is their only salvation to go into sheep, but don't tell anybody that the farmers have no money to buy sheep with; don't tell them that the men who bought sheep last fall on time are heartily sick of it and wish they had not done it. Tell the farmers when they have no seed grain to sow, and feel blue because they have not any feed for their teams, their last chance is to scutch flax. Tell the farmers to go into small things for the merchant makes his best profit on small things—say 150 or 200 per cent; but do not tell him that the merchant did not raise these small things, but bought them. You see it makes a wide difference whether you raise an article or buy it to sell.

Tell the farmers to raise beans; yes, beans, for they are $2 per bushel in St. Paul. Don't tell them that the frost is sure to catch them almost every season, and be sure and not tell them that beans are worth 4@6 cents per pound here, for that would show that freight was high from St. Paul here.

Tell the farmers to take better care of their machinery; they should take some poles and straw and make a shed and put them under; but for goodness sake don't say that we can scarcely get enough poles for firewood to keep our families from freezing, and what few poles we do get we have to steal from railroad lands, for we haven't money to buy any with.

Tell the farmers to raise eggs. That is a good idea, but don't tell them that a hen in this country is froze up solid six months in the year, and it takes her six months to get warmed up ready for business.

Tell the farmers to keep bees. That is a good one; but don't tell them you never saw a bee in this part of the country.

Tell the farmers to go back to the good old way of doing things; not to buy seeders and shoe press drills, but to put the grain in a sack and take it upon their back and plod through the mud and sow it by hand. They will all take to that, for it is nothing but fun, for I have tried it; don't tell them that I did not like it and bought a shoe drill.

There is another thing I would like to speak about. We all know that a very large per cent of the females in our insane asylums is composed of farmers wives; we also know that the cause of insanity is too much blood in the system. You tell the farmers to plant a good sized onion patch and when their wives are badly run down and begin to show signs of insanity to take them out in a good hot day, when it is warm and calm and let their wives get down on their hands and knees and weed onions and the festive little mosquito will come and sing them a pretty little song and put their gentle little bill into their necks and faces and draw all the surplus blood from their veins; by so doing the farmers will save the doctor's bill and get his onions weeded at the same time. Some farmers may think this is a small thing, but Mr. Whitney tells us to look after the small things.

Tell the farmers to keep stock. Yes, I think there is profit in keeping stock. I have a neighbor that keeps stock. He with his farm team is 150 miles from here hauling logs for the Indians. (I wish I was an Indian) and his wife is at home taking care of the stock. She drives them three miles for water, feeds them and cleans the stables and takes care of five small children. Be sure to tell them to keep stock.

Tell Jim Hill's immigrants to be sure and bring one of Jim Hill's scutching machines; it would be a good plan to bring an extra one to loan to their neighbors, for there is none in this part of the country, and if the boys should see a scutching machine they would fall in love with it and want to borrow it. The boys would just fall in love with a scutching machine.

Tell Jim Hill's immigrants to be sure and bring all the girls, old maids buxom widows, grass widows, &c., for females are at a premium here. I want one very bad; I will agree to keep lots of cows so she can make butter to sell; I will get her a spinning wheel so she can spin binding twine; I will set off five acres for her an onion patch, and if she has a boy brother I will get him one of Jim Hill's scutching machines. That ought to get her sure. Oh, I am no hog.

Don't tell Jim Hill's immigrants that if we could have had freight rates that were reasonable and had not been robbed by the elevator system, that we would have been out of debt and would have no need of his scutching machine, for if you told them that, it might make the railroads mad, and a mad railroad is a very dangerous thing. No, boys, don't monkey with the business end of a railroad.

Tell the immigrants that farming pays in this country. I have a neighbor who came here eight years ago, a young man from the state of Maine, with $500 cash and he has been farming, and when he settled up this fall he was only $1,700 worse off than nothing, all because he did not have an onion patch and a scutching machine. I have another neighbor who came here ten years ago and he did not have anything but a wife and now he has eight children; so you see he has got ahead considerably. Yes, this is a great country for children.

Tell the immigrants to bring with them seed potatoes and seed oats, for oats are worth 75 cents per bushel and none for sale. The potato crop was a failure last year and the year before; also have not had a crop of oats for two years.

Yes, editors, we need immigrants. Why not send down to New Orleans and get some Italians; they seem to have an over supply down there.

Tell the immigrants that this is a banana country, the ground only freezes six feet deep in the winter. Now I want you to be sure and tell the farmers to keep out of politics; the farmers went into politics last fall and [illegible] of farmers to the legislature and they have passed a law lowering the rate of interest 2 per cent and it is sure to ruin all the bankers and money loaners, and the country will be sure to go to the dogs. Yes, farmers going into politics is a bad thing. Stick to your onion patch and Jim Hill's scutching machine.

You may have noticed that I lay particular stress on the onion patch and scutching machine. Well, I will tell you how that comes. My father used to have the onion patch and the scutching machine way back in Luzerne Co., Pa.. I can remember fondly to this day how I used to love the onion patch when I was a boy. I can hear him now say: "Well, if you have got through milking and feeding the pigs and hens, you may go out and rest yourself by weeding onions or scutching flax," and I can tell you I was tickled; and I can remember how the bob-o-links used to come and sit on the weeds and sing to me. Oh, those were days of joy—days of my childhood. How I pity a boy now-a-days who has to ride a mower or a gang plow and has no onion patch or scutching machine.

Tell Jim's immigrants they need not bring along any household goods, farming tools or teams; all they will need is money to buy up the chattel mortgages and they can step in at one door while the present occupant will go out at the other door. And, lastly, tell Jim's immigrants to be sure and bring along a barrel of dried apples for they will need to live very cheaply, and the cheapest way we have found to live is to eat dried apples for breakfast, drink cold water for dinner and swell up for supper. We have been living that way for three years and it worked well till we got out of dried apples, and now we are stuck.

Tell Jim Hill's immigrants they need not bring any flour with them, for the millers have entered into a combine so that they are able to sell flour to the farmers as cheap as it can be bought in the city of New York; and bran is nearly as cheap as flour. Our millers are whole-souled fellows with a big heart.

GEORGE EASBEY.

The Grand Army.

The Press.

At the time of its organization the Grand Army of the Republic was intended to be more than an association of veteran soldiers. Twenty-five years ago the smoke of battle still dimmed the horizon, and the work of reconstruction was often in peril of disaster. The Rebellion was dead, but the spirit of rebellion was living, active and defiant. A vast conspiracy was in embryo, a conspiracy intended to do, under masks and in the dark, what open warfare had failed to accomplish. It was at this most difficult period that the former soldiers of the Union, most of them in fresh and vigorous manhood, banded together to defend and uphold what the Union armies had won, and to form a fraternal order whose purposes were mutual aid and benefit.

A quarter of a century has rolled over the Grand Army of the Republic. The Union is no longer in danger. The great commanders have gone to rest, and a multitude of those who followed them have answered the final taps. The silver locks and furrowed faces among the survivors tell of advancing years, although many who were only boys in the war are but middle aged men to-day. Another generation has risen, knowing only by hearsay of the terrors and trials of that greatest of wars.

The veterans are numerous still, but every recurring Decoration day sees their numbers diminished, and, as years accumulate, death wields the sickle with a busier hand. But it is a grand organization yet, in numbers as well as in name, and it will still be grand, although not in numbers, when a quarter of a century hence the remnant of white haired survivors will totter along striving to keep time to the music that thrills with memories of the glorious past.

Azilda Beaudry, the prisoner serving a life sentence at Stillwater, has been pardoned by Gov. Merriam. She had served eight years in prison.

Azilda Beaudry was found guilty of the murder of her husband in 1882, near Warren, in Marshall county. It seems she had once been the sweetheart of Camil Roy, but quarreled with him and married Beaudry. One night three the were together, a quarrel ensued and Beaudry was killed. The woman was accused of being an accessory, but on the stand she pleaded guilty to the charge of murder. It was always claimed that she did this through ignorance of the English language, she being a French woman, and that all the court expected was manslaughter. Roy is still in prison at Stillwater.

Municipal Bonds As A Basis For Money.

Prairie Farmer.

Under the caption "The Farmer and the Banks," in The Prairie Farmer of March 7, the writer admits that "there is room for improvement" in our system of finance. Let us see how it might be improved.

Suppose Uncle Sam did the proper thing in borrowing money and issuing bonds drawing interest for payment. But is not the payment of said interest and principal according to contract, the whole duty of the Government to its creditors? I assert that it is no part of our duty (but an injustice to all other citizens) to specially favor the owners of Government bonds; who, by the way, may or may not be the persons who made the loans to the Government, by making those bonds the only basis for issuing additional money.

If it is a fact that evidence of debt, backed by good and sufficient security, is the best basis (aside from gold and silver) for paper money, why not extend it to all municipal bonds? This is the improvement I have to suggest. No one says the National bank note is not good money, but the trouble is it costs the people too much, and we have not enough of them. What I suggest is not a change of system but an extension, and indirectly a modification, of the one we have tried and proved. Doubtless there are other things that might be used as a basis, but confining our remarks to bonds as the specific basis instead of allowing the holder of Government bonds the sole monopoly of this basis for banking, and thus directly increasing the value of their property, and indirectly to control the money of the country, it might, we trust, hold all bonds at par or at least make one man's money as good as another's. The banker, except to the extent that he is already an owner of Government bonds, would share in the benefits, as his basis would probably not cost him twenty-five per cent above par. All banks would become national banks, more money be issued, securing the desired increase of the circulating medium, lowering the rate of interest and resulting in the decrease of the people's debts.

NOTICE

Of Change of Boundaries of the St. Cloud and Duluth Land Districts in the State of Minnesota.

Notice is hereby given that the President of the United States, in pursuance to law, has, by Executive Order dated February 27th, 1891, directed that the following described lands be transferred from the St. Cloud land district to the Duluth land district in the State of Minnesota: Commencing at a point where the line between ranges 23 and 24 west of the 4th principal meridian intersects the northern boundary of the State; thence south along said range line to the southeast corner of township 53 north, of range 24 west; thence west following the course of the Mississippi River to a point where it intersects the line between ranges 29 and 30 west of the 5th principal meridian; thence north along the line between the counties of Itasca and Beltrami to the northern boundary of the State; thence east along said northern boundary to the place of beginning.

Further notice of the precise time when the land officers at Duluth will be in readiness to receive applications for the lands hereby transferred will be given by the Register and Receiver at Duluth by publication.

Given under my hand at the city of Washington, this 3d day of March, A. D. 1891.

Grand Forks Plaindealer.

It is just as a prominent farmer near here say: "We have the richest soil in the country." I have been in about every State in the Union and I am certain the soil in the Red River Valley is the richest I have found." This is the testimony of a practical farmer who has tested the soil in the East, South and in California, and he spoke with no idea that he was addressing a newspaper man. It is the truth, and the country is finding it out. After a few years we shall have no occasion to invite immigration. The fame of the Red River Valley will bring crowds here. Those who have acres in this section have property that will appreciate [illegible]

No Presidential Candidate.

Jery Simpson Thinks the Farmers Will Have None.

St. Paul Daily Globe.

New York, April 6.—Jerry Simpson, who sprang into fame as "the sockless statesman of Kansas," has been received in New York with considerable eclat. He asserted in a number of his speeches, and it is a generally recognized fact that he did not officially represent the National Farmers' Alliance. His economic theories are not in thorough accord with the rather non-committal status of that organization. In connection with these topics a reporter has just called upon the leading representative of the Farmers' Alliance in this city. The first question propounded was as follows;

"The National Farmers' Alliance is known to be organized in the Western and Southern states. The order is now attracting attention in this part of the country. What are the objects of the Alliance so far as the Empire state is concerned?"

"Col. Polk president of the National Farmers' Alliance, has decided to begin the organization in New York state on the 22d day of April. He will send into the state thirty and forty organizers, who will go to each county and do missionary work among the farmers thereof. Previous to that time the order will place itself upon the best basis possible in Pennsylvania."

"What is this organization? Is it a secret or is it based somewhat on the foundations employed in Masonry?"

"Yes."

"What are of its objects?"

"To alleviate the financial condition of the farmers and for his social elevation."

"What are its political ends?"

"That is for the future to decide."

'Suppose a farmer in Orleans county, New York, desires to join the Alliance. Is he bound in the future to follow the lead of the order in all public questions, such as tariff agitation and silver legislation?"

"He would have nothing to say regarding the policy of the order on these topics."

"Then the majority rule prevails in the organization?"

"Yes."

"On the 19th of May will there not be a meeting of the Knights of Labor and other labor organizations, including, perhaps, delegates from the Farmers' Alliance in Cincinnati, O.?"

"Yes."

"Will not the great question there be as to whether a ticket supported by the agricultural and industrial organizations of the country should not be nominated in 1892?',

"Yes."

"Are the leaders of the Farmers' Alliance in thorough sympathy with the third party movement?"

"Not at all."

"What do you mean by that?"

"I mean to say that President Polk, of the National Farmer's Alliance, and Mr. McConnel, chairman of the executive committee, oppose the gathering at Cincinnati, on the grounds that a great responsibility rests on the organization as regards political action."

"What, so far as you know, is the general feeling of the order in regard to the nomination of a presidential candidate in 1892?"

"I am convinced that no such nomination will be made by the Farmers' Alliance.',

"Have the leaders of either of the great political parties made overtures to the Alliance looking to a combination whereby the demands of the farmers can be recognized in national legislation, providing the combination should prove successful at the polls?"

Sow Wheat.

Grand Forks Plaindealer.

It is estimated that the shortage of wheat in Russia and France this season will not be less than 160,000,000 bushels. The London Standard publishes a long and careful review of the agricultural lookout. It says that the steady rise in wheat revives the hopes of the English farmer, adding that wheat will probably reach the highest prices in many years, the principal cause being the failure of foregin crops. India has a light crop. The outlook is thus encouraging to the American wheat grower. Europe will need all the surplus that our farmers can produce, according to the above, and the Red River Valley should do its very best. Plant with care and see how well we can do.

GOOD ADVICE

To the Farmer.

BY A FARMER'S BOY.

FRED W. DAVIS.

A railroad man gives good advice,
To the farmers of our land.
There isn't a happier people
Than the farmers as a band.

"Keep live stock in variety,"
He says, and tries to teach
Us poor ignorant farmers
How to "grow flax and grow rich."

We need "ten thousand incubators,"
And as many "scutching machines,"
And we need not live in poverty,
If we "grow onions and beans."

How happy may the farmer be,
After working from sun to sun,
If he will play through the hours of night
By making the scutcher run.

And happy might the housewife be,
If she'd a spinning wheel obtain
And work all-night "making binding twine,"
To bind the golden grain.

We have "no time for politics,"
"Insects" take up our time,
We leave that to the editors
Or the Great Northern R. R. line.

Our children need not go to school,
They can get their learning later,
They have all that they can do
To "attend to the incubator."

Happy is the farmer,
Because happy is his lot,
And every prosperous farmer
Has "a fowl within his pot."

But he can't afford to celebrate
The fourth day of July,
When his "onion patch" is smothered
By pig-weeds, near knee high.

Cattle raising is a paying thing,
While beef is up so high,
It is worth two cents per pound now,
T'will be one cent bye-and-bye.

And now I wish to end my rhyme
By giving some good advice,
So I'll say: "Buy an incubator,"
No matter what's the price."

EUCLID, Minn., 1891.

TO THE EDITORS AND PUBLISHERS ASSOCIATION:—Mr. F. O. Whitney, of the Great Northern, has seen fit to give you a pointer as to what you should say to the farmers. I wish to add a few remarks as I am an old farmer, a farmer from way back in the good old pod augur days.

First, in regard to bringing in new immigration to Minnesota, by all means we must have a new set of farmers in this country in order to do anything, for the ones that are here now are about "played out," that is to say they have spent all the money they brought here and have mortgaged their property for all it is worth, so you see we need a new lot of farmers or the railroads and money loaners can do no more business. "Farmers, keep out of politics!" Oh yes, keep out of politics and stick to your onions, except on election days and then go and vote for the grand old party, half of you, the other half vote for the grand old democratic party; that is the way to get refrom. Don't stop to talk with a friend, but get back to your onion patch, for if you should stop to talk a moment you might get an idea in your head, and ideas are bad things for the farmors, besides your onion patch might suffer.

Next, tell them to raise flax and pull it and scutch it and spin binding twine by hand. Why, there was a man somewhere around St. Paul who raised and pulled six acres of flax and manufactured it up at a great profit, and it did not interfere in the least with his other work. Tell him he is the King of Liars. Don't tell the farmers to stop and think a minute and see how long it would take a man to pull and prepare six acres of flax; that might put a damper on it; don't tell them that our falls are very dry and the flax would not rot so they could scutch it. There has of late been a great deal written about how to make the boys stick to the farm. Now we have it; get each one of your boys one of Jim Hill's scutching machines and set them to scutching flax, and I will bet a cent that they will stick to the farm, for if a boy ever loved anything it will be a scutching machine, and if your wives are a little downhearted and feel that their lot is a hard one, get them a spinning wheel and set them to spinning binding twine; that will put a smile on their faces, and in the fall of the year, after the crops are all sold and the debts partially paid, your family without clothes, the cold weather pinching their limbs, and they feel downhearted and sad, you set them to pulling flax and it will do your heart good to see how their countenances will brighten up, and when their backs begin to grow crooked and their heads to ache, and they want to know what this is all for, simply tell them, so that Mr. Whitney's and Mr. Jim Hill's daughters may wear diamonds and dress in silk and satin and fare sumptuously, and that will take the kinks out of their backs. But don't forget to tell the farmers to keep out of politics; tell them to make butter for there is money in butter. Why, I made a three gallon jar of butter and shipped it 14 miles on Jim Hill's road and did not have to pay only thirty cents freight; don't tell them to figure up and see how much it would have cost if I had shipped it to St. Paul, distance 300 miles, as it might have a discouraging effect, and you must avoid such things. Grow potatoes. Yes, by all means, grow potatoes and ship them to St. Paul and sell them for 25 cents per bushel; don't tell them the freight is so high it won't pay; don't tell them that the reason potatoes are so high this year in St. Paul is because potatoes were a blank failure last season, for they might stop and take time to reason this way: Now, if I plant ten acres of potatoes and get a good crop, the price will be low and they will not bring enough to pay the freight, and I will get left; or if I have a failure of crop I am left. Oh yes, by all means tell them to raise potatoes. Go back to the good old days; sell your mower for old iron; cut your grass with a scythe, rake it by hand; don't spoil your boys by letting them ride on a mower; do your plowing with a walking plow—it spoils boys to ride a gang plow and plow two furrows at a time; you will get your plowing done too soon and your boys will have time to do a little thinking, and just so sure as you give the boys time to think, just so sure they will leave the farm. Yes, get back to the good old days.

Raise sheep—put emphasis on raise. They tell the farmers it is their only salvation to go into sheep, but don't tell anybody that the farmers have no money to buy sheep with; don't tell them that the men who bought sheep last fall on time are heartily sick of it and wish they had not done it. Tell the farmers when they have no seed grain to sow, and feel blue because they have not any feed for their teams, their last chance is to scutch flax. Tell the farmers to go into small things for the merchant makes his best profit on small things—say 150 or 200 per cent; but do not tell him that the merchant did not raise these small things, but bought them. You see it makes a wide difference whether you raise an article or buy it to sell.

Tell the farmers to raise beans; yes, beans, for they are $2 per bushel in St. Paul. Don't tell them that the frost is sure to catch them almost every season, and be sure and not tell them that beans are worth 4@6 cents per pound here, for that would show that freight was high from St. Paul here.

Tell the farmers to take better care of their machinery; they should take some poles and straw and make a shed and put them under; but for goodness sake don't say that we can scarcely get enough poles for firewood to keep our families from freezing, and what few poles we do get we have to steal from railroad lands, for we haven't money to buy any with.

Tell the farmers to raise eggs. That is a good idea, but don't tell them that a hen in this country is froze up solid six months in the year, and it takes her six months to get warmed up ready for business.

Tell the farmers to keep bees. That is a good one; but don't tell them you never saw a bee in this part of the country.

Tell the farmers to go back to the good old way of doing things; not to buy seeders and shoe press drills, but to put the grain in a sack and take it upon their back and plod through the mud and sow it by hand. They will all take to that, for it is nothing but fun, for I have tried it; don't tell them that I did not like it and bought a shoe drill.

There is another thing I would like to speak about. We all know that a very large per cent of the females in our insane asylums is composed of farmers wives; we also know that the cause of insanity is too much blood in the system. You tell the farmers to plant a good sized onion patch and when their wives are badly run down and begin to show signs of insanity to take them out in a good hot day, when it is warm and calm and let their wives get down on their hands and knees and weed onions and the festive little mosquito will come and sing them a pretty little song and put their gentle little bill into their necks and faces and draw all the surplus blood from their veins; by so doing the farmers will save the doctor's bill and get his onions weeded at the same time. Some farmers may think this is a small thing, but Mr. Whitney tells us to look after the small things.

Tell the farmers to keep stock. Yes, I think there is profit in keeping stock. I have a neighbor that keeps stock. He with his farm team is 150 miles from here hauling logs for the Indians. (I wish I was an Indian) and his wife is at home taking care of the stock. She drives them three miles for water, feeds them and cleans the stables and takes care of five small children. Be sure to tell them to keep stock.

Tell Jim Hill's immigrants to be sure and bring one of Jim Hill's scutching machines; it would be a good plan to bring an extra one to loan to their neighbors, for there is none in this part of the country, and if the boys should see a scutching machine they would fall in love with it and want to borrow it. The boys would just fall in love with a scutching machine.

Tell Jim Hill's immigrants to be sure and bring all the girls, old maids buxom widows, grass widows, &c., for females are at a premium here. I want one very bad; I will agree to keep lots of cows so she can make butter to sell; I will get her a spinning wheel so she can spin binding twine; I will set off five acres for her an onion patch, and if she has a boy brother I will get him one of Jim Hill's scutching machines. That ought to get her sure. Oh, I am no hog.

Don't tell Jim Hill's immigrants that if we could have had freight rates that were reasonable and had not been robbed by the elevator system, that we would have been out of debt and would have no need of his scutching machine, for if you told them that, it might make the railroads mad, and a mad railroad is a very dangerous thing. No, boys, don't monkey with the business end of a railroad.

Tell the immigrants that farming pays in this country. I have a neighbor who came here eight years ago, a young man from the state of Maine, with $500 cash and he has been farming, and when he settled up this fall he was only $1,700 worse off than nothing, all because he did not have an onion patch and a scutching machine. I have another neighbor who came here ten years ago and he did not have anything but a wife and now he has eight children; so you see he has got ahead considerably. Yes, this is a great country for children.

Tell the immigrants to bring with them seed potatoes and seed oats, for oats are worth 75 cents per bushel and none for sale. The potato crop was a failure last year and the year before; also have not had a crop of oats for two years.

Yes, editors, we need immigrants. Why not send down to New Orleans and get some Italians? they seem to have an over-supply down there.

Tell the immigrants that this is a banana country, the ground only freezes six feet deep in the winter. Now I want you to be sure and tell the farmers to keep out of politics; the farmers went into politics last fall and [illegible] of farmers to the legislature and they have passed a law lowering the rate of interest 2 per cent and it is sure to ruin all the bankers and money loaners, and the country will be sure to go to the dogs. Yes, farmers going into politics is a bad thing. Stick to your onion patch and Jim Hill's scutching machine.

You may have noticed that I lay particular stress on the onion patch and scutching machine. Well, I will tell you how that comes. My father used to have the onion patch and the scutching machine way back in Luzerne Co., Pa. I can remember fondly to this day how I used to love the onion patch when I was a boy. I can hear him now say: "Well, if you have got through milking and feeding the pigs and hens, you may go out and rest yourself by weeding onions or scutching flax," and I can tell you I was tickled; and I can remember how the bob-o-links used to come and sit on the weeds and sing to me. Oh, those were days of joy—days of my childhood. How I pity a boy now-a-days who has to ride a mower or a gang plow and has no onion patch or scutching machine.

Tell Jim's immigrants they need not bring along any household goods, farming tools or teams; all they will need is money to buy up the chattel mortgages and they can step in at one door while the present occupant will go out at the other door. And, lastly, tell Jim's immigrants to be sure and bring along a barrel of dried apples for they will need to live very cheaply, and the cheapest way we have found to live is to eat dried apples for breakfast, drink cold water for dinner and swell up for supper. We have been living that way for three years and it worked well till we got out of dried apples, and now we are stuck.

Tell Jim Hill's immigrants they need not bring any flour with them, for the millers have entered into a combine so that they are able to sell flour to the farmers as cheap as it can be bought in the city of New York; and bran is nearly as cheap as flour. Our millers are whole-souled fellows with a big heart.

GEORGE EASBEY.

The Grand Army.

The Press.

At the time of its organization the Grand Army of the Republic was intended to be more than an association of veteran soldiers. Twenty-five years ago the smoke of battle still dimmed the horizon, and the work of reconstruction was often in peril of disaster. The Rebellion was dead, but the spirit of rebellion was living, active and defiant. A vast conspiracy was in embryo, a conspiracy intended to do, under masks and in the dark, what open warfare had failed to accomplish. It was at this most difficult period that the former soldiers of the Union, most of them in fresh and vigorous manhood, banded together to defend and uphold what the Union armies had won, and to form a fraternal order whose purposes were mutual aid and benefit.

A quarter of a century has rolled over the Grand Army of the Republic. The Union is no longer in danger. The great commanders have gone to rest, and a multitude of those who followed them have answered the final taps. The silver locks and furrowed faces among the survivors tell of advancing years, although many who were only boys in the war are but middle aged men to-day. Another generation has risen, knowing only by hearsay of the terrors and trials of that greatest of wars.

The veterans are numerous still, but every recurring Decoration day sees their numbers diminished, and, as years accumulate, death wields the sickle with a busier hand. But it is a grand organization yet, in numbers as well as in name, and it will still be grand, although not in numbers, when a quarter of a century hence the remnant of white haired survivors will totter along striving to keep time to the music that thrills with memories of the glorious past.

AZILDA SET FREE.

Executive Clemency Exercised in Behalf of A Life Prisoner.

St. Paul Daily News.

Azilda Beaudry, the prisoner serving a life sentence at Stillwater, has been pardoned by Gov. Merriam. She had served eight years in prison.

Azilda Beaudry was found guilty of the murder of her husband in 1882, near Warren, in Marshall county. It seems she had once been the sweetheart of Camil Roy, but quarreled with him and married Beaudry. One night three the were together, a quarrel ensued and Beaudry was killed. The woman was accused of being an accessory, but on the stand she pleaded guilty to the charge of murder. It was always claimed that she did this through ignorance of the English language, she being a French woman, and that all the court expected was manslaughter. [illegible] prison at Stillwater.

Municipal Bonds As A Basis For Money.

Prairie Farmer.

Under the caption "The Farmer and the Banks," in The Prairie Farmer of March 7, the writer admits that "there is room for improvement" in our system of finance. Let us see how it might be improved.

Suppose Uncle Sam did the proper thing in borrowing money and issuing bonds drawing interest for payment. But is not the payment of said interest and principal according to contract, the whole duty of the Government to its creditors? I assert that it is no part of our duty (but an injustice to all other citizens) to specially favor the owners of Government bonds, who, by the way, may or may not be the persons who made the loans to the Government, by making those bonds the only basis for issuing additional money.

If it is a fact that evidence of debt, backed by good and sufficient security, is the best basis (aside from gold and silver) for paper money, why not extend it to all municipal bonds? This is the improvement I have to suggest. No one says the National bank note is not good money, but the trouble is it costs the people too much, and we have not enough of them. What I suggest is not a change of system but an extension, and indirectly a modification, of the one we have tried and proved. Doubtless there are other things that might be used as a basis, but confining our remarks to bonds as the specific basis instead of allowing the holder of Government bonds the sole monopoly of this basis for banking, and thus directly increasing the value of their property, and indirectly to control the money of the country, it might, we trust, hold all bonds at par or at least make one man's money as good as another's. The banker, except to the extent that he is already an owner of Government bonds, would share in the benefits, as his basis would probably not cost him twenty-five per cent above par. All banks would become national banks, more money be issued, securing the desired increase of the circulating medium, lowering the rate of interest and resulting in the decrease of the people's debts.

One party [illegible] from Kansas and Missouri [illegible] went from Minnesota. This process of wheeling immigrants out of our own state to the Pacific slope can only be effectively opposed by a good working immigration bureau. The state of Minnesota must look after that interest herself.

NOTICE

Of Change of Boundaries of the St. Cloud and Duluth Land Districts in the State of Minnesota.

Notice is hereby given that the President of the United States, in pursuance to law, has, by Executive Order dated February 27th, 1891, directed that the following described lands be transferred from the St. Cloud land district to the Duluth land district in the State of Minnesota: Commencing at a point where the line between ranges 23 and 24 west of the 4th principal meridian intersects the northern boundary of the State; thence south along said range line to the southeast corner of township 53 north, of range 24 west; thence west following the course of the Mississippi River to a point where it intersects the line between ranges 29 and 30 west of the 5th principal meridian; thence north along the line between the counties of Itasca and Beltrami to the northern boundary of the State; thence east along said northern boundary to the place of beginning.

Further notice of the precise time when the land officers at Duluth will be in readiness to receive applications for the lands hereby transferred will be given by the Register and Receiver at Duluth by publication.

Given under my hand at the city of Washington, this 3d day of March, A. D. 1891.

Rich Dirt.

Grand Forks Plaindealer.

It is just as a prominent farmer near here say: "We have the richest soil in the country." "I have been in about every State in the Union and I am certain the soil in the Red River Valley is the richest I have found." This is the testimony of a practical farmer who has tested the soil in the East, South and in California, and he spoke with no idea that he was addressing a newspaper man. It is the truth, and the country is finding it out. After a few years we shall have no occasion to invite immigration. The fame of the Red River Valley will bring crowds here. Those who have acres in this section [illegible] have property that will appreciate [illegible]

No Presidential Candidate.

Jerry Simpson Thinks the farmers Will Have None.

St. Paul Daily Globe.

New York, April 6.—Jerry Simpson, who sprang into fame as "the sockless statesman of Kansas," has been received in New York with considerable eclat. He asserted in a number of his speeches, and it is a generally recognized fact that he did not officially represent the National Farmers' Alliance. His economic theories are not in thorough accord with the rather non-committal status of that organization. In connection with these topics a reporter has just called upon the leading representative of the Farmers' Alliance in this city. The first question propounded was as follows;

"The National Farmers' Alliance is known to be organized in the Western and Southern states. The order is now attracting attention in this part of the country. What are the objects of the Alliance so far as the Empire state is concerned?"

"Col. Polk president of the National Farmers' Alliance, has decided to begin the organization in New York state on the 22d day of April. He will send into the state thirty and forty organizers, who will go to each county and do missionary work among the farmers thereof. Previous to that time the order will place itself upon the best basis possible in Pennsylvania."

"What is this organization? Is it a secret or is it based somewhat on the foundations employed in Masonry?"

"Yes."

"What are of its objects?"

"To alleviate the financial condition of the farmers and for his social elevation."

"What are its political ends?"

"That is for the future to decide."

"Suppose a farmer in Orleans county, New York, desires to join the Alliance. Is he bound in the future to follow the lead of the order in all public questions, such as tariff agitation and silver legislation?"

"He would have nothing to say regarding the policy of the order on these topics."

"Then the majority rule prevails in the organization?"

"Yes."

"On the 19th of May will there not be a meeting of the Knights of Labor and other labor organizations, including, perhaps, delegates from the Farmers' Alliance in Cincinnati, O.?"

"Yes."

"Will not the great question there be as to whether a ticket supported by the agricultural and industrial organizations of the country should not be nominated in 1892?"

"Yes."

"Are the leaders of the Farmers' Alliance in thorough sympathy with the third party movement?"

"Not at all."

"What do you mean by that?"

"I mean to say that President Polk, of the National Farmer's Alliance, and Mr. McConnel, chairman of the executive committee, oppose the gathering at Cincinnati, on the grounds that a great responsibility rests on the organization as regards political action."

"What, so far as you know, is the general feeling of the order in regard to the nomination of a presidential candidate in 1892?"

"I am convinced that no such nomination will be made by the Farmers' Alliance."

"Have the leaders of either of the great political parties made overtures to the Alliance looking to a combination whereby the demands of the farmers can be recognized in national legislation, providing the combination should prove successful at the polls?"

Sow Wheat.

Grand Forks Plaindealer.

It is estimated that the shortage of wheat in Russia and France this season will not be less than 160,000,000 bushels. The London Standard publishes a long and careful review of the agricultural lookout. It says that the steady rise in wheat revives the hopes of the English farmer, adding that wheat will probably reach the highest prices in many years, the principal cause being the failure of foregin crops. India has a light crop. The outlook is thus encouraging to the American wheat grower. Europe will need all the surplus that our farmers can produce, according to the above, and the Red River Valley should do its very best. Plant with care and see how well we can do.

As our reporter was standing in front of the opera house on Monday evening, a number of the Hess troupe were standing near engaged in an animated chat, when one of them said: "Crookston looks better than Fargo does now." "Oh, I like it better than Fargo, a good deal better," said the other.

"Too busy to go to meals" said Miss Helen Halvorson as she cordially greeted our reporter on his rounds on Tuesday morning, "we have had so many orders that we actually did not get time go to supper last night until 9 o'clock. We like to be kept busy and shall try to merit a continuance of this trade."

Mrs. and Miss. Bailey has repapered their elegant millinery parlors and are now ready with a fine display of fashonable spring millinery to greet their many friends and show their goods. Our reporter called in to see Mrs. E. E. Bangs on Tuesday morning and in response to our query that lady remarked: "We have been pushed almost to death supplying the demand for styles that [illegible]

A great deal of dissatisfaction was expressed at the attitude of the Great Northern road in relation to extra trains to St. Hilaire and Fosston for the opening of the Grand Opera House in this city. Had reasonable facilities been afforded many of the citizens of these villages would have been glad to attend it is said.

Jacob Stambuagh, of Youngstown, Ohio, was in the city on Monday on his way down to his old place near Fertile. He has traded his 1,200 acre farm for Minneapolis property and is up closing up the deal. His tree claim is now the only Polk County soil he owns. Mr. S. thinks Polk County dirt will be good property to have ere long.

Jacob Thompson, aged 77, died at his residence in Fairfax on Friday of last week. His daughter Mary, aged 34, who had been taking care of him, died on the Wednesday previous and the funeral of both occurred on Monday of this week. Mr. Thompson leaves a wife and four children, one of them the wife of Ole Anderson Moen, of Fairfax.

Lewis Thompson, of Towner, N. D., was in the city on Tuesday to see "Ole Olson." Lewis was once a prosperous citizen of Ada, in Norman County, and he has not lost his love for that and other prosperous Minnesota villages yet. He was greatly taken with our new opera house and says it is the finest he has seen outside of St. Paul or Minneapolis.

Two boys, Albert Layman and Wal. Anderson, got into the river on Sunday afternoon and came near losing their lives. They attempted to cross in a box and the box proved recreant to the trust. It was only by great effort that they were rescued and one of them suffered severely from cramps. They lost two guns in the river and concluded that Sunday hunting don't pay.

The Northern Pacific offered a special train from Red Lake Falls to Crookston on any night during the opera house opening season for 100 tickets; then offered to hold the freight at Fertile for those who wished to come, and the down freight at Crookston until the close of the exercises each night providing 15 tickets were sold. That company did all in its power to accommodate its patrons in this matter.

Paynesville Press. "The Clarions" gave another of their unique entertainments to a full house in the congregational Church, Tuesday evening. Every number was applauded, and the audience was kept in the best of spirits from opening to end. They are doing a good work and are being appreciated.' At the old opera house Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday evenings next.

What has the legislature done to relieve the farmers? Well, for one thing, they nave legislated the tights off the ballet girls—probably with the idea that should the interest bill become a law the farmers would have so much use for tights that there wouldn't be enough for the ballet girls, too. But just what has been done to secure competition in the wheat market is problematical.

The ladies of the W. C. T. U. have secured the old opera house for a musical entertainment on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, April 20th, 21st and 22d. Admission, for adults 10 cents, for children 5 cents. The singers are: Mrs. Charles W. Howe, soprano, Miss Manda Glossman, alto, Mr. Chas. W. Howe, tenor, Mr. Arthur P. Putnam, basso. Mr. Chas. W. Howe will also deliver an entertaining address on Monday and Tuesday evenings," Subject: "Scientific Temperance, illustrated by chart." The subject for Wednesday evening will be announced later.

The rumor is going about that the Great Northern railroad company intends shortly to move all the conductors, engineers and round house employes now living in Crookston to Devil's Lake and Barnesville. Crookston business men feels that this is a direct blow at the interests of our city that should and no doubt will result in increased patronage to the Northern Pacific [illegible]

Mrs. I. U. Jennings cheerfully responded to the query of our local scribe: "Business is indeed excellent this spring and we were all kept too busy for anything filling the orders for those neat little opera hats. It is just what we like, though, and we appreciate it highly. You may tell my lady friends that we are fully prepared to attend to all of their needs in the line of fashionable spring millinery."

At the Congregational church last Sunday evening, Rev. R. H. Battey finished his series of twelve lectures to young people. Next Sunday he will open a new course. It will consist of but four discourses, which will be delivered on successive Sunday evenings. April 19th, "The Herdsman's Trumpet Blast.."—Amos 1:4. April 26th, "The Easy Beds of Ivory."—Amos 6:4. May 3d, "King and Herdman."—Amos 7:4. May 10th, "Plowman and Reaper."—Amos 9:13.

Wm. Box, Jr., was in the city Monday night. Has been buying up several carloads of steers and says the prices are pretty stiff compared with what has ruled heretofore. He says the farmers name their price and tell him he "don't have to" take the steers unless he so desires as they are abundantly able to keep the critters until they will bring the price asked. This looks as though the time has come when we don't have to "keep live stock in variety," but can sell them if we choose.

Gule Johnson died suddenly at the Sherman House on Friday night. He had been stopping at the Sherman House for a day or so and about 10:30 Friday evening went to his room and laid down. Was found dead about 11 o'clock p. m. Mr. Johnson was probably a man between 45 and 50 years of age and unmarried. His brother Charles lives near St. Hilaire. They came to this city together in '78 or '79 and for several years kept a hotel on the corner of Main and Robert streets on part of the site now occupied by McKinnon block. The remains were taken to Wyatt's undertaking rooms, prepared for burial, and on Monday sent to St. Hilaire.

Our reporter called at the new carriage factory of A. J. & A. McKinnon on Tuesday and saw six men at work as busy as bees at repairing and new work. The main floor of this mammoth establishment 100x100 is devoted to the repair room, the show room, the paint room and the office; the upper part to the storage of timber for spokes, felloes, &c., and lumber for wagon and carriage boxes. In the store room we saw an elegant new rig just completed for A. Walters for a general delivery wagon, and we were told that the boys are building a neat light delivery rig for Slocum, one for the successor to J. B. Ford & Co., soap factory, two drays for parties at Warren, and a light wagon for Andrew Steenerson. They have on hand orders enough for new work to keep them busy for two months. They are situated so they can take a tree and out of it make a neat, trim carriage or an ox cart—as you like it, all ready painted and ready for business.

Wabasha Herald:—Joseph Hoch will remove his family to this city in the near future, where they will remain until Mr. Hoch finds a suitable location to embark in business. The Hoch farm has been rented for a term of five years to Mr. Freeze. Mr. Geo. Hoch, of Crookston, arrived in the city on Monday, and will remain for some time visiting friends.

George Eastbey, in a communication elsewhere in this issue, takes a very pessimestic view of the prospects and condition of things in this Red River Valley, and one would almost think from reading his article that there were no redeeming features in the case, but this is a mistake, for the condition of things in the Valley, as far as agriculture is concerned, is far ahead of any other locality in the United States, and the United States beats the world. Other soils in other states that will not produce half as much wheat as our soil will under proper cultivation, is held at prices many times greater per acre. Here you can buy good land at from $5 to $30 per acre, while in the older states you have to pay from $20 to $200 for land not as good as this. In the older states a man working on a farm by the month would have to work a lifetime to save up enough to buy a quarter section of land—here many of them have accomplished it in a few years and are in easy circumstances today. Of course this country has its drawbacks, but no greater than elsewhere, when everything is considered. One of the needs of this country is more settlers of the right stamp, and it is a good thing that the railroad officials are interested in bringing them in, because, if it is true that there is an understanding, or a contract between the roads and the elevators whereby the elevators absolutely control the wheat market and keep out competition, it is just as true that very many settlers cannot be induced to settle under such circumstances hence it is for the interest of the roads to cancel that contract, as they alone have that power, and we believe that sooner or later it will come to this, for we do not believe the roads will long continue to work against their own interests. It is to their interests to have the farmers along their lines prosperous, and no wheat country can long remain prosperous without competition in its markets. There is much that the railroads can do to better the condition of things, and there is also much that the settler can do. Both interests are mutual and both should work in harmony. This is pre-eminently a wheat country, and millions of dollars have been made in wheat, but the farmer has not made the lion's share of it, but those who have been able to control their wheat, and sell when the market was right, have made big money. The railroad companies show a commendable spirit in offering to put up large sums of money for immigration purposes, but we cannot help feeling that they would do more good for themselves, for the country and for the cause of immigration if they would do all in their power to create and maintain a competitive wheat market. In the Whitney paper, under discussion, there is much that is good under all ordinary circumstances. It is mostly matter that the American Agriculturist and like leading agricultural papers have for years preached to their readers, but there is one point that, to our mind, it does not fully cover and that is that while all these fine spun theories of diversified husbandry are correct in the main and as far as they go, it is a pre-eminent fact that the soil and climate of the Red River Valley are peculiarly adapted to raising the best wheat in the world in great quantities—that it has done this ever since it has been opened to civilization, and millions of dollars have been made out of wheat by middlemen and speculators but not by the farmers—that while this is true, the best way to help the farmer is to point out to him how he can manage to retain these profits, or at least his proportion of them, instead of recommending him to try all kinds of unknown and untried experiments. Millers and experienced wheat men all agree that our No. 1 Hard wheat is actually worth ten cents per bushel more for grinding purposes than any of the softer varieties, and the fact is that the farmer, so far from getting that premium, does not in many cases get the actual cost of production. We believe these things can be remedied, and we believe the railroad companies can do very much toward that desired end. Many of our farmers are educated men—experienced farmers from the east, who know all about the diversified farming business and do not need to be told that; what they do need and desire is to be told how to use the means at their command in such a way as to secure to them an equitable share of the proceeds of their labor, and we give the railroad companies full credit of a sincere desire to aid the farmers along their lines, and if they will but take a realizing sense of the situation they can accomplish very much. There should be no antagonism between the roads and the settlers, and if they will work together in harmony they can accomplish much for the good of the country; in fact, this is the only way to accomplish it, and sooner or later this will be done. For the present, self interest should prompt each one to make the best of circumstances as they exist, and while he tries his best to better them, he will in that way get all the success possible out of the situation.

More McKinley Prices.

New York Press.

When the McKinley bill went into effect indigo prints were selling here at about eight cents, and there were predictions made that the price would go up because of the new duty. Within a week past 600 cases of indigo print goods were sold on this market at five and one-fourth cents. They were American goods. The price was not wholly the result of the McKinley bill, but was due absolutely to the protection principle, under which a large plant could be established here to make these goods and competition among manufacturers for the home market does the rest.

Another McKinley Industry.

New York Press.

The Home Market Bulletin of Boston market notes the opening of a new industry at North Grafton, Mass., as one of the direct results of the new Tariff law. It is a factory for the manufacture of the best grade of shoe laces from linen, cotton, porpoise skin and other leather. The proprietor is James Paton of Johnstone, Scotland, whose father is engaged in the same business at his old home. They had a large market in this country for their goods until the new duty made it impossible for them to compete with American manufacturers, and the son came over here to set up in business, bringing some machinery with him, and procuring more here. The establishment is already producing goods, and Mr. Paton expects to employ from 200 to 300 hands within two years. That he appreciates the benefits of protection is shown by the fact that he has already become a member of the Home Market Club, and contemplates taking up citizenship. The McKinley bill is working out its own indorsement among the people by the hundreds of like examples.

Our Pork in Germany.

New York Press.

Cable dispatches tell us that United States Minister to Germany William Walter Phelps and Chancellor Von Caprivi are again negotiation in regard to the German prohibition of the importation of American pork. The press has shown that under the provision of the new Meat Inspection law, no possibility exists of the exportation of unsound meats from this country. The microscopic tests which all meat exported must successfully pass absolutely do away with all pretenses the part of foreign nations that American meats furnished them in the future can be unwholesome. For Germany to persist in her prohibition of American pork would be to declare economic war with the United States, and in such a contest, as The Press has shown, Germany would get decidedly the worst of it. The wisest and best thing the Kaiser's government can do is to rescind its obnoxious regulation regarding American pork without unnecessary delay.

Better Than Ever.

The May number of Peterson is literally crowded with fine engravings and capitally illustrated stories, sketches and poems. "Some Curious Rocks and Waterfalls," by Rodney T. Waterman, gives an interesting account of nature's odd freaks, and the illustrations are admirable. In direct contrast is a capitally illustrated article. "A Pretty Room at the Lowest Cost," which ladies will find invaluable. "A Mercenary Young Woman," is a noticeably good story with very effective illustrations Agnes James' serial "At The Star," is concluded, and Alice Bowman's "Dulce Domum," grows more absorbingly interesting. There are numerous excellent short stories and poems. A paper on the celebrated "Holland House" of London, will well repay perusal. "Painting On China," by Mrs. E. A. Matthews gives the clearest possible directions for acquiring this delightful accomplishment. "Convalescence," by the Newport Hospital Superintendent should be read by every mother and nurse. We have by no means exhausted the list of attractions—buy the number and judge for yourselves. Terms $2.00 per year. Address Peterson's Magazine., Philadelphia, Pa.

Trade and Money.

New York Press.

The last week has not witnessed the pleasant weather hoped for and the spring movement of goods all over the country has been slow in consequence. The rainy weather and floods have kept cattle and hogs back from western market and firm, upward tending prices have been the result. The hide market is dull everywhere. Lumber is in better demand and with slightly lower prices. In consequence of the provision of the McKinley bill making all imported sugar free below No. 16 going into effect, the wholesale price of refined sugar has fallen off 1 3-4c., and for raw sugar 2 1-4c. The demand for refined has been immense, and a largely increased consumption of sugar is looked for.

The movement in dry goods has been light, but the purchase of domestic woolens by a class of buyers who heretofore limited their purchases to foreign market, is a distinctly encouraging feature. Under the McKinley bill the demand of this class of buyers will be sure to increase, for American woolen manufacturers, under the stimulus of protection, have come to produce a fabric that for style, coloring and finish is equal to the better class of foreign goods. It is believed that with the present tariff American woolen makers can confidently look forward to better markets, firmer prices and greatly increased production in the future.

In iron and most of its manufactures the general volume of business throughout the country is still restricted. At Cincinnati, however, an increasing amount of business is being done in the machine shops, and several very extensive and valuable orders have come from South America. There have been no special changes in the money market. Rates remain about as before. The present demand for money, either for commerce or speculation, is comparatively light. In most of the national industries steady. bright spring weather is more anxiously looked for than ever. When it comes transportation facilities will be better, goods of all kinds will move more freely and trade prospects will brighten.

The Land Of Assassins.

St. Paul Daily News.

In the light of recent events in New Orleans, a trial is in progress at Bari, Italy, of considerable interest to Americans. This is the prosecution of one hundred and seventy-nine members of the Mala Vita Society.

The Mala Vita Society is claimed to be a secret body, organized to punish and make way with people against whom it shall pronounce. In other words, the Mala Vita Society is charged with being a body organized for assassination purposes, its work being on the same line as that of the notorious Mafia Society, through the order of which, and by its chosen agents, the people of New Orleans claim Chief Hennessy was put to death.

One of the prisoners who turned informer has personally recognized seventy of these in arrest as belonging to this society, and he further declared that there were more than two hundred members not yet arrested.

This witness describes the society as divided into Cainorristi, Puadiotti and Giovanotti, the lower grades being subject to the higher, and under the most solemn oaths to obey all orders given them.

The prisoners are described as masons and coopers, and generally as young and well dressed, but many are declared to be well-known criminals. The interest in the trial can be understood from the fact that thirty counsel are employed for the defense.

It has long been known that Italy was honeycombed with secret assassination societies, of which the Mafia was supposed to be the largest and best organized. It is well established that the operations of the Mafia have been extended to Italians residing in other countries.

The New Orleans affair would indicate a determination to employ its terrible power to terrorize American officials in cases of emergency.

The Bari trial, it is not improbable, will result in developments which will prove of great benefit in driving this excrescence from Italy from American soil.

America has no place for the secret assassin, or the hot bed production from which they spring, anarchists.

One More United Effort.

National Tribune.

The coming battle for veterans' rights is much the most important that we have ever fought, or ever shall fight. It is the last fight that tens of thousands of our comrades will engage in, for before it is ended they will have passed over the Dark River, and be where the Soldier-Hater ceases from troubling and the veterans are at rest.

The fight is now whether the men and women shall continue to enjoy for the remainder of their lives what has been granted them, and whether they shall receive any further justice, or whether they will surrender everything to their enemies.

The question must be definitely settled within the next two years, and it is all-important that we at once close up our ranks, and present a solid, unbroken front to our antagonists. We must neglect no means to secure victory, which will be so full of consequences, not merely to ourselves but to our disabled comrades, and the widows and orphans of those who have gone before.

Every line of pension legislation now on the statute books must be kept there, and much more added. We want in addition the passage of The National Tribune Per Diem Service Pension Bill, the Equalization of Bounties, the Repeal of the Arrears of Pensions, the Prisoners of War Pension, the Maimed Soldiers Bill, and all other acts of justice for which we have long struggled. The county justly owes all this to the men who saved the Nation's life. In spite of the clamors of the Free Traders and pension-haters, the country can well afford this act of justice, and will be the richer and more prosperous for doing it. It will not increase the taxes upon the people one cent, and when all the expenditures under these laws are made the total will not be one-half what has already been paid the bondholders for a vastly smaller monetary contribution to the National defense than was made

But in order to secure this, every veteran and friend of the veterans must rouse himself for a final effort. We must meet our antagonists everywhere with argument for argument, appeals for justice for clamors for cruel injustice, facts for injurious slanders, and votes for votes.

If we do this we shall certainly win, because our cause is right, and the great and good heart of the country is with us. All that is necessary is to educate the people up to a realization of what is due the men who saved the country. If we win this time the victory will be conclusive, and we can pass the rest of the days that God shall grant us in peace.

The movement in dry goods has been light, but the purchase of domestic woolens by a class of buyers who heretofore limited their purchases to foreign market, is a distinctly encouraging feature. Under the McKinley bill the demand of this class of buyers will be sure to increase, for American woolen by the men who stood between the Nation and her enemies like a wall of flying fire.

manufacturers, under the stimulus of protection, have come to produce a fabric that for style, coloring and finish is equal to the better class of foreign goods. It is believed that with the present tariff American woolen makers can confidently look forward to better markets, firmer prices and greatly increased production in the future.

In iron and most of its manufactures the general volume of business throughout the country is still restricted. At Cincinnati, however, an increasing amount of business is being done in the machine shops, and several very extensive and valuable orders have come from South America. There have been no special changes in the money market. Rates remain about as before. The present demand for money, either for commerce or speculation, is comparatively light. In most of the national industries steady. bright spring weather is more anxiously looked for than ever. When it comes transportation facilities will be better, goods of all kinds will move more freely and trade prospects will brighten.

The Land Of Assassins.

St. Paul Daily News.

In the light of recent events in New Orleans, a trial is in progress at Bari, Italy, of considerable interest to Americans. This is the prosecution of one hundred and seventy-nine members of the Mala Vita Society.

The Mala Vita Society is claimed to be a secret body, organized to punish and make way with people against whom it shall pronounce. In other words, the Mala Vita Society is charged with being a body organized for assassination purposes, its work being on the same line as that of the notorious Mafia Society, through the order of which, and by its chosen agents, the people of New Orleans claim Chief Hennessy was put to death.

One of the prisoners who turned informer has personally recognized seventy of these in arrest as belonging to this society, and he further declared that there were more than two hundred members not yet arrested.

This witness describes the society as divided into Camorristi, Puadiotti and Giovanotti, the lower grades being subject to the higher, and under the most solemn oaths to obey all orders given them.

The prisoners are described as masons and coopers, and generally as young and well dressed, but many are declared to be well-known criminals. The interest in the trial can be understood from the fact that thirty counsel are employed for the defense.

It has long been known that Italy was honeycombed with secret assassination societies, of which the Mafia was supposed to be the largest and best organized. It is well established that the operations of the Mafia have been extended to Italians residing in other countries.

The New Orleans affair would indicate a determination to employ its terrible power to terrorize American officials in cases of emergency.

The Bari trial, it is not improbable, will result in developments which will prove of great benefit in driving this excrescence from Italy from American soil.

America has no place for the secret assassin, or the hot bed production from which they spring, anarchists.

One More United Effort.

National Tribune.

The coming battle for veterans' rights is much the most important that we have ever fought, or ever shall fight. It is the last fight that tens of thousands of our comrades will engage in, for before it is ended they will have passed over the Dark River, and be where the Soldier-Hater ceases from troubling and the veterans are at rest.

The fight is now whether the men and women shall continue to enjoy for the remainder of their lives what has been granted them, and whether they shall receive any further justice, or whether they will surrender everything to their enemies.

The question must be definitely settled within the next two years, and it is all-important that we at once close up our ranks, and present a solid, unbroken front to our antagonists. We must neglect no means to secure victory, which will be so full of consequences, not merely to ourselves but to our disabled comrades, and the widows and orphans of those who have gone before.

Every line of pension legislation now on the statute books must be kept there, and much more added. We want in addition the passage of The National Tribune Per Diem Service Pension Bill, the Equalization of Bounties, the Repeal of the Arrears of Pensions, the Prisoners of War Pension, the Maimed Soldiers Bill, and all other acts of justice for which we have long struggled. The county justly owes all this to the men who saved the Nation's life. In spite of the clamors of the Free Traders and pension-haters, the country can well afford this act of justice, and will be the richer and more prosperous for doing it. It will not increase the taxes upon the people one cent, and when all the expenditures under these laws are made the total will not be one-half what has already been paid the bondholders for a vastly smaller monetary contribution to the National defense than was made

But in order to secure this, every veteran and friend of the veterans must rouse himself for a final effort. We must meet our antagonists everywhere with argument for argument, appeals for justice for clamors for cruel injustice, facts for injurious slanders, and votes for votes.

If we do this we shall certainly win, because our cause is right, and the great and good heart of the country is with us. All that is necessary is to educate the people up to a realization of what is due the men who saved the country. If we win this time the victory will be conclusive, and we can pass the rest of the days that God shall grant us in peace.

Made A Mistake.

Senator Washburn Thinks Italy Was Too Hasty in the Late Crisis.

St. Paul Pioneer Press.

New York, April 7.—Senator Washburn of Minneapolis was at the fifth Avenue hotel yesterday. Speaking of withdrawal of Baron Fava, he said:

"Italy made a mistake, which will react upon her. Americans go there in thousands every year and spend millions of dollars in travel, in art and in the other luxuries which that country has to offer. As a business propositon, Italy's action was a mistake. It will react on Italians in this country. They were none too popular before.

There is a lesson in the behavior of the Italians of this country which ought not to be overlooked. The Italian press, almost without exception, took sides with Italy. Some utterances were very bitter against our own government. Now, it should be borne in mind that the editors of these papers are supposedly the most intelligent and best educated of the nationality in America. Many of them if not all, have become citizens of the United States and have sworn allegiance to this government, and yet at the instant that the trouble began, on a hurried survey and without an understanding of the merits of the case apparently they at once sided with their home government. This is [illegible] ificant. American citizens may inquire if this line of policy would [illegible] had been Germany instead [illegible] and the German press had [illegible] best to arouse sympathy for [illegible] against the government of [illegible] tion, it would have been a [illegible] ing. I do not believe the [illegible] ld hold with the Germans, [illegible] question cannot help sug[illegible] self.

[illegible] incident will be beneficial in its [illegible] believe that one result will be [illegible] change in the immigration laws. [illegible] ething should be done to prevent [illegible] gn nations from dumping their [illegible] aws and criminals into this country. [illegible] present law, which allows us to [illegible] back paupers and others who are [illegible] nized as undesirable, is locking the [illegible] after the horse has been stolen. [illegible] ing process should begin earlier [illegible] a law should be passed which [illegible] quire the immigrant to procure [illegible] te of good charter from the [illegible] nsuls abroad.

trict wherein the crime shall have been committed," the governor of that state even finds it impossible to give such assurance.

As to the baron's second point, Secretary Blaine tells him that he is laboring under an error, and that the United States government has recognized the principle of indemnity to any Italian subjects who may have been wronged at New Orleans by any violation of the treaty of 1871 with Italy. The secretary also assures him that all the facts connected with the affair at New Orleans are undergoing a searching investigation, and takes a position which must be in accord with feelings of very true American when he says that this government will not allow itself to be hurried, nor answer any demand until every fact essential to a correct judgment shall have been fully ascertained through legal authority.

The cable interview between the United States minister at Rome, Mr. Porter, and the Italian Under-secretary for Foreign Affairs, Signor, D'Arco, shows that the Italian government finds it impossible to understand our federal system. They look upon the national government as supreme, which it is; and this being granted, they apparently can not understand why it cannot at once interfere in the New Orleans affair, and bring the men comprising the mob of March 14 to trial in the federal courts.

Signor D'Arco, when Minister Porter endeavored to explain the limitations of federal power under the constitution, huffily remarked that "Italy had nothing to do with our constitution and that if it is wanting we should amend it," and further expressed his opinion that a constitution is worthless in a civilized country, if it cannot protect the weak and punish crime. All of which is true; but we doubt whether the form of government under which we now exist will be changed because Signor D'Arco disapproves of it.

Two Per Cent Loans.

EDITORS WESTERN RURAL:—Under instructions from the committee on finance, Senator Morrell reported adversely the Stanford two per cent loan bill involving loans on land at two per cent interest. The report contends that land owners are too prudent to cover their homesteads with mortgages, and even young men when starting in life when borrowing capital do not intend to remain twenty years in debt. But the low rate of interest offered to land owners, says the committee, might inspire improvident habits and extravagant speculation in the masses of the people not free from such temptations. The bill, says the report, endorses the principles put forth more than a century ago by the notorious John Law. The committee also compared the measure to the Argentine Republic and continental money.

The idea of the government loaning money to people in possession of land, the same to be secured upon their land, naturally evolved from the pernicious and dangerous precedent and practice of the government leading or rather giving to bank corporations the use of money, together with class legalized privilege of loaning that money to the people at a high rate of interest. While the farmer, as a practice, would be far less harmful in the way of monopoly—as oppositely argued by the "gold buyers," than the latter, it is yet a question whether it would not be a wise plan—a plan which the country actually passed through from 1862 to 1865 with no harm but positive good to every component of the government, to enlarge the money volume to such a degree, as to actually force the rate of interest down to the minimum rate noted by the farming industry. Whenever a plan in any direction having in view the relief of the debt-burdened farmer or the general producer of wealth is suggested, the blood-sucking government-bond octopus raises up its head in holy horror and begins to growl John Law scheme, French assignot, fiat money dishonest money, cheap money, unsound money, Argentine Rrpublic, continental money, etc.

A[illegible]e at all familiar with American [illegible] ows that the United States at [illegible] ning of the revolutionary war [illegible] confederation, prior to the [illegible] he constitution, had no [illegible] te and enforce a legal [illegible] ment of debts. Hence [illegible] inental scrip, which [illegible] best and only thing [illegible] in the way of a cir[illegible]. The continental [illegible] s not a legal tender [illegible] promise to pay. It was [illegible] ply a certificate certifying that the [illegible] der thereof was entitled to receive [illegible] anish milled dollar—the money of [illegible] her country. Each and all of the [illegible] noted comparisons and epithets, [illegible] ely applied by the "gold buy[illegible] rnment money that paid [illegible] war, are quite as eva[illegible] d dishonest as that [illegible] government [illegible] l scrip. [illegible] ulation [illegible]

The financial system on which the national bank of to-day rests, as its basis, was concocted at the creation of the bank of England in 1694. The capital stock of the bank—about $6,000,000, as our unit of account estimates money, was forced onto the British realm as a loan. This comparatively trifling sum has been from time to time during the past, little less than 200 years, refunded and consolidated with the gold cost of her wars and conquests until her leech-like, interest-sucking bond debt has at length reached the frightful sum of nearly four billions dollars.

This scheme of legalized robbing was early introduced into this country and inflicted upon the credulous masses in the form and under the dignified title of United States Bank with state bank branches. The system of finance, if it be proper to call it such—Daniel Webster dubbed it a contrivance to cheat the masses of mankind—consisted of bankers being authorized to issue, to circulate as money, three of their own notes to one coin dollar for their redemption. Therefore a very tyro may readily see that a privileged class were allowed to draw continuously by advance takings of interest, from four to six times a year, as now, on short loans, practically compound interest, on two units of wind in addition to the one actual dollar unit. But this is not all. It was a common pactice for these "honest money" fellows to largely overissue their worthless notes, beyond the limit of the law. According to the commission's report of the banks of the State of Connecticut for a period of twelve years, from 1837 to 1847 inclusive, and the year 1849, the average amount of notes in circulation was more than twenty-four times the amount of coin for redemption. And what is true in this respect of the historical "wooden nutmeg" State is practically true of all the others. Hence, it will be seen that these "sound money" croakers were being all these years enriched by great blocks of wealth abstracted from the honest producers thereof by this labyrinthian trickery of drawing interest on twenty-four parts or units of wind with only one actual dollar unit invested.

In March, 1809, says Barkey, a legislative committee of the State of Rhode Island made an examination into the affairs of the Farmers' Exchange Bank of Gloucester and it was discovered that the bank had $580,000 of "honest money" worthless notes, in circulation and the vault-straining sum of $86,16 for redemption. Before the end of the year a general suspension of the banks of New England took place and it was discovered that they were all in the same condition. In 1818 the United States bank had discounted $43,000,000 and had but $2,000,000 of specie. The amount of bank circulation in 1817–18 was $100,000,000. To save itself from the impending crash of 1819 it was compelled to pull in $55,000,000—more than half of its circulation in a single year. This prodigious contraction of the currency—worthless in reality as it was—produced general stagnation and distress among the people throughout the year 1820 that well nigh beggars description. Wheat was worth twenty cents per bushel, at Pittsburgh flour was worth $1 per barrel. Boards was worth $2 per thousand. One and one-half bushel of wheat would buy a pound of coffee; a barrel of flour would buy a pound of tea etc.

"Honest money" forsooth! There are not in the English language words to fittingly characterize the villainous inconsistency and brazen-faced audacity of these gold-bug stock jobbers of Wall street and other large money centers. The free and unlimited coinage alike of gold and silver bullion taken in by the government with the option of the person bringing the same, to take the money units so coined or the government's full legal tender coin certificates, unit for unit, would give the people a large amount of money—sound money, honest money. Honest because of every last bit of wind having been punched out of it. To say that fifty dollars per capita would impair its soundness would be as inconsistent as that a full luxuriant crop of the fruit of an apple tree would be less sound, as apples, than would be here and there a few clusters which had escaped the blighting frost of contraction.

J. P. VAN DUSEN.

Nebraska Farmers and Beets.

EDITORS WESTERN RURAL:—I should have said $150,000 bonus that the beet sugar factory got at Norfolk instead of $15,000 as it is in your paper of the 31st inst. We have a few statistics of beet raising in California and in our next will try and have some from Grand Island farmers who raised beets last year. We see in a recent issue that Prof. Nicholson and John Jenkins estimate beet raising at twenty-five to thirty dollars per acre. We will say that those gentlemen can not raise beets and deliver them to the factory for that if they had only one mile to haul. If there is ever [illegible] we will rent out to them [illegible] them to cultivate and deliver [illegible] The [illegible] one and a half [illegible] dollars and [illegible]

ten cents per acre. A. F. Richardson eleven acres, forty-six dollars and twenty-five cents per acre. This is taken from bulletin 13 of Experiment Station of Nebraska. We do not know exactly how much sugar an acre of beets will make. Some estimate it at an average of one ton per acre. Taking that as an average we find one ton at five cents per pound $100 and one cent per pound for state and two cents per pound for Uncle Sam is sixty dollars, total $160. If we are in an error we stand corrected. You will see that the manufacturer gets it all and the raiser no profit. Estimating fifteen tons per acre as an average at four dollars per ton, at factory will make sixty dollars. Now where is the large profit that the writter tells us about in raising beets only to the ones that do not need it? I have been informed that there were beets raised for the Grand Island factory and on account of not paying were not delivered. It is estimated that the Grand Island factory made 700 tons of sugar this last season. The bonus of three cents that they received would be $12,000. We farmers of Nebraska are willing to raise beets if it can be done at a profit, but in this part we do not propose to raise them at a loss for we have done enough of that kind of farming in the last ten years and made the other fellows rich. Now we would like to have some of the proceeds of our own labor. We could raise beets on a small margin if the consumer got the benefit of it, but he does not.

Warren Register:—The Red River Valley College Association at their annual meeting held at Crookston Jan. 6th, last, decided to locate the college at the city of Crookston, provided it would give unconditionally to the association $15,000 and a suitable site. The trustees met April 1st, and finding that Crookston had raised the required amount, decided to proceed at once to erect buildings. The site embraces about fourteen acres near the mill dam. A very pleasant location with groves and splendid artesian water.

Opinions of a New York Judge on Sunday Laws.

The Rome (N. Y.) Sentinel, publishes a letter from Judge Thomas Barlow, of Canistola, N. Y., to Hon. C. H. Bramnall, on Sunday laws, from which we extract the following:

"Our government is equally tolerant of all religions. It no more fosters the Christian church than any other temple of worship of other religious worshipers. It tolerates and protects the church against annoyances, but it is no more based upon Christianity than Mahommedism. So our highest tribunals have often decided. There is no an instance in history where any civil government has attempted or assumed to foster and support the church, but what thereby both the church and civil government have been corrupted and demoralized. This is too plain a proposition to be denied, and when the church descends to asking civil power for aid in its support, there is something dangerously carnal in the purpose. Religion addresses itself entirely to the heart and the conscience, and no man shall be forced in any direction against his conscience, in favor or against any religious doctrine or faith."

In regard to the right of all to rest, he says:

"No honest religionist or worshiper can ask anything more in this respect than peaceable protection in his observance and worship on any day. The observers of the first day of the week as the Sabbath can ask no more for their religious convictions than can those who observe the seventh day. If the seventh-day worshipers were to demand of government a forced observance of their day, those of the first day would look upon it as intolerance and presumption, and rightfully so, too; and so is the demand of the observers of the first day toward those of the seventh day, and a free government must so consider it."

Of the results of legislating on matters of conscience, he speaks thus:

"It seems that when men assume to dictate to and override the rights of conscience of others in religious matters, they are gratified also to overlook rights of property and life, too. This is shown by the history of the church, which for centuries could burn at the stake, rob and banish any and all that would not acknowledge its dogmas and confess its creeds. The church of England, for long years, took life by fire and torture, for not observing the Sabbath and attending church. From this we should be on our guard against those who would crush out the rights of conscience of nine-tenths of a free people."

As an illustration of what such laws will do, he gives the following:

"The church has always been seeking power and never surrenders any without being compelled. The effort at Sunday laws at this time is but a stepping stone to that which would be still more oppressive. Look at the case of R. M. King, of Tennessee, a worshiper of the seventh day school. He plowed a piece of land quietly on his own farm, on Sunday, and Pharisees of the first day school prosecuted him and obtained a conviction for that act and a fine of $75 imposed for it, and he was cast into prison. No one was molested by his work, but that old spirit of Puritanism indulged itself in that infamous proceeding. No man identified with the law allowing such a conviction, be he priest or layman, juryman or judge or legislator, is worthy the enjoyment of the privileges of a free civil government. It was hoped that Puritanism was dead in this country, but its spirit seems still to be among us, seeking its gratification in the meanest manner possible. And if it could now get the Bible into the schools it would demand that believers only should be teachers and society would be destroyed of all harmony. Let the people be true to their [illegible]. Let the churches be protected but made to labor in their own legitimate sphere. [illegible] civil government [illegible]

First Bath of The Season.

George H. Walsh Rescues his Horse at His Own Peril.

Grand Forks Plaindealer.

North Eakota came nigh losing one of its stalwart politicans and railroad commissioners yesterday afternoon. The occurrence happened in this way: After making a few city calls with his horse and buggy, Mr. Walsh returned to his home at Riverside Park, leaving his horse unhitched, as he usually does, in front of the nouse. The animal was thirsty and needed a beverage. The gurgling waters of the Red close by attracted his attenion and he gently descended the hill, buggy and all to the river side. The water there is at least ten feet deep, and the horse didn't realize his danger in attempting to drink.

Mr. Walsh missed the animal and quickly surmising where he had gone followed down the hill in time to see his horse, buggy et al, making for the other shore. No time was to be lost, the current was too swift for the horse to live in, hitched up to the buggy as he was. With a farewell glance at the land of the Dakotas, and a muttered Ave Marie on his lips, the stately commissioner, overcoat and all leaped into the surging main and made for the horse. Capt. Webb in his palmiest days never surpassed the strokes of this gallant gentleman. He finally succeeded in reaching the animal, but it was with a deal of difficulty and danger that he succeeded in getting the animal on terra firma once more. It was a noble coup d'etat on Walsh's part, and the horse evidently realizes it ere this.

The Farmers' Prospects.

Fergus Falls Journal:—The outlook for the farmer was never brighter than this spring. The soil is reported in splendid condition and every indication is favorable for a good crop. But better than this is the strong demand for farm products at a high price. Wheat is 95c, oats 50c, potatoes 70 to 75c a bushel. Hay $10 a ton, straw in good demand, all kinds of feed very high, beef has doubled in price the last year, eggs and butter bring good prices and find a ready market. Unless there is a very decided backset the farmer who is industrious and active this year won't have to renew his loan next fall.

The Farmer and The Banks.

Prairie Farmer.

The cry is set up against banks and money loaners who help them out of their trouble when in need—they do not want the land and personal property—it is the principal and interest they are after. I may say in this connection that the banks and other financial institutions are essential in our new system. We should not discourge banking. There is no better system of finance on the face of the earth than we have in the United States; yet there is room for improvement. With the great amount of business transacted in connection with farm life it would be almost imposible to get along without banks. Where would thousands of farmers be if we close our money institutions, which helps them bridge over temporarily financial embarrassment? We are not treading the ruts our forefathers did. We are living in a progressive civilization. This new system requires the banks to carry on a successful farm business. The new system has a tendency to ruin the farmer; for instence, B tends a crop of corn or other grain, and devotes himself only to his branch of farming. This crop is expected to buy his bread, meat, vegetables and everything he consumes or uses. At the end of the year the inventory is taken. He is worse off at the end than before. He has so much competition that it is necessary to be "Jack of all trades" to have money and comfort. Do whatever your hands find to do and be contented. You will finally wade out of the slough of dispondency on to the solid ground of plenty and ease. The present state of things has generally changed. The hundreds of abondoned farms in the New England States will be re-occupied, their awkwasd position corrected by a halt to the claim stampede, and their laws corrected. Farmers generally look on at the great money feast of the seventy monied kings with envoius eyes. Be up and doing while it is day. Your stored up labor, in small amounts may land you in the lap of wealth.

East Des Moines, Ia. D. L. M.

Toledo Blade.—The sugar bounty clause of the new tariff bill bids fair to turn Florida into a sugar producing state. The planters in the vicinity of Kissimmee are preparing to erect a mill and plant sugar. A wealthy company of Pennsylvanians has begun work on a vast tract of swamp lands in the [illegible], which will be drained and turned into a sugar plantation. The protective policy demonstrates its wisdom in such enterprises as this. [illegible]

Sugar and Woolens.

New York Press.

The "McKinley prices" liars and the "tin plate liars" have dropped those favorite themes to discuss various phases of free sugar. One of the free trade organs, quoting a grocer's remark that cheapening sugar will increase its consumption, argues that the same thing would happen in woolen clothing, and adds the astounding assertion that we do not produce and can never supply the wool needed for our home consumption, but can in time produce our own sugar supply. There were never two grosser misstatements of fact. Sugar and woolens, indeed, are in just the reverse situations thus asserted. We tried to encourage sugar planting by protection through a long period of years, with the meager result of producing less than 10 per cent. of our supply. The experiment proved the utter impossibility of ever producing sufficient sugar for the home demand. As we were obliged to buy annually from abroad 90 per cent. of the sugar consumed, reasons and common sense, as well as the protection theory that on non-competitive articles there should be no duty, all combined to favor free sugar.

On the other hand, so far as woolens are concerned, less than 10 per cent. of foreign wools are used in the manufacture of fabrics for clothing of men and women. We grow fully 90 per cent. of the wool from which American are made, the wools imported being almost entirely used in the manufature of carpets, and grown in semi-barbarous countries. Our woolen factories can turn out goods in ample quantity to supply the entire country, make us self-sustaining as to clothing, give employment to our own skilled workers, and keep in the country the money that would otherwise be sent to Europe. Cheapness of product is brought about by the competition of manufacturers, and it is a notorious fact that clothing for men's wear made of American woolens can be bought in New York to-day cheaper than in London.

But let us see what these "tariff reformers" would have us do about sugar. If they are sincere in their comments, which no sensible man believes, they would put a duty on sugar and have free trade in cotton and woolen cloth, machinery, boots and shoes, cutlery and other great lines of manufacture in which we would be unable to compete with the cheap labor of England. They would cut of workmen from their work, our manufacturers from their business and the country from the benefits of the money it now retains. The free trader will say that there is cheap labor in Brazil as well as Europe to sustain his position, but he will not add the fact that Brazil is not engaged in producing an article in which we can in any remote degree compete.

The Republican and protection plan is just the reverse. It gives the country free suger, because we have been buying 90 per cent. of our consumption abroad, and could not hope to lessen that ratio. But it protects woolens, cottons, machinery and other articles for which we produce the raw materials and can supply practically the entire home market. The laboring man gets well paid work thereby, without any increse in the cost of living, while all the wealth created becomes part of the national wealth, and increased the general prosperity.

Sugar and woolens furnish a very good object lesson on the tariff question.

Industrial Union (Kokomo, Ind.) says:—We believe the people of this republic are in favor of a reasonable tariff for the expense of the government, but they are opposed to building up one class of men at the expense of another. The worst enemies to protection are the protectionists themselves. They are killing the goose that lays the golden egg by charging the farmers 80 per cent more for their wares than they are charging foreigners. What is wanted worse than a tariff law is plenty of money to do the business of the country. If we had plenty of money there would be plenty of work and plenty of business and the tariff would cut a small figure in our politics.

Toledo Blade.—A new cotton factory has been built at Raleigh, North Carolina, and more are to follow. The stockholders are Democrats, but they frankly acknowledge that they waited before building until satisfied that a Republican President had been elected. If the South would get over its chronic scare about "nigger supremacy," and let the dead past bury its dead, including the wall and all pertaining thereto, it would become the wealthiest and most prosperous portion of the United States.

RECIPROCITY.

Toledo Blade.

As a matter of interest, we present a synopsis of the facts regarding the progress of reciprocity under the new tariff law up to date:

Brazil accepts the reciprocity treaty and is glad to get it, all free trade stories to the contrary notwithstanding.

Negotiation are in progress with the Spanish government for reciprocity both with that country and with her West India possessions, including Cuba. Spain, however, desires a modification of our duties on Havana cigars and tobacco, and appears to be willing to make large concessions in order to obtain this. As these articles, however, are not among those specified in the reciprocity clause of the new tariff law, a regular treaty will have to be negotiated, in case her wishes are carried out.

Venezuela is discussing the reciprocity question, and the indications are that she will accept its provisions.

A most significant point as to the wishes of our Southern neighbors for closer trade relations with us is found in the significant reply of British Guiana to an offer of reciprocity made by Canada. This answer is, that while Guiana will accept thankfully improved steamship communication with Canada, she prefers reciprocity with the United States to the same arrangement with the Dominion. Canada offered $88,000 per year subsidy to a steamship line with this one colony in South America. The latter so strongly desire reciprocity with us that she will not accept it from the Dominion even after the subsidy bait, if it prevents her completing one with us.

National Economist:—The sub-treasury plan is a proposition to furnish the people with a representative money, a money or medium of exchange that is under the control of labor in production. When this object is attained a representative government in the full meaning of the term is possible, until then it is even beyond a probability. A representative money is as necessary for the preservation of free institutions as the purity and integrity of the ballot. The adoption of a representative system of money should be the first step toward a return to a people's government, and is absolutely necessary before any other measure looking to that end can be successfully maintained. It has long since passed into an axiom that "those who own the money control the people." This is as true in a republic as it is in a monarchy or any other form of government, and can be used with more blighting influence on human rights and labor efforts in a republican form of government than any other. The two old parties are attacking the sub-treasury plan because it will, if adopted, furnish the people with a money practically their own. The ownership and control of money by any class of people signifies class laws, class distinction, and the rule of the classes against the masses. A representative money, through the medum of the sub-treasury plan, will lift the people from their "slough of despond" and again place them in touch with the liberties and possibilities guaranteed and expected by the founders of the republic.

New Prison Laws.

People to Elect the Board, and Twine-Making Thoroughly Tested.

St. Paul Globe.

The scheme of manufacturing binding twine at the Stillwater prison is to be given a fair trial under a new prison board in case the house follows the lead of the senate and passes Senate file 817, which, after much amending, passed the upper house yesterday afternoon. This bill provides for a board of prison managers, to consist of three men, to be elected by the people at the next general election. In the meantime, the governor will have the privilege of naming three men to fill these positions until January, 1893. One more twine machine is to be purchased at once, and the twine manufactured is to be sold to the people of the state at actual cost. The bill is such an innovation and the probability of its passing the house so great that is provisions are interesting. It follows.

A bill for an act to amend an act entitled "An act to provide for the management of the state's prison at Stillwater, and appropriate money for the expenses of said prison any funds arising from the labor of prisoners and miscellaneous receipts of the prison, approved March 24, 1889, so as to provide for the election of a state board of prison managers at the state prison at Stillwater by the vote of the electors of the state, and for the employment of the convict labor in said state prison.

Section 1. That section (2) two of an act entitled "An act to provide for the management of the state prison at stillwater and to appropriate for the expense of said prison any funds arising from the labor of prisoners and other miscellaneous receipts of the prison," approved April 24, 1889, be and the same is hereby amended so as to read as follows:

ELECTING MANAGERS.

Sec. 2. That the government and control of the Minnesota state prison and of the prisoners sentenced thereto shall be vested in a board of managers to consist of three members, resident of the state. At the next general election one member of said board shall be elected to serve (2) two years, and two (2) for four years; and at the expiration of the term of each member of the board his successor shall be elected for the term of four (4) years, and shall hold his office until his successor is elected and qualified. Whenever a vacancy occurs in the office of any member of said board, such vacancy shall be filled by appointment of the governor until the next general election.

Sec. 3. The state board of prison managers are hereby directed to at once purchase one (1) complete machine, in addition to the one now in the state prison, suitable for the manufacture of binding twine from flax, jute or hemp, and to cause the same to be properly placed and set within the walls of the state prison at Stillwater, in this state, and to make all needful provision for the accommodation of such machine within said prison and carrying on of the business of manufacturing twine therein and therewith. Provided that, all other things being equal, preference shall be given to American-made machinery, and to machinery that can utilize fiber plants that can be successfully raised in the state.

TWINE MAKING.

Sec. 4. All twine manufactured at said prison, under the provision of this act, shall be sold to the consumers of this state, in the order of their respective applications therefor, at the cost of the raw material consumed in the manufacture of the same. Provided that no person shall be permitted to purchase any such twine except for his own use, for the binding of his own grain, raised on land owned or occupied by him, except where associations of farmers are formed to enable one of their number, acting as their agent, to secure twine for all the rest; and in that case no additional charges shall be made by such agent, as profit or compensation, but the twine shall be delivered to those he represents at the price charged by the state to him.

If more twine is manufactured by the convict labor of the state than is required to meet the demands of the farmers' of this state, then the surplus shall be sold by the state at the market price of the same; and, after deducting the cost of the board of the prisoners and the price of the raw material used, together with such other necessary expense of production as may be incurred, the remainder shall be paid into the state treasury.

Sec. 5. The said board are hereby authorized to employ a suitable number of persons experienced in the manufacture of twine and the use of machinery employed therein, as may be necessary to properly instruct the said prisoners in such work and to operate said machinery; and they are vested with all the powers and authority necessary to do and perform all acts incident to the proper performance of the provisions of this act.

Sec. 6. That sec. 1 of chap 166, of the General Laws of 1883, entitled "an act to make appropriation for permanent improvements for the Minnesota state prison," be, and the same is hereby, amended by substituting the words "for the period of seven years thereafter" in place of the words "for the period of eight years thereafter," in lines six and seven of said section.

National Economist:—The sub-treasury plan is opposed by some who fear the effects of inflation. They seem to forget that it was not the inflation that brought disaster, but the contraction which was forced upon the people. Inflation gave this country its greatest prosperity, it inaugurated an era of good times, good prices, plenty of labor and no debts, while contraction brought about by scheming manipulators has produced the present distressing condition seen on every hand, filled the land with tramps and the nation with bankrupts. The sub-treasury does not propose an unlimited inflation, but does design a just and proper increase of the volume of money, that the power of money to oppress may be eliminated. [illegible]

A Most Popular Book.

A very important work upon the horse has just been issued by The Prairie Farmer Publishing Co., of Chicago, Ill. This work, The Prairie Farmer Horse Book, has been carefully prepared by the well known editor of that popular Agricultural journal, Mr. Jonathan Periam, Professor at the Chicago Veterinary College, and author of numerous works on agriculture, husbandry, horses, cattle, sheep, swine, poultry, etc.

The Prairie Farmer Horse Book is written particularly for the practical man; for his special use and instructions in the handling and caring of his work and breeding animals, and his horse for speed and pleasure. Competent judges pronounce it the most practical work of the kind published.

It is a concise manual for horse owners, and embraces the following topics: Breeds and Characteristics: Care and Mansgement; Feeding and Cleaning; Stable Ventilation and Care; Vices and Unsoundness; How to Tell the Age; Bones and Muscles; The Limbs and Feet; Poisons and antidotes; Veterinary Medicines, etc., etc., from the best modern authorities.

The book contains 350 pages and is illustrated with over a hundred engravings. Its complete index of each department makes it possible to turn immediately to any subject, remedy or antidote in cases of emergency or accidents.

Chicago Tribune: The writer supports his position on various questions by citations from the best modern authorities. The volume is thoroughly illustrated and will be of great aid, even to experienced horse owners.

Chicago Evening Journal: The Prairie Farmer Horse Book is a concise manual for horse owners. It is not the work of the ordinary farm-writing hack, but a clean, clear-paged book from bold, open type, good paper, with fresh and natural illustrations, the letter-press showing that the author, Jonathan Periam, knew when to and how to commence and when to leave off. It is a book for the farmer and breeder, either young or old, rich or poor. The information needed for care and cure of the animal in the hands of the city stablemen, the drayman, in fact any one owning or caring for a horse, is furnished in a plain, short and satisfactory manner, so that any one that can read ought to understand.

Chicago Herald: This is an excellent book on a noble subject . . . gives every sort of information necessary to a complete understanding of the horse. It describes the various diseases horse flesh is heir to, giving remedies and prescription suitable for various emergencies. It is a very handy and useful volume.

Judge Walter Q. Gresham: I spent part of an afternoon and evening reading the book and found it interesting and instructive. I left it with the man who is managing my farm, and he writes me that he is highly pleased with it.

The price of the book is only $2 00 post-paid, and is furnished with one year's subscription to The Prairie Farmer for $2 50. Many agents are making rapid sales, and the publishers desire other good men to handle it. Address The Prairie Farmer Publishing Co., 166–168 Adams Street, Chicago, Ill.

A recent number of the century Magazine contained a graphic account of the perils attending to the trip of the first wagon train across the plains to California. It took over six months, every day of which was one of danger or hunger. Now the journey can be made in four and half days via the Montana route of the Great Northern Railway, from St. Paul or Minneapolis, in perfect safety and comfort, and three good meals a day.

Call at Vine's meat market on Robert street for choice cuts. He buys only the choicest beeves and always has nice steaks and roasts.

The rain of Monday delayed seeding very materially. Many farmers are considering the plan of using the broadcast seeders and some may be obliged to do so or run the risk of late seeding.

Wheat took a big boom this week, opening out on Monday morning at 96 cents. Those who have wheat are in luck, but the unfortunate part of it is that but little remains in the hands of farmers.

The attractions Mrs. E. E. Bangs offers the ladies are fashionable goods in the latest styles of the very best qualities and extremely low prices. You will do well to call and examine her goods and get prices.

Harris & Glenn are moving the old building recently owned and occupied by Fontaine & Anglim as a clothing store. It will be taken to a lot adjoining the old variety theater and used as a pop factory.

A. A. Miller informs THE JOURNAL that in all probability the building to be erected on the corner of Main and Second streets will be a hotel. Mr. Rickett is here with an architect to make the plans which will be ready as soon as the site is ready.

Dr. J. H. Thomas and family returned on Sunday morning from the orange groves of Florida looking as hale and and hearty as ever. He is seemingly well pleased with the trade he made and may conclude to spend his winters amid his southern orange groves.

Notice what the Boston One Price Clothing house has to say in this issue. Mossefin & Lindell have been in business longer than any clothing house in the city, and their success in business indicates their popularity. Call and see the boys and you will be suited sure.

Those fancy flower pots at Herb's are very unique in their way. The ladies should see them by all means.

Bosco, the greatest living representative of the "Black Art" will hold the boards at the Grand on Friday and Saturday evenings of this week and Monday evening of next. Popular prices. Sale of tickets commences Friday morning at the Grand Opera House.

This week Herb desires to call attention to his velocipedes, tricycles, croquet setts, base ball goods, fancy flower pots, hammocks, &c., &c.

THE JOURNAL is informed that George Easby, who wrote the blue letter last week, is a prosperous farmer living near Euclid. A man who came here with a few dollars and who, by industry and good management has accumulated much of this world's goods. Had this country been all he painted it he could hardly have accumulated so much in it.

If there is anything in Herb's line that he has not got he will get it for you. Try him.

Dr. J. H. Thomas has returned from Florida, refreshed by a winter's sojourn in that land of oranges and perpetual summer, and is now ready for business at the old stand on Robert street. He has gained sufficient strength to be able to extract teeth in due and ancient form, and invites all of his old patrons and friends to call and see him. Dental work of all kinds promptly and scientifically performed.

T. M. Nelson was in the city on Monday. Says the proposed flouring mill at Maple Bay is an assured fact and will be built this coming summer. This suggests a practical way in which the farmers can improve the market for wheat in Polk County. If there was a grist mill in every township, owned and controlled by farmers, it would make a wonderful sight of difference in the prospects of the county.

Geo. W. Peake takes possession of his old stand again this week, the carpenters having made a success in their efforts to restore order out of chaos in the burnt district. Peake says the idea that the fire would oblige him to quit was erroneous—on the contrary it will oblige him to get a bigger hustle onto himself than ever, and this he intends to do. It will be largely to your advantage to call at Peake's harness shop and see what he can do for you.

John Wyand: "Say, don't you know, they will have to put an amendment onto that McKinley bill or us farmers will be ruined sure! Under that bill everything us poor farmers have to buy is cheaper than ever before and everything we have to sell is higher than ever! It does seem as though that confounded republican Congress was determined to ruin us poor grangers, anyhow; but I spose we shall have to stand it until Congress meets and we can get the old thing amended."

For Sale Cheap.

One first class engine, and Quaker brick press. Inquire of Martin Swanson. [1-4]

Grand Celebration.

A grand celebration of the 17th of May is advertised to occur at Maple Bay and a grand program of amusements has been arranged for. In addition to this program Felsing & Tatro will have the steamer ready for excursion parties on the lake. The boat has been thoroughly overhauled and put into prime running order and everybody is assured of a royal good time. Steps are being taken to secure an excursion train from Grand Forks to the lake. Everybody invited.

BYGLAND, April 18, 1891.

ED. JOURNAL: In your issue of March 26th I saw a report from our town clerk in which he states that there was a man who tried to split up the ticket at the recent town election, as he did at the fall election. He refers, no doubt, to the undersigned, as I was working for one man on the republican ticket—one of my best friends and an old resident of the town. At the town election I ran against Mr. Grundeson for town clerk for the reason that Mr. G. used some very insulting language against me at the caucus. I was present at the caucus but was not a candidate for any office; I had been assessor in the town for 14 years, and was tired of it But, as I have stated, I ran against Mr. G. for town clerk and received 16 votes to his 17, and one ticket, with my name written over Mr. Grundeson's, was not counted. Mr. G. had received twelve straight votes before I arrived at the polls and announced myself a candidate; I never mentioned it to any one, until the night before election, that I would run. By the language he uses, "tried to split," he seems to be laboring under the impression that I was trying to split up the Bygland Farmers' Alliance, but the facts are I was secretary of the alliance for 10 months, and I called the first meeting to organize an alliance in Bygland; also wrote the editor of THE JOURNAL several times for information and sent the money through him for a charter. If there is any man who has been working against our alliance it is Mr. G., as he is too much of an aristocrat to belong to a country alliance. He is a member of a village alliance in another town where they have a machine agent for president, and I am informed that Mr. G. has been trying to get some of our voters to join his village alliance, as he said they could do a better business in town; but I think we can get along all right without any assistance from machine agents.

The farmers have been busy seeding the last week, but the rain that we had on the 16th will delay seeding for a few days, but the farmers all smile at the rain as it makes the prospects good for big crops next fall. The farmers have their land in good condition this spring, as past experience has taught them that it does not pay to raise weeds; they must raise wheat. THOM BENSON.

Park Region Encampment.

HEADQUARTERS PARK REGION ASSOCIATION GRAND ARMY OF THE REPUBLIC }
GENERAL ORDERS. No. 1.

HAWLEY, Minn., April 10, 1891.

1. The sixth annual encampment of the Park Region Association will be held in Moorhead, Minn., June 23rd, 24th, 25th and 26th, 1891.

11. The following comrades are selected as council of administration: Col. James Compton, Fergus Falls; Capt. O. H. Lucken, Crookston; Col. S. G. Magill, Fargo, N. D; Col. Warren Onan, Moorhead; Capt. W. P. Spaulding, Brainerd; Col. O. P. Stearns, Duluth; Dr. W. A. Bentley, Bismarck N. D.; Col. W. H. Brown, Grand Forks, N. D.

111. The following named comrades are appointed aides-de-camp from the posts in the Park Region;

N. A. Gearheart, Post, No. 13, Duluth; Lee Moore, Post No. 106. Deer Creek; Morris Sharpe, Post No. 30, Brainerd; C. A. Alton, Post No. 118, Verndale; W. G. Hunt, Post No. 33, Fergus Falls; ——— ——, Post No. 138, Battle Lake; M. W. Campbell, Post No. 62, Ada; P. E. Pirath, Post No. 144, Red Lake Falls; E. B. Lowell, Post No. 65, Aitkin O. S. Kenfield, Post No. 145, Barnesville; A. I. Smart, Post No. 67, Detroit; F. E. Baker, Post No. 146, Park Rapids; T. H. Harris, Post No. 99, Crookston; Chas. H. Hodge, Post No. 161. Motley; Jonathan Irish, Post No. 91, Pelican Rapides; O. P. Renne, Post No. 173, Fertile; D. B. Turner, Post No. 102. Wadena; Zachens Barager, Post No. 177, Stephens; E. D. North, Post No. 103, Glyndon; Chas. H. Beaulieu, Post No. 178, White Earth.

4. The commander enjoins upon the foregoing and on the officers and comrades in the several posts from this time forth to the end of the encampment, an earnest and united effort to make this reunion a success which shall redound to the permanent interest of the order through all the Park Region. The aides will be expected to labor to this end in their respective jurisdictions, and they are invited to report and confer freely with the commander regarding the situation and prospects of the encampment; give of your talent and time to the noble order of the Grand Army. It will bring its own reward even to busy men and to poor men. Let us show to the world and convince ourselves as well that the soldier spirit has not died out, though the war passed away a quarter of a century ago. Moorhead and Fargo will show that we know what good treatment is.

5. The following posts have responded to the call for contributions to the funds to pay for cannon, (see circular letter No.3): Wm. Ketcham, Post No. 62; L. H. Tenney, Post No. 103; Judson Kilpatrick, Post No. 106; E. M. Kenfield, Post No. 145; Col. George, Post No. 178. It will only take about 20 cents per capita of the membership of of each post to pay off this debt. It is hoped all posts will respond to this call promptly.

5. The following posts have responded to the call for a roster of their post: W. A. Gorman Post No. 13; Pap. Thomas, Post No. 30; Stanton, Post No. 33; Gen. Summer. Post No. 65; Seward, Post No. 91; L. H. Tenney, Post No. 103; Wm. Ketcham, Post No. 62; E. M. Kenfield, Post No. 195; Col George, Post No. 178; Zebulon Johnson, Post No. 178; J. A. Rice, Post No. 177. Enclosed with this order are blanks for roster. It is the purpose of the commander to have rosters printed in pamphlet form for free distribution to the comrades if it is possible do so; or at least so that they can be obtained at a very trifling expense to each one. By order of

STATE OF MINNESOTA, COUNTY OF POLK—ss.
In Probate Court, Special Term, April 17th, 1891.

On reading and filing the petition of John Cromb, administrator, setting forth the amount of personal estate that has come to his hands, the disposition thereof, and how much remains undisposed of; the amount of debts outstanding against said deceased, as far as the same can be ascertained; the legacies unpaid, and a description of all the real estate, excepting the homestead, of which said deceased died seized, and the condition and value of the respective portions or lots thereof; the persons interested in said estate, with their residences; and praying that license be to him granted to sell all of the real estate mentioned in the said petition, And it appearing, by said petition, that there is not sufficient personal estate in the hands of said administrator to pay said debts, the legacies or expenses of administration, and that it is necessary for the payment of such debts, legacies or expenses, to sell all of said real estate.

It is therefore ordered, that all persons interested in said estate, appear before this court, on Monday, the 11th day of May, 1891, at 10 o'clock a. m., at the Probate Office in Crookston, in said county, then and there to show cause (if any there be) why license should not be granted to said administrator to sell so much of the real estate of said deceased as shall be necessary to pay such debts, legacies and expenses.

And it is further ordered, that this order shall be published once in each week for three successive weeks prior to said day of hearing, in THE POLK COUNTY JOURNAL, a weekly newspaper printed and published at Crookston, in said county.

With this issue THE JOURNAL enters the fifteenth year of its existence under the same management. In looking back over these years we can see errors that the light of experience will lead us to avoid, but we can honestly say, in extenuation of any errors we may have committed, that our object in all these years has been for the best interests of this county and its inhabitants, in whose interests we have faithfully tried to labor. It has been our ambition, and still shall be, to make THE JOURNAL worthy the patronage it has received, and we are thankful to those friends who have, by their patronage, enabled us to accomplish all that we have. But we are not fully satisfied and we have planned for far greater and better things for the future, and to that end we ask the hearty support of all who have the welfare of our county at heart. The long illness and the death of our publisher has been a severe blow to us, entailing also expenses that seem to render it impossible to carry out certain plans that we had contemplated for the immediate future, however we have not given up trying all in our power to accomplish our end, and we are confident that with the encouragement and hearty support of our many friends we shall be able to accomplish all we desire to in this line. As to our future we have only this pledge to make, and that is to make THE JOURNAL all our patronage will warrant. We shall labor zealously in the interests of the people and we hope to both merit and receive a generous patronage, promising to add from time to time such improvements as will enable us to keep to the front in our work. Again, with thanks to all who have given us a generous patronage in the past, and a cordial invitation to them and all others for a share in their valuable patronage, we buckle on the armor and tackle Vol. XV.

Our folks are kicking at Governor Merriam's recommend of Pat Rahilly—a life-long democrat, for a fat office. We are not surprised.

There was one error in McHale's bill to legislate the tights from the ballet, which was fatal. The bill should have provided for wigs for the bald heads in the first row. The solons evidently thought that any bill which left those gl[illegible]y skating rinks exposed to the cold gaze of a cynical world was too thin for any use.

What's the matter with the St. Paul Dispatch? Not long since the Pioneer Press jumped onto its neck, advising its readers to "b'ycott Dispats," and lo, the Dispatch comes out in an elegant new spring suit, fresh as a blooming rose, and chuck full of news and sound editorial common sense. All this suggests to us that either the Pioneer Press has very few readers or else that its readers do not take much stock in Pi-Press advice, for the Dispatch seems to have gained a wonderful amount of business since the "boycott!" The other St. Paul dailies will have to get a hustle on or the Dispatch will get away with 'em.

Pure Scotch Fife Wheat.

On Monday Chris Houston, Theo. Greehalgh and 17 other promminent Polk County farmers received from the Experimentae Station some pure Scotch Fife wheat for seed. Of this wheat Prof D. N. Harper says:

"Owing to unavoidable delay in procuring this wheat it has been impossible to clean it by suction blast as was intended. It has, however, been well cleaned through a Champion cleaning mill and cockle machine, and is in good condition for seeding. Its germinating power has been tested and found to be high.

This wheat is perfectly pure Scotch Fife, having been carefully selected for a number of years. The history of the wheat during this time may be interesting and should prove profitable now. It should suggest to each farmer receiving this seed means to keep it pure and improve it.

In 1881 a Red River Valley farmer found a clump of 22 stalks of wheat growing from a single grain, and which matured much earlier than the remaining stalk of wheat in that field. These stalks were pulled when ripe, carefully preserved and threshed by hand. There were obtained 860 grains of wheat, 760 of which were selected for seed and planted in 1882 six inches apart each way on a clean piece of land. These grains yielded 12 pounds of wheat, or at a rate of 40 bu. per acre. In 1883 the seed of 1882 was sown on another piece of clean land in rows 12 inches apart and thick in the rows. The wheat was given thorough cultivation and yielded 17 bushels, or at a rate of 72 bushels per acre. The crop was harvested by itself and garnered in a spare room in the farm house. It was threshed out by hand. In 1884, after cleaning, the wheat was sowed on land which had for the preceding five years been in pasture. This land had been turned down and seeded to timothy because of a rank growth of wild buckwheat. In 1884 the buckwheat appeared again and overrun the crop, cutting the yield down to 15 bushels per acre, but the quality was good. The crop was carefully harvested and threshed, keeping the wheat separate from all other lots. Before threshing a half day was spent by two men in cleaning out of the threshing machine all grains of wheat and weed seeds.

The same care has been observed to keep the wheat pure since that time. It has been grown on new or summer-fallowed land and harvested and threshed separated as long as two kinds of wheat were raised on the same farm. In 1886 it averaged 44 bushels per acre; in 1887 the quality was fine, but the winds decreased the yield; in 1888 it escaped the rust and frosts then prevalent; in 1889 and 1890 the quality and yield has been good, the latter averaging in 1890 27½ bu. per acre.

Every two years this seed has been exchanged between two farmers 80 miles apart. Although both are prairie farms the beneficial results have been noticeable.

To continue the purity of this wheat and to improve its quality should be the aim of every farmer. This can be done by observing the conditions of the distribution, by seeding on clean ground, harvesting and threshin separately from all other varieties of wheat. In the fall a list will be published of all those who have received the wheat, and the Station will assist in making proper exchanges, so that the wheat may be further improved."

An Important Legal Decision.

As to the Use of Railroad Tikcets.

The following circular, just issued by the general passenger agent of the Southern Pacific Railroad is of special interest to the railways and public at large.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 12' 1891.

On May 15, 1889, two unlimited first-class tickets of the issue of the Union Pacific Railway company for San Diego, Cal., were presented by H. E. Drummond and wife for their passage over this company's road from Ogden, Utah, to LosAngeles, Cal.

The tickets were sold at Blue Rapids, Kan., on April 15. 1889, to one E. K. Campbell. The selling agent had allowed the tickets to leave his hands without the passenger's signature to the contract or that of himself as witness thereto.

the purchaser (Compbell) used the tickets for passage to Ogden and then disposed of them to a ticket broker, by whom they were sold to Mr. Drummond.

Under our rules and because the tickets had been transferred, our conductor declined to accept them for the passage of Mr. and Mrs. Drummond, and they were required to leave our train at Promontory, Utah. and purchase local tickets. As a result, Mr. Drummond sued this company in the First district court of Utah for $10,000 damages. On the trial, the judge's charge to the jury on Feb. 22, 1890, was such as to result in a verdict for the plaintiff in the sum of $115,75.

An appeal was taken by this company from this verdict to the supreme court of the Territory of Utah, and the decision of the lower court was reversed on Feb. 3, 1891. This decision is of special interest to railroad companies. We therefore give you full text thereof.

Respectfully yours.

T. H. GOODMAN.

Genereal Passenger Agent.

H. E. Drummond, respondent, vs. The Southern Pacific company, appellant.

Blackburn. J.

Plaintiff purchased of a ticket broker in Salt Lake City, in May, 1889 two tickets to San Diego, California, for himself and wife, over the defendant company's road. They rode on them to Promontory, and the conductor refused to honor the tickets and took them up and required the plaintiff to pay full fare for himself and wife to their distination, or to be put off the train. The plaintiff paid the fare, and this suit is brought to recover damages for this breach of duty as claimed by the plaintiff. The plaintiff recoverd judgment below, and the defendant appeals asserting that it was the duty of the conductor to refuse to honor the tickets and take them up and compel the plaintiff to pay full fare or leave the train. The tickets were contract tickets, and' amongst others contained this condition.

"Third—If not so used; if more than one date is canceled, or if presented by any other person than the original holder, the ticket is void, and the conductor will take up and collect full fare."

This class of tickets are usually signed by the purchasers, but these were not.

These tickets were sold at Blue Rapids, Kan., by an agent of the Union Pacific company and used to Salt Lake City, and there sold to the ticket broker.

Before purchasing the tickets the plaintiff went to the ticket office of the Union Pacific company at Salt Lake City with the ticket broker and had the following conversation and the following transaction. "Saw Mr. Ingalls, who was an employe of the said company, and told him the plaintiff wished to purchase these two tickets. He looked at the ticket and saw where they were sold and said all right, you can sell them and we will guarantee you will get through all right. We will limit these tickets and have Mr. Drummond sign them and will give a letter to Mr. Drummond to the conductor on the Central Pacific railroad, authorizing them to honor these tickets. Mr. Ingalls gave the letter and Mr. Drummond signed the tickets and bought them. The letter was signed by Parker, per Ingalls, and Parker swears positively he had no authority to sell tickets over the road of defendant company.

The letter spoken of was not introduced in evidence, and we cannot tell its contents.

The question is, was it the duty of the defendant to honor these tickets, although presented by persons other than the original purchasers? They were through tickets, and were sold for a less price than the local fare, and the purchasers agreed not to sell them and the tickets stated on their face that they were non-transferable.

The purchaser when he bought these tickets knew that he had no right to ride part way upon them and sell them for the rest of the way; and the plaintiff knew by the terms of the tickets he had no right to buy them; but anxious to ride to his destination for less than the regular fare, he considered the matter and bought on the opinion of a man wholly unauthorized to bind the defendant company. And his suspicions should have been aroused by the conduct of the pretended agent; because if the tickets were entitled to be honored on their merits, a letter to the conductor was unnecessary, and if not the officious letter of the pretended agent would be unavailing; and this ought to have suggested to him that the tickets would be dishonored unless by the influence of this letter the conductors would be induced to neglect their duty.

This class of contract tickets are valid, and common carriers are authorized to enforce then.

Elmor vs. Sands, 53 N. Y., 512.

Railway Co, vs. Chipman, 140, Mass., 207.

Hill vs. Railway Co. 144 Mass., 284.

Cody vs. Railway Co., 4 Saw., 114.

But it is contended that the ticket agent at Blue Rapids, Kan., sold without requiring the purchaser to sign the contract. We think this makes no difference. He took them at a less price than the regular fare, the terms of the contract set out in full, and by accepting the tickets without signing, he accepted the terms of the contract, and was bound by them.

R. R. Co. vs. Read, 37 Mills, 184.5.

R. R. Co. vs. McGowan, 26 Am & Eng. R. R. 274.

Mosier vs. St. Louis & R. R. Co., 127 U. S., 391.

The court instructed the jury in opposition to these vews, and in that regard his instructions are erroneous.

We also think there is no evidence in the record to support the verdict.

But it is claimed that the conductor took up the tickets and therefore the plaintiff should recover. But he had a right to do that under the contract and the plaintiff was not damaged, as he had the tickets at the trial and introduced them in evidence.

As this error disposes of this case, we deem it unnecessary to pass upon the other alleged errors.

We concur: [Signed]

ARBOR DAY.

To County Superintendents and Teachers:

A year ago a circular was sent out by this department to the County Superintendents and teachers of the State earnestly inviting their hearty co-operation in the general observance of Arbor Day by the public schools. The reports which have come to us of the interest taken and work done on that day in many localities have been very pleasnt and encouraging, and it is confidently hoped that a still greater effort will be made this year in every district, by old and young, to help along the good work of beautifying our school house sites and make them more attractive to teachers, pupils and the public.

His Excellency, Gov. W. R. Merriam, has appointed for Arbor Day in Minnesota Friday, May 1, 1891, and urges all good citizens to unite in making its practical observance a success.

It is especially desirable that our young people, and more particularly those connected with the public schools, should take a prominent part in the tree planting movement. Arbor Day can no longer be looked upon as an experiment of doubtful utility. It has passed through that test and proved its right to a place among our holidays. Those who at first looked upon it as visionary, or as "boy's play" have been convinced by what has already been done, that there is nothing chimerical about it, but that the benefits gained substantial and lasting. The "logic of events" has not only met and answered every objection but has enlisted interest and awakened enthusiasm in almost every State of the Union.

The children of to-day who assist in the good work of adorning the school grounds with trees will, in after years, be regarded in the light of public benefactors, and few will be better entitled to the proud distinction.

It is one great object of our common schools to teach the young to wisely plan for the future, and there is nothing better to stimulate the mind of the child in this direction than to turn his thoughts toward the benefits likely to proceed from protecting our exposed prairie school houses from the blasts of winter and the fierce heats of summer by surrounding them with trees.

Let the graduating class in each of the graded schools plant a group to mark the event. The number should correspond with the number of pupils and each might take the name of the particular member who planted it.

In the ungraded schools each one of the larger pupils should be encouraged to set out and care for one tree to be known thereafter in the district as his tree. An enduring contribution to the attractiveness of the school house may thus be secured, which will increase in value with each recurring season.

An excellent program for Arbor Day will be found in "Arbor-Day Leaves," by N. H. Egleston, of the forestry division of the Department of Agriculture, Washington. The pamphlet will be furnished by the American Book Co., Chicago, at ten cents a copy.

A wise choice of trees should be made, and teachers and pupils should should seek the advice of practical tree planters.

"McKinley Prices."

The Press.

The Boston Journal is to be credited with calling down that highly respected trade journal, the American Architect, on a question of "McKinly prices." When the political campaign was on last fall the Architect expressed the opinion that "The cost of the cheaper class of buildings will (would) be enhanced" under the new tariff. As the new duty on timber, hewn and sawed; timber, squared or sided; pickets and palings, and pine clapboards was in each case 50 per cent. less than under the former law, the Architect's assertion was hardly justified. But the waywardness of its prediction may be pardoned by its frank statement in an April issue in discussing "almost the entire line of construction material, from iron and steel down to the smallest articles that go into the house, mill or shop construction." Concerning this wide range of material the Architect says that, "So far as can be learned, the the prices at which goods and supplies have been bought are a little below the prices of last year." These are the awful "McKinley prices" again!

Notice of Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

[First publication April 23, 1891.]

WHEREAS, DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE in the conditions of a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Thomas B. Bisson, an unmarried man, mortgagor, to the Northwestern Guaranty Loan Company, mortgagee, bearing date the 2d day of June, A. D. 1888, and duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the 4th day of June, A. D. 1888, at 11:30 o'clock a. m., in book 36 of mortgages on pages 196-8.

Whereas, such default consists of the failure to pay the following instalments of interest, to-wit: $4.75 that became due December 2d, 1888. $3.75 that became due June 2d, 1889. $3.75 that became due December 2d, 1889. $3.75 that became due June 2d, 1890, and $3.75 that became due December 2d, 1890.

And, whereas, the said Northwestern Guaranty Loan Company, the holder of said mortgage, has elected to declare, and hereby does declare the whole principal sums in said mortgage set forth due and payable at the date of this notice, under the terms and conditions of said mortgage and the power of sale therein contained.

And, whereas, there is actually due and payable at the date hereof, including principal and interest, upon the premises in said mortgage described, the following sum, to-wit: Three hundred and four dollars and fifty-seven cents. ($304.57.)

And, whereas, the said power of sale has become operative, and no action or proceeding at law or otherwise has been instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given, that by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage, which by the default aforesaid has become operative, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed and the premises described in and covered by said mortgage, viz: The east half of the northwest quarter (e½ nw¼) and southwest quarter of the northwest quarter (sw¼ nw¼) of Section Seventeen (17), in Township one hundred and forty-eight (148), of Range forty-two (42), containing 160 acres, more or less according to the government survey thereof. Said premises situate and being in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances, will be sold at public auction to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and twenty-five dollars attorney's fee, as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk County, at the front door of the Court House, in the city of Crookston, in said County and State, on the 9th day of June, A. D. 1891. at 10 o'clock a. m. of that day, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale as provided by law.

Dated April 17th, A. D. 1891.

Notice of Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

[First publication April 23, 1891.]

WHEREAS, DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE in the conditions of a certain Mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Delor Toupin, an unmarried man, mortgagor, to the Northwestern Guaranty Loan Company, mortgagee, bearing date the 20th day of November A. D. 1888, and duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the county of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the 20th day of November A. D. 1888, at 3:40 o'clock p. m., in book 40 of Mortgages, on pages 574-5.

Whereas, such default consists of the failure to pay the following installments of interest, to-wit: $17.50 that became due May 20th, 1889, $17.50 that became due November 20th, 1889, $17.50 that became due May 20th, 1890, and $17.50 that became due November 20th, 1890.

And, whereas the said Northwestern Guaranty Loan Company, the holder of said mortgage, has elected to declare, and hereby does declare, the whole principal sums in said mortgage set forth due and payable at the date of this notice under the terms and conditions of said mortgage and the power of sale therein contained.

And, whereas, there is actually due and payable at the date hereof, including principal and interest upon the premises in said mortgage described, the following sum, to-wit: Five hundred and ninety two dollars and fifty cents ($592.50), and whereas the said power of sale has become operative and no action or proceeding at law or otherwise has been instituted to recover the said debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage, which by the default aforesaid has become operative, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed, and the premises described in and covered by said mortgage, viz: The northwest quarter (nw¼) of Section twenty-nine (29), in Township one hundred and fifty (150), of Range forty-three (43), containing 160 acres, more or less, according to the government survey thereof; said premises situate and being in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances, will be sold at public auction, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and twenty-five dollars attorney's fee, as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law: which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk County, at the front door of the Court House in the City of Crookston, in said County and State, on the 9th day of June, A. D. 1891, at 10 o'clock a. m. of that day, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale as provided by law.

Free Lance (Springfield Ill.) says:—The property of the Goulds, Vanderbilts, Stanford et al. has come through operations in railroads. In many states these corporations have been strong enough to defeat candidates known to be favorable to a plan to check their schemes to enrich themselves at the public expense. Under the pretense of employing attorneys they have succeeded in subsidizing judges and public officers. These nominal servants of the people enjoy such splendid opportunities that they become very wealthy on moderate salaries. From brakemen to president the employes of railway systems enjoy an average compensation greater than the officials of our government or any other occupation of anywhere equal numbers. A railway magnate, with a salary of $50,000 per year, finds leisure to accept all invitations to dine, make annual tours in Europe, and attend every junketing party that promises entertainment and glory, while instead of earning dividends upon the actual value of their stock, railroad officials demands rates that enable them to declare dividends upon watered stock to the amount of two or three times the actual cost. In vew of the enormous pay roll to those who are only indirectly, employed in their interests, the wonder is that more receivers are not called for. An honest, economical conduct of the railroad business would reduce expenses half, and if the water were wrung out of the stock until it would represent the actual genuine capitalization, the rates could be reduced one-half, and still leave a percentage of profit greater than the average business will command. By railway operations Jay Gould has massed a fortune equal to an empire of a century ago. It represents the earnings of the poor and the fortunes of associates whom he has wrecked. Not satified with his store he, by collusion with other money kings, lately exposed the country to the pinching of a money panic. Through the stringency of money, which they kept from circulating, he and his partners added millions to their gains and the management of a line of railway necessary to the control of western transportation. Not satisfied with the ruinous rates which makes corn, which is worth fifty cents a bushel in the east, sell for fifteen cents in Kansas, they propose to form a gigantic trust for the purpose of maintaining higher rates for transportation. Will they kill the goose that lays the golden egg? In a short time the debt which this line, owes our government will mature. This debt is a secondary lien. Let the government foreclose its lien, discharge the prior indebtedness, pay the balance to the stockholders, if any be due, and operate the road as it conducts the postal service for the good of the whole people. Under the postal regulations the poor man who sends one letter gets the service as cheaply as the man who sends a thousand. This is the true system. Under existing railroad regulations the poor are made to pay that the rich customer or favorite may ride free. Let us try the experiment of operating a transcontinental line of railway. It will destroy any hope of organizing a trust to control western rates. It will restore to the people a vast area for settlement. It will serve notice upon competing lines that their only hope for existence is moderation in charges. It will put all shippers and consumers upon an equal plaine and exclude the system of favored shipper to break down the business of a competitor. It is a measure of justice and expediency. If the government will buy and operate a line of railway from ocean to ocean it will give us a chance to study the effect of this kind of "paternalism" and an experience in the cost of operating a road that may be applied to the control of all other lines. Division of through rates with its feeders' would give the whole country the benefit of the experiment. Let's try.

Toledo Blade:—Hon. David Bothoffices Hill, who has one foot on the governor's footstool at Albany and the other in the United States Senate, and who draws both salaries at the same time, is also a candidate for the Presidential nomination next year. In case he were successful and were elected, are we to understand that he would retain his senatorship until the meeting of Congress in December, 1892 and draw the salary of both that and his Presidential office?

Mrs. Stanley on Womankind.

When asked if he expected to go back to Africa Mr. Stanley said: "That is a subject which I never mention before Mrs. Stanley. She does not like to have it mentioned." "Africa is to far off," said the lady, laughingly, "and we have America before us now. Our trip will take until next April. But I will never consent to Mr. Stanley's going to Africa again. We are too happy now to talk of that." And I shall be guided by Mrs. Stanley in that matter," said her husband. "Yes," was the wife's ready response, "I am learning from the American wives, who seem to have their own way in everything. The American women are the most independent and brightest in the world." Another characteristic of the American woman—which Mrs. Stanley did not mention—is that she is a great traveler, and her brightness leads her to appreciate comfort and elegance of equipment and courteous treatment. As a consequence. "The Burlington,' is a favorite route with the ladies, and the husbands will do well to say with the great explorer—"I shall be guided by my wife in that matter"—when selecting a railroad line for any journey. For tickets rates, or any information, apply to local agents, or write to W. J. C. Kenyon, Gen. Pass. Agent C. B. & N. R. R., St. Paul. Minn.

The Great Northern Railway has put train service on one hundred and eighty miles of new extension to the Pacific Coast; the line opened running from Pacific Junction, near Fort Assinniboine, Montana, to the Rocky Mountains, which, when crossed into the Flathead Lake country, will give that road two routes over the continental range, the other being between Helena and Butte. The great Northern's extension to Puget Sound will be two hundred and fifty miles the shortest transcontinental line.

The Independent (Ord, Neb.) says:—"Plenty of money and only two per cent a month." So says one of the New York experts who testified as to what he knew about silver, and the disastrous effects that will occur in case the free coinage bill passes. Well that will all do very well for Wall street, and the business men who congregate there, but it does not meet the great issue of plenty of money for the whole country. We know it is altogether likely that "the business men" of New York city consider this great money center equivalent to the whole outside world, and so, when you talk about "plenty o money," and their own locality is supplied, why, of course, the whole country is supplied. But this will not do. "Plenty of money in New York at 2 per cent a month" will not do for the farmers, laboring men and general business men who live and do business outside of this bailiwink. Plenty of money there does not mean plenty of money throughout the whole land

Italy Anger.

The Press.

Italy is a apparently again assuming an aggressive attitude toward the United States. The Rudini Cabinet is seemingly being goaded into a policy that it may have occasion to regret. If Minister Porter receives his passport it will be a long time before another American Minister will appear in Rome, and America will not be first in soliciting a renewal of diplomatic relations. There is no sensible ground for any unfriendly action on the part of Italy. Even the Louisiana authorities are bestiring themselves to bring the lynchers of the Italians to trial, if not to justice; and King Humbert himself could do no more.

A declaration of war would not necessarily follow a breach of diplomatic relations. Indeed, a war with the United States would be almost as stupid an exhibition as Italy could present before the world. Its cost would be enormous, and the result in spite of her fleet of powerful ironclads would inevitably be disastrous to Italy. Our means of defense, though incomplete, are still formidable. The Press is confident that we should be able to defend ourselves from the first. And the practically unlimited resources of the United States would eventually enable this country to inflict a punishment upon the bumptious Italian kingdom from which it could not rally for half a century.

It is to be hoped, however, that Italy will see the folly of courting a quarrel with a power that can afford to despise her menaces, but which has warmly sympathized with Italy in her struggle to rise to a higher plane of freedom and civilization.

Notice of Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

First publication March 26th 1891.

Default having been made in the payment of interest in the sum of $22.08 due November 1, 1889, $26.25 due May 1, 1890, $26.25 due Nov. 1, 1890, which default has continued to the date of this notice, upon a certain Mortgage duly executed and delivered by Knud K. Yolden and Mary his wife Mortgagors, to The Loan and Guaranty Company of Connecticut, Mortgagee, bearing date the first day of May, 1889, and with a power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the 24th day of May 1889, at one o'clock and thirty minutes p. m., in Book 45 of Mortgages on page 276.

And whereas, the said The Loan and Guaranty Company of Connecticut the Mortgagee and holder of said Mortgage, has duly elected and does hereby elect to declare the whole principal sum of said mortgage due and payable at the date of this notice, under the terms and conditions of said mortgage, and the power of sale therein contained; and whereas there is actually due and claimed to be due and payable at the date of this notice the sum of eight hundred and forty eight and 93-100 dollars with interest on $824.52 thereof at the rate of seven per cent per annum, from the 18th day of March 1891, and whereas the said power of sale has become operative, and no action or proceeding having been instituted, at law or otherwise, to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part therof.

Now therefore, notice is hereby given, that by virtue of a power of a power of sale contained in said mortgage and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, viz:

The south-west quarter (s w¼) of section eleven (11) Town one hundred and forty nine (149) of Range forty two (42) in Polk County and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances; which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk County, at the front door of the Court house, in the town of Crookston in said County and State, on the 16th day of May 1891, at 10 o'clock a. m., of that day, at public vendue to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt of eight hundred forty eight and 93-100 Dollars and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises and fifty (50) Dollars, Attorney's fees, as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale, as provided by law.

Notice of Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

First publication March 26th 1891.

Default having been made in the payment of interest in the sum of $30.55 due November 1, 1889, $24.50 due May 1, 1890, $24.50 due November 1, 1890, which default has continued to the date of this notice, upon a certain Mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Martin G. Olson and Mary Olson his wife, Mortgagors, to The Loan and Guaranty Company of Connecticut Mortgagee, bearing date the 1st day of May 1889, and, with a power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the 24th day of May 1889, at one o'clock and thirty minutes p. m., in Book 45 of Mortgages, on page 279.

And whereas, the said The Loan and Guaranty Company of Connecticut the Mortgagee and holder of said Mortgage, has duly elected and does hereby elect to declare the whole principal sum of said mortgage due and payable at the date of this notice, under the terms and conditions of said Mortgage, and the power of sale therein contained; and whereas there is actually due and claimed to be due and payable at the date of this notice the sum of Seven Hundred and ninety two and 33-100 Dollars with interest on $769.55 thereof at the rate of seven per cent per annum. from the 18th day of March 1891, and whereas the said power of sale has become operative, and no action or proceeding having been instituted, at law or otherwise, to recover the debt secured by said Mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now therefore, notice is hereby given, That by virtue of a power of sale contained in said Mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said Mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said Mortgage, viz:

The south-west quarter (s w¼) of section Four (4) Town one hundred and forty nine (149) of Range forty two (42) in Polk County and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances; which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk County, at the front door of the Court House, in the town of Crookston in said County and State, on the 16th day of May 1891, at 10 o'clock a. m. of that day, at public vendue, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt of seven hundred and ninety two and 33-100 Dollars, and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises and fifty (50) Dollars, Attorney's fees, as stipulated in and by said Mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale as provided by law.

Notice of Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

(First publication March 26th, 1891.)

DEFAULT HAVING BEEN MADE IN THE payment of interest in the sum of $22.86, due September 1st, 1889, $23.00 due March 1st, 1890, $23.00 due September 1st, 1890, and $23.00 due March 1st, 1891, which default has continued to the date of this notice, upon a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Josiah A. Mead and Sadie Mead, his wife, mortgagors, to The Loan and Guaranty Company, of Connecticut, mortgagee, bearing date the first day of March, 1889, and, with a power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the third day of April, 1889, at 10 o'clock a. m., in book 46 of mortgages, on page 130.

And whereas, the said The Loan and Guaranty Company, of Connecticut, the mortgagee and holder of said mortgage, has duly elected and does hereby elect to declare the whole principal sum of said mortgage due and payable at the date of this notice, under the terms and conditions of said mortgage, and the power of sale therein contained; and whereas there is actually due and claimed to be due and payable at the date of this notice the sum of nine hundred and fifteen and 16-100 dollars, with interest on $[illegible] thereof at the rate of seven per cent per annum, from the 18th day of March, 1891, and whereas the said power of sale has become operative, and no action or proceeding having been instituted, at law or otherwise, to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, viz: The southwest quarter (sw¼) of Section twenty-two (22), Town one hundred and fifty-four (154) of Range forty-five (45), in Polk County and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances; which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk County, at the front door of the Court House, in the town of Crookston, in said County and State, on the 16th day of May, 1891, at 10 o'clock a. m. of that day, at public vendue, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt of nine hundred and fifteen and 16-100 dollars, and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and fifty (50) dollars attorney's fees, as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale as provided by law.

Notice of Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

[First publication March 12, 1891.]

WHEREAS, DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE in the conditions of a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Pasca Labelle and Adele Labelle, his wife, to the Northwestern Guaranty Loan Company, bearing date the 11th day of April, A. D. 1889, and duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the 11th day of April, A. D. 1889, at 2 o'clock p. m., in book 45 of mortgages, on pages 147-9.

And, whereas, such default consists of the failure to pay the following installments of interest, to-wit: $1.72 that became due November 1st, 1889; $5.00 that became due May 1st, 1890; and $5.00 that became due November 1st, 1890.

And, whereas the said Northwestern Guaranty Loan Company, the holder of said mortgage, has elected to declare, and hereby does declare, the whole principal sums in said mortgage set forth due and payable at the date of this notice under the terms and conditions of said mortgage and the power of sale therein contained.

And, whereas, there is actually due and payable at the date hereof, including principal and interest upon the premises in said mortgage described, the following sum, to-wit: Two hundred and twenty-four and 32-100 dollars ($224.32) and whereas the said power of sale has become operative and no action or proceeding at law or otherwise has been instituted to recover the said debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed, and the premises described in and covered by said mortgage, viz: The southwest quarter of the southwest quarter (sw¼ sw¼) of Section twenty (20), in Township one hundred and fifty-two (152) north, of Range forty-five (45) west, containing forty acres, more or less, according to the government survey thereof; said premises situate and being in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances, will be sold at public auction, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and twenty-five dollars attorney's fee, as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk County, at the front door of the Court House in the City of Crookston, in said County and State, on the 27th day of April, A. D. 1891, at 10 o'clock a. m. of that day, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale as provided by law.

Wheat Experiments.

Prof. D. N. Harper.

The results of the investigations made on the wheat crops of 1888 and 1889 showed the necessity of making certain other experiments during 1890.

In the following pages I shall give a concise, general account of these experiments, the results obtained, and the conclusions to be drawn. I had hoped to make a final report on wheat at this time, but circumstances have prevented the completion of certain lines of work, and such a report must be delayed.

During the year 1881 collected samples foreign wheats, particularly from Russia and Hungary, and made analyses to determine whether any of the varieties are superior to our own. These analyses showed the Hungarian and many of the Russian wheats to be of great value, but none are more valuable than our Scotch Fife and Blue Stem. Field experiments were therefore undertaken to show whether any of the foreign wheats ripen earlier, are more free from rust, or are otherwise hardier than ours.

Experiments and Results.

Experiment 1. The foreign wheats were grown to show, (1) the character of the plant, its hardiness, etc., (2) the the length of time needed for it to mature, (3) the quality of the crop, (4) the change produced in the grain by changed conditions, (5) how the crops would compare with wheat raised from native seed.

Results. The general results show that our own native varieties are superior to any foreign ones. Scotch Fife selected according to the methods advocated herein, ripened within a few days as soon as the earliest foreign wheat, and proved to be hardier than any of the foreign varietes. Some of the Russian seed yielded as good a quality as our own, and these varieties will be further tested. But most of the Russian seed was of mixed varieties of bearded and beardless wheats, and in all cases the bearded varieties grew with less vigor, were more susceptible to rust and gave a crop of poorer quality than the beardless wheats.

All of the Hungarian wheats failed to mature and seemed to show by their growth that they are winter varieties. In Hungary they are said to be indiscriminately spring or winter wheats.

The crops from the Russian varietes showed no change from their original characters and indicated that the conditions here are favorable to their growth if not quite similar to those of their natural localities.

Experiment 2. The so-called Ladoga, which is a bearded wheat common in Russia and which has been introduced into Manitoba, was grown by Mr. Toombs and by two other gentlemen in Stephen, in fields of about 30 acres each and in smaller plots by many other farmers in different places. The seed was obtained from Manitoba where it had been grown for two or more seasons. It has been claimed that this wheat ripens earlier than Fife wheat, yields as well and is of as good quality.

Results. The early ripening of Ladoga was shown to be more apparent than real, and the other claims made for it were widely disproved. It proved to be extremely susceptible to rust, shelled more easily than other wheat, grew less vigorously, shrunk badly in the grain and did not stand up well. It is time and money worse than wasted for Minnesota farmers to further experiment with Ladoga wheat.

Experiment 3. Alongside of the foreign wheats there were planted plots of native varieties, particularly Haynes' Pedigree Blue stem, Herriman's Scotch Fife and Verdon Scotch Fife, the prize wheat of Manitoba in 1889. All three of these were the finest samples of their kind, each weighing from 63 to 64 lb per measured bushel.

The results show that each variety ripened uniformly with the quality of the crop in the following order, Verdon, Herriman's and Haynes'. Herriman's ripened in 96 days, Verdon in 98 days and Haynes was not fully matured in 106 days.

Experiment 4. Darwin has shown that the capacity of any particular piece of land to produce a particular variety of grass, is limited. But after this limit is reached other varieties can be grown and thus the total yield increased. This suggested that it might be possible to increase the yield of wheat by growing mixed varieties. To test this and to show what the effect might otherwise be, acre plots of different varieties were grown as follows: Haynes' Blue Stem, separate; Haynes' Blue stem and Ladoga, mixed; Ladoga; Herriman's Fife and Ladoga; Herriman's Fife; Haynes' and Herriman's mixed, and a mixture of the Fife, Blue Stem and Ladoga.

Results. The plots of pure varieties did not. The quality of the crop from the mixed varieties approached to the quality of the poorest wheat and was not uniform, while that of the pure variety was uniform.

Experiment 5. Those grains of greatest vitality and best able to reproduce are the ones of greatest density (weight). Direct experiments, published by Church in 1865, showed that "(1) seed wheat of greatest density produces the densest (heaviest) seeds; (2) seed wheat of greatest density produces the greatest number of seeds; (3) seed wheat of medium density produces ordinarily the greatest number of ears but the ears are poorer than those from seeds of greatest density; (4) seed wheat of medium density produces generally the greatest number of fertile plants; (5) seed wheat, which sinks in water but floats upon a liquid with a specific weight of 1,547 is of little value, it produces but about a third of the weight of grains produced by the densest grains. Seeds of the greatest specific weight are not always the largest."

Judge Hall, of Hudson, Wisconsin, has cited me his experience with dense wheat. In the neighborhood of a flour mill operated by him the crop of wheat had been poor for several years For self interest and in order to induce farmers to plant sound seed, he agreed to clean their seed wheat free of charge. Most farmers accepted this offer and the results proved satisfactory to a high degree, and until the chinch bugs forbade the further cultivation of wheat. The wheat thus cleaned free from dirt, weed seeds, light and immature grains, soon increased the yield from below fifteen bushels per acre up to 25 bushels, and there was a corresponding increase in the quality of the grain.

By an extended examination in the laboratory and in the field, I was convinced that chief among the causes of unfavorable results were careless selection of seed, and the planting of that which was of diminished vitality. To test this, and to show the effect of cleaning wheat well for seed, to secure the heaviest grains, and those uniform in weight, the following experiment was conducted with Capt. Donaldson, at Northcote; B. E. Sundberg at Kennedy; G. W. Toombs, at Stephen, and Hon. E. D. Childs, at Crookston.

Wheat which after screening out the weed seeds, graded 1 Northern and weighed 61 lbs. to the measured bushel, was several times run through a Barnard & Lee cleaning mill. In this way the original wheat, weighing 61 lbs., was separated into two parts one of which weighed 63 lbs. per bushel and and was perfectly clean, and the other weighed, after further cleaning out the weed seeds, 55 lbs. per bushel. Equal size plots of each of these planted side by side and the comparisons noted.

Results. From personal examination at all the places while the crop was ripening it was shown that the wheat from the 63 lbs. seed grew most evenly, the heads were largest and best developed, the plot was free from weeds, ripened uniformly and matured earlier than the wheat from 61 lb seed. The wheat from the 55 lb. seed was poorest of all, it grew unevenly, ripened unevenly, and was very weedy.

Mr. Sundberg planted exactly 30 lb of each kind of seed on May 7th, 1890, on equal sized plots. "They were all harvested August 24th; the wheat from the 63 lb seed was ripe, but that from the other kinds could easily have stood eight days more before being ripe. It was all drilled in and on the same kind of land. From the 63 lb seed I threshed 668 lb; from the 61 lb, 519½; from the 55lb, 302½ lb. The Ladoga wheat is a failure here. It ripens perhaps a few days sooner, but the yield is very poor."

Mr. Toombs planted acre plots of each kind, using the same amount of seed on each plot. "Sixty-three lb seed gave 20 bushels; 61 lb. gave 18 bushels, and the poor wheat of 55 lb per bushel gave only 7 bushels. So you can see that there is a big difference."

Experiment 6. The effects of seeding the same wheat on the same land for many years were further observed.

The result has been that the vitality of the grain is impaired and the crop reduced in yield and the quality deteriorated. Unless exceptional care has been exercised in the selection of seed the wheat shows marked deterioration within four or five years.

Conclusions.

The best wheat for our conditions are the varieties of pure Scotch Fife and pure Blue Stem. For the Red River Valley, particularly the northern portion of it, Scotch Fife is for all reasons the best. It ripens earlier than Blue Stem and makes better flour for the reason that the bread made from it is of lighter color than bread made from Blue Stem flour. I have made some analyses of the best Blue Stem wheat—where the amount of gluten and the strength of the dough were equal to the best Scotch Fife, and where milling tests showed it to give as great a yield, but in all cases the color of the dough made from Blue Stem flour was noticeably darker.

From many analyses made on last years's crop I observed that Blue Stem stains more readily than Fife. Much of the wheat of last years's crop was discolored, an effect of the excessive heat in July. In all cases I examined it was the Blue Stem grains which were most injured. Wheat which was plump rich in gluten and well cured would have been of high milling value had it not been for discolored grains, and these were mostly grains of Blue Stem.

Pure varieties of wheat should be used for seed. Thus if one intends seeding Fife wheat, let it be free from Blue Stem or any other variety than Fife. The differences in the time of ripening, etc., as illustrated by our experiments, seem to show conclusively that is a wrong practice to seed wheat other than that which is of pure variety. The practice of buying seed from elevators or indiscriminately from other sources is wrong and no more reasonable than it would be for a breeder to place at the head of his herd any male whatever. The pedigree of an animal is a valuable consideration and we should similarly value what might be called the pedigree of wheat.

Cleaning wheat for seed. After securing a pure variety of wheat, the next consideration should be to have it free from any weed seeds, weak and and light grains. The weight should be uniform and high. To secure this, where large machines are not to be had, the ordinary fanning mills can profitably be used by making the draft of wind strong and setting aside the seives.

Change of seed. To assure the best results and prevent deterioration of the seed it should be changed every two or three years, taking care that pure seed of equal quality is obtained in exchange. A change from heavy soil to light, from light to heavy, from timber to prairie and vice versa will prove beneficial to the grain and profitable to the producer.

Amount of seed per acre. With the wheat ordinarily planted, it is safe to say that more grains are seeded than necessary. Were all wheat well cleaned before being seeded a considerable saving would result, but there are various considerations to be taken into account with regard to the amount of seed best suited to our conditions. The experiments started last year are not conclusive and are therefore not now published.

Selection of seed. The most important points to be considered in the selection of wheat for seed are as follows: Secure (1) a pure variety of wheat —the best being Fife, (2) a heavy wheat, (3) a plump wheat, with the shape of the berry as near a sphere as possible, (4) a clean wheat, that is one free from weed seeds, shrunken and immature grains. These requirements can be adjudged with the grain itself, but no matter how good the wheat may be it can be improved by cleaning, thus making the grains uniformly heavy.

But the selection should take place in part before harvesting. If of pure variety that wheat which ripens earliest, with the brightest, strongest straw and largest heads will generally prove to have all the requirements of good seed. By this continued intelligent selection, accompanied by careful change of seed, the quality of our wheat must improve if methods of cultivation are correct.

Something About Dollars.

The dollar sign ($) is not a monogram of "U.S." but dates from the days when the transfer was made from Spanish to American dollars and accounts were kept equally in dollars and reals. Thus: One dollar eight reals. Later the 8 was placed between the perpendicular parllel lines |8|: then the perpendicular lines crossed the eight and combined with it to form the present sign ($).

But the origin of the dollar mark is not so important a question as how to get the dollars, and how to get the most out of them afterwards. A great many rules for becoming wealthy have been given, and John Jacob Astor's—"Cut down your expenses and let your income run on"—is as good as any. We can, however, offer some advice on spending the money, especially if you intend to use any of it in traveling. Select "The Burlington" when you want to reach any prominent place in the East. West, North or south, and its luxurious equipment, fast time, and sure connections will convince you that it gives you the most for your money. Any ticket agents can sell you tickets by this line, or you can address W. J. C. Kenyon, Gen. Pass Agent C. B. & N. R. R., St. Paul, Minn.

The Paint, Drug and Oil Review contains particulars of the purchase by a German syndicate of 3,400 acres of land in Bloom, an outlying suburb of Chicago, which illustrates how the new Tariff law is operating to force European manufacture to come here, locate works and manufacture the goods with which they supply this market. A huge cork concern from Germany has practically closed negotiations with the German syndicate to buy a site and erect works at Bloom. In Germany the concern employs 3,000 men. The new tariff law puts a duty of fifteen cents per pound on manufactured corks. The result is shown in this forced removal of the cork manufacturing industry to the United States. The present duty of 60 per cent. on plate glass has operated similarly, and Herr Otto of Stuttgart, Germany, is an authority for the statement that a large plate glass firm of his country has made provisions to establish a factory in the same Chicago suburb, being compelled to take this step to retain their American custom. These are merely signs of the times under the McKinley law—two illustrations out of hundreds.

A Universal Question.

"How can I get the most for the least money?" This is the almost universal question among Americans. Always in business, usually in pleasure, often in religion, this is the tape and rule by which a new proposition is measured. Not to write a homily, but to aid hard-worked men in finding homes, and seekers of pleasure and health in finding desirable havens, is the purpose of this notice. We make it brief by saying: "Take the Great Northern Railway, from Crookston Minn., to the Northwest and Pacific Coast. Publications concerning the Northwest sent free and letters of inquiry answered by F. I. Whitney, G. P. & T. A. St. Paul, Minn. The readers of this paper are advised to call and see Agent Fegan for particulars if a trip for pleasure, business or health is contemplated to any part of the United States.

Hezekiah Butterworth, of the Youth's Companion, and author of the famous "Zig Zag Journal" books, is preparing a volume to add to his interesting ceries, from material gathered on a trip over the Great Northern Railway, trough Minnesota, North Dakota and Montana, during the summer of 1890. He thinks the Park Region of Minnesota is one of the most delightful sections of America for a summer outing.

Rabilly's Appointment.

Governor Merriam's Reason's For Securing Him a Position

Duluth Daily Tribune.

WASHINGTON, April 21.—Some choice political secrets have been wafted from Minnesota to Washington of late. There is a large colony of Minnesota people here, and the majority of the members of this colony are politicians by nature and training. It need create no surprise, to state that nearly every Minnesotan in Washington has correspondents in the North Star State who keep them pretty well posted upon what is going on there.

A matter of special interest is the current speculation with regard to a strong political alliance between Ignatius Donnelly and Gov. Merriam. It is claimed by those who know that this alliance dates back to the time when Merriam ran for speaker of the lower house of representatives, and Donnelly was appointed chairman of the railroad committee in that house.

It was also hinted in certain quarters that last year Gov. Merriam had the sympathy of Mr. Donnelly, and that this sympathy has been kept up ever since. It is true that during the winter session of the legislature none of Gov. Merriam's appointments were objected to by Mr. Donnelly. It was a noticeable fact that Donnelly also stood by Merriam in all his vetoes. There is but little doubt in regard to a treaty of reciprocity between these two gentlemen, and just how far it extends is a matter of conjecture.

The recommendation of P. H. Rabilly, of Lake City, to the position of special agent of the land office, is not so much a surprise to people on the inside of Minnesota politics as might be imagined. Of course, it seems to be a well established fact that Rabilly did not have the indorsement of any of the congressional delegation of this state.

The recommendation of Mr. Rabilly shows that it is intended he should have his reward for withdrawing from the race last fall, which, it is alleged he did at the request of Gov. Merriam, Archbishop Ireland and a few others. The question then naturally arises, who in Minnesota enjoys the confidence of the present administration? From the recommendation of Rabilly, one might suppose that Archbishop Ireland and Merriam were at present in the lead. Senator Davis, however, seems to have risen from obscurity in holding up the appointment.

It is queer to many that no newspaper has ever published the story of the first meeting of the state central committee held this year in Minnesota. In that meeting the question put to Gov. Merriam and his answers thereto would have made interesting reading.

Some Republicans who were present have been so uncharitable as to think that Gov. Merriam's answers were only steps in an endeavor to popularize himself with the Alliance element in that state. There are Minnesoains in Washington who have no hesitancy in saying that Gov. Merriam is doing his utmost to lay wires to insure the defeat of senator Davis and elevate himself to the senate. It was pointed out last fall that the governor would do this. That the senior senator has lost a great deal of prestige is made conspicuous in that he was not consulted by Secretary Noble before he passed Merriam's recommendation for Rabilly's appointment.

It is even hinted here that President Harrison has decided to turn down both Washburn and Davis from this time on, and, further, that he proposes to recognize Governor Merriam as something of a dictator in Minnesota politics from this time on. But it looks as though the governor made a blunder in making his first recommendation.

Ladies, have you observed how nicely Mrs. Bailey has her millinery shop fixed up? And the elegant stock she carries? She invites you to call and get her prices before you purchase.

Geo. Bunzy brought in a beef cow from Mentor on Saturday, or part way, anyhow. Not being used to traveling, the animal got foot-sore and had to be left a few miles out to rest a day or so.

Alderman Jennings is in big luck. Somebody has sent him five gallons of maple syrup. Golly, don't we wish we spelt our name that way when that bunch of sweetness arrived? Yum! yum!

Mrs. Bailey informs THE JOURNAL that she is doing a rushing business in millinery, and is prepared to supply all demands in that line. Remember the place, corner of Broadway and Fletcher streets.

Mrs. J. O. Milne came up from Duluth last week on a visit to her children. She has been very ill and plainly shows the effects thereof. She is far from well now, but her friends hope for the best.

Jeweler Saaks invites the attention of JOURNAL readers to his new ad in this issue—or rather requests them to "watch this space," until he gets his announcement ready. He has a full and complete stock in his line, as usual.

Geo. M. Swift was down from Mentor last Saturday with two cows to sell for beef. The aggregate weight was one ton and netted 3½ cents on foot. Considering the recent condition of the market, this is a very good price.

F. T. Haseltine arrived on Wednesday morning looking as natural as life and all ready for business. He would have been here before but for the serious illness of his wife and a severe attack of the grip on his own hook.

Anton Erickson opens up a fruit and confectionery business this week in Vine's old meat market on Robert street. Anton will keep a full supply of everything in that line and solicits the patronage of JOURNAL readers.

Mrs. Louis Theuer has been very ill with erysipelas, being out of her head at times and her life was despaired of. Her brother, A. P. Misgen, of Superior, arrived on Wednesday morning. Mrs. T. was reported better on Wednesday.

Work will soon be commenced upon the foundation of the Norwegian Synod church building on Broadway, some of the brick being now upon the ground. It has not yet been fully determined whether to build wholly with brick or not.

Looking at the condition of Robert street this spring suggests an improvement that should be made—paving. It would not be a very expensive matter to pave it with cedar blocks and the item of dust alone would soon pay the extra cost.

W. L. and H. S. Palmer will open the old opera house as a roller skating rink to-morrow night, May 1st. Get out your skates, oil them up and be there at 8 o'clock to hear the Queen City Band of eighteen pieces, play—and enjoy yourselves.

If good weather continues this week wheat in Polk County will be nearly all in the ground. Such growing weather as we have been having has never been excelled in any country. Very soon grass will be high enough to furnish abundant food for stock.

Jos. Laframboise intends to start for Montana about May 15th with a carload of stock for that market. In the lot will be some full blood Jerseys and Holsteins, very choice animals that should bring round figures in that market, or in any other for that matter.

Patrolman Ellingbo takes hold like an old stager and will make a good policeman. But, oh, my! Don't he look just too fine in uniform? Andy Locken used to be the handsomest man on the force, but Ellingbo can give him cards and spades and win several points.

Mark Rauenbuehler has bought the old Hartshorn, Hurlbut & Dawley building and will move it to the site now occupied by his harness shop at the corner of Broadway and Third street, where he will have the most complete establishment in the city. Mark is a rustler and no mistake.

Halvor B. Tweten, who bought the double building on Second street, adjoining the Van Dyke & Co. drug store, has traded it to Walker for the old Linton house building, which he will move to his lots on the corner of Broadway and Second street and remodel for a boarding house.

Mrs. Mary W. Coykendall returned from Tacoma on Saturday last very much improved in health (though she says she don't like the rain out there one little bit). She will remain for a short visit in the family of her brother, Alderman I. U. Jennings, before returning to her home in Wisconsin.

Eugene J. Stilwell, of the firm of Wright, Barrett & Stilwell of St. Paul, was in the city on Sunday. Gene used to travel for the old firm and likes to get out on the road again once in a while and meet his old friends, and they like to have him do so. Says Crookston is bound to be one of the leading towns of the Northwest.

Services, May 3d, at the Congregational church, sermons by the pastor. 11:00 a. m.—"The Remedy for Human Trouble." 7:30 p. m.—"The Priest Meeting the Herdman." The public kindly invited. The Lord's Supper will be celebrated at the morning service. Let all come early as the exercises of each service should begin at the hour named.

John Kops was over from Grand Forks this week looking up business for Kops Bros. Charlie and Paul are in Montana selling pianos by wholesale. They want 40 or 50 second-hand square pianos, and will exchange new upright pianos for them on very liberal terms. Here is a good opportunity to obtain a nice new upright and trade off the old square at a good figure.

Jos. Laframboise has a three-year-old English Draught horse that weighs 1,250 lbs. The colt has never been overfed having been wintered principally on straw, with but little hay and grain. The colt is a full-blood and worth $500, and yet some will claim that good stock don't pay in this country. The main trouble is that there is too little good stock here.

John D. Knudson was down from McIntosh with the assessors on Saturday last. Says the farmers in his neighborhood are well along with their wheat sowing and will be nearly through with oats and barley this week and next. They are anticipating a bountiful yield, barring unpropitious weather. He informs us that P. P. Bodine, late of the Tribune, intends to go to Minneapolis to live.

The Mapleton (Blue Earth County) Enterprise issued a very creditable illustrated edition, which shows that ambitious little village up in good shape. He makes a specialty of tobacco from the cheapest to the best. Call and see his stock.

The familiar face of comrade D. R. Carr, has again appeared upon our streets. He came up from Minneapolis on Friday to again assume his old position in the Red River Lumber Co's big mill. Mr. Walker was very fortunate to secure again the services of one of his old and trusted employes. Comrade Carr has lived here for the past six years, but removed to Minneapolis last fall where he has purchased a house and will permanently reside.

Alfred Veaudrin will be prepared to herd cattle during the coming season, commencing May 15th. He lives on section 36, in the town of Gentilly, and his herd will have the range of four sections, with plenty of good pure water. His charge for cattle will be 25 cents per month per head or $1.00 for the season. He will also be prepared to herd sheep. He has thirty acres fenced for the care of the stock nights.

H. G. Mitchel writes THE JOURNAL a letter full of good advice to farmers in relation to building grist mills which it will be well for them to read carefully and ponder over. The letter arrived too late for this issue, but will appear in our next. In addition to this industry, farmers could well afford to aid in securing a tannery and a woolen factory, should the opportunity occur. Every farmer could better afford to give $25 to a tannery than to be without one.

One day last week we saw one of the Helmick boys on the street driving a fine span of mares to a lumber wagon. Each mare was followed by a fine colt almost as big as herself, and we were surprised when told that one of the colts was four weeks old and the other only six. The sire is a thoroughbred Clyde. With such living examples we don't see how any one can fail to see the profit in thoroughbred stock. It costs no more to raise and is worth very much more than the ordinary scrub.

Max Bass, immigration agent for the Great Northern Railway Co., gave THE JOURNAL a pleasant call on Saturday. He says that the prospects are that very many people from the eastern states will be here to look for homes during the coming summer, and he asked THE JOURNAL to suggest to our farmer readers the advisability of raising a sample for the advertising car that the Great Northern intends to send out next fall. A fine sheaf of wheat, oats or barley, or a bushel of potatoes or something in the vegetable line. This is a good idea and would cost but little to the farmer, and no doubt be of great benefit to the country. There is no question about the fertility of our soil and the excellence of our climate as elements of success, and we believe the condition of our market will be far better in the future.

Henry W. Wilson died in Fargo on Friday last of typhoid fever, at the age of 18 years. He was born in Lucknow, Ont., came to Fargo ten years ago, and about eight months ago came to Crookston to assist his brother William, one of the proprietors of the Bankrupt store. On March 24th he went to Fargo to visit his mother and in about a week was taken with typhoid fever. Up to within a week of his death he was very hopeful of recovery and said to his brother who had gone there to see him: "Go back to Crookston, Will, I will soon be able to join you," but this was not to be and he gradually sank until the end came, calmly and peacefully as if going to sleep. The day before the end came he threw his arms around the neck of his mother and said: "I am going to see father". During the past few days he talked almost constantly of all his old friends, mentioning his Crookston friends by name. Though he had lived here but a short time he had made many friends to whom this sad news will come with a shock, for they had learned to regard him highly. He leaves a mother, four brothers and three sisters, all of whom reside at Fargo, except William, who is here in business. The funeral was largely attended on Sunday at Fargo. The death of this young man, on the threshold of early manhood" strong, healthy, sober, industrious and ambitious, seems peculiarly sad, and comes with crushing force upon the mourning relatives, and particularly to the brother William with whom he was associated in business, and to him our heart goes out in sympathy, the more tender, perhaps, from having so recently passed through the fiery ordeal. "Oh, why must these things be, while the shores of life are thickly strewn with the useless wrecks to whom death would be a blessing, unless it is to teach us that God's ways are not like man's ways, and that "He doeth all things well" we know; yet how hard it seems to take such truths by personal application. May He who hath taken this young man to Himself be with and abundantly comfort the mourning relatives and bless this affliction to their eternal good.

Commissioner C. P. De Mers don't propose to neglect the interests of his constituents even though his horses are all too busy in the field to be available, so down he came on foot fourteen or ninety miles so as not to miss the session, arriving before dark on Tuesday evening. C. P. says seeding is a little late in his vicinity, but the ground is in excellent condition and the wheat is going in rapidly and will soon be finished.

Max Bass informs THE JOURNAL that the Great Northern road has received hundreds of letters of inquiry about this country, recently, and that the prospects are that many new inhabitants for Polk County will be the result of it. The Great Northern road has manifested commendable interest in this matter, and we wish it might lead to their co-operation with us to secure competition in our grain markets. This would be a bigger immigration document than thousands of dollars could buy.

W. N. Godfrey was down from Maple Bay last week soliciting subscriptions to stock in the Farmers Grist Mill Co. He is very sanguine of being able to raise the requisite amount, and we hope he may be. Such enterprises as these seem better calculated to afford the relief the farmer seeks than all the legislation we could get from a hundred legislatures of the vintage of '91. We trust his plans may be carried out in full, convinced that great good would follow.

Ole Erickson, of Sundahl, Norman County, was up a few days since and while here stopped with his old time friend, A. Halverson, of the Sherman House. Having occasion to go to the court house to see about his citizen papers, he walked up there with Mr. H., as spry as a middle-aged man could do, after which he walked about the city, viewing it with great interest. This seems more remarkable from the fact that Mr. E. is over 90 years old. He had some photographs taken and Mr. H. has one showing a well-preserved and hale old man who does not look to be over 70.

Hon. B. Sampson informs THE JOURNAL that he has been corresponding with a man who was once here with a view to establishing a woolen factory, and he is in hopes to get him here. The man has sold his factory in the old country and will locate somewhere in this, and Mr. S. feels quite sanguine about inducing him to select Crookston as the place. He also hopes to see a tannery established here, and this, too, would be a great benefit to farmers as it would furnish an excellent market for hides, which now bring very little to the producer. If Crookston had a woolen mill, a tannery and a starch factory, the farmers in this vicinity could make big money, and even if they had to put up a little to encourage such things it would pay them well to do it.

A considerable excitement was caused on Monday all on account of a little two-year-old Kansan who is visiting with Grandpa McLean. The little chap took it into his head to size up Crookston and started off on his own hook. Shortly he was missed and not being found in the vicinity, George was notified and he informed the police and soon Grandpa and George and the police were roving about, hither and yon in anxious quest of a little two-year-old without any hat on. He was found at last up near the Methodist church gazing with interest upon the many improvements going on in that vicinity, and was taken home to Grandma and an anxious mother. It is probable that his facilities for observation will be somewhat limited in the future.

Last Sad Rites.

Fargo Republican Monday April 27th.

Henry Wesley Wilson was laid to rest yesterday afternoon after impressive ceremonies had been held over his remains at his mother's home and at the First Methodist church. The spacious church was completely filled with a sympathetic audience, a tribute of the respect in which the deceased was held. Rev. D. W. Knight conducted the services, assisted by an octette of ladies and gentlemen. An opportunity was given the audience to view the remains and nearly every one availed themselves of the privilege. A large number of members of the Y. M. C. A., associates of Wesley's, were present.

PASTOR'S STUDY, April 28, 1891.

Members of the Congregational Church:

DEAR BRETHERN:—May 3d is your Communion Sabbath. It is my desire to meet you all there. The nature of this exercise renders our duty to be partakers therein most sacred. The special offering we make on the occasion is purely voluntary on your part and will be our church offering to New West work which I preached upon last Sunday. Don't omit your gift if it can not exceed five cents which you are requested to enclose in an envelope and drop into the contribution box. Will you read Isa 53 ch and Matt. 5:1-16 on Friday evening and Sabbath morning? Be sure to attend the Communion.

REV. R. H. BATTEY.

CLIPPING.

Do you want your horses clipped? I am now prepared to attend to all orders left at the livery stables of S. L. Collins. Call on or address, G. P. PASEMAN.

To Whom It May Concern.

Notice is hereby given that hereafter, any person or persons who drive or ride across the south half of Section 30, town of Gentilly will be prosecuted according to law.

One good thing accomplished by the legislature was the ordering of an investigation into the methods of handling wheat in the elevators at Duluth. A thorough investigation of this matter should be had without fear or favor.

The following letter was read at the Republican League meeting on April 15 th:

Minneapolis, Minn., April 18th, 1891.
Hon. Hugh R. Robertson,
Crookston, Minn.
Dear Sir:

I was pleased to receive a copy of the POLK COUNTY JOURNAL with a call for a county convention to elect an "executive committee man for the League; I think that is the right way of doing business. It is essential to our success that the people should feel that there is no bossism in our League, nor any attempt to manipulate it in the interest of any clique or coterie. The Republican party in Minnesota, being the intelligent party of the state, is capable of controlling its own actions; and suspicion that and movement is run in the interest of any man or set of men will be fatal to that movement.

I enclose you a copy of the platform adopted at our state League Convention. Please notice particularly paragraphs 4, 5 and 6 I think they contain the essentials of Republicanism. We believe in protection; we believe in such amount of protection as shall insure that the wages of our laboring men will not be reduced to the pauper standard of the wages in the old countries. We believe also, in such an amount of protection as will build up the industries necessary to develop our own natural resources. We do not believe in such a protective schedule as will encourage and make possible monopolies and trusts. We also believe, as a corollary to this doctrine of protection, in the scheme of reciprocity developed by Mr. Blaine; which allows free trade (or an advantageous tariff) with such countries as do not compete with our manufactures or farms, and where the markets for both our manufactures and farm products will be enlarged. We do not believe in reciprocity with any country whose natural resources are similar to our own, and whose manufactures will compete with ours. We believe in honest money. We believe in a dollar good for its face value in any part of the world. We also believe in the use as far as possible of both of the money metals, gold and silver. We believe in an abundant currency for our needs, provided only that such currency shall be of a perfectly safe and stable character. We believe in the right of every man to vote freely, and that his vote shall be counted. We believe that Congress should pass such legislation that it will hereafter never be possible for 2860 votes in the sixth district of Georgia to elect a Congressman having equal weight in the councils of the nation with the Congressman representing 69 316 votes in the fourth district of Minnesota. It is an outrage that 22,682 votes in five districts of Georgia, Louisiana and Mississippi shall elect five Congressmen while 285, 635 votes in Minnesota only elect the same number. A persistent and unvarying denial of the right of suffrage in any state should result in the cutting down of its congressional representation. If this is not done then we are not all equal at the polls.

These three are the essential doctrines of Republicanism. We may differ in regard to the tariff schedules we may differ as to the details of financial legislation; we may differ as to the advisability of passing the Lodge election bill; but we Republicans all believe in protection, in honest money, in equal suffrage. And we feel certain that our party on these principles of progress and protection to the laboring class will and must be successful at the next general state election. I wish you every success in the organization of the League Clubs of Polk County. I believe that through the League and the close relation into which it will bring Republicans from all over the state, that the evils weighing upon every part of the state will be remedied. We need only to know one another, our needs and our necessities, in order that the true remedies for them may be found.

Yours very truly,
JOHN GOODNOW.

Education in Politics.

New York Press.

The future of the Republican party depends upon the education of the voters. This is more especially the case wherever, as in this State of New England, great numbers of foreigners have been attracted by the rewards of American industry to assume American citizenship. The ignorance foreigner gravitates by some law of instinct toward the Democratic party. Educate him, and the Democracy peels of with the dirt and the ignorant. In Massachusetts, in Connecticut, in Rhode Island, as in one or two of the Western States, the accession of Democratic strength within the past ten years is traceable almost wholly to an accession of a mass of voters in whom are indurated alien prejudice and alien inability to comprehend American Principles. The half a dozen native Democrats and Mugwumps may sit in their Brussels carpeted clubs, distribute the offices and listen to homilies on free trade and a world's market, but they and their moonshine theories would amount to no more than the smoke that curls from their Havana cigars but for the mass of alien superstition and prejudice that cares nothing for their theories, but supports their party.

This has been notably illustrated in Wisconsin, where a great Democratic victory was won on the platform of antagonism to the English, or what might more properly be call the American language. The language of Winthrop and Williams, the language of Washington and of Jefferson, the language of the Declartion of Independence, was not good enough for the foreign voters of Wisconsin, and the Democratic party had the baseness to mount to power on this un-American prejudice, and proclaim its victory throughout the land!

It is the same in New England. Most of the men who voted for Russel in Massachuetts cared nothing for him or his tariff talk. Probably they had never read, and would not care to listen to a line of his tariff reform theories. They simply know, and it was enough for them to know, that he was against the large majority of his fellow Americans, and was willing to pander, in appearnce, if not in heart, to the inclinations of an element not yet in sympathy with American ideas and traditions. In New York we find that Democracy has its stronghold wherever the body politic is gorged with the impurities of the most undesirable class of immigration. And wherever education is able to hold its own, and to keep the public sentiment healthy and intelligent, there the Republican party remains in the ascendency.

It is, therefore, the duty of the Republicans everywhere to support and promote every proper means of popular education—the school, the press, the library, the lecture, and, we should add, the church of any and every denomination whose teachings and methods promote morality. We must stay the torrent or the torrent may overwhelm us. Not that the Republic is in danger. Its recuperative powers are too great for that; but great as they are, they may be subjected to a strain that would seriously impair the influence of the example we hold forth to mankind. On education depends the future, not only of the Republican party, but of the nation. Peanut politics may be successful now and then, but the victory in the long run is won on principle. It is for the Republican party to see that the principle shall prevail, and it cannot but prevail wherever, by church and free school and popular newspaper, education is brought home to the multitude.

Notice of Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

[First publication April 30th, 1891.]

WHEREAS, DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE in the conditions of a certain mortgage, duly extented and delivered by Ferment Coter, unmarried, mortgagor, to Northwestern Guaranty Loan Company, mortgagee, bearing date the 22d day of October, A. D. 1888, and duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the 24th day of October, A. D. 1888, at 1:10 o'clock p. m., in book 40 of mortgages, on page 228-8.

Whereas, such default consists of the failure to pay the following installments of interest, to-wit: $8.75 that became due April 22d, 1889, $8.75 that became due October 22d, 1889, $8.75 that became due April 22d, 1890, and $8.75 that became due October 22d, 1890; and whereas the said Northwestern Guaranty Loan Company, the holder of said mortgage has elected to declare, and hereby does declare, the whole principal sums in said mortgage set forth due and payable at the date of this notice under the terms and conditions of said mortgage and the power of sale therein contained.

And whereas there is actually due and payable at the date hereof, including principal and interest, upon the premises in said mortgage described the following sum, to-wit: Two hundred and ninety-eight dollars ($298); and whereas the said power of sale has become operative, and no action or proceeding at law or otherwise has been instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed and the premises described in and covered by said said mortgage, viz: The southwest quarter (sw¼) of Section Seventeen (17), in Township one hundred and fifty (150), of Range forty (40), containing 160 acres, more or less, according to the survey thereof. Said premises situate and being in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances, will be sold at public auction, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and twenty-five dollars attorney's fee, as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law, which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk County, at the front door of the Court House, in the city of Crookston, in said County and State, on

MONDAY, THE 15TH DAY OF JUNE,

A. D. 1891, at 10 o'clock a. m. of that day, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale as provided by law.

Notice of Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

[First publication April 30th, 1891.]

WHEREAS, DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE in the conditions of a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by John E. Faugstrom and Anna Fangstrom, his wife, mortgagors, to Northwestern Guaranty Loan Company, mortgagee, bearing date the 21st day of March A. D. 1888, and duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the county of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the 2d day of April, A. D. 1888, at 10 o'clock a. m., in book 35 of mortgages, on pages 61-3.

Whereas, such default consists of the failure to pay the following installments of interest, to-wit: $12.25 that became due September 21st, 1888, $12.25 that became due March 21st, 1889, $12.25 that became due September 21st, 1889, $12.25 that became due March 21st, 1890, $12.25 that became due September 21st, 1890, and $12.25 that became due March 21st, 1891. And whereas the said Northwestern Guaranty Loan Company, the holder of said mortgage has elected to declare, and hereby does declare, the whole principal sums in said mortgage set forth due and payable at the date of this notice under the terms and conditions of said mortgage and the power of sale therein contained.

The Farmers Alliance.

New York Press.

It is useless to deny that the Farmer's Alliance movement is one of great importance and significance. The extravagances of some of its leaders and the foolish economic theories advanced by many of its organs cannot conceal the fact that this organized array of the bone and sinew of the West deserves respect. There has been a general disposition on the part of the Eastern newspapers to treat the movement in a spirit of good natured badinage. But under all the chaffing about overalls, cowhides and sockless statesmen there has been a current of real respect for the honesty and sincerity of purpose that unquestionably characterizes not only the rank and file, but also most of the leaders of the Alliance. Probably none of the prominent men in the new movement have been the target of so much newspaper wit as Jerry Simpson, the alleged sockless statsman of Kansas. Yet Jerry Simpson, in his recent visit to New York city, created a distinctly favorable impression upon intelligent and unprejudiced men. While strongly condemning the free trade views and certain of the theories on finance which this famous Kansas leader holds, The Press unhesitatingly avows its belief in his entire honesty of purpose, and it regards his sturdy and unflinching Americanism with the respect which is its due.

In the able article from the pen of John Russell Young which The Press printed yesterday a striking comparison is made of the Farmers' Alliance men in the West with the early Republicans. These thousands of Western farmers "embrace," says Mr. Young, "the genuine Republican spirit, the elements from which came Joshua R. Giddings, Owen Lovejoy and John Brown. I see caricatures of these revolted leaders in rude, humorous prints—odd beings with quaint garments and gaunt, hungry faces. But these caricatures have a strange resemblance to the old time portraits of Abraham Lincoln, Benjamin F. Wade, Zachariah Chandler and Henry S. Lane. If the Wades and Lincolns were the sinew of Republicanism in the days when it was a living, fighting force, why should we have to look for their counterparts in grangers' conventicles or the tiled lodge room of some secret farmers' alliance?"

The Press believes that Republicanism was never more a "living, fighting force" than it is to-day, when it stands the unswerving champion of protection and honest elections. But it admits freely the truth of Mr. Young's description of the class of men from which the ranks of the Farmers' Alliance are chiefly recruited. These men may be homely and lacking in outward polish. So were the men who wrested the independence of the thirteen colonies from Great Britain. So were the men who first rallied around the standard of Republicanism and human freedom in the ante bellum days. And in patriotism and honesty of purpose no men ever excelled these sincere and sturdy citizens. Such men deserve respect. Republican statesmen are willing to listen to them, Republican papers, in mercilessly scoring the fallacy of the fiat money and free trade doctrines held by many of their leaders, have really been performing the greatest possible service to the farmers themselves. The Press holds that the Republican party is broad enough and good enough to contain and to satisfy the elements that have temporarily gone away from it in the West. It feels sure that they will refuse to lend themselves to Democratic schemes. It believes that in the development of American industries through the McKinley tariff and in the enlargement of markets for agricultural products and manufactured goods through reciprocity with Latin America the sure remedy will be found for the economic conditions of which the Alliance complains.

KOCH'S LYMPH.

Dr Tufte Says it Kills Rather Than Cures.

Duluth Tribune.

Dr. J. M. Tufte returned to Duluth yesterday noon, after a three month's visit in Berlin. Shortly after the discovery of the Koch lymph for the treatment of tuberculosis, Dr. Tufte decided to go to Germany and investigate the matter for himself. The greater part of his time has been devoted to that end and he is here in position to talk on that subject. "I had a most enjoyable trip," he said last night to a Tribune reporter, "but I was disappointed in my main object. As you know, I went over there to investigate the Koch lymph. When the discovery was first announced, lectures were delivered on the new treatment, and the method of using it, but when I arrived, these had been discontinued. I went to Dr. Lieberis, the chief assistant of the discoverer, and was told by him the only way to study the subject was to watch the treatment, as it was being used in the hospital. I spent considerable time in so doing, principally at the charity hospital. I found that the idea was not a new one. It was merely a new application of an old one. The theory is the same as worked out in vacination for smallpox and Pasteur's treatment for hydrophobia. The method of preparing the lymph is familiar, so I need not go into it. It is in this preparation of the lymph that the new treatment is weak. No matter how carefully the lymph is prepared it may contain the bacilli of the tuberculosis. If such is the case and it is injected into a patient, the result is to kill rather than cure.

Even when such is not the case, and the lymph is injected into a patient who is suffering from local tuberculosis of the lungs, the effect is often the cause of a spreading of the disease, with the result of running it into quick consumption which is rapidly fatal.

As an aid in diagnosing, the lymph is valuable. A physician who has a case over which he is in doubt can, by injecting lymph, decide in a very short time whether or not the patient is suffering from tuberculosis, but at the same time he must take the chance of aggravating the trouble.

Before I left Germany the treatment had been practically abandoned. It has cured a few, but it has killed more. The discovery was announced before it had been fully tested. Later experiments have shown that it is a very dangerous thing to use. It is most valuable not for what can be done just at present, but for the wide field of investigation which it has opened. I have no doubt, that by following this same line of work, that cures will be found for many chronic diseases, and possibly preventatives for scarlet fever, diptheria of that class. I do not regard it, as a discovery, equal to the discovery of Pasteur or of the method of vacination, for later experiments showed that they could do all that was promised for them. If after either of those methods had been used, the disease for which they were preventives occurred, it was in a mild form. On the other hand, Koch's lymph frequently makes the trouble worse instead of helping it. It is rich in promise, poor in results.

"No, I did not bring any lymph back with me, "Dr. Tufte continued, in answer to the reporter's question. "As I have already said, the method is practically abandoned and in any case, I regard it as too dangerous to be used in private practice. It could only be used in any case in hospitals, where every care could be given the patient, but even there I regard it as most dangerous."

Notice of Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

[First publication April 23, 1891.]

WHEREAS, DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE in the conditions of a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Thomas B. Bisson, an unmarried man, mortgagor, to the Northwestern Guaranty Loan Company, mortgagee, bearing date the 2d day of June, A. D. 1888, and duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the 4th day of June, A. D. 1888, at 11:30 o'clock a. m., in book 86 of mortgages on pages 196-8.

Whereas, such default consists of the failure to pay the following instalments of interest, to-wit: $8.75 that became due December 2d, 1888, $8.75 that became due June 2d, 1889, $8.75 that became due December 2d, 1889, $8.75 that became due June 2d, 1890, and $8.75 that became due December 2d, 1890.

And, whereas, the said Northwestern Guaranty Loan Company, the holder of said mortgage, has elected to declare, and hereby does declare the whole principal sums in said mortgage set forth due and payable at the date of this notice, under the terms and conditions of said mortgage and the power of sale therein contained.

And, whereas, there is actually due and payable at the date hereof, including principal and interest, upon the premises in said mortgage described, the following sum, to-wit: Three hundred and four dollars and fifty-seven cents. ($304.57.)

And, whereas, the said power of sale has become operative, and no action or proceeding at law or otherwise has been instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given, that by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage, which by the default aforesaid has become operative, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed and the premises described in and covered by said mortgage, viz: The east half of the northwest quarter (e½ nw¼) and southwest quarter of the northwest quarter (sw¼ nw¼) of Section Seventeen (17), in Township one hundred and forty-eight (148), of Range forty-two (42), containing 120 acres, more or less according to the government survey thereof. Said premises situate and being in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances, will be sold at public auction to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and twenty-five dollars attorney's fee, as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk County, at the front door of the Court House, in the city of Crookston, in said County and State, on the 9th day of June, A. D. 1891, at 10 o'clock a. m. of that day, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale as provided by law.

Dated April 17th, A. D. 1891.

Notice of Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

[First publication April 23, 1891.]

WHEREAS, DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE in the conditions of a certain Mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Delor Toupin, an unmarried man, mortgagor, to the Northwestern Guaranty Loan Company, mortgagee, bearing date the 20th day of November A. D. 1888, and duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the county of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the 20th day of November A. D. 1888, at 3:10 o'clock p. m., in book 40 of Mortgages, on pages 574-6.

Whereas, such default consists of the failure to pay the following installments of interest, to-wit: $17.50 that became due May 20th, 1889, $17.50 that became due November 20th, 1889, $17.50 that became due May 20th, 1890, and $17.50 that became due November 20th, 1890.

And, whereas, the said Northwestern Guaranty Loan Company, the holder of said mortgage, has elected to declare, and hereby does declare, the whole principal sums in said mortgage set forth due and payable at the date of this notice under the terms and conditions of said mortgage and the power of sale therein contained.

And, whereas, there is actually due and payable at the date hereof, including principal and interest upon the premises in said mortgage described, the following sum, to-wit: Five hundred and ninety two dollars and fifty cents ($592.50), and whereas the said power of sale has become operative and no action or proceeding at law or otherwise has been instituted to recover the said debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage, which by the default aforesaid has become operative, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed, and the premises described in and covered by said mortgage, viz: The northwest quarter (nw¼) of Section twenty-nine (29), in Township one hundred and fifty (150), of Range forty-three (43), containing 160 acres, more or less, according to the government survey thereof; said premises situate and being in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances, will be sold at public auction, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and twenty-five dollars attorney's fee, as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law: which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk County, at the front door of the Court House in the City of Crookston, in said County and State, on the 9th day of June, A. D. 1891, at 10 o'clock a. m. of that day, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale as provided by law.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, COUNTY OF POLK—ss. In Probate Court, Special Term, April 17th, 1891.

On reading and filing the petition of John Cromb, administrator, setting forth the amount of personal estate that has come to his hands, the disposition thereof, and how much remains undisposed of; the amount of debts outstanding against said deceased, as far as the same can be ascertained; the legacies unpaid, and a description of all the real estate, excepting the homestead, of which said deceased died seized, and the condition and value of the respective portions or lots thereof; the persons interested in said estate, with their residences; and praying that license be to him granted to sell all of the real estate mentioned in the said petition. And it appearing, by said petition, that there is not sufficient personal estate in the hands of said administrator to pay said debts, the legacies or expenses of administration, and that it is necessary for the payment of such debts, legacies or expenses, to sell all of said real estate.

It is therefore ordered, that all persons interested in said estate, appear before this court, on Monday, the 11th day of May, 1891, at 10 o'clock a. m., at the Probate Office in Crookston, in said county, then and there to show cause (if any there be) why license should not be granted to said administrator to sell so much of the real estate of said deceased as shall be necessary to pay such debts, legacies and expenses.

And it is further ordered, that this order shall be published once in each week for three successive weeks prior to said day of hearing, in The Polk County Journal, a weekly newspaper printed and published at Crookston, in said county.

Dated at Crookston, the 17th day of April, A. D. 1891.

By the Court. C. M. BENSON,
[1-3] Judge of Probate.

MORTGAGE SALE.

[First publication April 30, 1891.]

WHEREAS, Frank Johnson and Anna Johnson, his wife, of Polk County, State of Minnesota, as mortgagors, did, on the 8th day of March, A. D. 1888, duly execute and deliver to Hannah Amelia Armstrong, of the County of Broome, State of New York, their mortgage, bearing date of March 1st, A. D. 1888, whereby they mortgaged to said mortgagee the following described lands situated in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, to-wit: The southwest quarter of Section 30, Township 153, Range 46 west, containing 160 acres, to secure the payment of the sum of six hundred dollars, with interest thereon, according to the conditions of one certain promissory note, with interest coupons attached, bearing even date with said mortgage, and made by said mortgagors to said mortgagee, or order, which said mortgage was on the 8th day of March, A. D. 1888, at 6 o'clock p. m., duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for said County of Polk, in book 37 of mortgages, on page 102; and

Whereas, default has been made in the payment of the sum of thirty-five dollars, due as interest upon said mortgage on the 1st day of January, A. Notice of Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

(First publication March 26th, 1891.)

DEFAULT HAVING BEEN MADE IN THE payment of interest in the sum of $22.86, due September 1st, 1889, $28.00 due March 1st, 1890, $28.00 due September 1st, 1890, and $28.00 due March 1st, 1891, which default has continued to the date of this notice, upon a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Josiah A. Mead and Sadie Mead, his wife, mortgagors, to The Loan and Guaranty Company, of Connecticut, mortgagee, bearing date the first day of March, 1889, and, with a power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the third day of April, 1889, at 10 o'clock a. m., in book 46 of mortgages, on page 130.

And whereas, the said The Loan and Guaranty Company, of Connecticut, the mortgagee and holder of said mortgage, has duly elected and does hereby elect to declare the whole principal sum of said mortgage due and payable at the date of this notice, under the terms and conditions of said mortgage, and the power of sale therein contained; and whereas there is actually due and claimed to be due and payable at the date of this notice the sum of nine hundred and fifteen and 16-100 dollars, with interest on $906.88 thereof at the rate of seven per cent per annum, from the 18th day of March, 1891, and whereas the said power of sale has become operative, and no action or proceeding having been instituted, at law or otherwise, to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, viz: The southwest quarter (sw¼) of Section twenty-two (22), Town one hundred and fifty-four (154) of Range forty-five (45), in Polk County and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances; which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk County, at the front door of the Court House, in the town of Crookston, in said County and State, on the 16th day of May, 1891, at 10 o'clock a. m. of that day, at public vendue, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt of nine hundred and fifteen and 16-100 dollars, and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and fifty (50) dollars attorney's fees, as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale as provided by law.

MORTGAGE SALE.

[First publication April 30th, 1891.]

WHEREAS, ALEXIS ROBERTS, AN UNmarried man, of Polk County, State of Minnesota, as mortgagor, did, on the 3d day of May, A. D. 1887, duly execute and deliver to Austin Corbin, Trustee, of the County of New York, State of New York, his mortgage, bearing date of April 28th, A. D. 1887, whereby he mortgaged to said mortgagee the following described lands situated in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, to-wit: East half northwest quarter and east half southwest quarter Section 19, Township 149, Range 41 west, containing 160 acres, to secure the payment of the sum of six hundred dollars with interest thereon, according to the conditions of one certain promissory note with interest coupons attached, bearing even date with said mortgage, and made by said mortgagor to said mortgagee, or order, which said mortgage was, on the 3d day of May, A. D. 1887, at 11 o'clock a. m., duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for said County of Polk, in book 27 of mortgages, on page 359; and

Whereas default has been made in the payment of the sum of forty and 33-100 dollars, due as interest upon said mortgage on the first day of January, A. D. 1888, and on the further sum of sixty dollars due as interest upon said mortgage on the first day of January, A. D. 1889, and on the further sum of sixty dollars due as interest thereon on the 1st day of January, A. D. 1890, and on the further sum of sixty dollars due as interest thereon on the 1st day of January, A. D. 1891, and the said interest is still unpaid and due; and

Whereas it was stipulated by and between the parties to said Mortgage, that if default should be made in any of the conditions or covenants therein contained on the part of the Mortgagor to be kept and performed, that then and from thenceforth it shall be lawful for the said mortgagee, his heirs, administrators, executors or assigns to consider and declare the whole sum secured thereby as immediately due and payable without notice to said Mortgagor or any other party; and

Whereas, the said Austin Corbin, Trustee, has exercised his option to consider and declare and does hereby consider and declare the whole sum of money secured by said mortgage to be due and payable; and

Whereas there is now due, and claimed to be due upon said mortgage at the date of this notice the sum of eight hundred seventy-five and 65-100 dollars, and no proceedings have been instituted, at law or otherwise to recover the same or any part thereof.

Now therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of a power of sale in said mortgage contained, and therewith recorded, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the land therein described, which sale will be made by the Sheriff of Polk County, at the front door of the Court-house in the City of Crookston, in said County and State, on the 20th day of June, A. D. 1891, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon of that day at public vendue to the highest bidder for cash; to pay the sum due on said mortgage, together with the taxes, if any, on said premises, and fifty Dollars attorney's fees therein stipulated to be paid in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law subject to redemption at any time within one year from the date of sale as provided by law.

SUGAR FOR THE PEOPLE.

Twenty-five Pounds For a Doller Will Soon be the Uniform Price.

St. Paul Weekly Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, April 17.—Hon. W. P. Hepburn, of Iowa, solicitor of the treasury, who has been especially charged with an investigation of the customs business of the republic for the past six months, in conversation today said: "I am impressed with the belief that the Dutch standard No. 16 will be the sugar of the people in the very near future. It is a great deal better sugar than I ever saw on the tables of the common people before the war. It is better for everyday use than refined sugar. It is perfect crystal, absolutely pure sugar, and incomparable for all purposes of home consumption. Moreover, mark you, it will be sold throughout this country at the rate of twenty-five pounds for the dollar."

"Why wasn't this known to the voters of the country before the last election?"

"Simply because our republican leaders were not posted, or were unable to counteract the avalanche, of democratic fabrications which deluged the country and swept all sense and reason from the people. The McKinley bill took effect just before the election and was not understood. It was misrepresented in a systematic manner, and most persistently, and therefore the people were misled. The sugar schedule is now in effect, and the people are coming rapidly to understand it. Sugar of the finest grade at twenty-five pounds for the dollar is an object lesson which no amount of partisan misrepresentation, commonly called lying, can obviate."

"What is the present condition of the customs service in the New York custom house?"

"That will be exhibited in the report which I shall submit in about two months. I cannot talk on that subject at present. My investigations are made for the information of the department, and it would not do for me to give any opinion nor state any facts until the report is laid before the secretary of the treasury. I can say, however, that I have learned some things which were surprising to myself, and which will probably prove of interest to the country. But my work cannot be foreshadowed nor even hinted at just now, save in a general way. I have been very busy for some months past, and am not idle now, either."

"How much time are you giving to this work?"

"I usually leave here either on Monday morning or after midnight on Sunday. It is my aim to return to my office on Saturday to look after the routine business of my office, and see that things are going along all right during my enforced absences."

Solicitor Hepburn has undoubtedly discovered abuses in the customs service in the great port of New York, but it would be manifestly improper to have them divulged at present and therefore we must await his report. Your correspondent is personally aware of the fact that this government is losing more than $1,000,000 annually by the present system, and alleged precedents prevailing in the New York custom house, by the laxity of discipline, and the carelessness exhibited in examining persons and baggage coming into New York on foreign vessels.

"We lose annually more than this government collected any year during its first twenty-five years of existence," said an old employe of the treasury department in my office tonight. "We lose that much every year at the port of New York alone," he added, and specifically called my attention to the fact that a certain jeweler in this city was recently discovered in smuggling $1,100 worth of diamonds.

Col. Hepburn would not say anything definite concerning his investigations of the customs business, but emphasized his views on Dutch standard sugar, saying: "Gov. Boies either don't know what he has been saying about sugar, or else he has been willfully deceiving the people of Iowa and others who have read his remarks."

A Great Offer.

That five-dollar map offered to new and old subscribers by the St. Paul Globe Publishing Co., is one of the most valuable and expensive premiums ever used by newspaper publishers. And, by the way, the Globe is one of the greatest, brightest and best papers in the country, too—the leading paper of the Northwest. Read the Globe's announcement. It will tell you all about the map.

The Alliance Delusion.

Western Rural.

One of our political papers now calls it the Alliance delusion. There is no delusion about the Alliance. Its principles are all right and the necessity for organization among farmers has always been as plain as the nose on a man's face. Of course the paper referred to has been stirred up by the political movements of the farmers, to which it applies the name of Alliance. There is a throughly reckless manner of styling every political action of farmers an Alliance movement. The Alliance is not a political party, and in the very nature of things it never can be. A political party may call itself the Alliance party, and there is no law to prevent it. But the Farmers' Alliance is composed of members of all parties. It would be utterly impossible to turn it bodily over to any old or new party. Of course we cannot say that there will be no effort made in the future to convert the movement into a political party. If such effort ever is made, however, the membership cannot be held together. The members of the Alliance may decide to enter upon political action outside of the Alliance organization as in some cases they have already done.

But the Farmers' Alliance is a nonpartisan organization. It is a society to which farmers of every political faith are united, and in which all public questions can be discussed. That is all there is to it, except that it may be used to facilitate co-operative selling and co-operative buying. It is not to be expected, however, that a hid bound partisan journal can see the truth of the matter. Farmers in the exercise of their rights as free American citizens, thwarted the plans of some of the politicians, and henceforth it must be expected that a farmers organization will affect these people something as a red rag does a bull.

If out of the independent vote, brought about as a result of organization among the farmers, there should spring up a great national movement as a new political party with high aims for the betterment of the conditions of the masses, we say let it come.

Not Found Wanting.

New York Press.

It has been interesting in the recent diplomatic crisis with Italy to note the tone of the newspapers whose chief editorial function has for years past been abuse of Mr. Blaine. Ignoring for the moment, to their credit be it said a practice which has apparently become a second nature, they permitted patriotism to dictate sentiments that every right minded person approves. This spirit, unhappily, is not universal. There are some who place party before country, and who would be willing to see the country belittled and dishonored for the sake of party. But such persons are not numerous, either South or North.

The government of the United States has proved itself strong at the right time, and without the exhibition that characterized the affair of Sackville West when dignity and decency were lost sight of in the hysterical effort to regain the voters who did not want the British Minister to tell them whom to vote for. President Harrison and Mr. Blaine are to be congratulated on their conduct in the affair with Italy, and the country is to be congratulated on the fact that, thanks to the result of 1888, the honor and safety of the republic are secure from the leading actors in the Sackville West melodrama.

The Grant Monument Begun.

New York Press.

To-day the corner stone of the long delayed Grant Monument will be placed in position at Riverside Park. New York and the nation will be glad to see this work begun at last. The delays and vexations connected with its prosecution have been so numerous that patriotic people have felt great disappointment. The Press hailed with gladness the selection of a design for the monument by the comittee last September. It hopes that the work of its completion will now be expeditiously carried out. It has been settled, definitely and forever, that the ashes of the great general and patriot are to lie here in the territory of the nation's metropolis. There could be no fitter place for them than in the beautiful park that stretches above the picturesque Hudson. Here to-day, in the presence of many eminent men in civil and military life, the ground will be formally broken and the erection of the memorial inaugurated. That the result of this tangible beginning will be apparent in the increase of the monument fund is to be hoped.

The monument should be made a national tribute to the hero who wrought faithfully and successfully to save the nation in the time of its gravest danger. This should be a marked day in New York. The Stars and Stripes should flutter everywhere in honor of the soldier of Appomattox, and in token of the city's gladness that after long waiting a memorial worth of him has been commenced.

Growing Sugar Beets.

Farm Stock and Home.

There seems to be a decided misconception regarding the sugar beet industry in the United States, and very much misleading matter is written concerning it. So far but few points have been found where all the conditions for beet growing and sugar making were favorable to success. The first work in hand is to develop more such points, and that must be accomplished by experimentation. In the nature of the case beet sugar making must be a local industry. Beets must be made up near where they are grown. Factories are extensive and expensive establishments, with facilities for making up enormous quantities of beets. To produce beets in sufficient quantity to supply such a demand the chief industry of all the farmers within profitable hauling distance of the factory must be beet growing. It is plain to be seen that not all neighborhoods can engage in the beet growing, for reasons to obvious to mention in this connection.

In the Northwest some sugar beets should be grown in the very neighborhood, with a view to developing its possibilities in that direction, and it is safe to say that those localities showing special adaptation to the industry will, within reasonable limits, attract the necessary factories. Experience has proven that the extensive factory, running the longest possible time, is the only one that can successfully meet competition, and it is folly to talk of "small factories," "making sugar at home," etc. The former will surely prove disappointing; the latter cannot be done; at all events it never has been done.

Claims that universal beet growing will be followed by universal agricultural prosperity are simply idiotic. The most positive disbelievers in the "all wheat" system of farming seem to have unbounded confidence in the "all beet" system. Making sugar to supply our own wants will be beneficial because it opens a new channel of agricultural endeavor. It will be of direct benefit to some, but of indirect benefit to others. Those farmers who can grow and market beets will grow less of other crops, and they thus contribute to the advantage of those who cannot grow and market beets. The chances are, too, that the profits of beet growing will not be substantially greater than those of others crops; the sugar makers will regulate that matter, of course.

The growing of beets for sugar will be successful in certain localities; it rests largely with farmers to now determine where such localities are to be. Plant a few sugar beets this year, they may demonstrate that your particular locality is most highly favored as a developer of sugar and yielder of roots, and that will prove a powerful influence in locating a sugar factory with you. The farmer is in duty bound to do so much, but he must not believe that growing sugar beets will produce an agricultural millenium, nor even bring universal agricultural prosperity.

CLARKSON'S OPINIONS.

An Interview on Political Affairs With the President of the Republican League.

Mr. Harrison an Able Man Intellectully, But Lacks the Necessary Personal Popularity.

Pioneer Press.

BOSTON, April 23.—The Herald this evening prints a long interview with Hon. J. S. Clarkson, president-elect of the Republican league, who is here en route to Paris to join his family. Mr. Clarkson says:

"The failure of young men to participate in politics is a weakness of the Republican party in New England. I believe the New England Democracy has outgeneralled its Republican opponents in that respect. They have as leaders the sons of the founders of Republicanism. The Republican party must utilize their young men.

The labor question will figure in the next campaign, and ought to. Wealth should be more evenly distributed. Something is ready for correction when one man can pile up his millions in a few years, while another has a hard time to make a living. The increase of wealth should be more evenly distributed."

Mr. Clarkson defined reciprocity as optional free trade, and said that the republican party favors limited reciprocity and the democratic party universal reciprocity. He thought the McKinley bill would grow in popularity when fully understood and fairly illustrated to every community.

"Do you interpret Cincinnati convention as favoring Blaine instead of Harrison?"

"I was not at the convention, so I cannot assume to judge of its sentiment," was the rejoiner.

"It is said that you are personally out for Blaine as against a renomination of President Harrison," suggested the reporter.

"I have no personal choice for president," replied Mr. Clarkson, with deliberation. Time will indicate the man. If the silver question is settled the situation will be greatly cleared. The seat of republican power, the West, will never consent to see the treasury of the country dwarfed to a gold basis. The West will not consent to any candidate or platform that will not represent silver as money by the coinage of the American product. With such a position on money and with the position for a revision of the banking laws so as to make our banking advantages as favorable to agricultural communities cites and towns, and with the purpose to provide good money and enough of it, the republican party will hold the West as solid for the party as it was in 1888, while the McKinley bill will carry with it New York and the doubtful states for the protection party.

HARRISON LACKS PERSONAL POPULARITY.

"The next republican candidate for president must be a man broad enough to cover this broad land and able to administer justice on all the differing interests with a true regard to all national interests. President Harrison has made a faithful executive in every public sense, and is lacking only in the personal popularity which gives a man the power of electricity in politics. He has demonstrated his qualities fully, and his pure intellectual ability is not second to any man living to-day, not even to his phenomenal secretary of state. Whoever is the republican candidate, he must be a man who can maintain the solidarity of the party in the great agricultural regon west of the Mississippi. The candidate must not only be near to the people, but must not be fair from the farm. All political parties will go more closely to the farms hereafter than they have in the past fifty years. The farmers are going to assert themselves in public affairs, and for the good of the race."

Mr. Clarkson said he believed that Mr Cleveland will be the next democratic candidate. If his personal views on the silver question do not quite suit the South and West, he will make them suit. He feels that the good people will trust him any way, and as the Western and Southern democracy belive in him as a man of destiny, he can successfully hypnotize on the silver question, and I belive he is doing it. Ex-President Cleveland is one of the smartest politicians that his party has ever had, and the republican party has always underestimated him in this respect.

"To win in 1892," said Mr. Clarkson, "we must bring up the republican newspaper circulation to meet that of the democratic party in its programme, to circulate tens of million of arguments directly to the houses of voters."

THE HOT SPRINGS.

The great plunge bath building on the grounds of Hotel Broadwater, at Helena, Montana, is the finest specimen of Moorish architecture in America. The bath is 300x100 feet in size, and covered with 20,000 square feet of stained glass. The water supply exceeds a million gallons a day, and possesses wonderful curative properties. The water pours over a cascade, at a temperature of 160°, but is tempered to human use. In a sun-lit valley, surrounded by the noble Rockies, it is the finest watering place and resort in the interior of the continent. Reached direct by the Great Northern Railway Line. The trip to Helena over this line will enable the health-seeker, homeseeker and tourist to see and enjoy with the greatest facility and comfort, the Park Region of Minnesota, with its thousand lakes; the illimitable grain ocean of the Red River Valley of Minnesota and North Dakota; Devils Lake, and Montana, with its cattle ranches; the great Falls of the Missouri, and the wonderful scenery of Prickly Pear canyon. Publications and information sent free by F. I. Whitney, G.P. & T. A., St. Paul, Minn., or Agent Fegan Crookston.

A Double Map.

The St. Paul Globe is offering new subscribers a very valuable and expensive premium—a double map—on one side of which is Houghton's wonderful political map and on the other Rand, McNally & Co.'s grand map of the United States. It is worth five dollars. Read the Globe Co.'s announcement. We publish it in this issue.

1 Northern 82.
2 Northern 79.
8 Northern 74.

Senator Burkhardt is in the city this week.

Good weather for corn—to be in the granary.

Wheat dropped back to 91 cents on Monday morning.

R. A. Wilkinson, of St. Paul was in the city on Monday.

Dr. Dunlop is out again after a severe attack of La Grippe.

Miss Hilda Dahl, who has been quite ill, is convalescent.

The Queen City Cornet band has ordered new uniforms.

H. Steenerson, was called to Twin Valley by telegraph on Saturday evening.

Wheat took an upward turn last week opening up on Saturday morning at 93 cents.

The sale of delinquent tax property, advertised for May 4th, was postponed for one week.

Patrice LeMay was in from Lambert on Monday. Says seeding is well along out there.

Herb Mason started his soda fountain last week and such weather as we have had since—Oh, my!

Mrs. Sorley of Grand Forks was visiting in the city last week the guest of Adolph and Mrs. Rauch.

We have a few sugar beet seed for distribution. Who will take them and give them a fair trial and report the result?

Cedar shingles for sale by I. U. Jennigs. They do not warp, check or rot at the nail holes and they last a life time.

The skating rink continues to attract crowds. Everybody goes to see the fun even if they do not put on the skates.

If the ladies appreciate bargains in millinery they will do well to call and examine Mrs. E. E. Bangs' stock and get her prices.

The Republican League met on Saturday night and elected O. O. Christianson member of the League committee for Polk County.

Wheat went way off on Tuesday morning, reaching 88 cents. We heard last week that "Old Hutch" had got back to Chicago.

Call at Vine's meat market on Robert street for choice cuts. He buys only the choicest beeves and always has nice steaks and roasts.

The weather for the past week has been too cold for grass to do well. It is just what the wheat likes and ensures full granaries next fall.

Bro. Bydal, of the Red River Dalen, buried one of his little twins on Saturday. We extend to him our hearty sympathy in his bereavement.

John Amundson, deptuy register of deeds was handing out the cigars last week owing to the arrival of a little girl at his home on April 27th.

Mrs. I. U. Jennings and her daughter Mrs. Cora Underhill, contemplate a visit to Tacoma in July. Of course little Ned goes along as chaperone.

The Grand Forks Daily Herald has enlarged to double its former size. The Herald is deserving of a liberal patronage for its efforts in behalf of Grand Forks.

The Great Northern company is taking down several stalls at the roundhouse. Some of the boys think it possible that we may retain a flag station at least.

On Tuesday Peter Cornelius brought in five steers which he sold for $125 to a buyer for the Montana trade. They were not large animals and were not extra fat.

This issue is delayed somewhat owing to the publication of the session laws. Our force has been on the jump all the week and we have hired all the extra help at command as well.

City assessor D. Jacobus has opened an office with P. J. Russel and is getting ready for business. He will call upon you at an early day, to ascertain how much personal property you have.

Chris. Anderson says he is "bound to make or break this year." He has 800 acres already sowed to wheat and will sow 800 acres in oats and barley.

Herman Rasmussen has bought one of the syndicate buildings of W. E. Walker and will move it to a lot just north of the old Yvernault store on main street and fit it up for a hardware store.

A few first-class day boarders will find same kind of board at 3d house south of Broadway Opera House. Good rooms next door north.
[2-4] D. N. Taylor.

Erick Helgeson and wife arrived from Norway on Tuesday morning and will visit for awhile with their son, Anton Erickson, in this city and then go to Marshall County to live with a son there.

August Walters and Earnest Rolsch are talking up a trip to Germany some time during the coming summer. Both have been some time away from the ould sod and are longing for a trip over the big pond.

The attractions Mrs. E. E. Bangs offers the ladies are fashionable goods in the latest styles of the very best qualities and extremely low prices. You will do well to call and examine her goods and get prices.

Rev. Battey preached two eloquent sermons last Sabbath at the Congregational church. By the way he does that every Sunday and that church is getting to be a popular place to go on Sundays. Everybody cordially invited.

A musical and dramatic entertainment will be given at the Grand Opera house at some date in the near future the object for which is to pay for the uniforms for the band. We bespeak a liberal patronage for the worthy object.

Mark Rauenbuehler's new building reached its destination on Saturday and Tom Harris at once tackled the old John N. Ives office across the way, and on Monday it started for its new location. Tom has his hands full these days.

At the Congregational church the evening service will be changed to 8. o'clock next Sunday May. 10. Subjects of sermons: 11, A. M. "Duty Dividing Her Spoils" 8. P. M. "Plowman and Reaper," A kind invitation to every body.

W. O. Wilson, of Wilson & Thompson thought he would be smart last Saturday so he took an axe and worked all day clearing a lot of brush off his lot on Sompson's condition. He has not worked any since—the doctor called it pneumonia.

The Palace Roller Rink opened up in great shape last Friday evening, upon which occasion the Queen City Cornet Band made its maiden speech (as it were.) On Saturday afternoon the kids had the exclusive right and held high carnival. The Palmers seem to have struck a bonanza.

Agent Fegan thought he would experiment with sugar beet raising and sent to the experiment station for some seed, expecting to get an ounce or so. On Wednesday morning he received a package bigger'n a bushel basket—enough to plant a farm and now he is looking for a section to rent.

A. L. Lindsley, a former Crookstonite, was in the city last week selling cedar shingles and lumber from Tacoma mills and called on Alderman I. U. Jennings. We notice that Al., like everybody else who goes to Tacoma is glad Ta-com-a-way back to the Valley as often as possible owing, (doubtless,) to the "dryness of the atmusphere" here.

Col. Cobham Post No. 90 met on Friday to complete arrangments for Memorial Day. A letter from Rev. F. C. Sharpe, inviting the Post to attend services at the M. E. Church on the Sabbath preceding Memorial Day was read and on motion it was decided to accept the invitation for the evening of that day. The decoration services are to be held in the old opera house.

Comrade Bratton, an old soldier from Devels Lake has rented the pop corn store of J. L. Bailey and will supply fresh popped for our citizens in the future providing he can find sufficient encouragment, Every good patriotic citizen should eat much pop corn and thus give a deserving comrade a lift. Comrade Bratton lost his home trying to raise wheat in Dakota and has come over here with the hope of making a home in our city.

A union meeting will be held in the old opera house next Sabbath evening, May, 10th, at 8 o,clock, in behalf of the American Sunday School Union. Addresses will be delivered by the city pastors and by the missionary of the society in northwestern Minnesota, S. N. Millard of Glyndon. The music will be under the direction of Prof. C. J. Chamberlain and Mr. J. W. Wheeler. Everybody invited and everybody bring Gospel Hymns.

Uncle Frank Robar tells The Journal that he has purchased a handsome quarter adjoining Frank Bivins' farm which makes him 480 acres in all. He says he has 125 acres already sowed to wheat and he has a piece of oats up in good shape—that is he, is not exactly satisfied that it is in good shape after the experience of the May weather so far; but he lives in hope that it is all right any how. We hear of others who have oats up also.

They say that the Grand Forks horse, Counselor, is matched against P. J. LaChapelle's horse for a $200, race. Counselor is to distance P. J's. horse in a half mile race. As is usual among newspapermen we havent got many millions to bet but if we were going to bet we would risk our pile on the idea that Counselor "cawn't do it you know."

Bro. Stevens, of the Warren Register, did not forget to look up The Journal man while in the city last week. Bro. S. is the fortunate owner of two newspapers, and he says the Register is making the most money of the two, because it is located is a more prosperous community than his Illinois paper. He takes a very hopeful view of the prospects of the country and says he never saw the conditions more favorable than this spring. With favorable weather, good crops are assured and prices will be good.

Our reporter dropped into the Palace Rink on Monday evening to see the two newspaper men, Palmer & Palmer, engaged in a business that required spot cash. Harry was at the window raking in the shekels with a grin on him that made his naturally classic countenance look handsome, while W. L. was engaged in raking in the paste boards at the door and remarking as he raked: 75 cents per square 1st insertion 'e. o. d.,' and 'e. o. w.' 's. w.' t. f' every communication must be accompanied by the name of the writer, not necessarily for publication but as an evidence of good faith, &c." As we stood lost in wonder to see so much money in the hands of newspaper men, a customer approached Harry, remarking: "How much?" "With a far away look in his deep blue eye Harry remarked: "One dollar-r-n-alf strictly in advance or $2—at the end of the year," and seemed surprised to see the chap lay down his quarter, grab a ticket and start for the door. It seems odd to see newspaper men conducting a business that requires all cash "allee same melican man," but the boys are catching on in good shape and deserve all the smiles dame fortune has in store for them.

Grand Forks is pluming herself that she will have that college after all because, the papers say: "Grand Forks has raised $18,000 and offers an ample site." Well how is that anyhow? The committee having that natter in hand passed a resolution locating the college at Crookston, providing we would raise a cash bonus of $15,000 and a certain amount of land for a site. This we are told has been done and it looks to us like boy play if the committee now goes back on its plighted word and gives the institution to Grand Forks for a few dollars more. They cannot in honor do that thing. Crookston's offer of $15,000 and the site she gives is worth more than that of Grand Forks for here we have artesian water—the healthiest in the Valley, and the site, being high and dry is far more healthy. From a sanitary point alone if for no other reason the committee cannot afford to locate that college elsewhere. Their word of honor is also pledged and cannot be broken if they are honorable men as we think they are. We do not believe they will go back on their pledged word.

The Todd Argus:—The Polk County Journal, published at Crookston, Minn., by H. E. Cooke, has entered upon its fifteenth year. When The Argus was a youngster we can remember when the Journal was printed at Audubon and sent up to Crookston for distribution. About all of Crookston that then existed was the name. Things have changed since then.

Northfield News:—The Polk County Journal, last week entered upon the fifteenth year of its existence under the management of H. E. Cooke. The Journal has been quite a successful paper, and wields a great deal of influence in the Red River Valley. We congratulate Brother Cooke upon so many evidences of prosperity, and hope that his paper may continue to grow.

Why Are the Farmers Not More Prosperous?

There are several reasons, and in the following will be found only one among the many. But if we are to follow the undoubtedly well meant advice of Mr. Whitney and keep our brains and body so everlastingly busy, tending the incubator, weeding the onions, scutching flax, caring for the horses, the cattle, the sheep, the pigs, the poultry, the vegetables, the money in bank, and the other greater or lesser details, the physical and mental strain upon the overworked farmer will either send him to the insane asylum or prevent his watching and trying to thwart the inhuman jackalls who are preying upon the farmer; perhaps the latter was intended. But I wish to ask why the farmers do not organize milling associations? They could save enough in one, or at the most, two years, to pay for building a mill, besides the expenses of running, and have the satisfaction of knowing that they had cut one arm off from the devil fish. If they could get their wheat milled at, or near, what is intended and allowed by law, there would not be any call to build mills. But it is in milling wheat the same as with nearly every other business that the farmer has dealings with, the lion's share, to the extent of thirty per cent per bushel or more. For instance, the miller buys the farmer's wheat, his best this past season, at the average price of about 75 cents per bushel, and a fifty barrel per day capacity mill will grind in one year about 70,000 bushels of wheat, costing $52,500 making about 15,555 barrels of flour, worth not less than $70,000, and about 360 tons of bran and shorts, worth $7,560. We claim that the bran and shorts will pay all of the expenses of the mill, and the miller makes a net profit of over $17,500 for you.

And again, when the farmer takes his wheat to the mills and gets it exchanged for flour, bran and shorts, it costs him very near, or quite one-third. The miller docks the wheat from 1 to 4 pounds for dirt, gives about an average of thirty pounds of straight or second grade flour, and twelve pounds of bran and shorts per bushel, and never says anything about the eight or ten pounds of patent or first grade flour made from each bushel of wheat, and it looks something like this: The farmer takes 13½ bushels of wheat to the mills, which will make three barrels of flour and 243 pounds of bran and shorts. The flour is worth $4 50 per barrel or $13.50, the bran and shorts are worth three-fourth cents per pound, or $1.80, making $15.30; one-third of that is $5.10, besides the one-quarter cent per pound difference on the 135 pounds of patent flour that the mills would not exchange, and the miller has taken $5.43—the miller takes one barrel of flour and the farmer gets two. But it has cost the farmer $2.71½ cents per barrel for milling and if he manufactures 15,555 barrels per year, it amounts to $28,154 per year. A 50 barrel per day mill can be built and equipped for a sum not to exceed $10,000. There are smaller capacity mills, and a 30 barrel per day mill can be built for about $6.000. So it costs the farmer $28,154 every year to keep one 50 barrel mill in operation. We will say that the capacity of the flour mills in Polk County will average about twelve 50 barrel mills. We have figured one mill as making $17,500 net profit; so the mills in Polk County are making $210,000 out of the farmers yearly. Keep right on tending incubators, weeding onions, &c. For that sum of money you can build 21 mills costing $10,000 each, every year, besides getting your own wheat ground.

Now, as I have told you, it costs $2.71½ cents per barrel to get your flour milled. I have been informed that the law allows one-eighth bushel for milling wheat, and a 50 barrel per day mill will grind 15,555 barrels of flour per year and 630 tons of bran and shorts. One-eighth of the flour is 1,943 barrels at $4.50 per barrel is worth $8,743, and one-eighth of the bran and shorts is 78¾ tons, at $12 per ton is $945, or a total of $9,688 the mill will make by taking every eighth bushel for toll, and the expense of milling will not exceed fifty cents per barrel, or $7,777 per year. Then again, instead of selling to the elevators for the prices generally paid, get your wheat milled into flour, and after you have paid the toll, realize one dollar for your wheat in the shape of flour at only $4.50 per barrel, besides having the bran and shorts for your own use and save buying so much of that $18 per ton mill feed. I have not figured on millionaire salaries, but sufficient to employ competent millers and all necessary assistants and officers. Now will you keep right on scutching flax, or stop and think this matter over and act upon it?

SEC. OF WOODSIDE ALLIANCE.

The Women and McKinley Prices.

New York Press.

"It was the women who did it," was one of the free explanations of last fall's elections. The storekeepers who put up their prices without cause for the sake of making a few dollars of extra profit on the cry that the McKinley bill did it," certainly created a diversion in the rear of the protection column, which was for a time a disastrous surprise. But the women have not been any longer than the men of the country in discovering the misrepresentations and downright falsehoods with which the McKinley bill was assailed. A striking instance of how a woman's eyes have been opened comes from Illinois. The New York Times recently said:

"When a woman pays fifty cents more a yard for stuff to make a dress of than she would have paid if the McKinley bill had not become a law she should keep it to herself. So doing she will confer a great favor on President Harrison, who thinks that he may get another term in the White House if people will quit making 'malevolent' remarks about the tariff."

This paragraph, copied into the Chicago Herald, has drawn out from Mrs. Elizabeth Hunt of Bloomington, Ill.—who says she "is a Democrat's wife," but is "sick of seeing such lies as this in newspapers whose editors claim not to be fools" —a sarcastic, cutting and wholly confuting reply, in which she says:

"Now, don't this fool Democrat who edits the Herald know, or can't his wife tell him, that everything a woman wears costs less than it did before the McKinley bill passed? Calico is 4½ cents per yard; a good summer silk costs from 25 to 35 cents a yard. It used to cost $1. Black silk can be bought for from 60 cents to $1 that used to cost from $2 to $3.50. Sugar costs 5 cents that used to cost 8 cents. Ribbons are are half the old price, stockings the same, and jerseys, since they are making them in this country, cost half as much as the imported. Ladies' goods are down. We ladies know that Democratic husbands can lie to each other, but they can't lie to us. We women are not fools. Let the Herald liar stick to men's things when he lies, and not try to lie about woman's things. We won't stand it. I'm a Democratic woman, but I don't want any lying to keep the party up."

It is pretty evident that there is one woman who has gotten over the scare of "McKinley prices," and who realizes that McKinley prices are reduced prices instead of increased prices.

Below Zero.

Toledo Blade, April 29.

"The people's theatre was comfortably filled last evening with an audience which laughed itself harse at the numerous funny sayings and doings of Rentfrow's Jolly Pathfinders, who opened a week's engagement in the laughable farce-comedy, Below Zero. The piece is constructed on much the same plan as all farce-comedies, but it has the beauty of having introduced into it several new features. J. N. Rentfrow, Jr. as Arnold Grub, the tramp, was original and refreshing, and was good for a laugh every time he spoke. L. J. Farrel made an excellent Irish comedian, and H. F. Adams as Henry Meek, the convivial husband was as full of humor as could well be imagined. In addition the amusement in the regular run of the play specialties were introduced which were very entertaining." At the Grand Opera house May 17 and 18th.

Fergus Falls Journal:—Otter Tail county has gone into the horse business in earnest this year, and we believe that in five years it will be one of the big horse producing counties of the Northwest. Over twenty imported draft stallions of various kinds have been brought into the county in the last year. In many instances farmers have banded together and bought the stallions. It looked for while as though the trotting horse was going to be neglected, but finally a syndicate was organized and J. O. Billings sent east to buy a trotting stallion which would be a credit to the Empire county. He went to Kentucky and then on to New York, where the great Kellogg sale was in progress. He found just what was wanted in the stallion Essex and bought him at auction for $2,000. He is 8 years old and made a record of 2:27¼ at Hartford Conn., last fall. The Horseman says he can beat his record, having been a close second in a heat in 2:24. Essex is a beautiful horse, a rich bronze chestnut, very trim and very stylish. His pedigree, however, speaks for itself. His sire was Aristos, the greatest son of that great sire Daniel Lambert. Essex, dam was Nelly, by Black Diamond. Nelly is in the list of great brood mares. She has raised six colts. Essex is the oldest. His record is 2:27¼. Warren was her second colt, his record is 2:20¼. Sprague Superb was the third; his record is 2:29¼. The other three are not yet developed, but three fast colts like these in three successive years is a splendid record. Aristos, the sire of Essex, has nine in the 2:30 list. From this it will be seen that Essex ought to become a great sire. He will be shown at the different fairs in Minnesota and North Dakota, and we do not believe Fergus Falls will have to take a back seat for any town in the northwest.

Wheat At Home and Abroad.

The Stockholder.

For the first time in a long while conditions warrant the belief that America, in the event of the realization of present crop prospects, will find a profitable market abroad for its products. Big crops in this country and small ones in Europe mean an era of prosperity for both our railways and farmers. The London Standard publishes a long and careful review of the outlook, in which it says that the steady rise in wheat revives the hopes of the English farmer, adding that wheat will probably reach the highest price in many years, the principal cause of the rise being the failure of foreign crops. The wheat crops of France and Russia, according to the Standard, are much below the average, and the paper says the deficiency will be at least 20,000,000 quarters, adding: "It is expected that cold winds and frost have destroyed the French crops. Germany, Holland and Belgium all furnish pessimist reports. In Roumania there is a decreased wheat area, and in India there has been a bad wheat season. The only exception is in Hungary, where there are better prospects, but it is almost certain that the world's wheat consumption will exceed the production computed. Whatever the magnitude of America's crop may be, it will not be sufficient to cover the European deficit, thus compelling an extensive draft upon the reserves for the third year in succession. The increased home consumption, a decreased wheat area, owing to the spread of population, and recourse to scientific tillage in order to repair the waste of first settlers, thus increasing the cost of production, must inevitably remove the American farmer's formidable competition in European markets, and allow the English farmer to look forward to a prosperous future."

Not Third Party Men.

St. Paul Pioneer Press.

HORNELLSVILLE, N. Y., April 23.—The newly organized state Farmers' Alliance adjourned to-day. The St. Louis platform was adopted as a whole. The committee on resolutions declared against the third party movement and maintained that the work of the Alliance could be carried on to more advantage by non-partisan voting. The resolutions were carried in an enthusiastic manner, and met the universal approval of the delegates.

Notice of Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

[First publication May 7th, 1891]

WHEREAS, DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE in the conditions of a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Uclide Barrette and Nettile Barrette, his wife, mortgagors, to Northwestern Guaranty Loan Company, mortgagee, bearing date the 17th day of February, A. D. 1888, and duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the county of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the 25th day of February, A. D. 1888, at 3 o'clock p. m., in book 31 of mortgages, on pages 600-3.

Whereas, such default consists of the failure to pay the installments of interest that became due August 17th, 1888, February 17th, 1889, August 17th, 1889, February 17th, 1890, August 17th, 1890, and February 17th, 1891, each of said installments being for the sum of $17.50, and whereas the said Northwestern Guaranty Loan Company, the holder of said mortgage, has elected to declare, and hereby does declare the whole principal sums in said mortgage set forth due and payable at the date of this notice under the terms and conditions of said mortgage and the power of sale therein contained.

And whereas there is actually due and payable at the date hereof, including principal and interest, upon the premises in said mortgage described the following sum to-wit: Six hundred and twenty-two dollars and forty-five cents ($622.45); and whereas the said power of sale has become operative, and no action or proceeding at law or otherwise has been instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed, and the premises described in and covered by said mortgage, viz: The north half of the southwest quarter (n½ sw¼) of Section five (5), and north half of the southeast quarter (n½ se¼) of Section six (6), in Township one hundred and forty-nine (149), of Range forty-four (44), containing 160 acres more or less according to the government survey thereof; said premises situate and being in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances, will be sold at public auction to the highest bidder for cash to pay said debt and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and twenty-five dollars attorney's fee, as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk County, at the front door of the Court House, in the City of Crookston, in said County and State, on

MONDAY, THE 22D DAY OF JUNE,

A. D. 1891, at 10 o'clock a. m. of that day, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale as provided by law.

Dated April 28th, A. D. 1891.

IT IS TO TEACH THE LADIES.

An Importation Of Designers of Ladies' Gowns.

What the Enterprise of An International Fashion Magazine Has Done For Its Readers.

New York, April 18.—Among the cabin passengers who arrived from Europe to-day by the steamship "La Bourgoyne," were fourteen Parisian designers of ladies' fashionable gowns. These artists have been engaged by the enterprising managers of The New York and Paris Young Ladies Fashion Bazar, to contribute exclusively to the columns of that popular magazine. All of them are well known in New York, for their reputations have preceded them, Mrs. Cleveland and Mrs. Astor, the Vanderbilts, Mrs. Cleveland and Mrs. Marshall O. Roberts are among the society leaders who have worn gowns designed by these artists. During an interview with a reporter one of the designers said:

"Paris still leads the world of fashion although Eugenie no longer sits on the throne. Parisian gowns have a style about them that can not be equaled, That, I suppose, is the reason why we have been engaged to come to America to teach the ladies of your beautiful country, through the columns of The New York and Paris Young Ladies Fashion Bazar, how these wonderful creations of the dress-makers' art are constructed. It is our business to design the handsomest and most fashionable gowns for the different seasons of the year. These designs will be printed in colors and will be accompanied by such clear instructions as to the selection of materials and the cutting and fitting of the garments that no woman of sense will have the least difficulty in making perfect-fitting gowns herself. It is a knack, a science, to fashion a gown that will make a very small and very fleshy lady appear slim. Not one designer out of a thousand can hit upon the true lines unless he makes it the study of a life-time. You ought to see the May number of our Magazine. We have designs in it that will take the hearts of the ladies by storm. They do not get a new dress made up every day, and I can tell you it is an important item to get the best magazine and the very latest and most exquisite Paris styles, and have it fashioned like the one that is best suited to their figure."

Scenes of Beauty.

Have you made up your mind that you can afford to take a week or two this summer from business, and go somewhere for a pleasure trip? If you have, don't wait till the last of July or the middle of August, when the summer heats have taken all the energy out of you. June is the month for pleasure in traveling. Where are you going? To the East? Did you ever try a trip along the Upper Mississippi —from St. Paul to Rock Island? No? Then you have missed one of the most enjoyable journeys possible, Nowhere on our continent is more charming scenery—nowhere is the country richer in historical associations. "The Burlington" runs close to the river from St. Paul to Rock Island. and it incontestably the scenic line of the Northwest. Frauds in Land Leases.

Duluth Evening Herald.

The law passed two years ago providing for the leasing of Minnesota mineral lands has resulted in partiality and fraud from the first. Within fifteen minutes from the time Governor Merriam signed the bill favored friends filed applications for the choicest selections. Several different sets of blanket application have been made, and by some mysterious understanding, the very moment the government patent for 28-18 reached the state auditor, after having been held in the governor's private office some days, while the clerks were yet ignorant of its arrival, it was gobbled up by fifty applications presented by one man. When told that the patent had not been received, he replied: "O, you'll find it in the auditor's office now."

Such government is not of, or for the people, and we need wonder little that they kick.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, COUNTY OF POLK—ss. In Probate Court, Special Term, April 17th, 1891.

On reading and filing the petition of John Cromb, administrator, setting forth the amount of personal estate that has come to his hands, the disposition thereof, and how much remains undisposed of; the amount of debts outstanding against said deceased, as far as the same can be ascertained; the legacies unpaid, and a description of all the real estate, excepting the homestead, of which said deceased died seized, and the condition and value of the respective portions or lots thereof; the persons interested in said estate, with their residences; and praying that license be to him granted to sell all of the real estate mentioned in the said petition, And it appearing, by said petition, that there is not sufficient personal estate in the hands of said administrator to pay said debts, the legacies or expenses of administration, and that it is necessary for the payment of such debts, legacies or expenses, to sell all of said real estate.

It is therefore ordered, that all persons interested in said estate, appear before this court, on Monday, the 11th day of May, 1891, at 10 o'clock a. m., at the Probate Office in Crookston, in said county, then and there to show cause (if any there be) why license should not be granted to said administrator to sell so much of the real estate of said deceased as shall be necessary to pay such debts, legacies and expenses.

And it is further ordered, that this order shall be published once in each week for three successive weeks prior to said day of hearing, in THE POLK COUNTY JOURNAL, a weekly newspaper printed and published at Crookston, in said county.

[First publication April 30, 1891.]

WHEREAS, Frank Johnson and Anna Johnson, his wife, of Polk County, State of Minnesota, as mortgagors, did, on the 8th day of March, A. D. 1888, duly execute and deliver to Hannah Amelia Armstrong, of the County of Broome, State of New York, their mortgage, bearing date of March 1st, A. D. 1888, whereby they mortgaged to said mortgagee the following described lands situated in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, to-wit: The southwest quarter of Section 30, Township 153, Range 46 west, containing 160 acres, to secure the payment of the sum of six hundred dollars, with interest thereon, according to the conditions of one certain promissory note, with interest coupons attached, bearing even date with said mortgage, and made by said mortgagors to said mortgagee, or order, which said mortgage was on the 8th day of March, A. D. 1888, at 6 o'clock p. m., duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for said County of Polk, in book 37 of mortgages, on page 102; and

Whereas, default has been made in the payment of the sum of thirty-five dollars, due as interest upon said mortgage on the 1st day of January, A. D. 1889, and on the further sum of forty-two dollars due as interest upon said mortgage on the 1st day of January, A. D. 1890, and on the further sum of forty-two dollars, due as interest thereon on the first day of January, A. D. 1891, and the said interest is still unpaid and due; and

Whereas, it was stipulated by and between the parties to said mortgage, that if default should be made in any of the conditions or covenants therein contained on the part of the mortgagors, to be kept and performed, that then and from thenceforth it shall be lawful for the said mortgagee, her heirs, administrators, executors or assigns, to consider and declare the whole sum secured thereby as immediately due and payable without notice to said mortgagors or any other party; and

Whereas, The said Hannah Amelia Armstrong has exercised her option to consider and declare, and does hereby consider and declare the whole sum of money secured by said mortgage to be due and payable; and

Whereas, there is now due, and claimed to be due on said mortgage at the date of this notice the sum of seven hundred forty-two and 22-100 dollars, and no proceedings have been instituted at law or otherwise to recover the same or any part thereof.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of a power of sale in said mortgage contained and therewith recorded, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the land therein described, which sale will be made by the Sheriff of Polk County, at the front door of the Court House, in the city of Crookston, in said County and State, on the 20th day of June, A. D. 1891, at ten o'clock in the forenoon of that day, at public vendue to the highest bidder for cash, to pay the sum due on said mortgage, together with taxes, if any, on said premises, and fifty dollars attorney's fees therein stipulated to be paid in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the date of sale as provided by law.

[First publication April 20th, 1891.]

WHEREAS, ALEXIS ROBERTS, AN UNmarried man, of Polk County, State of Minnesota, as mortgagor, did, on the 2d day of May, A. D. 1887, duly execute and deliver to Austin Corbin, Trustee, of the County of New York, State of New York, his mortgage, bearing date of April 28th, A. D. 1887, whereby he mortgaged to said mortgagee the following described lands situated in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, to-wit: East half northwest quarter and east half southwest quarter Section 19, Township 149, Range 44 west containing 160 acres, to secure the payment of the sum of six hundred dollars with interest thereon, according to the conditions of one certain promissory note with interest coupons attached, bearing even date with said mortgage, and made by said mortgagor to said mortgagee, or order, which said mortgage was, on the 2d day of May, A. D. 1887, at 11 o'clock a. m., duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for said County of Polk, in book 27 of mortgages, on page 399; and

Whereas default has been made in the payment of the sum of forty and 33-100 dollars, due as interest upon said mortgage on the first day of January, A. D. 1888, and on the further sum of sixty dollars due as interest upon said mortgage on the first day of January, A. D. 1889, and on the further sum of sixty dollars due as interest thereon on the 1st day of January, A. D. 1890, and on the further sum of sixty dollars due as interest thereon on the 1st day of January, A. D. 1891, and the said interest is still unpaid and due; and

Whereas it was stipulated by and between the parties to said Mortgage, that if default should be made in any of the conditions or covenants therein contained on the part of the Mortgagor to be kept and performed, that then and from thenceforth it shall be lawful for the said mortgagee, his heirs, administrators, executors or assigns to consider and declare the whole sum secured thereby as immediately due and payable without notice to said Mortgagor or any other party; and

Whereas, the said Austin Corbin, Trustee, has exercised his option to consider and declare and does hereby consider and declare the whole sum of money secured by said mortgage to be due and payable; and

Whereas there is now due, and claimed to be due upon said mortgage at the date of this notice the sum of eight hundred seventy-five and 55-100 dollars, and no proceedings have been instituted at law or otherwise to recover the same or any part thereof.

Now therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of a power of sale in said mortgage contained, and therewith recorded, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the land therein described, which sale will be made by the Sheriff of Polk County, at the front door of the Court-house in the City of Crookston, in said County and State on the 20th day of June, A. A HUSTLING RAILWAY.

The Duluth & Winnipeg Scatters Men By Hundreds all Along the Extension to This city, Nearly Straightened Out the Legal Tangles Thrown in its Way by Those Hostile.

Duluth Evening Herald.

Nearly 1000 men are at work today on the line of the Duluth & Winnipeg road between West Duluth and Cloquet, and are turning over the dirt at a tremendous rate.

The work has so far progressed rather slowly, because of the weather and the delays consequent on the final location of the line and the acquiring of needed land for right of way, but these matters are so far settled that no more waiting is necessary. Contractor Grant was in the city this morning and states that he will push the work as fast as possible from now on. So far a good deal of the right of way, especially above Short Line Park, has been cut, some grading done and a good many temporary bridges built over ravines for the accommodation of the grading outfits.

It is intended to have the entire line in readiness for traffic by July 1, and to do this there will have to be a good deal of hurry. While the distance is only seventeen miles, the work is heavy and the contract price is understood to be about $22,000 per mile.

Said an official of the road today: "Just now the Duluth & Winnipeg is working at the various obstacles put in its way by the interior department by the agency of opposing railway interests which appear to have altogether too much influence with the department for the good of independent concerns. The various knots of red tape in connection with the roadway across the Indian reserves are being united, but until they are the road cannot go ahead with its Western extension. After all the present knots are loosened, just what may be done by a fertile and paternal interior department to further hinder the road no fellow can tell, probably either the Northern Pacific or Great Northern roads know about this better than we.

"But we are bound to get there, and as money is not tight in the East now, no matter what may be said by amateur financiers, we shall not have any great trouble in getting what money we need, particularly as we have about 100 miles in operation and not in debt."

Election of U. S. Senators.

Grand Forks Herald.

The Moorhead News publishes an elaborate article on the "mode of election of United States senators." Owing to its extreme length the Herald has not studied it as carefully as its merits deserve. It is however, an able and well written defence of the present mode of electing U. S. senators an attempt being made to show that under our system of government, the upper house of congress should be representatives of the states, while the lower house is more distinctly representative of the people. The Herald is inclined to believe, however, that a radical change should be made in the manner of electing senators. Every session of a state legislature in which senators are elected demonstrates the necessity of a change. It is becoming too expensive a luxury to continue the present plan. It is corrupting and demoralizing. A rich man ambitious for a seat in the senate can purchase it if he so desires. Legislators are weak and corrupt and fall an easy prey to the bribe giver but the people cannot be manipulated so easily. It would be extremely difficult to purchase the majority vote of a state. Fifty men are more easily manipulated than fifty thousand. Were U. S. senators elected by the people the legislators could attend to their legitimate work of law-making. Lots of time and money could be saved, and our system of government as contemplated by the fathers would in no way be in jeopardy. The election of a senator in North Dakota last winter cost the state over $25,000; and the election of senator Palmer of Illinois cost the people of that state at least $150,000, besides doing incalculable injury to the morals of the people. Days, weeks and months are spent in scheming, bribing, bull-dozing, and brow-beating, and the legitimate work of the session is practically suspended during one of these contests. By all means let there be a change, and the sooner the better for the people, the government, and the material welfare of the states.

Below Zero.

Detroit Evening Sun, Aug. 26, '90.

"Rentfrow's Comedy Company opened the week last evening at the Whitney Grand in the three-act farce. 'Below Zero," written by Charles R. Sweet. It goes without saying, that any comedy written by Mr. Sweet is good and the rendition of it, in most respects, was satisfactory. If one may judge by the laughter and applause of the audience, which accompanied the performance from first to last, it was eminently so. The acting of J. N. Rentfrow, Jr., as Arnold Grub, F.W. Stillman as Henery Meek, Richard A. Coleman as Teddy McGintry, Miss Lottie Walters as Katy Klover, and Mrs. J. N. Rentfrow as Amelia Antique Hamilton was of high class of its kind; that of some of them beyond reproach. In the first act Fred D. Lucier and Miss, Helia Archmere rendered a mandolin and guitar duet which was exquisite, as was also the performance on musical glasses by Miss Mellia Hayden in the second act. There are many comical situations and amusing contretemps during the evening, which excite roars of laughter and rounds of applause. The recitation of a short parody on Poe's "Raven," by Mr. Stillman, was mimitable. Miss Walters, besides being a good little actress, has a very sweet voice as a singer, and is a good dancer. Songs, dances and gags that are fresh, are plentifully scattered throughout the piece, and add to an enjoyable variety."—At the Grand Opera House May 17 and 18.

The Northwestren Agriculturist

It looks very much, now, as if the owners of cattle were to have their "inning," and that soon. Prices have steadily advanced since January, in spite of the fact that thousands of farmers have been forced to send their cattle to market on account of the high prices of feed. These cattle have generally been in poor condition, and have brought comparatively low prices, and have, of course, had a tendency to depress the market, which has, in spite of its influence, advanced steadily. Now, there are plenty of shrewd cattle men who expect cattle to sell at nine dollars a hundred before they are lower. Owners of cattle who have feed are holding them in expectation of higher prices, and those who have been obliged to sell on account of short supply and high prices of feed will be buyers as soon as grass starts enough to furnish pasture. As soon as the demand from this quarter begins the butchers will be compelled to bid up for what they want and prices will advance still more, and there will be a rush to get stocked up before they reach the top notch. The "big four" are able to control prices only so long as there is no demand from any other quarter. When there are other buyers in the field they cannot dictate terms. Unless all signs fail, before 1892 cattle will advance to the paying point, with a certainty of their staying there for many years. The supply of cattle, when run down, cannot be so quickly recruited as that of sheep and hogs, as the increase is very slow. The surplus which has depressed prices for several years, came off the plains, where several successful years and a greate influx of foreign capital gave the ranch business an artificial stimulus. This cannot happen again in this country, though other countries, like Mexico and South America, may prove great breeding grounds, but even is the latter proves to be the case, the quality will always be inferior, and the wise farmers of the United State, will dominate the market for a high quality of beef. The unwise ones, and their name is always legion, will continue to raise scrubs, still selling in competition with the Texas ranchmen and the Montana cow boys.

Investigating Wheat Buyers.

Farm Stock and Home.

If the Alliance contingent in the Minnesota legislation had done nothing, or attempted nothing but the creation of a committee entrusted with the work of investigating the charge "that 60,000 bushels of wheat were taken out without inspection from a public elevator in Duluth," it would have repaid the cost of its election and maintenance. The committee was created by the House, with power to send for persons and papers, administer oaths, etc. It employed W. W. Erwin to assist, and readily unearthed facts enough to convince any fair minded man that the committee was on a trail that promised most startling developments. It is not only clear that 60,000 bushels of wheat have been illegally taken from the Duluth elevators, but in all probability 500,000 bushels is nearer the right figure. A report was made to the House containing positive evidence of the removal of many more 60,000 bushels of wheat "screenings," yet by reason of the limited time given the committee, before adjournment of the legislature, only a beginning was made. The committee, however, reinforced by two members of the Senate, will continue its work and report to the next legislature. We sincerely regret that our space will not permit the publication of the committee's reports, for there were two of them, majority and minority. The following extracts from the majority report are samples of the leads struck by the committee:

"Mr. J. I. Thomas testified before the committee that he was the agent of the Duluth South Shore & Atlantic railway company, and he produced the yard-switch-slips and the way bill copying books of that road between Jan. 1. 1889, and March 31, 1889, exhibited the way bill copying book in evidence, which showed that on Jan. 18 George Rupley shipped to S. S. Guthrie & Sons, Buffalo, N. Y., car 3734. containing 42,200 pounds, billed screenings, and car 3614, loaded with 40,000, corrected to 42,000 pounds, billed as screenings. On Feb. 1, cars 3605, 3797, 3953, 4232 and 3607, billed to S. S. Guthrie & Sons, each containing 50,000 pounds bulk screenings. That on Feb. 18 George Rupley shipped to S. S. Guthrie & Sons five cars containing 50.000 pounds each, billed as screenings. That on Feb. 23 George Rupley shipped to S. S. Guthrie & Sons three cars containing 50,000 pounds each, billed as screenings. On March 8 Georgh Rupley shipped to the same parties nine cars containing 50,000 pounds each, billed as screenings."

And so on until 57 cars, containing 47,500 bushels, were found. Another witness, Leopold Ario, gave the names and cargoes of a long list of steamers that, from 1886 to Oct. 1889, had taken immense quantities of wheat "without the knowledge of the state weighmaster or inspector." To test the truth of Mr. Ario's statments the committee subpoenaed.

"D. A. Christy, agent of the Lake Superior Transit Co., to bring with him the books of the company, which were carefully gone over and compared with the record of inspections, and from such comparison it appeared that on Jan. 24, 1886, the inspector's book showed that there was inspected on the propeller B. W. Blanchard, 31,023 bushels of wheat, but the books of the Transit company show that the propeller Blanchard carried from Duluth 38,025 bushels of wheat, thus carrying away 7,000 bushels of wheat of which there is no record of inspection. The inspector's books show that on July 1, 1886, there was inspected into the propeller Japan No. 2. Northern condemned, rejected, no grade, and No. 1 white winter, while the books of the Transit company show that this grain was carried in three holds, thus mixing some of it. The books of the state inspector show that on July 28, 1886, there was inspected into the propeller Winslow 20,000 bushels of wheat, while the books of the Lake Superior Transit company show, that the Winslow carried away from Duluth 40,000 bushels of wheat, thus leaving 20,000 bushels of which there is no record of inspection. The books of the Transit company show that on July 28, 1886, the propeller Japan carried from Duluth 46,000 bushels of wheat, but the books of the inspector fail to show any inspection of grain on this vessel."

And so on until the details became revolting and sickening.

The comittee was censured severely by the daily press for not giving the elevator authorities a chance to rebut the testimony taken by the committee. But the censure was not deserved. The superintendent and treasurer of the Lake Superior Transit Co., and the Union Improvement and Elevator Co., Geo. Rupley, was put upon the stand, but refused to testify unless he could first hear the witnesses previously examined. At his own request, however, he was allowed to take a copy of the stenographer's report of the evidence taken. He asked 24 hours in which to examine it; the committee gave him 48 hours, and he had the report that long. But he still refused to testify, giving his reasons in writing, among which were the following:

"That the wheat in question, which it was claimed was shipped by the Lake Superior Elevator company and the Union Improvement and Elevator company, was shipped from said elevators to a place out of and beyond the jurisdiction of the state of Minnesota, and was inter-state commerce and beyond the control of the legislature of the state of Minnesota or the board of railway and warehouse commissioners. That the law under which said state undertakes the prevision of said elevators or fixes the rate of charges therein is unconstitutional and void. That the inquiry is relative to the private business of said corporations of which I am superintendent, and I have no right to disclose their private business.

"That I refused to produce the private books of account of said corporations because I have no right or authority to do so, and they pertain exclusively to the private companies I represent, and can contain no entries relative to the matters under inquiry.

"That if said books are produced they will show nothing but the private business of said elevator company, and if anything is allowed relative to the matter under inquiry it will be about the shipment of grain from within the state of Minnesota to without the state of Minnesota, and inter-state commerce."

Those elevator companies, it seems, constitute themselves courts of law as well as dens of robbers; pass upon the constitutionality of laws with the same facility they show in appropriating to their own use whole cargoes of wheat, and make the most private of all private business the doings of the public elevators of Duluth. Surely the time has arrived when it must be determined which is supreme in the land, law and the people, or capitalistic combines.

Not only wheat growers but all honest men should feel thankful that there was enough of manhood, humanity and honesty in the last Minnesota legislature to begin the unearthing of what may prove to be one of the most villainous schemes of history.

Douglas County News:—The large barn on the farm of L. K. Aaker just west of town came near being destroyed by fire last Sunday afternoon. Sparks from a passing engine set fire to the leaves along the railroad and it ran into the straw about the barn. Gilbert Brakken and the man who lives on the place fought the fire until they became exhausted when the section men arrived and relieved them. It was a hard fight.

Kittel And The Commission.

Secretary Teisberg Talks on Matters Before the Railway Commission.

Duluth Evening Herald.

Secretary A. K. Teisberg, of the state railway and warehouse commissioners, is in the city today and talked quite interestingly to a Herald representative. He is highly pleased over the new state railway law, which provides for due legal process in case of dissatisfaction over a decision by the commission, which was not possible under the old law and which accordingly rendered it less patent for good.

About the only matter of importance now on the docket of the board is the complaint of the people of Anoka and Elk river against the Manitoba railway for charging $2 a ton for hauling coal from Duluth to those places as against $1.50 to Minneapolis, which is nearly twenty miles further along on the same road. When the matter came up the railroad was disposed to claim that this was a grievance to come before the interstate commerce commission. This was conceded by the state commission, but since then the railroad has seemed willing to have it come before the state. The theory of the carrier in this case is that the through business between Minneapolis and Duluth is done by the Eastern Minnesota, while the local business is a matter belonging to the Manitoba otherwise known as the Great Northern. This Mr. Teisberg thinks, cannot go down, or the carrying conditions of the whole country will be enterely changed.

In talking about Kittel Halvorsen the congressman from this district, Mr. Teisberg said that even if Kittle made a first-class record it would be next to impossible for him to get a second term, notwithstanding the new district is composed wholly of farming communities that voted almost to a man for him. His reason for this opinion is that Kittel's election has caused chagrin among the greater number of men who refused the alliance nomination and there will be a large crop of aspirants for the honor two years from now. With the various ambitions existing it will be difficult for Kittel to get the nomination, and, were he to get it, more difficult to unite the factions. Mr. Teisberg, although a republican, speaks in high terms of the unselfishness of the man who has suddenly and unexpectedly come into political prominence.

D. W. and A. E. Grant were in the city last week to look after some land which they own near Crookston. Dan McDonald had to go out and find it for them as they had no idea where it was. D. W. said that teams would soon be up to break the land and it will be made ready for seed next spring.

Misses and Children's Straw hats in great many styles and very cheap at Gervais "the hustler".

C. J. Whellams, an immigration agent for the Great Northern R. R., was in the city last week. Mr. W. has an original idea in relation to the immigration business, which we think a good one, and that is for each county to pay only for actual results obtained. For instance a bonus of $5 or $10 for each head of a family who actually settles in the county. Mr. W. will go to Canada and the Eastern and Middle states to remain all summer in the interest of immigration.

Rentfrow's Jolly Pathfinders will give two of their high class performances at the Grand Opera House, Friday and Saturday, May 15th and 16th. They come well recommended by press and public. Mr. Bjoin is to be congratulated on securing such a strong attraction for his house. We learn that he went to unusual pains to get them, they having to cancel two of their nights at Winnipeg. The company consists of 20 people and in order to reach our city in time to give their street parade, chartered a special train.

Mr. Mahara, business manager of Rentfrow's Jolly Pathfinders, who is in the city making arrangements for his attraction, made our office a very pleasant visit. Mr. Mahara, in speaking of the show, said that they carried 20 people and give satisfaction everywhere. They appear at the Grand Friday and Saturday, May 15th and 16th, in the screaming farce comedies "Below Zero" and "The two Old Chums." The show is for laughable purposes only in new songs, dances, funny comedians, lovely ladies, charming music, laughable situations. Friday, May 15th, "Below Zero," Saturday, May 16th, "The two Old Chums." See the big street parade on the day of the show.

Phil. McLaughlin was over from Grand Forks on Tuesday looking not a day older than he did years ago when he was a prosperous citizen of Crookston. Phil. possesses that genial good nature of the kind that never grows old. Phil was full of old-time reminiscences, and in conversation with the writer and comrade I. U. Jennings he said: "Dye moind the toime that I was put in command av the Post wan toime on parade? Faith I did not know any more about the military orders than did Adam's off ox. Dye moined whin I said: 'Get in two strings and march endways like you did yistherday!' Faith thim was the great days."

THE JOURNAL scribe was told a pretty good one on a prominent society man which happenstance occurred on Sunday last. It seems that the best girl of the aforesaid young man lives hereabouts a mile or so upon the banks of the raging Red Lake River. Now, this young man has a rival for the esteem of this young lady, and fearing least said rival aforesaid would catch onto the fact that there will be a grand excursion to Maple Lake next Sunday, and go out and engage the young lady for the day, he allowed to take time by the foretop by hiring an elegant rig and going out early on Sunday morning, which he did, and found to his great joy that he had been more previous than his rival—and secured the coveted prize. After awhile the young lady suggested that they try fishing a bit, which they did, but had no luck to speak of beyond a mosquito bite or so. Returning to Peter Cornelius' residence, (where all young people like to go) they found an elegant swing and the young man invited his fair inamorata to swing. Whether she was afraid she would lose the young man, or whatever the reason, we know not, but it transpired that the fish hook she had used to capture a sample of the finny tribe, in some mysterious way become caught in the young man's nose while she was swinging to and fro, and there he was—impaled like a bullhead to the cruel hook. At this juncture the rival aforesaid drove up with one of the finest rigs in the city (he got it of Collins, who keeps only the best), and seeing the situation he concluded that either the other fellow had got the girl or she had caught him, in any event his presence was not needed so he wisely forebore to interfere, and turning his horses about he sadly drove back to the city. If you haven't got tired of this romance in real life and wish to know how many pints of bloodshed the young man suffered or any of the facts in the case we advise you to take counsel of Dave Hatlestad, who is one of the leading attorneys of our rising young city. And further this deponent saith not.

At the meeting of the Association held in this city last week it was decided by a unanimous vote to build the Red River College at Crookston. The vote in the first place stood 11 to 18, whereupon Arne P. Hougen, one of the Grand Forks members, moved to make it unanimous, and the motion prevailed. The Grand Forks papers are trying hard to make out that a great deal of dissatisfaction exists, especially among the Dakota members, because the college was not located at Grand Forks, but we see no reason for this as Grand Forks had as fair an opportunity to show what she would do for the college before the directors made their proposition to the city of Crookston, and even after that, as did any other competing town, and if the Dakota members intended to bolt they should have done it before they voted to make the location at Crookston unanimous. To do so now would be unmanly—babyish. They did all they could for their own city, but were fairly beaten, and they should do as our people would have done had it gone against us—abide the result like men and turn in and aid in building a grand temple of learning that shall be a living monument to the wisdom of the Association. This can only be done by harmonious effort and there exists no earthly reason for any other kind. Had Grand Forks made the best showing before definite action was taken, the case would, no doubt, have been different, but she did not do so, and Crookston cannot be blamed for the short-comings of her sister city, as some over there are trying very hard to make out. We believe all this agitation comes more from Grand Forks real estate boomers than from members of the Association, and we trust that the action of the Association will be guided by wisdom and good judgment, so that their efforts to build up a strong college may be crowned by eminent success.

To the Public.

The management leased the Crookston Opera House with the intention of making it a popular place of amusement, and so far our most sanguine expectations have been more than realized. Everything will be conducted in a straightforward manner, and the most fastidious may rest assured that they can come and be treated as becomes ladies and gentlemen.

The Rink will be, as it has so far been, conducted with decorum, and no boisterous actions will be permitted under any circumstances. Ladies and children may come with the assurance that they will not be mistreated by any disturbing element.

We would say to the public that the house will be opened to various entertainments upon terms that will be mutually satisfactory.

Skating Thursday afternoon and evening, when the Queen City Band will be present.

Friday evening there will be a Grand Ball given in commemoration of the Independence of Norway. Prof. Casad's Orchestra will furnish the music, and Maj. Durant, of Grand Forks, will prompt. Tickets $1.00. Supper can be procured at Krogh's restaurant, Bjoin block, at 75 cents per couple for all who may call there during the night.

Saturday, Rink will be open afternoon and evening.

Hoping to merit your patronage, we remain

Polk County Temperance Alliance.

ED. JOURNAL: The Polk County Temperance Alliance, which is an organization formed by a union of the Scandinavian temperance societies of this county, held a large and very successful meeting at Fosston, March 3d to 5th last. Twelve temperance societies from different parts of the county were represented, most of them by regularly elected delegates. The meeting passed a set of resolutions, among which were the following:

1. We firmly believe that the liquor traffic, in any form, is doing great damage to the people of every city or village where it exists, as well as to the people of the vicinity, from both a material and a moral point of view.

2. We urge upon all temperance people that they do not in any way help to circulate saloon-friendly newspapers; but that they patronize only those which take an open and decided stand against the liquor traffic.

3. We notice with deep regret that the prohibition amendment bill introduced in our House of Representatives has been voted down by that body. We, nevertheless, extend our heart-felt thanks to those members who faithfully stood on the side of temperance and worked and voted for our cause.

P. H. ANDERSON, Sec.

Four Sabbath mornings, commencing next Sunday, May 17th, at the Congregational church, beside the regular sermon and other services, there will be an illustrated five minute sermon to children. Next Sunday will be the first. Each one of the children's sermons will be illustrated with a large wall picture. Everybody's boys and girls will be welcome. Sermons for the people May 17th: 11:00 a. m.—"Breakers Hushed to Sleep." 8:00 p. m.—"Plowman and Reaper." Every one kindly invited.

R. H. BATTEY, Pastor.

MAPLE LAKE

—ON—

Sunday, May 17th

The Great Northern road will run an excursion train to Maple Lake on Sunday next to accommodate all who wish to attend the

at Maple Lake. A fine program has been arranged, including a boat ride on the fine new passenger steamer

THE BELLE OF MAPLE LAKE,

The train leaves Crookston at 9 a. m.; returning, leaves the lake at 7 p. m.

Round Trip Tickets 75 Cts.

N. B. Should the day be stormy the excursion will be abandoned.

BY ORDER OF COM.

Guess it is safe to make garden now—dont it?

Wm. Watts went to Warren on Monday to attend court.

Hon. A. C. Wilkinson is at Warren this week attending court.

St. Jean Baptist Society has accepted the invitation to turn out on Memorial Day.

His Honor, Judge Mills, was in the city on Monday enroute to Warren to hold the spring term of court.

Hon. H. Steenerson was among the jolly crowd of legal lights who went to Warren on Monday morning.

Tom Harris is hustling the remaining buildings off the corner of Main and Second and very soon that site will be ready for the masons.

Jimmy Fulton came up from Hawley on Wednesday morning on his way to St. Hilaire where he goes to manage the creamery this season.

The Musin entertainment at the Grand Opera House on Monday evening was not very well attended but was a very fine entertainment.

J. A. Croft is the new manager of the Welles farm at Edna. Mr. Croft is an experienced farmer and will make the old farm bloom like the rose.

On Sunday last at the residence of T. E. Bradshaw Esq., Mr F. E. Dibble was united for life to Miss. Florence Lipscomb, the Rev. F. C. Whitney officiating.

H. J. Hauson was down from Fosston over Sunday. He is building a fine new store this spring to be ready for the big fall trade which is sure to come in due season.

Geo. W. Sprague was up this week looking up business for the Austin Hail Company. George has secured many of the best canvassers and all 'round hustlers in this county.

Senator Burkhardt and Joseph Hoch are talking about going into business in the city. They do not reveal the line but are quietly looking up the prospect and it looks like they would catch on.

S. L. Collins has some dandy new rigs that just catch the eye of the fastidious every time. If you want to see an elegant turnout go to Collins and order the finest turnout he has in the shop.

Andrew Steenerson was up from the west-side on Monday. He is preparing to shear his sheep and will take the clip to St. Paul the latter part of this week. He ships it to the Alliance business agency.

Comrade Bratton found that the pop corn business did not pay and so turned over the keys of the establishment to the owner, J. L. Bailey. The comrade has accepted a situation on the farm of E. D. Childs & Co.

The little six-year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. O. Flanders arrived from Canada on Monday evening, via the C. P. R. R. having made the trip alone—quite an experience for so small a chick.

Jack Freeborn went down to Maple Lake on Tuesday to work on Lee's house. By the way that must be a pretty extensive sort of a mansion as two years ago we kept the above notice stereotyped and run it about once a week during the spring and summer. One of three things is sure: Either Jack is confoundedly slow or else that house will be a stunner if he ever gets it done.

Peter Cornenous had quite an experience last Friday afternoon. He was driving along toward home from his south farm when a vivid flash of lightning completely blinded him and his horse fell on its knees and stumbled along a rod or so before it recovered. Peter recovered his sight and his presence of mind in a few seconds and drove along home as though nothing had happened.

The attractions Mrs. E. E. Bangs offers the ladies are fashionable goods in the latest styles of the very best qualities and extremely low prices. You will do well to call and examine her goods and get prices.

It has been suggested that if the service to which the Grand Army Post has been invited at the M. E. church on Sunday evening May 24th could be held at the opera house it would accommodate many who would like to hear the sermon who cannot do so for lack of room. Heretofore on such occasions the church in which it was held has been crowded to its utmost capacity and many have gone away disappointed. The service is one that would be beneficial to every loyal American citizen and we have no doubt that all such would be glad to listen to the eloquent words of the gifted methodist minister who is to preach the sermon.

Standard—"Below Zero."

Chicago Daily Globe, Dec. 15, '90.

The Standard was crowded to overflowing last night by an audience which gathered to witness Rentfrow's Pathfinders in the musical comedy, "Below Zero." The piece is a very mirthful bit of nonsense, and the company presenting it is composed of capable people. Ample opportunity is furnished for the introduction of a number of catchy songs, dances and specialties. It is well filled with ludicrous situations, and forms a style of entertainment which seems to please everybody."—At the Grand Opera House Friday and Saturday evenings May 15th and 16th 1891.

The Prison Mirror.

The following will be sent, in the form of a circular, throughout the state.

Binding Twine at Cost—manufactured by the state at the prison at Stillwater, Minn., a limited quantity now on hand, and ready for shipment in bales of 50 pounds each.

This twine is of superior quality, and and will be sold for 9 cents per pound, at the prison, until further notice. Made mostly from Kentucky hemp; even, smooth finish; very strong, and running about 600 feet to the pound. Orders will be filled in the same order in which they are received when accompanied by the cash.

This enterprise having been established for the benefit of the farmers of Minnesota." the management desires to distribute to the farmers direct, or through the medium of regularly organized farmers' clubs, in order to prevent speculation.

Having only a limited quantity for the coming harvest we would urge all who desire to avail themselves of this opportunity of getting twine at this low figure to send their orders at once to

The following resolution was adopted: Resolved that the license fees for county auctioneers be and is hereby fixed at $10 per annum.

Abatement of taxes of Wm. G. Porter on northeast ¼ southwest ¼ and lots 3 and 4 section 33 township 154-43 was granted, and the auditor was instructed to cancel all taxes up to the including the year 1886.

Tax application of M. Swanson was laid over.

On motion the application of Samuel Gibeau for appointment as text book agent was granted, providing he furnishes the proper bond as required by law.

The following resolution was offered by M. E. Kirsch:

Whereas the clerk of court of Polk county is paid a fixed salary of $1800 annually besides being allowed a deputy with a salary of $720 per annum, and whereas it appears from the record that on the 16th day of March, 1890. Thos. Shapleigh was paid the sum of $18.00 out of the county revenue fund for acting as special deputy clerk of court; and whereas the duties performed by said Thos. Shapleigh as such special deputy clerk, should have been performed by either Mr. Nels Muus clerk of court or his deputy;

Therefore be it resolved that the county attorney be and is hereby instructed to investigate if those charges are legal against the county, and have the clerk show cause why he should not reimburse the county for said sum of $18.000 paid to Thos. Shapleigh as heretofore stated.

M. E. Kirsch,
A. C. Rhinehart,
J. P. Johnson,
C. P. Demers,
A. O. Stortroen,

On motion the chairman M. E. Kirsch, was appointed committee of one to see that the court house and grounds are kept clean and in proper order.

Resolved, that the sum of $125 be appropriated out of the road and bridge fund to be expended under the supervision of Commissioner Stortroen on the Sand hill and Fisher county road in the towns of Roome and Fisher, provided that no money shall be paid out of the county fund until the road is completed and accepted by the county commissioners.

Bills for witness fees in the Russel case (on defense) were rejected, the same being paid by order of court.

Significant Facts for Farmers.

New York Press.

There are some interesting facts in regard to the prices of farm products that have recently been issued by the Agricultural Department, presided over by that sterling protectionist and patriotic American citizen, Jerry Rusk, to which The Press proposes to call attention, in the hope that some of these gentlemen will take occasion to cheer the farmers of the country with the prospect of better prices for their products and better times for themselves. Surely this would be only fair. We have heard so much of the double yoke of mortgages and interest under which the American farmer is bowed down; we have seen so many gloomy pictures relative to the price of his commodities and the narrowness of his profits, that common justice demands at the hands of the representatives of the Alliance a fair presentation of the other side of the picture. We therefore present below a table which shows the general average of prices in the United states of agricultural products from December 1, 1889, to December 1, 1890, as follows:

Corn	23.8c. per bush.	50.6c. per bush.	70
Wheat	69.8c. per bush.	83.8c. per bush.	20
Oats	23.0c. per bush.	42.4c. per bush.	84
Potatoes	40.3c. per bush.	77.7c. per bush.	93
Barley	42.7c. per bush.	63.8c. per bush.	52

A glance at the above table will show an increase of 70 per cent, in twelve months in the price of corn, of 20 per cent, in the price of wheat, of 84 per cent. in the price of oats, of 93 per cent. in the price of potatoes and of 52 per cent. in the price of barley.

The Press does not claim that this splendid advance in the price of farm products is entirely due to the McKinley bill and to the settled policy of protection as indicated by the Presidential election of 1888, but it does claim that the fiscal policy of the Republican party has had a great deal to do with this steady growth in the prices of farm products, and it honestly believes that a fair and reasonable trial of the McKinley bill will result in immeasurable benefit not only by the millions of wage earners who are engaged in the manufacturing industries of the country, but to the millions of farmers who depend so largely upon the prices of their commodities for the annual profits which comprise their entire income. Not long ago we pointed out the fact that the farmers' profits are so small that a slight reduction in prices is likely after paying living expenses for the year to turn his surplus into a deficit. For this reason it is indeed gratifying to find such a substantial advance in the prices of farm commodities.

Of course this advance will be disappointing to free traders, because their theory, as pointed out by Hon. Grover Cleveland, is that cheapness and prosperity go hand in hand; that the cheap suit of clothes and the cheap manufactured products are the most desirable, and that the question as to whether that cheapness means the degradation of human labor is of secondary importance. The above figures should appeal to every intelligent farmer, for they not only indicate that times are improving but they clearly demonstrate that the theory of cheapness is a bad one, whether applied to the products of the soil, or the factory or the work shop. Cheap agricultural products mean poverty and misery for the farmer; cheap manufactured products mean the same thing for the wage earner. Those who follow this theory of cheapness have not the welfare of the plain people or the masses of the bread winners at heart.

Face the Music.

West St. Paul Times.

We are not among the number of those who believe the Republicans are little gods who can't do wrong, and who have not done wrong when they had the majority in the Legislature, but it makes us very weary to know that the Democratic and Alliance legislators and the Democratic and Alliance press are trying to saddle the responsibility of all the extravagance of this Legislature upon the Republicans when they were in the minority in both houses, and when, from the opening to the closing of the session, nothing seemed to satisfy these members more than to taunt the Republican side of that fact. Face the music like men, gentlemen.

The Western Settler's Specific.

Carelessly picking up a newspaper the other day our eye was caught by the above title. It turned out to be a puff of the marvelous virtues of some patent medicine. But our thought ran on something like this: A "specific" is a sure cure. What are some of the ills of the Western settler, for which he needs a sure cure? Well, homesickness, discontent with his situation, dullness from running in one groove, seeing no new faces, getting behind the times, and and being hidebound in his opinion. For all these, there is no "specific" so reliable as travel. Is the wife discouraged and homesick? Send her on a visit to the old home. Do you think the people back East are having better times than you? Go back and take a look around for a few weeks. Do you think your opinions are the only ones that are about right? Get out into the world, and see how many people there are who know more than you. In short, travel, get out of your shell, mingle with the world. In whatever direction you go, the best line for you to travel is "The Burlington." It reaches all points. Your local agent can supply you with a ticket. If he cannot write for information to W. J. C. Kenyon, Gen. Pass. Agent C. B. & N. R. R. St. Paul Minn.

The Northwestern Agriculturest.

Those who buy cattle this spring believing that there is to be a "boom," should not make the mistake of spending their money for quantity instead of quality. Two really good cows are better and will make more profit than a half dozen medium or scrubby ones. If a farmer is situated so that he can give good care to a small number of pure-bred cattle, he can buy now at such low prices that he should start a pure-bred herd, but in buying them he should take care to get stock that is well up in individual merit and in pedigree. A few years will establish a fine herd, if males only of the increase are sold and females retained, and such a herd will pay in money as well as in satisfaction to the owner. A man who takes an interest in his stock—and only such men should own stock at all—will always get more comfort and more profit out of a few good ones than out of a larger number of average or inferior cattle, and to have the best in the neighborhood and to get the best prices gives him a standing among his neighbors which nothing else approaches. An investment now in good grade or pure-bred cows or heifers cannot fail to make the purchaser a handsome profit.

Notice of Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

[First publication April 23, 1891.]

WHEREAS, DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE in the conditions of a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Thomas B. Bisson, an unmarried man, mortgagor, to the Northwestern Guaranty Loan Company, mortgagee, bearing date the 2d day of June, A. D. 1888, and duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the 4th day of June, A. D. 1888, at 11:30 o'clock a. m., in book 30 of mortgages on pages 196-8.

Whereas, such default consists of the failure to pay the following instalments of interest, to-wit: $3.75 that became due December 2d, 1888, $3.75 that became due June 2d, 1889, $3.75 that became due December 2d, 1889, $3.75 that became due June 2d, 1890, and $3.75 that became due December 2d, 1890.

And, whereas, the said Northwestern Guaranty Loan Company, the holder of said mortgage, has elected to declare, and hereby does declare the whole principal sums in said mortgage set forth due and payable at the date of this notice, under the terms and conditions of said mortgage and the power of sale therein contained.

And, whereas, there is actually due and payable at the date hereof, including principal and interest, upon the premises in said mortgage described, the following sum, to-wit: Three hundred and four dollars and fifty-seven cents ($304.57.)

And, whereas, the said power of sale has become operative, and no action or proceeding at law or otherwise has been instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given, that by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage, which by the default aforesaid has become operative, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed and the premises described in and covered by said mortgage, viz: The east half of the northwest quarter (e½ nw¼) and southwest quarter of the northwest quarter (sw¼ nw¼) of Section Seventeen (17), in Township one hundred and forty-eight (148), of Range forty-two (42), containing 120 acres, more or less, according to the government survey thereof. Said premises situate and being in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances, will be sold at public auction to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and twenty-five dollars attorney's fee, as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk County, at the front door of the Court House, in the City of Crookston, in said County and State, on the 8th day of June, A. Notice of Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

[First publication April 23, 1891.]

WHEREAS, DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE in the conditions of a certain Mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Delor Toupin, an unmarried man, mortgagor, to the Northwestern Guaranty Loan Company, mortgagee, bearing date the 26th day of November A. D. 1888, and duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the county of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the 20th day of November A. D. 1888, at 3:10 o'clock p. m., in book 40 of Mortgages, on pages 674-6.

Whereas, such default consists of the failure to pay the following instalments of interest, to-wit: $17.50 that became due May 26th, 1889, $17.50 that became due November 26th, 1889, $17.50 that became due May 26th, 1890, and $17.50 that became due November 26th, 1890.

And, whereas, the said Northwestern Guaranty Loan Company, the holder of said mortgage, has elected to declare, and hereby does declare the whole principal sums in said mortgage set forth due and payable at the date of this notice under the terms and conditions of said mortgage and the power of sale therein contained.

And, whereas, there is actually due and payable at the date hereof, including principal and interest upon the premises in said mortgage described, the following sum, to-wit: Five hundred and ninety two dollars and fifty cents ($592.50), and whereas the said power of sale has become operative and no action or proceeding at law or otherwise has been instituted to recover the said debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage, which by the default aforesaid has become operative, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed, and the premises described in and covered by said mortgage, viz: The northwest quarter (nw¼) of Section twenty-nine (29), in Township one hundred and fifty (150), of Range forty-three (43), containing 160 acres, more or less, according to the government survey thereof; said premises situate and being in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances, will be sold at public auction, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and twenty-five dollars attorney's fee, as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk County, at the front door of the Court House in the City of Crookston, in said County and State, on the 9th day of June, A. Notice of Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

[First publication April 30th, 1891.]

WHEREAS, DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE in the conditions of a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered, by Ferment Coter, unmarried, mortgagor, to Northwestern Guaranty Loan Company, mortgagee, bearing date the 22d day of October, A. D. 1888, and duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the 24th day of October, A. D. 1888, at 1:10 o'clock p. m., in book 40 of mortgages, on page 235-8.

Whereas, such default consists of the failure to pay the following installments of interest, to-wit: $9.75 that became due April 22d, 1889, $9.75 that became due October 22d, 1889, $9.75 that became due April 22d, 1890, and $9.75 that became due October 22d, 1890; and whereas the said Northwestern Guaranty Loan Company, the holder of said mortgage has elected to declare, and hereby does declare, the whole principal sums in said mortgage set forth due and payable at the date of this notice under the terms and conditions of said mortgage and the power of sale therein contained.

And whereas there is actually due and payable at the date hereof, including principal and interest, upon the premises in said mortgage described the following sum, to-wit: Two hundred and ninety-eight dollars ($298); and whereas the said power of sale has become operative, and no action or proceeding at law or otherwise has been instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed and the premises described in and covered by said mortgage, viz: The southwest quarter (sw¼) of Section Seventeen (17), in Township one hundred and fifty (150), of Range forty (40), containing 160 acres, more or less, according to the survey thereof. Said premises situate and being in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances, will be sold at public auction, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and twenty-five dollars attorney's fee, as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk County, at the front door of the Court House, in the city of Crookston, in said County and State, on

Significant Facts for Farmers.

New York Press.

There are some interesting facts in regard to the prices of farm products that have recently been issued by the Agricultural Department, presided over by that sterling protectionist and patriotic American citizen, Jerry Rusk, to which The Press proposes to call attention, in the hope that some of these gentlemen will take occasion to cheer the farmers of the country with the prospect of better prices for their products and better times for themselves. Surely this would be only fair. We have heard so much of the double yoke of mortgages and interest under which the American farmer is bowed down; we have seen so many gloomy pictures relative to the price of his commodities and the narrowness of his profits, that common justice demands at the hands of the representatives of the Alliance a fair presentation of the other side of the picture. We therefore present below a table which shows the general average of prices in the United states of agricultural products from December 1, 1889, to December 1, 1890, as follows:

Corn	23.8c. per bush.	50.6c. per bush.	70
Wheat	69.8c. per bush.	83.8c. per bush.	20
Oats	23.0c. per bush.	42.4c. per bush.	84
Potatoes	40.8c. per bush.	77.7c. per bush.	93
Barley	42.7c. per bush.	68.8c. per bush.	52

A glance at the above table will show an increase of 70 per cent, in twelve months in the price of corn, of 20 per cent, in the price of wheat, of 84 per cent. in the price of oats, of 93 per cent. in the price of potatoes and of 52 per cent. in the price of barley.

The Press does not claim that this splendid advance in the price of farm products is entirely due to the McKinley bill and to the settled policy of protection as indicated by the Presidential election of 1888, but it does claim that the fiscal policy of the Republican party has had a great deal to do with this steady growth in the prices of farm products, and it honestly believes that a fair and reasonable trial of the McKinley bill will result in immeasurable benefit not only by the millions of wage earners who are engaged in the manufacturing industries of the country, but to the millions of farmers who depend so largely upon the prices of their commodities for the annual profits which comprise their entire income. Not long ago we pointed out the fact that the farmers' profits are so small that a slight reduction in prices is likely after paying living expenses for the year to turn his surplus into a deficit. For this reason it is indeed gratifying to find such a substantial advance in the prices of farm commodities.

Of course this advance will be disappointing to free traders, because their theory, as pointed out by Hon. Grover Cleveland, is that cheapness and prosperity go hand in hand, that the cheap suit of clothes and the cheap manufactured products are the most desirable, and that the question as to whether that cheapness means the degradation of human labor is of secondary importance. The above figures should appeal to every intelligent farmer, for they not only indicate that times are improving but they clearly demonstrate that the theory of cheapness is a bad one, whether applied to the products of the soil or the factory or the work shop. Cheap agricultural products mean poverty and misery for the farmer, cheap manufactured products mean the same thing for the wage earner. Those who follow this theory of cheapness have not the welfare of the plain people or the masses of the bread winners at heart.

Face the Music.

West St. Paul Times.

We are not among the number of those who believe the Republicans are little gods who can do no wrong and who have not done wrong when they had the majority in the Legislature, but it makes us very weary to know that the Democratic and Alliance legislators and the Democratic and Alliance press are trying to saddle the responsibility of all the extravagance of this Legislature upon the Republicans when they were in the minority in both houses, and when from the opening to the closing of the session nothing seemed to satisfy these members more than to taunt the Republican side of that body. Face the music like men, gentlemen.

The Western Settler's Specific.

Casually picking up a newspaper the other day our eye was caught by the above title. It turned out to be a puff of the marvelous virtues of some patent medicine. But our thought ran on something like this: A specific is a sure cure. What are some of the ills of the Western settler for which he needs a sure cure? Well, homesickness, discontent with his situation, dullness from running in one groove, seeing no new faces, getting behind the times, and being hidebound in his opinions. For all these there is no specific so reliable as travel. Is the wife discouraged and homesick? Send her on a visit to the old home. Do you think the people back East are having better times than you? Go back and take a look around for a few weeks. Do you think your opinions are the only ones that are about right? Get out into the world, and see how many people there are who know more than you. In short, travel, get out of your shell, mingle with the world. In whatever direction you go, the best line for you to travel is "The Burlington." It reaches all points. Your local agent can supply you with a ticket. If he cannot write for information to W. J. C. Kenyon, Gen. Pass. Agent C. B. & N. R. R. St. Paul Minn.

The Northwestern Agriculturist.

Those who buy cattle this spring believing that there is to be a "boom," should not make the mistake of spending their money for quantity instead of quality. Two really good cows are better and will make more profit than a half dozen medium or scrubby ones. If a farmer is situated so that he can give good care to a small number of pure-bred cattle, he can buy now at such low prices that he should start a pure-bred herd, but in buying them he should take care to get stock that is well up in individual merit and in pedigree. A few years will establish a fine herd, if males only of the increase are sold and females retained, and such a herd will pay in money as well as in satisfaction to the owner. A man who takes an interest in his stock—and only such men should own stock at all—will always get more comfort and more profit out of a few good ones than out of a larger number of average or inferior cattle, and to have the best in the neighborhood and to get the best prices gives him a standing among his neighbors which nothing else approaches. An investment now in good grade or pure-bred cows or heifers cannot fail to make the purchaser a handsome profit.

Notice of Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

[First publication April 23, 1891.]

WHEREAS DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE in the conditions of a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Thomas B. Bisson, an unmarried man, mortgagor, to the Northwestern Guaranty Loan Company, mortgagee, bearing date the 2d day of June, A. D. 1888, and duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the 4th day of June, A. D. 1888, at 11:30 o'clock a. m., in book 36 of mortgages on pages 196-8.

Whereas, such default consists of the failure to pay the following instalments of interest, to-wit: $3.75, that became due December 2d, 1888, $3.75 that became due June 2d, 1889, $3.75 that became due December 2d, 1889, $3.75 that became due June 2d, 1890, and $3.75 that became due December 2d, 1890.

And, whereas, the said Northwestern Guaranty Loan Company, the holder of said mortgage, has elected to declare, and hereby does declare the whole principal sums in said mortgage set forth due and payable at the date of this notice, under the terms and conditions of said mortgage and the power of sale therein contained.

[First publication April 23 1891.]

WHEREAS, DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE in the conditions of a certain Mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Delor Toupin, an unmarried man, mortgagor, to the Northwestern Guaranty Loan Company, mortgagee, bearing date the 20th day of November A. D. 1888, and duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the county of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the 20th day of November A. D. 1888, at 3:10 o'clock p. m., in book 40 of Mortgages, on pages 574-6.

Whereas, such default consists of the failure to pay the following installments of interest, to-wit: $17.50 that became due May 20th, 1889, $17.50 that became due November 20th, 1889, $17.50 that became due May 20th, 1890, and $17.50 that became due November 20th, 1890.

And, whereas, the said Northwestern Guaranty Loan Company, the holder of said mortgage, has elected to declare, and hereby does declare, the whole principal sums in said mortgage set forth due and payable at the date of this notice under the terms and conditions of said mortgage and the power of sale therein contained.

And, whereas, there is actually due and payable at the date hereof, including principal and interest upon the premises in said mortgage described, the following sum, to-wit: Five hundred and ninety-two dollars and fifty cents ($592.50), and whereas the said power of sale has become operative and no action or proceeding at law or otherwise has been instituted to recover the said debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage, which by the default aforesaid has become operative, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed, and the premises described in and covered by said mortgage, viz: The northwest quarter (nw¼) of Section twenty-nine (29), in Township one hundred and fifty (150), of Range forty-three (43), containing 160 acres, more or less, according to the government survey thereof; said premises situate and being in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances, will be sold at public auction, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and twenty-five dollars attorney's fee, as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk County, at the front door of the Court-House in the City of Crookston, in said County and State on the 9th day of June, A. D. 1891, at 10 o'clock a. m. of that day, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale as provided by law.

Dated April 17th, A. D. 1891.

MORTGAGE SALE.

[First publication April 30, 1891.]

WHEREAS, Frank Johnson and Anna Johnson, his wife, of Polk County, State of Minnesota, as mortgagors, did, on the 8th day of March, A. D. 1888, duly execute and deliver to Hannah Amelia Armstrong, of the County of Broome, State of New York, their mortgage, bearing date of March 1st, A. D. 1888, whereby they mortgaged to said mortgagee the following described lands situated in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, to-wit: The southwest quarter of Section 30, Township 158, Range 46 west, containing 160 acres, to secure the payment of the sum of six hundred dollars, with interest thereon, according to the conditions of one certain promissory note, with interest coupons attached, bearing even date with said mortgage, and made by said mortgagors to said mortgagee, or order, which said mortgage was on the 8th day of March, A. D. 1888, at 6 o'clock p. m., duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for said County of Polk, in book 37 of mortgages, on page 102; and

Whereas, default has been made in the payment of the sum of thirty-five dollars, due as interest upon said mortgage on the 1st day of January, A. D. 1889, and on the further sum of forty-two dollars due as interest upon said mortgage on the 1st day of January, A. D. 1890, and on the further sum of forty-two dollars due as interest thereon on the first day of January, A. D. 1891; and the said interest is still unpaid and due; and

Whereas, it was stipulated by and between the parties to said mortgage, that if default should be made in any of the conditions or covenants therein contained on the part of the mortgagors, to be kept and performed, that then and from thenceforth it shall be lawful for the said mortgagee, her heirs, administrators, executors or assigns, to consider and declare the whole sum secured thereby as immediately due and payable without notice to said mortgagors or any other party; and

Whereas, The said Hannah Amelia Armstrong has exercised her option to consider and declare, and does hereby consider and declare the whole sum of money secured by said mortgage to be due and payable; and

Whereas, there is now due, and claimed to be due on said mortgage at the date of this notice the sum of seven hundred forty-two and 92-100 dollars, and no proceedings have been instituted at law or otherwise to recover the same or any part thereof.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of a power of sale in said mortgage contained and therewith recorded, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the land therein described, which sale will be made by the Sheriff of Polk County, at the front door of the Court House, in the city of Crookston, in said County and State, on the 20th day of June, A. D. 1891, at ten o'clock in the forenoon of that day, at public vendue to the highest bidder for cash, to pay the sum due on said mortgage, together with taxes, if any, on said premises, and fifty dollars attorney's fees therein stipulated to be paid in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the date of sale as provided by law.

Whereas, such default consists of the failure to pay the following installments of interest, to-wit: $12.25 that became due September 21st, 1888, $12.25 that became due March 21st, 1889, $12.25 that became due September 21st, 1889, $12.25 that became due March 21st, 1890, $12.25 that became due September 21st, 1890, and $12.25 that became due March 21st, 1891. And whereas the said Northwestern Guaranty Loan Company, the holder of said mortgage has elected to declare, and hereby does declare the whole principal sums in said mortgage set forth due and payable at the date of this notice under the terms and conditions of said mortgage and the power of sale therein contained.

And whereas there is actually due and payable at the date hereof including principal and interest upon the premises in said mortgage described the following sum to-wit: Four hundred and thirty-two dollars and forty-five cents ($432.45); and whereas the said power of sale has become operative, and no action or proceeding at law or otherwise has been instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed, and the premises described in and covered by said mortgage, viz: The southwest quarter of the southeast quarter (sw¼ se¼) of Section twenty-six (26), the west half of northeast quarter (w½ ne¼) and southeast quarter of northwest quarter (se¼ nw¼) of Section thirty-five (35) in Township one hundred and fifty-two (152), of Range forty-three (43), containing 160 acres, more or less, according to the government survey thereof. Said premises situate and being in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances, will be sold at public auction, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and twenty-five dollars attorney's fee, as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk County, at the front door of the Court House, in the city of Crookston, in said County and State, on

MONDAY, THE 15TH DAY OF JUNE,

A. D. 1891, at 10 o'clock a. m. of that day, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale as provided by law.

MORTGAGE SALE.

[First publication April 25th, 1891.]

WHEREAS, ALEXIS ROBERTS, AN UNmarried man, of Polk County, State of Minnesota, as mortgagor, did, on the 2d day of May, A. D. 1887, duly execute and deliver to Austin Corbin, Trustee, of the County of New York, State of New York, his mortgage, bearing date of April 28th, A. D. 1887, whereby he mortgaged to said mortgagee the following described lands situated in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, to-wit: East half northwest quarter and east half southwest quarter Section 19, Township 149, Range 44 west, containing 160 acres, to secure the payment of the sum of six hundred dollars with interest thereon, according to the conditions of one certain promissory note with interest coupons attached, bearing even date with said mortgage, and made by said mortgagor to said mortgagee, or order, which said mortgage was on the 3d day of May, A. D. 1887, at 11 o'clock a. m., duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for said County of Polk, in book 27 of mortgages, on page 299; and

Whereas default has been made in the payment of the sum of forty and 32-100 dollars, due as interest upon said mortgage on the first day of January, A. D. 1888, and on the further sum of sixty dollars due as interest upon said mortgage on the first day of January, A. D. 1889, and on the further sum of sixty dollars due as interest thereon on the 1st day of January, A. D. 1890, and on the further sum of sixty dollars due as interest thereon on the 1st day of January, A. D. 1891, and the said interest is still unpaid and due; and

Whereas it was stipulated by and between the parties to said Mortgage, that if default should be made in any of the conditions or covenants therein contained on the part of the Mortgagor to be kept and performed, that then and from thenceforth it shall be lawful for the said mortgagee, his heirs, administrators, executors or assigns to consider and declare the whole sum secured thereby as immediately due and payable without notice to said Mortgagor or any other party; and

Whereas, the said Austin Corbin, Trustee, has exercised his option to consider and declare and does hereby consider and declare the whole sum of money secured by said mortgage to be due and payable; and

Whereas there is now due, and claimed to be due upon said mortgage at the date of this notice the sum of eight hundred seventy-five and 65-100 dollars, and no proceedings have been instituted at law or otherwise, to recover the same or any part thereof.

Now therefore notice is hereby given that by virtue of a power of sale in said mortgage contained, and therewith recorded, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the land therein described, which sale will be made by the Sheriff of Polk County at the front door of the Court-house in the City of Crookston, in said County and State on the 20th day of June, A. D. 1891, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon of that day at public vendue to the highest bidder for cash, to pay the sum due on said mortgage, together with the taxes, if any, on said premises, and fifty Dollars attorney's fees therein stipulated to be paid in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law subject to redemption at any time within one year from the date of sale as provided by law.

Dated April 20th, A. D. 1891.

NEWSPAPER LAW.

1. Any person who takes a paper regularly from the post office, whether he has subscribed or not, is responsible for the payment.
2. If any person orders his paper discontinued he must pay all arrears, or the publisher may continue to send it until payment is made and then collect the whole amount, whether the paper is taken from the office or not.
3. In suits for subscriptions, the suit may be instituted where the paper is published.
4. The Courts have decided that refusing to take newspapers or periodicals from the post office, or removing and leaving them uncalled for, while unpaid for, is prima facie evidence of intention to defraud.

Wheat Investigations.

Work of the Investigating Committee Commenced at 3 o'clock This Afternoon.

The Farmers of the State Will Suffer Injury by Agitation of the Question.

The St. Paul Dispatch View Of It.

"The wheat investigation is once more under way; this time with a good head of steam and a determination on the part of the members of the committee to push it as far as possible and make it cut a wide swath all the way. As previously stated in the Dispatch, they do not propose to stop with Duluth, but will look into the elevators at Minneapolis as well. The Wheat Growers' association, recently organized, with W. W. Erwin as counselor and guide, will do all in his power to furnish the committee with plenty of material on which to work. The members of the alliance have been more than active since the adjournment of the legislature and they have so extended the scope of the investigation that, as a member stated to-day, it is not at all improbable that the committee will consume a couple of months in the work. Not only this, but they have succeeded in stirring up the elevator companies, or rather their financial backers in the East, with their reports of crooked work that the credit of the Minnesota elevators is seriously impaired. In consequence of this the farmer will be obliged to work and sweat a great deal more before he can market his grain this year. It comes from excellent authority that the elevators hereafter will receive no wheat that has not been thoroughly cleaned by the seller. In this way the companies will avoid all danger and keep up the standard of the wheat hand the farmer will be out his labor in cleaning the wheat, which will amount to no small sum on a large farm, and also stand an excellent chance of losing a good deal of the wheat, for the average farmer cannot afford to invest in expensive machinery with which to clean his grain.

These facts will not deter the committee from pushing its work, however. It is purely a political measure and the alliance men propose to make all the capital possible out of it, no matter what the cost to the farmers themselves.

Many of the members of the committee arived this morning and I begun preparations for the meeting, which convened at 3 o'clock this afternoon.

The committee proceeded to business at once. Attorney General Clapp is retained as the attorney of the committee. "Erwin can come and go as he pleases, but he will not represent the committee," was the way Senator Geissel put it. The witnesses called this afternoon were C. D. Petterson, Mike Lynch, Leopold Airo, Sivan Hanson, and M. S. Mullen, of Duluth, and J. W. Cross, now of Minneapolis, but late of Duluth."

Well, we fail to see where that would be such an unmitigated evil as we hav always thought that it was against the interests of farmers to pay freight upon such a vast quantity of dirt to Minneapolis and Duluth—to say nothing of excessive dockage in dirt. Farmers cleaned their own wheat before the introduction of elevator fanning-mills and we fail to see why they can't do it now. Instead of employing their wives to spin binding twine and run the scutching machine nights and Sundays, and getting their children out early to hunt bugs and weed onions, why could they not employ them at cleaning wheat as well? We regard this as only another bugbear put up as a bluff.

Duluth Tribune:—The remarkable success of the Imperial mill in making flour at Duluth has attracted the attention of millers all over the country, till they regard this as the prospective milling center of the Northwest. I am confident that within the next three years a large number of flourishing mills will be erected at Duluth and West Duluth.

Amen to that, says the raiser of the famous No 1 Hard in the Red River Valley, and we will furnish you a sample that will make flour that will beat the world. Duluth is the natural milling point for the wheat in this Valley, and we want the Duluth & Winnipeg road to haul it there.

Duluth Tribune:—The Grace M. E. church at the West End celebrated the hundreth anniversary of the Freedman's Aid society by a grand jubilee last night. The young people of the Sunday shool aided to make it a pleasant enterainment.

Mr. Ray Forward made the opening address, welcoming the large audience that had come to celebrate the occasion. Then a general program was given in which the congregation took partr. Recitations were given by the Misses Lour and Jones and addresses were made by Miss Belle Hopkins and Miss Mamie Taylor.

McIntosh Times:—Alphonse Paradis of Poplar River, was in the city Thursday evening on his return trip from Fosston, where he purchased lumber for the completion of his cheese factories which are located at Poplar River and Lambert. Mr. Paradis informs us that the factory will soon be running with milk from six hundred cows, but that the farmers in that vicinity want more cows. Any one having good milch cows for sale can find purchasers by addressing him at Terrebonne Minn.

Northfield News:—It was Abraham Lincoln who said. "The heart of the great American people is right." It is only as our government finds its source and inspiration in the hearts of this great people that its functions are properly performed, its affairs properly administered. The closest relations must exist between the government and the people who made its existence perpetuity possible, and wisely arranged for mutual co-operation and sympathy. The delegation of public affairs to the politician is a later day invention of office seekers and partisans. It has already grown to be a giant evil, and threatens the very foundations of the government. How shall this be cured? By going back to the practices of our forefathers, back to the old town meeting which brought to the discussion of public affairs the best thought of the people. Under that system, no candidate for public office dared appear whose word as a man and a citizen could not bear the closest scrutiny. He would not be a candidate who sought the wishes of the few to subserve the purposes of the designing whose only ambition and whose patriotism was limited to selfish desires. Clearly defined must be his position on the questions of the day, and his position must be endorsed by the majority. And this is the real intention of the laws which declare for the will of the majority. Let the clearly expressed wish of the people rule.

Fergus Falls Journal:—The Great West in speaking of the work done by the alliance men in the last legislature says:

"And yet, with all these favoring circumstances, with the state aroused; with strong men all over the nation anxious to see the great economic crime destroyed, the alliance men of Minnesota secured the clerkships, issued a manifesto—and disolved into invisible mist!

What a record! And, alliance men of Minnesota, we are called upon to say that this band of thirty-five men—men who should have been rock-butressed on eternal truths and self evident right—to say that these men did their duty!

They did not do their duty. They were a failure as a body—a lamentable failure—after the clerkship, etc., were secured!

If humanity don't get weary of these moderate time-servers, and toss them into the pit of oblivion, then humanity will never take the chains from its ankles. If the toiler cannot send radical men it is infinitely better to send none.

Send none! Yes indeed. Send men who will not earn appointment from the dominant parties by their devotion to the cloak-room during roll-call—or their devotion to the plutocrats of the senate on every issue which rises.

We bow our heads in shame and humility over the late record, and humanity still paddles its leaky bark back against the powerful overflowing tide—looking upon coveted promises which are farther removed with each sun's rising!"

SCANDINAVIAN EMIGRANTS.

HEKLA'S PASSENGERS.

New York "Sun," April 7th 91.

Aboard the Thingvalla Line Steamship "Hekla", that arrived at this port Sunday, there were 700 Scandinavian immigrants, healthy, hearty, pithy, and light-haired young people of both sexes. They were bound for the West, the far West, even for Minnesota, where they will take up land and begin a new life as American farmers, raising grains, fruits, and cattle for their own nourishment and for the service of mankind. They were well and warmly dressed as they marched ashore, and they looked as though they possessed all necessary sense, reason, and practical qualities. There were among them no paupers, or felons, or lunatics, or contract laborers, or persons afflicted with loathsome diseases, and it was hardly necessary for the inspection agents at the Barge Office to take a look at them in order to see that they belonged to the class known as "desirable immigrants."

They had come to America as hundreds of thousand of other Swedes and Norwegians have come during the past forty years; they have struck out West to take land as those others did; and they are pretty sure of enjoying the prosperity that so many of their countrymen already enjoy here. To them let bountiful nature give good crops, fine breeds of cattle, and pleasant long lives.

Now, if all our other immigrants from Europe, including those from Italy, Poland, Hungary, and Russia, were as spirited as these Scandinavians, and would follow their example, how much batter it would be for them than crowding into cities, struggling for daily hash and spending years in complaining.

Taxing Personal Properity.

Farm Stock and Home.

The unlawful exemption of personal property from taxation in the United States has attained such gigantic proportions that it is rapidly becoming one of the cardinal subjects of discussion by legislators, the press, and political economist. The situation is aggravated by the galling fact that nearly the entire sum of exemptions is contributed by those who are best able to furnish the bulk of the public revenues—the owners of money, stocks, bonds, mortgages, fine houses, costly pictures, rich jewels, etc., etc. The possessions of men of moderate means are of the kind that cannot be concealed, and assessors fairly revel in the things that are visibly owned by the poorer people, but they famish for something to record when in they company of those whose wealth can be kept in safe and bank vaults.

In the East this deft art of the rich to shift their burdens upon the shoulders of the poorer became so notorious and oppressive that a system of finding personal property, known as "listing," was invented, and has been adopted by several states, with most gratifying results. We are not as yet familiar with the method employed, but reports are at hand regarding results, and they are of a character to make a tax-ridden people most greedily thirst for them.

The system has been in operation in Pennsylvania since 1886. In 1885 the personal property of the state was listed at $145,236,712. Under the "listing" system the next year's valuation was $390,649,556; in 1890 it was $546,965,902, and in '91 it is expected to be over $600,00,000! In a few other states results have been quite as satisfactory. In New York state the assessed valuation of personal property in 1890 was $385,329,181—the city of New York would indignantly spurn the imputation that it alone did not own a greater amount of personal property, and it is believed that the "listing" system applied to that state will raise the valuation to $1,000,000,000, at least. A committee has just reported to the New York legislature that the value of personal property in the state is greater than the realty, yet last year personal property paid but 11 per cent of the taxes, leaving realty to pay all the rest. Pretty near "single tax," that is, but still New Yorkers are not happy.

It is gratifing to know that this matter is occupying so large a place in the public mind, and that the result will be a vastly more equitable distribution of the burdens of taxation who can doubt? For more than a quarter of a century our people were unconscious of the terrible gap unequal taxation was rapidly making between the very rich and those of moderate means. As a despoiler of productive industry the failure of the rich to pay their just proportion of the country's taxes has been an efficient co-worker with over-capitalization, demonetized silver, protective tariff, capitalistic conspiracies, and the whole brood of class laws and special privileges.

Peterson's Magazine continues to increase in popularity. The June number is a capital specimen of its general excellence and the great improvements made at the beginning of the year. To the ladies "Peterson" is of special importance at this season when the thought necessarily uppermost in every woman's mind "What to Wear and How to Wear it." These are questions which "Peterson" answers in the most simple and satisfactory manner. The beautiful double fashion plates give the newest Parisian toilettes, but give also designs of the freshest novelties in American costume. Peterson evidently agrees with Mrs. Cleveland and other prominent society leaders in their determination to make American styles and fabrics dispute the palm with those of France. The Magazine caters also in every possible way to the needs of housekeepers and home-makers. In point of literary attractions and illustrations it compares favorably with the highest priced periodicals. A new volume begins with the July number, try it for the next six months. Terms, $2,00 a year. $1,00 for six months. Address, PETERSON'S MAGAZINE, 306 Chestnut street, Philadelphia Pa.

Blaine and the Presidency.

Duluth Tribune:—At the present time there is a great deal of unnecessary noise made as to who will be the Republican candidate for the presidency n 1892. No doubt patriotic Democrats are largely shareholders in it—in fact they are turning the crank. The fact of the matter is the Republicans have too much wisdom to kick up a hubbub now over their prospective candidate in 1892. Such a thing as forcing Blaine or any other man to declare himself out of the race is simply absurd, and no wise or patriotic Republican will either listen to or echo such a fatuous suggestion. No doubt Democrats would be rejoiced to see an unseemly wrangle strike up between the admirers of President Harrison and Secretary Blaine, so that with the Republican divided into two warring camps, there would be good hope for David Bennett or Grover. It is scarcely necessary to state that the Republican will hardly afford them such an exhibition. Secretary Blaine is to-day by all odds the ablest and most brilliant man in the Republican ranks—nay more, it must be conceded that Mr. Blaine stands easily at the head of American statemanship, but should Republican leaders adjudge President Harrison the strongest candidate for 1892, there is satisfaction in knowing that at the proper time Mr. Blaine will not be a barrier in his way. The present is neither the time nor the season to discuss the strength of candidates.

A Lumberman Agriculturist.

Mississippi Valley Lumberman.

Hon. D. M. Clough, of the lumber firm of Clough Brothers, Minneapolis, has been elected president of the State Agricultural society of Minnesota and will add the duty of managing the great annual fair of the association to his other public and private labors. Mr. Clough has given a great deal of time, and unsparingly of his energies, to public duties during the past years. Mr. Clough was born in Lyme, New Hampshire, in 1864, and came to Minnesota when he was only ten years of age and worked on his father's farm in Spencer Brook. Together with his brothers he went into the woods each winter and the brothers soon became among the most successful and largest loggers on the river. They acquired some pine lands and in 1873 moved to Minneapolis and erected a saw mill on the east side of the river and began the manufacture of lumber. The firm have been actively engaged in the lumber business in Minneapolis ever since, the subject of this sketch continuing the business under the old firm name upon the death of his brother, Gerry Clough, a year or more ago. Mr. Clough's first public office was that of alderman. He continued in the common council of Minneapolis for a period of four years and during one year president of that body. He served in the state senate from 1886 to 1890 and has been a member of the republican state central committee for a number of years. He is extensively interested in stock raising. The old homestead in Spencer Brook town, Isanti county, has been converted into a stock farm and its stables filled with animals of high degree. Mr Clough is a lover of fine horses, and his election to the position of president of the state agricultural society is a recognition not only of his niterest in agriculture and stock raising but of his executive ability. He accepted the position, however, reluctantly.

Charlie Lowe returned last week from a trip to Texas, Mexico, New Orleans and Maryland, looking well. When we congratulated him upon his appearance he averred that by rights he had no business to look "fresh" as he had soaked in salt water all winter. Says he had a splendid trip and enjoyed it hugely.

A musical and dramatic entertainment will be given at the Grand Opera House on Friday evening, June 5th, for the benefit of the cornet band. The boys are making excellent progress and deserve to be encouraged. The proceeds of this entertainment will be used toward procuring uniforms. Tickets 35 cents. Box office open June 4th and 5th.

While the dwellers in the famous Red River Valley have enjoyed sufficient moisture for crops this spring, it seems that locations south of us have not been so fortunate. The southern and central parts of the state and South Dakota complain loudly of drouth, which has checked the growth of grass and grain alarmingly. They estimate a serious damage to the hay crop already.

The Grand Forks Plaindealer responds to our views on the college question in the proper spirit. If more of that spirit was evinced these vexatious questions that are continually arising could be far better adjusted and with more credit to all concerned. Grand Forks contains a great many hustlers who are ever on the alert to secure the very best of everything for their city, and so has Crookston, and this is all laudable and well—it is that kind of enterprise that makes big cities, but after once having been fairly beaten, it is not the proper thing for the defeated party to turn loose and abuse the successful one. The object of the Association should be to build up a good strong college institution, one that will be a credit to it, and if it requires the full strength of the Association to build and equip one such an institution, all minor considerations should be dropped and all units in the effort, unless there is a demand for two such and the Association is able to build and run them, in which case it would be all right and proper to build one at Grand Forks. One good solid institution, equipped and run by a united Association would be far better than two starveling colleges run by a divided Association. It strikes us that that is a question for the Association itself to decide.

Strewing flowers and song "America."
Benediction by Rev. F. C. Whitney.

Our citizens generally are requested to donate flowers which they may be able to spare, and if possible send to the hall on the morning of the 30th before 10 o'clock. If any of our citizens are mourning the loss of soldier friends whom they wish remembered, if they will bring or send wreaths or bouquets to the hall, accompanied by card giving name, number of regiment and State, they will be properly placed, and those who have friends buried in the cemetery are requested to mark their graves with small flags that the committee may be able to suitably decorate them on Memorial Day.

Shall We Celebrate.

Is a question our people are beginning to ask themselves in relation to the coming Fourth of July and The Journal can see no good reason why the question should not be answered in the affirmative. With the crop prospects that we have there is certainly incentive enough and every reason why Crookston should get up the grandest celebration we ever attempted. All that is necessary is to talk it up and then take hold and push it through.

The attractions Mrs. E. E. Bangs offers the ladies are fashionable goods in the latest styles of the very best qualities and extremely low prices. You will do well to call and examine her goods and get prices.

The Red River Valley College Association will hold its yearly meeting in the City of Crookston, Thursday, the 4th day of June next, at 10 o'clock a. m. Business of great importance to the Association will be transacted, and all members are cordially invited to attend.

Crookston, May 14th, 1891.

[5-6] C. Saugstad, Sec.

John Paterson returned last week from a visit to Duluth and West Superior where he found a number of old-time Crookston boys—all doing very well and laying up more or less wealth. Says P. J. McGuire is coining money in the commission business and as happy as he is prosperous. John thinks Polk County prospects are ahead of any place he has seen yet.

The grand ball which was to have been given at the Crookston Opera House on Friday night last was postponed on account of several other gatherings on the same evening, until next Friday night, the 22d inst., when everything will be done by the management to please those attending. Music by Prof. Casad's orchestra and the Queen City Band. Everybody invited.

Several boys were amusing themselves by shooting at a mark one day last week when one of them, a Mortinson boy, received a charge of shot which laid him up for the time being. Just how it happened is a bit of a mystery, and a dozen different stories are told but as near as we can get at it the boy was attending the target which was on a barrel behind which he was stationed. It is said that he looked out just too previous and received a portion of the shot in the face. He will lose one eye at any rate if no worse.

The Red River Valley Loan and Investment Company held a meeting last week and elected the following officers: H. L. Melgaard, Argyle, President; A. Grindland, Warren, and C. O. Christianson, Crookston, Vice-Presidents; O. H. Lucken, Crookston, Secretary and Treasurer. The company has rented an office in the Opera Block, and starts business with a capital stock of $100,000. They intend to do a general loaning business, buy and sell real estate mortgages and transact all business incident to such companies. Being a home company the money paid them does not go out of the county as is the case with foreign loan companies, but is re-invested among us. H. L. Melgaard goes to Europe shortly in the interest of the new company and will remain abroad a few months.

Krogh's restaurant, in the new opera block, has been doing a good business from the start. Mr. Krogh has been obliged to engage three times the number of waiters he started with in order to keep up with his business. We hear it said that he runs the concern in first-class shape and is becoming popular. Appearnces indicate that this diagnosis is correct.

The excursion to Maple Bay on Sunday last was taken in by a number of our citizens, who report having had a day of real enjoyment. Messrs Tatro, & Felsing, the proprietors of the steamer Maple Bay Belle, were indefatigable in their efforts to please their patrons and so successfully did they accomplish their task that fully 350 people went out on the boat during the day. At the pavillion many enjoyed themselves dancing. A large number of the elite of Fertile were present and altogether it was estimated that between 300 and 600 people were on the grounds.

Albert Arthur Miller, oldest son of A. A. and Alice L. Miller, died at the family residence on May 16th, 1891, after an illness of nearly eight weeks with typhoid fever. He was born at Waukesha, Wis., on January 22d, 1879, where he lived until June, 1883, when his parents removed to Fargo, where they lived until April, 1888, when they came to Crookston to live. He was an unusually bright, intelligent and trustworthy boy, never sick until he was taken with the fever on March 31st. He was not considered dangerously ill until about two weeks previous to the day he died, and early in the last week the fever left him and he appeared to be gaining. He was always foremost in his classes in school and Sunday school, where he was a great favorite with his teachers and companions. The funeral services took place at the family residence, on Houston avenue, on Sunday, at four o'clock, the Rev. R. H. Battey officiating. In his sermon Mr. Battey said:

"In his studies he displayed those excellent qualities of mind which teachers recognize as prophetic of a character of power, wisdom and grace in the after years. The steady thought and faithful love of learning of his youthful mind made Albert friends among both schoolmaster and teachers. The young heart had hungered after righteousness and in various ways he sought blessing and Divine help from his Savior and Redeemer. The evening prayer had long been a real and regular means of grace to his boyhood life. His genial and regular obedience to his parents was something more than ordinary. It seems to flow from that spring of God's saving grace given to children who love and obey their father and mother, and in this course to obey the Heavenly Father and obtain gifts and experiences of the redeemed. Albert Miller will be missed from his father's pew in our church and from his class in our Sunday school. His place at home will remain empty, but it is the firm conviction of his bereaved parents that he has entered the joyful place where the righteous are."

Very many of his young companions came, bringing boquets of lovely flowers as a last tribute to their departed friend, and very many of the friends of the family also came. The remains were borne to rest in Oakdale cemetery followed by a long line of carriages.

Everybody should see the latest novelty in birthday rings at C. H. Saake's Jewelry store.

G. A. R. services next sabbath at the old opera house at 8 P. M., conducted by the M. E. pastor, Rev. C. F. Sharpe. A cordial invitation is extended to all.

A. Leibert, aged 22 years, died on Sunday morning of typhoid fever at his residence a short distance from the city. The funeral occurred on Tuesday afternoon, was largely attended, many going from the city.

The morning sermon at the Congregational church next sabbath is specially calculated for the teachers and pupils of the high school in view of its close next week. All are cordially invited to attend.

Everybody and his family should attend the preliminary dedication services at the old opera house on Sunday evening. Let all the children come while there young hearts are susceptible of good patriotic sentiments. Very soon this will be theirs duty alone.

Morning service conducted by the Pastor at the Congregational church next Sunday 11 A. M., "Knowledge and Happiness" An illustrated sermonette to children just before the sermon. Sermon is for the students and teachers of our city schools, all of whom are cordially invited. No evening services.

A Spartacus Success.

A Great Hit by the MacLean-Prescott Company Last Evening.

Manitoba Free Press.

The Princess was crowded to the doors last evening when the MacLean-Prescott company presented in "Spartacus," a role in which, perhaps, the star appears to his greatest advantage. Most assuredly, judging by the applause accorded, the effort was a great one, and the demonstrations of delight at the finale of the second act almost reached an ovation. At the close of every act, indeed, a recall was demanded Miss Prescott sharing the honors with Mr. MacLean. Her Senona, the faithful wife of the great barbaric Spartacus, was all that could have been expected of an artiste of her great ability, while Spartacus himself—a perfect specimen, physically, of manhood, with a Herculean frame, a powerful voice and a stage presence of a Forrest—carrying the house by storm. The support was admirable. Mr. Mathews (Phasarius) and Mr. Aurbuckle (Crassus) especially receiving the plaudits of the audience. Miss Malcolm made an excellent Julia, and the rest of the cast was equal to the occasion. The scenic effect were capital, the costumes rich and if one is to judge by the expression of approval no greater triumph has ever been scored on the Winnipeg stage.

This evening "Cleopatra"—the opening piece of the season—will be presented, and to marrow afternoon the bill will include "The Merchant of Venice" at the matinee and "Ingomar" in the evening. The engagement has been prolonged one week, so great has been the success, and will probably close, as it did exactly a year ago, on the anniversary of the Queen's birthday.

This troupe will appear at the Grand Opera house on May 27th and 28th.

A WAR OF EXTERMINATION.

His Efforts Seconded by C. A. Pillsbury, Who Gives the state a Thousand Bushels of No. 1 Scotch Fife.

St. Paul Pioneer Press.

Prof. D. N. Harper, agricultural chemist of the state experiment station, has just issued a bulletin relative to the growing of No. 1 Scotch Fife wheat, which will be read with great interest by all wheat producers of the state. Prof. Harper's efforts to better the condition of agriculture and to work an improvement in farm methods are well known. The professor attributes failures in farming largely to slovenly, careless methods, and is attempting to reform business methods on the farm.

Prof. Harper, devotes his attention to all fields of agriculture and all classes of its products. His recent exhaustive experiments and valuable conclusions regarding the adaptability of Minnesota soil for the cultivation of the sugar beet, and his diligent inquiries into the cause of the flax disease which has to a certain extent afflicted the southern counties of the state, indicate the value of the work in which he is engaged. For the past two or three years the professor has given a large part of his time to studying the methods of Minnesota farmers in the matter of wheat growing.

In the winter and early spring of 1889-90 he gave a series of lectures, in company with Prof. Hayes, of the state university, traveling through the northern counties of the state, where crops had been affected, and his instructions to the farmers regarding the proper seed to be sown, and the manner of preparing it, were of untold benefit, as demonstrated by the superior character of the crop which resulted, as compared with the two previous seasons, the three crops having been grown under simililar conditions.

IN HIS LATEST BULLETIN

he states that observation and experiment show quite conclusively that the best wheats for our conditions are the pure Scotch Fife and Blue Stem, the former being the superior variety. He then gives rules for the selection of wheat seed, and adds:

It is well known act that the farmers of Minnesota in the past few years have gradually discontinued the seeding of Scotch Fife on the ground that it had run its race and was no longer a good yielder. The result has been that many varieties inferior in good flour making qualities have been sown under the expectation that larger yields would bring increased remuneration; but the results in all these cases show that no variety yet discovered will equal in hardihood, as well as in all other essential qualifications, the old Scotch Fife. The only substitute which approximates it in value is the Blue Stem, but successive croppings of this variety show that it more rapidly deteriorates in yield and quality than the former; beside, its tendency toward sensitiveness in adverse climatic conditions and its other disadvantages herein before enumerated.

In the early part of last spring Prof. Harper concluded that it was highly important that a war of extermination should be commenced upon the inferior varieties of wheat which were being sown all over Minnesota, and that an attempt should be made to return to the old conditions when the state produced a uniform crop of the finest wheat in the known world. By persistent efforts he at last found a coadjutor in Hon. C. A. Pillsbury, who placed at the disposal of the station 1,000 bushels of absolutely pure Scotch Fife, obtained from one field in North Dakota; this seed was distributed in time for this year's seeding under the following

CONDITIONS OF COMPETITION:

1. It shall be planted on new ground—that which has not grown a crop—or on summer fallowed land, or on land which has just raised a crop of potatoes, corn or millet.
2. A record shall be kept of the date when planted, size of plot, time when ripe, and dates when harvested and threshed.
3. A small sample of the crop, together with the record shall be sent to me.
4. It shall be seeded at the rate of at least one bushel per acre. The wheat will be distributed in packages not to exceed five bushels, and it is suggested that one bushel be the rate at which it is seeded when a press drill is used, and a bushel and a peck when seeded broadcast.
5. A bushel of the crop shall be sent by each farmer to the state fair of 1891. Mr. Pillsbury will give a premium of $100, divided in three different prizes, for the best samples submitted there. The expense of transportation to the state fair will be borne by the experiment station, and the wheat will then be the property of the experiment station. This wheat will be distributed next year.

The $100 offered as a premium by Mr. Pillsbury will be divided as follows: First, premium, $30; second, $35; third, $20; fourth, $15; fifth, $10. The points to be taken into consideration in making the award are: Weight per bushel, color, plumpness, percentage of gluten and quality of gluten.

This seed has been divided among 500 of the most careful farmers in all portions of the state. Some pure Blue Stem wheat which was propagated L. J. Haynes of Fargo has been sown in connection with the Scotch Fife to ascertain comparative results. The wheat received from each farmer at the fair will be subsequently distributed as seed. The possible benefits to be derived from this move cannot be computed, and the results are therefore being looked forward to with considerable interest.

A Political Antithesis.

Praire Farmer.

It is a somewhat curious fact that the pride and the shame of our government, that which places us to the apex of all movements for civilization, and that which argues our retrogradation to the depravity of oriential ignorance, sohld exsist in adjoining territories. I refer to the polygamy of Utah, and the citizenship of Wyoming.

A short residence in the capital cities will seem to show even a casual observer the difference in the estimation in which women are held. Where the dignity of personal choice and possession are with-held, and one woman is only one of many, we do not of course expect to to see her accorded the deference due an equal or the reverence yielded a wife as the "Gentiles" understand it. The facts bear us out. A friend, the wife of a missionary at Salt Lake City, told me of two men driving, crowding her carriage till she took her whip in hand, when she was allowed to pass on unmolested. The general treatment is that which relegates women to the position always of an inferior. One breathes a different air with the first breath of Wyoming. Never have I seen such respect accorded women. It was evident on the first morning I stepped from the train. No matter how busy a man is, he always has time to answer her inquiry, to walk considerably out of his way to give information, to give personal assistance to a stranger. The fact of her sex is her passport regardless of personal appearance or character. No woman so humble but the hat of every man or boy is lifted at her recognition. Courtesy seems not to have to be taught to young boys as in other places. The smallest lad in knee trousers is as ready with his cap, or as careful to walk around out of the way, or spring to capture a fallen article, as the most perfumed gallant (which, by the way, is almost an obsolete article. The vigorous breezes and the bracing atmosphere makes men, not dudes) Even in the schoolroom, I understand, the stern rebuke of the teacher is softened by that never-failing attention to her from the youngster who rides his broncho like a typical cowboy.

I do not know whether the fact that out of the 65,000 of population for the State there is one woman to ninteen men, has anything to do with the state of affairs or not; presumably not a great deal.

For twenty years, since Esther Morris administered successfully the office of Justice of the Peace, among the mountains of South Pass, the minds of the people have dealt with the idea of woman's mental and political equality. The women quietly, with no shock to the homes, have done what it seemed was required of them. And never once have the citizens, loyal to them and to their ideal of a perfectly free representation, ceased their efforts until the State went into the Union with the matter of sex as a political barrier settled forever.

Cheyenne, Wyo. IDA ESTELLE CROUCH.

Fabulous Fortune.

It Falls Suddenly To Duluth Mine Owners.

Duluth Daily Tribune.

Luck of the bonanza order has come to many Duluthians by the recent sale of a mineral claim. But such is the nature of some, that nothing, however good, will appease their avarice. They will always complain that it was not moie.

A short time ago the Badger, Porcupine and West End mines at Silver Mountain were consolidated and sold for the magnificent sum of $10,000,000, to Gotham capitalists. But it appears that there were other New Yorkers who wanted these mines, and on missing the snap determined on getting some other equally as good. They soon learned that the Crown Point mine was for sale and made an offer of $600,000. The Duluthians interested in this mine are Judge Stearns, Judge Ensign Tinkham Bros., C. E. Shannon, A. D. Cummings, James Billings and G. A. Elder.

These gentlemen, no doubt, had felt the pinch of the financial panic too keenly of late to hesitate long in jumping at such a plum, and soon the words "Let Her Go!" were carried to New York as fast as the day rate message could be conveyed by wire. Yesterday morning a telegraphic message was received bringing the news:

"The money is deposited; send deeds at once." But now instead of being jubilant and filled with a superabundance of excitement, spirits, the sellers are very much dejected, and regret that they did not ask $8,000,000.

DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE IN THE conditions of a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Thomas Allard and Susie Allard, his wife, mortgagors, to Northwestern Guaranty Loan Company, mortgagee, bearing date the 5th day of September, A. D. 1889, and duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the 5th day of September, A. D. 1889, at 9:25 o'clock a. m., in book 47 of mortgages, on page 29.

Whereas, such default consists of the failure to pay the following installments of interest, to-wit: $39.17 that became due May 1st, 1890, $30.00 that became due November 1st, 1890, and $30.00 that became due May 1st, 1891. And whereas the said Northwestern Guaranty Loan Company, the holder of said mortgage, has elected to declare, and hereby does declare, the whole principal sums in said mortgage set forth due and payable at the date of this notice under the terms and conditions of said mortgage and the power of sale therein contained.

And whereas there is actually due and payable at the date hereof upon the premises in said mortgage described the following sum, to-wit: Eleven hundred and twenty-one dollars and forty cents, ($1,121.40) $1,106.90 thereof being principal and interest thereon and $14.50 being for the premiums on insurance necessarily paid by mortgagee, October 7th, 1890, and interest thereon, and whereas the said power of sale has become operative, and no action or proceeding at law, or otherwise, has been instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof,

Now therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed, and the premises described in and covered by said mortgage, viz: The southwest quarter (sw¼) of Section thirty-two, (32), in Township one hundred and fifty (150) north, of Range thirty-two (32) west, containing 160 acres more or less according to the government survey thereof; said premises situate and being in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances, will be sold at public auction to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt and interest, insurance and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and fifty dollars attorney's fee, as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk County, at the front door of the Court House, in the City of Crookston, in said County and State, on MONDAY, THE 6TH DAY OF JULY, A. D. 1891, at 10 o'clock a. m. of that day, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale as provided by law.

Notice of Mortgage Forclosure Sale.

First publication May 21st, 1891.

DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE IN THE conditions of a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Charles Kindler and Minnie Kindler, his wife, mortgagors, to Northwestern Guaranty Loan Company, mortgagee, bearing date the 25th day of June, A. D. 1888, and duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the 9th day of July, A. D. 1888, at 3:10 o'clock p. m., in book 36 of mortgages, on pages 29-2.

Whereas, such default consists of the failure to pay the installments of interest that became due December 29th, 1888, June 29th, 1889, December 29th, 1889, June 29th, 1890, and December 29th, 1890, each of said installments being for $28. And whereas the said Northwestern Guaranty Loan Company, the holder of said mortgage, has elected to declare, and hereby does declare, the whole principal sums in said mortgage set forth due and payable at the date of this notice under the terms and conditions of said mortgage and the power of sale therein contained.

And whereas there is actually due and payable at the date hereof upon the premises in said mortgage described the following sum, to-wit: Nine hundred and seventy-three dollars and ten cents, ($973.10) and whereas the said power of sale has become operative, and no action or proceeding at law or otherwise has been instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof,

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed and the premises described in and covered by said mortgage, viz: The southeast quarter (se¼) of Section twenty-six, (26), in Township one hundred and fifty-two (152) north, of Range forty-five (45) west, containing 160 acres. Said premises situate and being in the county of Polk and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances, will be sold at public auction, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and twenty-five dollars attorney's fee, as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; which sale will be made by the sheriff of said Polk County, at the front door of the Court House, in the City of Crookston, in said County and State, on Free Sugar And The Tariff.

Toledo Blade.

The following letter, which we have no doubt was written in good faith, comes to us from Homer, Iowa. As the questions there asked frequently come up in tariff discussions, we reprint the letter and answer it here:

> You say "the tariff is not a tax." If that is true (1) will you explain what it was that made us pay $1 for four pounds less of sugar before April 1 than we get now since April 1?
>
> (2) If taking the tariff off of raw sugar and reducing it 2 cents a pound on refined sugar, so cheapens it as to give us four pounds more for a dollar, will not the same result follow the reduction of the tariff upon all articles that protects but does not prohibit?
>
> I voted for the elder Harrison, and the Republican ticket from the formation of the party, including the present Harrison; but I now begin to suspect that the Republican leaders have been deceiving us, and am anxious for more light on the subject.

A protective duty pre-supposes that we are capable of raising or manufacturing all of the articles on which it is laid needed by our own people. This is not true of sugar. The duty on sugar did not increase the production in America, because the climate and soil adapted to the cultivation of the Southern sugar cane are to be found in very few areas, and those small ones along the Gulf. This was not the fault of the protective system; no law can change climate, or secure a peculiar soil.

The statement that "the tariff is not a tax', is a general one, and is intended to embrace the workings of the entire law, taken as a whole, rather than of any one specific duty. To make it absolutely and specifically correct, it would read, "a protective duty is not a tax, but a revenue duty is." In reply to the first question we will say, that the reason is that the sugar duty was a revenue duty, and not a protective duty.

(2) No, the same result will not follow. There is no article which our correspondent can name on which there has been a protective duty for five years or more, of which we cannot and do not produce enough for our needs in the United States; hence a reduction of the duty on those articles would not cheapen them. We have a fine example of this in the new tariff law. It reduces the duty on steel rails something like $5 per ton. That reduction went into effect October 1 last. It produced no change whatever in the price of steel rails.

Why? Simply because our own steel mills produced all the rails we needed, and we are not compelled to buy abroad. The competition of our own mills with foreign mills reduced the price to a reasonable one, corresponding with the cost of production. If the case of steel rails had been like that of sugar—that is, that we manufactured only one-tenth of what we needed and to import the the other nine-tenths, the reduction in the duty would have brought down the price of steel rails $5 per ton. But there is no such profit on steel rails in proportion as there was on imported sugar. The price at which rails are selling in this country affords but a reasonable profit to the manufacturer; hence the reduction of the duty did not reduce the price.

The difficulty is that the people do not thoroughly understand what protection really means, and are more inclined to believe the conscienceless lies that are told about the system than to take the pains to investigate for themselves. There is one other point to which we wish to call our friend's attention, and that is this; if he were to ask a free trader the second question, the reply would be, "Yes, certainly." We have shown that this is not true as a rule. It might follow and would follow in the case of certain articles, if the duty were entirely taken off, so that everything were imported free, that the price on some article would be reduced.

By the latest price list at hand at this moment (which is about a month old) the difference in price between American steel rails at the mills and English rails delivered at New York was a little over $1 per ton; that is, the English rails were that much cheaper. Now that $1 makes the only possible benefit that could be obtained by taking off the duty entirely on steel rails, and that reduction would have to be paid for by the workingmen employed in the steel mills.

The point must be clearly understood that the one reason England or any other foreign country can manufacture anything cheaper than we is because they do not pay as good wages to their workingmen; hence to reduce the duties below the protective point would simply mean that our workingmen would have to work for less wages. There is no one going to invest his money in a manufacturing plant, and get no profit. Our friend himself would not do so. It is all false to assume that because the duty on steel rails is $14 per ton, that the American manufacturer make $14 per ton clear profit. It is not true of steel rails, nor is it true of any other possible article which can be named. Understand this, that no protectionist ever claimed that the new tariff law was going to increase wages. All that ever was claimed, and which is true, was that to reduce the tariff below the protective point will lead inevitably to a reduction of wages, and that to maintain the protective policy is the only way to keep wages up to their present high standard in the United States.

Mistakes.

There is one common ground on which we can all meet—we have all made mistakes. In fact, a large portion of the world's history—and the saddest part of it—is the record of mistakes. Philosophers have discoursed of poets have sung about, and preachers have denounced, mistakes, since man had speech. Bob Ingersoll has lectured on the "mistakes of Moses," Sankey has sung—"The mistakes of my life have been many"—and still the human race goes blundering along, kicking at bats, with bricks under them, betting its money on the wrong horse, voting for conscienceless demogogues, and getting left generally. Warning and expostulation seem to be without effect—but we feel we ought to say to the traveling public (and the experience of thousands will endorse this) that if you contemplate a journey, no matter from where or to what point, you will make no mistake when you select "The Burlington" as your route. To all the Northwest and the great Mississippi Vally, it is the favorite line between Chicago, St. Louis, St. Paul, Minnapolis and all intermediate points. For tickets maps, etc., apply to your local railroad agent, or write to W. J. C. Kenyon, Gen. Pass. Agent C. B. & N. R. R., St. Paul, Minn.

Notice of Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

[First publication April 23, 1891.]

WHEREAS, DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE in the conditions of a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Thomas B. Bisson, an unmarried man, mortgagor, to the Northwestern Guaranty Loan Company, mortgagee, bearing date the 2d day of June, A. D. 1888, and duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the 4th day of June, A. D. 1888, at 11:30 o'clock a. m., in book 36 of mortgages on pages 196-8.

Whereas, such default consists of the failure to pay the following instalments of interest, to-wit: $8.75 that became due December 2d, 1888, $8.75 that became due June 2d, 1889, $8.75 that became due December 2d, 1889, $8.75 that became due June 2d, 1890, and $8.75 that became due December 2d, 1890.

And, whereas, the said Northwestern Guaranty Loan Company, the holder of said mortgage, has elected to declare, and hereby does declare the whole principal sums in said mortgage set forth due and payable at the date of this notice, under the terms and conditions of said mortgage and the power of sale therein contained.

And, whereas, there is actually due and payable at the date hereof, including principal and interest, upon the premises in said mortgage described, the following sum, to-wit: Three hundred and four dollars and fifty-seven cents. ($304.57.)

And, whereas, the said power of sale has become operative, and no action or proceeding at law or otherwise has been instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given, that by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage, which by the default aforesaid has become operative, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed and the premises described in and covered by said mortgage, viz: The east half of the northwest quarter (e½ nw¼) and southwest quarter of the northwest quarter (sw¼ nw¼) of Section Seventeen (17), in Township one hundred and forty-eight (148), of Range forty-two (42), containing 120 acres, more or less according to the government survey thereof. Said premises situate and being in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances, will be sold at public auction to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and twenty-five dollars attorney's fee, as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk County, at the front door of the Court House, in the city of Crookston, in said County and State, on the 9th day of June, A. D. 1891, at 10 o'clock a. m. of that day, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale as provided by law.

Dated April 17th, A. D. 1891.

NORTHWESTERN GUARANTY LOAN COMPANY,
Mortgagee.

S. M. HOUGHTON,
Attorney for Mortgagee. [N. G. 52] [1-7]

Notice of Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

[First publication April 23 1891.]

WHEREAS, DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE in the conditions of a certain Mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Delor Toupin, an unmarried man, mortgagor, to the Northwestern Guaranty Loan Company, mortgagee, bearing date the 20th day of November A. D. 1888, and duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the county of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the 20th day of November A. D. 1888, at 3:10 o'clock p. m., in book 40 of Mortgages, on pages 574-6.

Whereas, such default consists of the failure to pay the following installments of interest, to-wit: $17.50 that became due May 20th, 1889, $17.50 that became due November 20th, 1889, $17.50 that became due May 20th, 1890, and $17.50 that became due November 20th, 1890.

And, whereas the said Northwestern Guaranty Loan Company, the holder of said mortgage, has elected to declare, and hereby does declare, the whole principal sums in said mortgage set forth due and payable at the date of this notice under the terms and conditions of said mortgage and the power of sale therein contained.

And, whereas, there is actually due and payable at the date hereof, including principal and interest upon the premises in said mortgage described, the following sum, to-wit: Five hundred and ninety two dollars and fifty cents ($592.50), and whereas the said power of sale has become operative and no action or proceeding at law or otherwise has been instituted to recover the said debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage, which by the default aforesaid has become operative, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed, and the premises described in and covered by said mortgage, viz: The northwest quarter (nw¼) of Section twenty-nine (29), in Township one hundred and fifty (150), of Range forty-three (43), containing 160 acres, more or less, according to the government survey thereof; said premises situate and being in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances, will be sold at public auction, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and twenty-five dollars attorney's fee, as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk County, at the front door of the Court House in the City of Crookston, in said County and State, on the 9th day of June, A. D. 1891, at 10 o'clock a. m. of that day, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale as provided by law.

Dated April 17th, A. D. 1891.

MORTGAGE SALE.

[First publication April 30, 1891.]

WHEREAS, Frank Johnson and Anna Johnson, his wife, of Polk County, State of Minnesota, as mortgagors, did, on the 8th day of March, A. D. 1888, duly execute and deliver to Hannah Amelia Armstrong, of the County of Broome, State of New York, their mortgage, bearing date of March 1st, A. D. 1888, whereby they mortgaged to said mortgagee the following described lands situated in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, to-wit: The southwest quarter of Section 30, Township 153, Range 46 west, containing 160 acres, to secure the payment of the sum of six hundred dollars, with interest thereon, according to the conditions of one certain promissory note, with interest coupons attached, bearing even date with said mortgage, and made by said mortgagors to said mortgagee, or order, which said mortgage was on the 8th day of March, A. D. 1888, at 6 o'clock p. m., duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for said County of Polk, in book 37 of mortgages, on page 102; and

Whereas, default has been made in the payment of the sum of thirty-five dollars, due as interest upon said mortgage on the 1st day of January, A. D. 1889, and on the further sum of forty-two dollars due as interest upon said mortgage on the 1st day of January, A. D. 1890, and on the further sum of forty-two dollars, due as interest thereon on the first day of January, A. D. 1891, and the said interest is still unpaid and due; and

Whereas, it was stipulated by and between the parties to said mortgage, that if default should be made in any of the conditions or covenants therein contained on the part of the mortgagors, to be kept and performed, that then and from thenceforth it shall be lawful for the said mortgagee, her heirs, administrators, executors or assigns, to consider and declare the whole sum secured thereby as immediately due and payable without notice to said mortgagors or any other party; and

Whereas, The said Hannah Amelia Armstrong has exercised her option to consider and declare, and does hereby consider and declare the whole sum of money secured by said mortgage to be due and payable; and

Whereas, there is now due, and claimed to be due on said mortgage at the date of this notice the sum of seven hundred forty-two and 22-100 dollars, and no proceedings have been instituted at law or otherwise to recover the same or any part thereof.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of a power of sale in said mortgage contained and therewith recorded, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the land therein described, which sale will be made by the Sheriff of Polk County, at the front door of the Court House, in the city of Crookston, in said County and State, on the 20th day of June, A. D. 1891, at ten o'clock in the forenoon of that day, at public vendue to the highest bidder for cash, to pay the sum due on said mortgage, together with taxes, if any, on said premises, and fifty dollars attorney's fees therein stipulated to be paid in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the date of sale as provided by law.

Notice of Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

[First publication April 30th, 1891.]

WHEREAS, DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE in the conditions of a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by John E. Fangstrom and Anna Fangstrom, his wife, mortgagors, to Northwestern Guaranty Loan Company, mortgagee, bearing date the 21st day of March A. D. 1888, and duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the county of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the 2d day of April, A. D. 1888, at 10 o'clock a. m., in book 35 of mortgages, on pages 61-3.

Whereas, such default consists of the failure to pay the following installments of interest, to-wit: $12.25 that became due September 21st, 1888, $12.25 that became due March 21st, 1889, $12.25 that became due September 21st, 1889, $12.25 that became due March 21st, 1890, $12.25 that became due September 21st, 1890, and $12.25 that became due March 21st, 1891. And whereas the said Northwestern Guaranty Loan Company, the holder of said mortgage has elected to declare, and hereby does declare, the whole principal sums in said mortgage set forth due and payable at the date of this notice under the terms and conditions of said mortgage and the power of sale therein contained.

And whereas there is actually due and payable at the date hereof including principal and interest upon the premises in said mortgage described the following sum to-wit: Four hundred and thirty-two dollars and forty-five cents ($432.45); and whereas the said power of sale has become operative, and no action or proceeding at law or otherwise has been instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed, and the premises described in and covered by said mortgage, viz: The southwest quarter of the southeast quarter (sw¼ se¼) of Section twenty-six (26), the west half of northeast quarter (w½ ne¼) and southeast quarter of northwest quarter (se¼ nw¼) of Section thirty-five (35) in Township one hundred and fifty-two (152), of Range forty-three (43), containing 160 acres, more or less, according to the government survey thereof. Said premises situate and being in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances, will be sold at public auction, to the highest bidder for cash to pay said debt and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and twenty-five dollars attorney's fee, as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk County, at the front door of the Court House, in the city of Crookston, in said County and State, on

MONDAY, THE 15TH DAY OF JUNE,

A. D. 1891, at 10 o'clock a. m. of that day, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale as provided by law.

Dated April 20th, A. D. 1891.

MORTGAGE SALE.

[First publication April 20th, 1891.]

WHEREAS, ALEXIS ROBERTS, AN UNmarried man, of Polk County, State of Minnesota, as mortgagor, did, on the 3d day of May, A. D. 1887, duly execute and deliver to Austin Corbin, Trustee, of the County of New York, State of New York, his mortgage, bearing date of April 23th, A. D. 1887; whereby he mortgaged to said mortgagee the following described lands situated in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, to-wit: East half northwest quarter and east half southwest quarter Section 19, Township 149, Range 44 west, containing 160 acres, to secure the payment of the sum of six hundred dollars with interest thereon, according to the conditions of one certain promissory note with interest coupons attached, bearing even date with said mortgage, and made by said mortgagor to said mortgagee, or order, which said mortgage was, on the 3d day of May, A. D. 1887, at 11 o'clock a. m., duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for said County of Polk, in book 27 of mortgages, on page 399; and

Whereas default has been made in the payment of the sum of forty and 33-100 dollars, due as interest upon said mortgage on the first day of January, A. D. 1888, and on the further sum of sixty dollars due as interest upon said mortgage on the first day of January, A. D. 1889, and on the further sum of sixty dollars due as interest thereon on the 1st day of January, A. D. 1890, and on the further sum of sixty dollars due as interest thereon on the 1st day of January, A. D. 1891, and the said interest is still unpaid and due; and

Whereas it was stipulated by and between the parties to said Mortgage, that if default should be made in any of the conditions or covenants therein contained on the part of the Mortgagor to be kept and performed, that then and from thenceforth it shall be lawful for the said mortgagee, his heirs, administrators, executors or assigns to consider and declare the whole sum secured thereby as immediately due and payable without notice to said Mortgagor or any other party; and

Whereas, the said Austin Corbin, Trustee, has exercised his option to consider and declare and does hereby consider and declare the whole sum of money secured by said mortgage to be due and payable; and

Whereas there is now due, and claimed to be due upon said mortgage at the date of this notice the sum of eight hundred seventy-five and 05-100 dollars, and no proceedings have been instituted at law or otherwise to recover the same or any part thereof.

Now therefore notice is hereby given that by virtue of a power of sale in said mortgage contained, and therewith recorded, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the land therein described, which sale will be made by the Sheriff of Polk County, at the front door of the Court-house in the City of Crookston, in said County and State on the 20th day of June, A. D. 1891, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon of that day at public vendue to the highest bidder for cash; to pay the sum due on said mortgage, together with the taxes, if any, on said premises, and fifty Dollars attorney's fees therein stipulated to be paid, in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law subject to redemption at any time within one year from the date of sale as provided by law.

SOUTH-RIDDEN.

Predicament in Which Democratic Congressmen Find Themselves.

All the Committees Practically Controlled by Southerners.

No Consideration Accorded to Other Sections of the Country.

WASHINGTON, Special to the St. Paul Dispatch. May 11.—A leading Democratic member of the house of representatives, who is an interested party and has therefore been analyzing political possibilities, said one exceptionally interesting thing this evening, but added the usual caution, which so annoys a newspaper man: "Don't quote me. It would ruin my prospects to have my name mentioned." Senator Ingalls used to give many political pointers in the same way, and with the same caution; pointers which would have always been more valuable with the use of his imperial name. My congressional friend referred to the same important facts, which will prove valuable, even without the use of his name. He said:

"The South ought not to have the speakership unless pledges are made in writing, pledges which cannot be broken, concerning the formation of the committees of the house. No matter whether it may be McMillan, Mills, Crisp, Breckenridge or Blount who may be elected or selected by the caucus, which is the same thing, the party should exact pledges which will be absolutely binding. The tyranny of Tom Reed was exasperating because it seemed to be the Cæarism of one man, in fact, he represented his section of the country, and had his party solidly back of him. The democratic party has been South-ridden long enough, and we cannot stand it any longer without going to pieces."

Professing a pleasing ignorance of Southern domination, I asked my friend: "Wherein does the South dominate the democratic party?"

"In the committee chairmanships," he replied. "No man can have any standing in the house without the consent of the Southern brigadier; and, democrat though I am, I resent it as intensely as any republican can possibly do. I don't like to get down on my knees to a Confederate every time I have any legislation to accomplish for my constituents."

"But, my dear sir, please be more explicit and state exactly what constitutes this South-ridden condition of affairs."

"Why, take your Congressional Directory," he said, reaching for the little volume on my desk, "and look at the constiuetion of the committees. They stand to-day just as Speaker Carlisle announced them in December 1885. No man can make a plan of campaign six years in advance and carry it out to the letter. The committees announced by Carlisle in '85 will not do for '91. Nevertheless, it is the custom of the house to follow precedents and give committee places by seniority. A southern speaker will do this, unless he is prevented by caucus action in advance of his election." Here are the committees, and here are the chairmanships as they will undoubtedly be chosen by the next speaker, if he is to follow precedents and seniority of service:

Roger Q Mills, of Texas, a confederate soldier, chirman of the committee on ways and means.

Charles F. Crisp, of Georgia, a Confederate lieutenant, chairman of the committee on privileges and elections.

Henry G. Turner, of Georgia, whose record does not show whether he was in the army or not, chairman of the committee on commerce.

Newton C. Blanchard, of Louisiana, too young to be in the army, chairman of the committee on rivers and harbors.

James H. Blount of Georgia, whose record does not show his Confederate service, chairman of the committee on postoffices and postroads.

James E. Cobb, of Alabama, a Confederate lieutenant, chairman of the committee on railways and canals.

John H. Bankhead, of Alabama, a Confederate private, three times wounded, chairman of the committee on public buildings and grounds.

William H. Crain, of Texas, too young to be in the army, chairman of the committee on Pacific railroads.

Thomas R. Stockdale, a Confederate lieutenant colonel, and one of Forrest's cavalry, chairman of the committee on improvements of the Mississippi river.

Asher G. Caruth, of Kentucky, too young to be in the Confederate army, chairman of the committee on education.

John S. Henderson, of North Carolina, a Confederate private soldier, chairman of the committee on pensions. Think of that.

Charles H. Mansur, of Missouri whose Confederate record is not printed, chairman of the committee on claims.

Wm. J. Stone, of Kentucky, a Confederate veteran with one leg, chairman of the committee on war claims.

William C. Oates, of Alabama, a Confederate colonel who is proud of six wounds and the loss of his right arm in the twenty-seventh battle in which he was engaged, chairman of the committee on revision of the laws.

Constantine Buck Kilgore, of Texas, a Confederate captain, the man who objected to the promotion of the dying Phil Sheridan, chairman of the committee on enrolled bills.

"What do you think of the list?" inquired my interested democratic friend. "That embraces all, absolutely all, of the leading committees of the house, and the chairman of each committee will be just as I have named them, unless something is done by the democratic caucus to prevent it. All of the gentlemen named are good men; and none of them are today disloyal because of their former service in the confederate army: but the people of the country do not like, and they will not indorse, such appointments. Those men were given their committee places years ago, and no one of them will give up his place without a bitter struggle. One thing that contributed largely to our defeat in 1888 was the fact that the South held all those positions and dominated legislation. It is not a fair deal, in a sectional sense; and the fact of the Confederate service of those men produces a popular dissatisfaction, whether reasonable or unreasonable. The republican leaders have had ample color for their oft-repeated charge that the democratic party is dominated by the South. There must be a change, and a radical one, too."

"But what are you going to do about it? No speaker can be elected without the support of those very men."

"What are we going to do about it? Well, that is the most delicate political question before the democratic party at present. The matter will be brought to the attention of the caucus. Of that you may be well assured, and the party will deal with the question wisely and patriotically. One way out of the dilemma will be to elect a Northern man to the speakership. If we give the highest office to the North, then less can be said about these chairmanships being given to the South. But even in the event of the election of a speaker from the North, at least half of those chairmanships must also be given to the North. It will not do to compel every man who wants a bill reported from a committee to go to one of the Southerners and beg for recognition and consideration. The chairman of the committees under the speaker have imperial sway over all matters in their jurisdiction. Their standing is autocratic, and the section to which they belong always stands together. It makes no difference who shall be selected to succeed the moon-faced czar from Main, he must give those committees an earthquake which will shake them all to pieces, and out of the remnants construct new committees, distributing the best places geographically, where they will do the most good politically."

The gentleman who made these statements is not wholly a disinterested party, but he has struck a chord which will undoubtedly be popular one, and which will cause democratic leaders to do a deal of thinking. His narration of facts is incontrovertible. The public record shows the charmanships to be distributable exactly as indicated, and precedent gives the gentlemen named a right to expect the designations enumerated succinctly above. To change the chairmanships will be revolutionary, in a certain sense, and all of the interested Southerners will exact pledges from the various candidates before giving them support in their canvasses. This is one of the wheels within the big wheel which the dear people would not see in the fight for the speakership, and could not anticipate, unless the calcium and electric lights of the press were turned on. Now, who will be speaker? Who can successfully steer between this Scylla and the Charybdis of self-interest?

The Farmer and The Negro.

Duluth Evening Herald

The press of the North almost universally ridicules our legislatures and declares the country safe when they adjourn. The saddest wails went up all over our broad land this winter in anticipation of woful disasters to many commonwealths from granger combinations. Their legislation or attempted legislation has, it is declared, frightened capital and disturbed the commercial life of a nation. And yet the good sense, intelligence and patriotism of these northern farmers as a whole has never been questioned. They are, in fact, conceded by all to be the very foundation of our prosperity and the conservative force that will longest and best maintain the original spirit and luster of our free institutions. They are, however, declared unfit to rule. But what causes surprise is the fact that the same press that thunder their phillipics against the grangers of the North are the noisiest and most blatant advocates of negro domination in the South. The question we would ask is if the educated farmers of the North who have for years been throughtfully considering the political questions of the day, are a dangerous element whose domination in any state is to be viewed with profound alarm, by what process of reasoning can we convince ourselves that the black man so recently torn by force from bondage is qualified to rule wisely and without disaster the land in which he was a chattel? The Herald never despairs, but it dosen't like to see so many ravelings around the edges of an argument.

Who'll Do the Firing?

Pipestone County Star:—Joel Heatwole, chairman of the Republican state central committee, proposes, so it is said, to "fire out" all the "kickers" in the Republican party. Joel is a young husky fellow, but we fear, from all we can see at present, that there wouldnt be much left of him or the Republican party after he got through. What the Republican party most needs apparently, is the prompt firing of some of those who do no kicking, but feel content to hang on to the past record of the party rather than to take up present vital issues of interest to the people, and the sooner the young, vigorous Republican like Mr. Heatwole recognize this fact the better it will be for the party.

East Grand Forks Courier:—It was the writer's good fortune to spend a few minutes with Prof. Thos. Casey, at Crookston, on Tuesday last now at the county seat. Mr. Casey is now principal of the 5th ward school, and as such has given such universal satisfaction that the school trustees unanimously decided to pay him $20 a month more salary than they agreed to when engaging his services. Such action by a school board carries its own argument. All Mr. Casey's friends in E. G. Forks rejoice with him in so slight a token of appreciation at the hands of the school board.

East Grand Forks Courier:—People cannot be too careful of fire. Yesterday a fire—started some days ago on Andrew Kimbal's farm, near the Point, for the purpose of making way with a lot of rubbish, got the advantage of Mr. Kimbal, and at one time threatened to do a great deal of damage. Mr. Kimbal, with the aid of neighbors, subdued the fire.

Detroit Record:—Henry Way, who recently went from Audubon to Missouri, writes the editor of the Record saying that the late frosts have visited that section, and that the fruit crop will be short. That he sees more poor people there in a day than are seen in Becker county in a year. Times are hard and lands depreciating in value. This should serve as a pointer to those who are disposed to grumble at the condition of affairs in this county, and convince them that, after all, Minnesota is the garden spot of America.

St. Hilaire Spectator:—Several farmers have informed us that the recent frosts have not hurt the wheat in the least but rather improved it, and that the ground has been too damp for the high winds to do much damage.

Thief River Falls Press:—Marshall Robinson, 7-year old son of C. A. Robinson of 98 Western av. fell down an area way last night at his home and died in three hours. The fall produced concussion of the brain.

This office has been crowded with job work for the past two weeks for which we return our warmest thanks. We have been obliged to increase our force to keep up with it and will do so again if need be. Bring on the work.

Warren Sheaf:—The new dray wagons manufactured by McKinnon Bros., Crookston, for Oscar Holcomb and Fred Johnson have arrived and been put to use. Their appearance upon our streets creates a decidedly city-like impression.

Decoration Day.

Music by club.
Strewing flowers and song "America."
Benediction by Rev. F. C. Whitney.

Our citizens generally are requested to donate flowers which they may be able to spare, and if possible send to the hall on the morning of the 30th before 10 o'clock. If any of our citizens are mourning the loss of soldier friends whom they wish remembered, if they will bring or send wreaths or bouquets to the hall, accompanied by card giving name, number of regiment and State, they will be properly placed, and those who have friends buried in the cemetery are requested to mark their graves with small flags that the committee may be able to suitably decorate them on Memorial Day.

Bro. D. N. Taylor, is something of a farmer himself. He has the sleekest looking cow in the city and it is only the excellent care she gets that makes bossy shine so. Here's dollars to doughnuts that that cow gets carded and brushed every day of her life.

Wabasha Herald:—The Red River Valley college was last week located at Crookston. The enterprising business men of that city subscribed a bonus of $15,000. Crookston's business men are alive and lose no opportunity to encourage there the location of valuable institutions.

Norman County Index:—This week H. H. Phelps was appointed city attorney of West Duluth at a salary of $100 or more a month. This is getting to the front pretty fast. With Martin mayor and Phelps attorney, West Duluth should be on the high road to prosperity.

Fisher Bulletin:—On Sunday last the barn, one horse, a colt, a quantity of harness and farming implements belonging to Ole Williamson, living a short distance from Fisher, on the west side, was destroyed by fire. The conflagration was caused by some boys playing with matches.

P. P. Bodine got out his new paper last week but as we were not favored with a copy we are not prepared to comment. The Grand Forks News gives it a sarcastic greeting, but then what could you expect? Bierly is nothing unless sarcastic. We wish the new paper all the success it deserves.

Norman County Index:—The Ada boys have received an invitation from the Crookston base ball club to play a game in that city, Crookston to pay the expenses of the visiting club. The Crookston boys say that they want practice. The Ada boys will give them the desired practice the first week in June.

The Pioneer Press Co., of St. Paul, Minn., offers a years subscription of the weekly Pioneer Press, also a year's subscription to either the Farm and Fireside or the ladies Home Companion, including a valuable Cook Book, to every person who will send them $1.00. This is an offer you cannot afford to ignore.

Ladies should bear in mind that by sending $1.00 to the Pioneer Press Co., St. Paul, Minn., they will receive the Weekly Pioneer Press one year, together with a year's subscription to either the Farm and Fireside or the Ladies' Home Companion. A large and valuable Cook Book will be sent free to every person who accepts this offer.

South Bend Journal:—Judge Holcomb and L. N. Eklund, accompanied Mrs. Holcomb as far as Portland on the steamer Willapa. Mrs. Holcomb will pay a visit to her aged parents in Minnesota. Upon the lady's return she will be accompanied by the mother of Mr. Scott Riddell, also by Andrew Eklund, a brother of L. N. Eklund.

Warren Sheaf:—Mr. A. L. Palmer of Independence, Iowa, arrived in the city yesterday. Since his visit here about a month ago, he has made a trip to the Pacific coast, and in the meantime has seen a great deal of the country, but nowhere, he says, has he seen a finer agricultural section than the Minnesota side of the Red River Valley.

The Band Benefit.

Don't forget the band concert on Friday evening, June 5th, at the Grand Opera house. It will be a musical and dramatic entertainment and the boys well spare no pains nor expense to make it a grand success. As the proceeds are to go toward uniforms for the band our citizens should patronize it generously and we think they will. Tickets 35 and 50 cents. For sale at Herb's.

Eh, What?

The Grand Forks Plaindealer, of May 21st. has this bit of news that is news to us: "W. J. Murphy and Geo. B. Clifford, returned from Crookston this morning after looking over their gas plant!"

Dorchester Beacon:—"Mr. Elkanah Hathaway, a retired sea captain and resident for the past ten years of Dorchester, died Saturday at the residence of his son-in-law, Mr. Reuben Gleason, of Bowdoin street, with whom he has of late years made his home, aged 87 years. Mr. Hathaway, was a native of Westport, and early in life sailed, for several voyages as ship carpenter on a whaling vessel, sailing out from New Bedford, and for many years later commanded a merchant vessel, sailing from the same port. Mr. Hathaway's venerable figure—looking more venerable by contrast with the grand-child that often accompanied him—has been a familiar sight on the upper road. Two sons and two daughters survive him, his wife—by whose side in Mt. Pleasant cemetery, Taunton, his body was laid on Tuesday—having died some years ago. Funeral services were held at his late home Tuesday, Mrs. Burns, a spiritualist preacher,—in which faith Mr. Hathaway was a believer—conducting a beautiful and impressive service."

Mr. H. was father of C. P. Hathaway, foreman of THE JOURNAL office.

On His Track.

E. B. Scribner says he is on the track of the man who goes hunting Sunday and is not too particular what he carries home in his grain bag or whether or not it is his neighbor's grain bag he carries home; The small owner of a small team who lives a few miles west of Carman knows more of the matter than he cares to see in print but if he will leave five dollars with E. B. or H. C. Scribner or at THE JOURNAL office, he will save the necessity of answering some troublesome questions.

Mrs. J. A. Bemis goes to Lake Park on a visit.

Everybody courting this week. Looks like a short term.

Will Peterson went down with the boys to see the game of ball at Winnipeg.

Lewis Ellington, of the Scandia American bank is in St. Paul this week.

August Walters, and Earnest Rolsch, intend to start for Germany on Saturday next for a bit of recreation in quest of health and happiness.

W. O. Wilson, has moved his house and got it upon a good solid brick foundation. He is developing a rare muscle for manual labor.

The Nobles company made the common mistake of getting their prices too high for that class of plays. So they did not get a good house.

Attorney E. M. Stanton, welcomed the arrival of his wife and child on Friday of last week. They are domiciled at the Commercial for the time being.

Chas. Lofston informs THE JOURNAL that wheat is materially injured in this county so far as his observation extends. The big freeze, he claims, did the business.

Postmaster Dawley has receive assurances from Washington that on July 12th this post-office will be made a second-class office. This is as it should be.

Charlie McKay arrived in the city from Butte, Montana, this week. Charlie says he has travelled around a good deal since he left Crookston, but has never yet struck a better point for business.

An unusually large-sized brief, with orders to rush got us out of sorts last week so we had to make a flying trip to St Paul to get 32 lbs of sorts to add to an ordinarily large font of self-spacing law pica that we had recently received from Benton, Waldo & Co. We are now fully prepared to tackle the the longest winded brief in the business and to get it up in fine shape on new type. We invite a call from all who need this line of work.

The marriage of Joseph McMahan to Miss Lena Himmelsback took place on Saturday last at the family residence of the bride in Fairfax.

A. M. Stewart was in the city a short time this week getting acquainted with his family. Says he is doing a good business in Superior.

Milton and Dollie Nobles appeared on Tuesday evening at the Grand Opera House. They seem to have lost none of their old popularity with our people.

The attractions Mrs. E. E. Bangs offers the ladies are fashionable goods in the latest styles of the very best qualities and extremely low prices. You will do well to call and examine her goods and get prices.

Charlie Johnson and his brother, Mr. Rockstad was in attendance at court this week. Charlie took a look over the opera house block and says it is the finest building in the Northwest.

Judge Woodruff, was over from Grand Forks this week dunning Steenerson for "that hat" which was not to be a hat at all but on the terms of the bet only a pair of shoes—only this and nothing more.

Subject of sermon at 11: A. m. at the Congregational church next Sunday. "The Bible Light in Human Life" S. S. after morning sermon and Y. P. S. C. E. prayer meeting at 7 p. m. Invitations to all. No evening sermon.

Attorney P. C. Schimdt, is up from Duluth this week. Some way our boys down there are letting the Ada boys get away with all the fat offices. Not one of our boys have an office while Ada furnishes a mayor and city attorney.

Anthony Englebretson, a clerk of Fontaine & Anglim, died on Sampson's Woodland Addition on Monday of typhoid fever and was buried on Tuesday afternoon. He was about 20 years old, and we are told has parents and brothers and sisters at Fertile.

The annual meeting of the Polk County Bible Society, a branch of American Bible Society will be held Sunday evening May 31st, in the old Opera House at 8. P. M. An interesting program is outlined. Our city pastors will speak. See notices elswhere.

W. J. Murphy was up from Minneapolis last week looking as happy and free from care as though he was not at the head of the leading republican daily of the State. W. J. informs THE JOURNAL that he expects soon to commence improvements on the water dower hrre.

"Too busy to write any locals for this week," said Manager Woodham of the Crookston Furniture Co., as he greeted our reporter on his rounds on Wednesday, "but you may say that we are now more than ever ready to supply the needs of your readers with everything they need in the line of furniture, and ask them to call and look us over."

Lewis Anderson, a young man working for O. C. Christinason died last week of consumption. He leaves a brother in Fisher and a sister in Wisconsin, the only survivors of a family all of whom have died of consumption.

Conductor Copeland went down to the dam on Tuesday and pulled out a ten-pound cat-fish—with several others of smaller size and all the boys who met him coming home asked him "how much he paid for it?" As if Cope couldn't catch a fish!

Our base ball club went down to Winnipeg to give our English cousins the straight tip on base-ball playing but somehow or other when they returned they were not talking very loud doncher-know. A score of 17 to 9 in favor of Winnipeg was not calculated to raise the spirits of our boys ever so much. The Winnipeg club will be down in about two weeks for the return game.

Moorhead News:—It is reported that lots have been sold in Kalispell since the plat was filed a few weeks ago, amounting to $460,000. It is wonderful but still we advice Moorhead people to stay at home. There is no section in the United States that possesses as fertile soil as the Red River Valley, and this will count when people resume their senses and get over the notion of making a fortune by chance.

East Grand Forks Courier:—The case of the state vs. Peter Hearty, a resident of the Point, charged with cruelty to a horse—his neighbor's horse—came up for hearing yesterday p. m. before Judge Lasher, with Attorney Feetham prosecuting and Attorney O'Keefe defending. The horse was produced in court, but the justice ruled out the animal's evidence, discharged the prisoner and ordered the costs taxed up to Polk County, as usual. John Langan made the complaint.

General Manager A. Z. Mohler was in the city last week looking about in a manner that indicated that the Great Northern road contemplates something or other beneficial to the city. He would not say what if anything is on their mind but rumor says something of importance is about to happen at an early date. This point is the natural point for shops for that system and our citizens would be glad to co-operate with the road in anything that tends to build up the city.

St. Hilaire Spectator:—S. M. Hoff is making arrangements to open the creamery the latter part of this week. He intends putting three teams on the road gathering cream and will pay thirteen cents an inch. He has secured the services of James Fulton of Hawley, who is an experienced butter maker. He is the son of N. H. Fulton who managed the creamery here several years ago. We hope Mr. Hoff will be successful as the running of the creamery here will be a good thing for both village and country.

MAYOR'S PROCLAMATION.

Saturday, the 30th day of May will mark the 23d anniversary of Memorial Day, and it is hereby ordered that the public offices and buildings of the City of Crookston be on that day closed and and that the flag at the city hall be displayed at half-mast and it is recommended that all places of business be closed from 10 o'clock a. m. until 4 p. m. and that all citizens join with the Grand Army Post of this city in properly exhibiting their love for the honored dead and reverently assist in the sad and solemn ceremonies of the day.

Done at the mayor's office this 26th day of May 1891.

ALEXANDER MCKINNON,
Mayor.

Grand Rapids (Mich.) Telegram-Herald:—"We have been favored for the past two nights with a grand entertainment by Alba Heywood and his Concert Company. They furnished a refined program of costumed impersonations, character songs, solos, duets, and fine orchestral selections. They played to good houses and we bespeak for them good business wherever they may go. They are deserving of liberal patronage." At the Grand Opera House Monday and Tuesday evening June 1st and 2.

Indianapolis (Ind.) Journal:—"Alba Heywood is a versatile artist in character sketches. Indeed it would be hard to find his equal in "old lady" part and the "Boy" act is an oddity peculiar to Mr. Heywood's original humor. His other delineations and comic songs are pleasing and laughable. Miss Anna Miller the violin soloist, takes leadership among American ladies who have taken up the violin. Her execution is marvelous and there is to be noticed in her playing a delicacy of grace of movement. Dewey Heywood, flutist, takes first rank. His rendition of "Come back to Erin," with variations, took in the whole compass of his instrument, there was not to be discovered a falsity in the beautiful theme of the old Irish melody nor in the quick bird like trills that composed the variation. The euphonium solo of Clint Heywood and the accompaniment of Miss Zimmerman were received with marked favor." At the Grand Opera House Monday and Tuesday evening June 1th and 2.

Harry Palmer, says the Winnipeg boys treated our boys right royally even taking them to the theatre one evening. He says Winnipeg is a good business point.

Mr. M. R. Brown went up to McIntosh on Saturday last and bought a carload of steers and wants another carload at that point next Saturday. So says the McIntosh Times.

Gus. Felsing, was down on Monday to see about another excursion to the lake. Says the other was a grand success. He expects to make arrangements for an excursion every Sunday.

Peter Lorge was up on Monday and dropped in to chat with THE JOURNAL man. Says he thinks the frost did very little damage to crops as they are looking nicely down around Beltrami.

Crookston, April 29, '91.

I invite all parties to call and examine my full and complete stock of Dry Goods and Notions, Boots and Shoes, Groceries, Crockery and Glassware. I have always conducted my business upon liberal principles, so all the goods are marked down to prices defying competition. Purchasers are respectfully requested to call early to prevent disappointment.

In Honor of the Boys in Blue.

The Albany, (N. Y.) Telegram for May 30, will be printed on red, white and blue paper and consist of 16 pages. It will be the most original, unique and popular paper ever presented to the American public. Nothing like it ever attempted by a newspaper in the nineteenth century. As a mechanical wonder and a military literary library there will be nothing to even compare with it issued in this country. If there is no agent in your town you can have the paper mailed to you at 5 cents a copy.

Grand Forks Herald:—Contracts have been made with the Fargo, Jamestown, Lisbon, Crookston, Buxton and Tower City bands to furnish music at the firemen's tournament. They have been hired to come, and it is stipulated that they shall furnish music where and when the committee on bands shall desire. They have all been sent duplicate sheets of certain music for the purpose of playing as a consolidated band at certain times. It will be seen that when consolidated there will be 107 instruments, as follows: Fargo band, 20 pieces, Lisbon, 22 pieces; Crookston, 17 pieces; Buxton, 19 pieces; Jamestown, 18 pieces; Tower City, 14 pieces,

A Successful Trial.

HASTINGS, Minn., May 18.—Senator Henry Keller of Sauk Centre, who is experimenting for the state with his new flax machine, made a test with it to-day on Fred Busch's land in the eastern part of the city, separating the fiber from the straw and turning out a fine article of tow, several hundred pounds of which were sent to the state prison at Stillwater to be manufactured into twine, samples of which will be received here tomorrow for exhibition. The machine worked to perfection, and is pronounced a success.

Fifth District Alliance Meeting.

LUCE, MINN., May 18, 1861.

There will be a meeting of the old Fifth District Alliance, on Friday, the 12th day of June, at Fergus Falls, Otter Tail Co, for the purpose of re-organizing in accordance with the late re-districting of the state. There is also other very important business to be transacted in which the wheat producers of the north-west are interested.

Each county and subordinate Alliance will be entitled to one delegate.

President.
LOUIS HANSON,
Secretary.

A Perfect Horse.

From time immemorial the horse has been known as man's constant companion. From Homer to Byron this noblest of all animals has been immortalized in verse and even in holy writ. He has been described in language of the most sublime inspiration. He occupies a position in both our admiration, necessities, and affections above all other domestic animals. The Ringling Bros. World's Greatest Show, which exhibits at Crookston on Friday, June 19th, possesses three-hundred of the finest horses and ponies ever bred. Among them are scores of educated performing equines, including "Spider," the great leaping horse; "Captain," the lightning calculator, and "Sultan" the dancing stallion. Be sure and see the fine stock in their free street parade.

The Great Impersonator.

ALBA HEYWOOD, and his peerless concert company will give two entertainments at the Grand Opera House on Monday and Tuesday Evenings, June 1st, and 2d. Heywood has the reputation of being one of the greatest character impersonators now living. If you enjoy Sol. Smith Russell go and hear Heywood. He is said to be fully as good.

The Battle Lake Review is seven years old! It does not seem that long since Judge Strain sent us the first copy of his kid but so it is. "Owing to the dryness of the atmosphere" temprus fugit in this country to a remarkable degree and lo! the "kid" is a freshman in the school of life and a healthy promising youth it is too; beyond the the danger of being carried off by infantile diseases—colic, type lice &c. Here's Ho, Judge! In the language of Breyer of old: "May you live long und brosper!" Likewise the Review.

The Big Show Coming!

Ringling Bros. World's Greatest Rail Road Show, Three Ring Circus and Elevated Stages, Museum, Menagerie, Roman Hippodrome and Roman Gala Day Sport and Spectacles is billed to appear at Crookston on Friday June 19. Owing to arraugements made by the American Showman's Pooled League this will be the only large Rail Road Show that will visit Crookston this year. Be in town early and see the magnificent free street parade. Don't forget the date, Friday June 19th.

Upon invitation of Rev. O. H Elmer, pastor of the presbyterian church, Col. Cobham Post No. 90, attended service at that church on Sunday at 11 a. m. Mr. Elmer preached an eloquent sermon from the words: "What mean ye by this service." Found in Exodus 12th chapter and 26th verse. In the evening the Post marched to the opera house where the Rev. C. F. Sharpe of the M. E. church, preached a powerful sermon from the words: "What mean ye by these stones?" Found in Joshua, 4th chapter 6th verse. The M. E. choir rendered several pieces in excellent voice and the Congregation joined in singing "America" at the close. The opera house was filled to the utmost seating capacity showing that our citizens enjoy such services and like to be there. The thanks of the Post are due to the M. E. people who so cordially consented to hold the services in the opera house. The Congregational and Presbyteran people held no services at their respective churches but came out to the services at the opera house. It was an enjoyable season.

Two Beautiful Girls.

Who Will Create a Furore in New-Port This Summer.

Newport is to have a sensation this summer. It is authentically stated that the beautiful and celebrated daughters of Lord Dufferin, Beatrice and Adelaide, are to grace this famour resort with their presence this coming season.

It will be remembered that Beatrice's dark eyes have played havoc lately with the heart of Albert the eldest son of the Prince of Wales. What it will amount to is as yet a matter of conjecture in England. The young ladies are acknowledged to be the most beautiful in all Europe, and there will be not a little excitement in the hearts of our American belles over their coming. They are exquisite dressers, and their costumes will be marvels of curiousity. Unlike most ladies, they know exactly what is suited to them. Some time ago they sent for the chief designer of the Paris house of the New York and Paris young Ladies' Fashion Bazar, and selected forty costumes each, the cost of which will amount to thousands of pounds.

Through the courtesy of these young ladies we have been permitted to copy for the New York and Paris Young Ladies' Fashion Bazar two of their most exquisite costumes, which appear as figures 3 and 4 on the colored plates of the June number of this magazine, just out, and for which the publisher has issued, in the name of the American ladies, a card of thanks. It is rumored that the prince may follow the young ladies to Newport this summer. The New York and Paris Young Ladies' Fashion bazar has the exclusive right to publish each month at least one or more of the costumes in which the ladies Beatrice and Adelaide will appear.

She Is In Luck.

Toma Hanlon, the Actress, to Marry Millionaire Warriner.

The Sunday Times.

New York, May 23.—Gerrard Warriner, the young English chum of Howell Osborne, it is reported, is about to marry Toma Hanlon, the actress and close friend of Fay Templeton. It was though Mr. Warriner's intimacy with Howell Osborne that the former met the girl he is now madly in love with. Mr. Warriner is the sole heir of an uncle who is 89 years old, upon whose demise he will come into an estate yielding an income of $70,000 a year. Added to what he already receives this will make the young man more than a millionarie. Miss Hanlon has been an actress since she was 6 years of age. Her first appearance was at Booth's theater in support of Joseph Jefferson, and for three years she played all the children's parts in the plays produced there. She is now 23 years old. The wedding will take place here in June and the couple will spend the honeymoon in Europe. Fay Templeton will be in attendance and will accompany them abroad.

The Red River Valley College Association will hold its yearly meeting in the City of Crookston, Thursday, the 4th day of June next, at 10 o'clock a. m. Business of great importance to the Association will be transacted, and all members are cordially invited to attend.

DULUTH-NORTHERN.

General Manager Chase says the Line Will be Built This Summer.

Condititional Only Upon the Subscription of 100,000 By Citizen of Duluth.

Duluth Daily Tribune.

The following committee was appointed by the president of the chamber as directed by the meeting yesterday: Messrs H. H. Hanaford, H. B. Moore, S. A. Thompson, M. Baldwin, and B. Silberstein.

In the afternoon this committee held a conference with the directors of the Mountain Iron Company and gentlemen interested in the building of the Duluth, Mesaba & Northern railway, at which K. D. Chase, the general manager of the road, was present. The railway project was thoroughly discused. Mr. Chase said his company would lend every assistance they could but that the Duluth & Northern, had already surveyed their line, have everything in readiness, and had expended a great deal of money in connection with the road. "I have consulted with a great many people in the east in regard to the building of the line," said Mr. Chase, "and have received several propositions, and I am prepared to say that if the people of Duluth will give evidence that they are interested in the railway, say to the extent of $100,000, ground will be broken within thirty days after the amount is subscribed; and the line will be rushed through to completion."

Mr. Chase said to a Tribune representative on the subject: "You may state as a fact that we build our line on the assurance of $100,000 to be paid after the road is completed, but we will not oppose the construction of any other road. If there is another plan to build a road that is equally good with ours, we will join in and help it. But we have surveyed our line, became incorporated, and have expended a great deal of money one way or another in connection therewith. Capitalists, in subscribing to an affair like this, always like to see the city benefited, take a substantial interest in it, and if Duluth will subscribe to the extent of the amount mentioned, we will begin work within a month and complete the railroad this summer."

MORTGAGE SALE.

WHEREAS DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE in the payment of the sum of two hundred and forty-six dollars ($246.00) which is claimed to be due at the date of this notice upon a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by David R. McGinnis to P. C. Sletten and John Cromb, of Polk County, Minnesota, bearing date the first day of December, A. D. 1882, and, with a power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the 6th day of December, A. D. 1882, at 11:30 o'clock a. m., in book "H" of mortgages, on page 485.

And whereas P. C. Sletten, one of the mortgagees named in said mortgage, died testate, at Crookston, Polk County, Minnesota, on the 8th day of July, A. D. 1884.

And whereas the last will and testament of the said P. C. Sletten was proved and admitted to probate in the Probate Court of Polk County, Minnesota, on the 20th day of July, A. D. 1884.

And, whereas, by the terms of said will Kari Sletten, the wife of the said P. C. Sletten, was made the sole legatee and devisee of all the real and personal property of which he died seized aforesaid.

And, whereas, the Probate Court of said Polk County issued its final decree in the estate of P. C. Sletten, deceased, dated Aug. 6, 1887, by the terms of which the said Kari Sletten was decreed to have an undivided half interest in the above described mortgage, which said decree was duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for said County of Polk, on the 11th day of May, 1888, at 1:30 p. m., in book 29 of deeds, on pages 574 to 578 inclusive, and no action or proceeding has been instituted, at law or otherwise, to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now therefore, notice is hereby given, that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, viz: Lots four (4) and five (5) in block six (6), in Cromb and Sletten's subdivision of outlots in Hurlbut's addition to Crookston, in Polk County and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances, which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk County, at the front door of the Court House in the City of Crookston, in said County and State, on the 18th day of July, A. D. 1891, at ten o'clock a. m. of that day, at public vendue to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and twenty-five dollars attorney's fees, as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale as provided by law.

Dated May 20th, A. D. 1891.

Decoration Day.

"Memorial day," we believe is the exact term in the statute making May 30th a national holiday, but it was "Decoration Day" by spontaneous movement of the people long before the law-makers concluded to legalize its observance. Did you ever think, as you see the comrades of the G. A. R. going in procession to strew flowers on the graves of their deceased brother, that the numbers of this procession will dwindle year by year, till soon only a few tottering old men will be left? Grant, Sherman, Sheridan, Thomas, Hancock, Logan, Porter—all gone. Soon nothing will be left but to visit the battlefields of the south, and if the present rate of progress continues, all tra ce of these will be lost. This is a pleasant trip to make, and for all inhabitants of Minnesota, Dakotas, and the upper Mississippi Valley. "The Burlington" with its own line to Chicago and St. Louis, is the favorite route. For tickets, rates, etc., apply to any agent of this or connecting lines, or write to W. J. C. Kenyon. Gen. Pass. Agent C. B. & N. R. R., St. Paul Minn.

Notice of Mortgage Sale by Advertisement.

WHEREAS, DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE in the conditions of a certain mortgage executed and delivered by Nellie F. Miller and Paul Miller, her husband, mortgagors, to Johnston Wagner, mortgagee, dated the 12th day of November, A. D. eighteen hundred and eighty-seven, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of the County of Polk, in the State of Minnesota, on the 16th day of November, A. D. 1887, at 11:40 o'clock, a. m., in book "T" of mortgages, on page 417, on which there is claimed to be due at the date of this notice the amount of eight hundred and forty and 60-100 dallars, and no action or proceeding has been instituted at law or in equity to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now, Notice is hereby given, that by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage, and of the statute in such case made and provided, said mortgage will be foreclosed by sale of the mortgaged premises therein described, at public auction, at the front door of the Court House, in the City of Crookston, in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on

MONDAY, the 6TH DAY OF JULY,

A. D. eighteen hundred and ninety-one, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, to satisfy the amount which shall then be due on said mortgage, with the interest thereon, and costs and expenses of sale, and fifty dollars attorney's fees, as stipulated in said mortgage in case of foreclosure.

The premises described in said mortgage, and so to be sold, are the lot, piece or parcel of land situated in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, and known and described as follows, to-wit: The northwest quarter (nw¼) of Section thirty-two, (32), Township one hundred and forty-nine (149) north, of Range forty-three (43) west of 5th principal meredian, containing 160 acres, more or less, according to the government survey thereof.

MORTGAGE SALE.

WHEREAS, Frank Johnson and Anna Johnson, his wife, of Polk County, State of Minnesota, as mortgagors, did, on the 8th day of March, A. D. 1888, duly execute and deliver to Hannah Amelia Armstrong, of the County of Broome, State of New York, their mortgage, bearing date of March 1st, A. D. 1888, whereby they mortgaged to said mortgagee the following described lands situated in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, to-wit: The southwest quarter of Section 30, Township 153, Range 46 west, containing 160 acres, to secure the payment of the sum of six hundred dollars, with interest thereon, according to the conditions of one certain promissory note, with interest coupons attached, bearing even date with said mortgage, and made by said mortgagors to said mortgagee, or order, which said mortgage was on the 8th day of March, A. D. 1888, at 6 o'clock p. m., duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for said County of Polk, in book 37 of mortgages, on page 102; and

Whereas, default has been made in the payment of the sum of thirty-five dollars, due as interest upon said mortgage on the 1st day of January, A. D. 1889, and on the further sum of forty-two dollars due as interest upon said mortgage on the 1st day of January, A. D. 1890, and on the further sum of forty-two dollars, due as interest thereon on the first day of January, A. D. 1891, and the said interest is still unpaid and due; and

Whereas, it was stipulated by and between the parties to said mortgage, that if default should be made in any of the conditions or covenants therein contained on the part of the mortgagors, to be kept and performed, that then and from thenceforth it shall be lawful for the said mortgagee, her heirs, administrators, executors or assigns, to consider and declare the whole sum secured thereby as immediately due and payable without notice to said mortgagors or any other party; and

Whereas, The said Hannah Amelia Armstrong has exercised her option to consider and declare, and does hereby consider and declare the whole sum of money secured by said mortgage to be due and payable; and

Whereas, there is now due, and claimed to be due on said mortgage at the date of this notice the sum of seven hundred forty-two and 22-100 dollars, and no proceedings have been instituted at law or otherwise to recover the same or any part thereof.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of a power of sale in said mortgage contained and therewith recorded, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the land therein described, which sale will be made by the Sheriff of Polk County, at the front door of the Court House, in the city of Crookston, in said County and State, on the 29th day of June, A. D. 1891, at ten o'clock in the forenoon of that day, at public vendue to the highest bidder for cash, to pay the sum due on said mortgage, together with taxes, if any, on said premises, and fifty dollars attorney's fees therein stipulated to be paid in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the date of sale as provided by law.

Notice of Mortgage Forclosure Sale.

First publication May 21st, 1891.

DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE IN THE conditions of a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Charles Kindler and Minnie Kindler, his wife, mortgagors, to Northwestern Guaranty Loan Company, mortgagee, bearing date the 29th day of June, A. D. 1888, and duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the 9th day of July, A. D. 1888, at 3:10 o'clock p. m., in book 38 of mortgages, on pages 239-2.

Whereas, such default consists of the failure to pay the installments of interest that became due December 29th, 1888, June 29th, 1889, December 29th, 1889, June 29th, 1890, and December 29th, 1890, each of said installments being for $33. And whereas the said Northwestern Guaranty Loan Company, the holder of said mortgage, has elected to declare, and hereby does declare, the whole principal sums in said mortgage set forth due and payable at the date of this notice under the terms and conditions of said mortgage and the power of sale therein contained.

And whereas there is actually due and payable at the date hereof upon the premises in said mortgage described the following sum, to-wit: Nine hundred and seventy-three dollars and ten cents, ($973.10) and, whereas the said power of sale has become operative, and no action or proceeding at law or otherwise has been instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed and the premises described in and covered by said mortgage, viz: The southeast quarter (se¼) of Section twenty-six, (26), in Township one hundred and fifty-two (152) north, of Range forty five (45) west, containing 160 acres. Said premises situate and being in the county of Polk and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances, will be sold at public auction, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and twenty-five dollars attorney's fee, as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk County, at the front door of the Court House, in the City of Crookston, in said County and State, on

Notice of Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

[First publication April 30th, 1891.]

WHEREAS, DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE in the conditions of a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by John E. Fangstrom and Anna Fangstrom, his wife, mortgagors, to Northwestern Guaranty Loan Company, mortgagee, bearing date the 21st day of March A. D. 1888, and duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the county of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the 2d day of April, A. D. 1888, at 10 o'clock a. m., in book 35 of mortgages, on pages 61-3.

Whereas, such default consists of the failure to pay the following installments of interest, to-wit: $12.25 that became due September 21st, 1888, $12.25 that became due March 21st, 1889, $12.25 that became due September 21st, 1889, $12.25 that became due March 21st, 1890, $12.25 that became due September 21st, 1890, and $12.25 that became due March 21st, 1891. And whereas the said Northwestern Guaranty Loan Company, the holder of said mortgage has elected to declare, and hereby does declare, the whole principal sums in said mortgage set forth due and payable at the date of this notice under the terms and conditions of said mortgage and the power of sale therein contained.

And whereas there is actually due and payable at the date hereof including principal and interest upon the premises in said mortgage described the following sum to-wit: Four hundred and thirty-two dollars and forty-five cents ($432.45); and whereas the said power of sale has become operative, and no action or proceeding at law or otherwise has been instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed, and the premises described in and covered by said mortgage, viz: The southwest quarter of the southeast quarter (sw¼ se¼) of Section twenty-six (26), the west half of northeast quarter (w½ ne¼) and southeast quarter of northwest quarter (se¼ nw¼) of Section thirty-five, (35) in Township one hundred and fifty-two (152), of Range forty-three (43), containing 160 acres, more or less, according to the government survey thereof. Said premises situate and being in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances, will be sold at public auction, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and twenty-five dollars attorney's fee, as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk County, at the front door of the Court House, in the city of Crookston, in said County and State, on

MORTGAGE SALE.

[First publication April 30th, 1891.]

WHEREAS, ALEXIS ROBERTS, AN UNmarried man, of Polk County, State of Minnesota, as mortgagor, did, on the 3d day of May, A. D. 1887, duly execute and deliver to Austin Corbin, Trustee, of the County of New York, State of New York, his mortgage, bearing date of April 28th, A. D. 1887, whereby he mortgaged to said mortgagee the following described lands situated in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, to-wit: East half northwest quarter and east half southwest quarter Section 19, Township 149, Range 44 west, containing 160 acres, to secure the payment of the sum of six hundred dollars with interest thereon, according to the conditions of one certain promissory note with interest coupons attached, bearing even date with said mortgage, and made by said mortgagor to said mortgagee, or order, which said mortgage was, on the 3d day of May, A. D. 1887, at 11 o'clock a. m., duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for said County of Polk, in book 27 of mortgages, on page 399; and

Whereas default has been made in the payment of the sum of forty and 33-100 dollars, due as interest upon said mortgage on the first day of January, A. D. 1888, and on the further sum of sixty dollars due as interest upon said mortgage on the first day of January, A. D. 1889, and on the further sum of sixty dollars due as interest thereon on the 1st day of January, A. D. 1890, and on the further sum of sixty dollars due as interest thereon on the 1st day of January, A. D. 1891, and the said interest is still unpaid and due; and

Whereas it was stipulated by and between the parties to said Mortgage, that if default should be made in any of the conditions or covenants therein contained on the part of the Mortgagor to be kept and performed, that then and from thenceforth it shall be lawful for the said mortgagee, his heirs, administrators, executors or assigns to consider and declare the whole sum secured thereby as immediately due and payable without notice to said Mortgagor or any other party; and

Whereas, the said Austin Corbin, Trustee, has exercised his option to consider and declare and does hereby consider and declare the whole sum of money secured by said mortgage to be due and payable; and

Whereas there is now due, and claimed to be due upon said mortgage at the date of this notice the sum of eight hundred seventy-five and 65-100 dollars, and no proceedings have been instituted at law or otherwise to recover the same or any part thereof.

Now therefore notice is hereby given that by virtue of a power of sale in said mortgage contained, and therewith recorded, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the land therein described, which sale will be made by the Sheriff of Polk County, at the front door of the Court-house in the City of Crookston, in said County and State, on the 20th day of June, A. D. 1891, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon of that day at public vendue to the highest bidder for cash, to pay the sum due on said mortgage, together with the taxes, if any, on said premises, and fifty dollars attorney's fees therein stipulated to be paid in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the date of sale as provided by law.

NEWSPAPER LAW.

1. Any person who takes a paper regularly from the post office, whether he has subscribed or not, is responsible for the payment.

2. If any person orders his paper discontinued he must pay all arrears, or the publisher may continue to send it until payment is made and then collect the whole amount, whether the paper is taken from the office or not.

3. In suits for subscriptions, the suit may be instituted where the paper is published.

4. The Courts have decided that refusing to take newspapers or periodicals from the post office, or removing and leaving them uncalled for, while unpaid for, is prima facie evidence of intention to defraud.

Absurd and Disgusting.

St. Paul Daily News.

It is about time for the newspaper correspondents to give the public a rest relative to Mr. Blaine's health and mental abilites.

Mr. Blaine is by all odds the ablest man in the republican party and in some respects the strongest. It is not likely that he will ever be President, because a man of ability always creates antagonisms, and it is the negative character, the man who does not have force enough to take position, who is the available politician.

It is not probable that Mr. Blaine will be the republican nominee for President in '92. It is not probable that, if he was, he would be elected, but he is nevertheless the strongest and most popular man in the republican party.

The fact that he is strongest in republican states has heretofore been an element of weakness, because it was felt necessary by the party to cater to the doubtful states, but the states which have been the strongests republican have latterly wheeled into the doubtful column, and consequently a man who is strong in the heretofore solid republican states now become an important factor in politics.

But whether Mr. Blaine is ever the President nominee or not, the attempt to kill him by reports that his big toe is painful with the gout and that his brain never has recovered from the attack of some years ago, is both absurd and disgusting.

The Chronic Kicker.

The poet says: "What is more perfect than a day in June?" And nowhere in the world are June days so perfect as in the great Northwest. And yet for some inscrutable purpose, Providence permits the chronic kicker to infest even June days. You have seen the "kicker" haven't you? Of no particular sex or age, "he she or it" is omnipresent, always awake and on the lookout for somthing to growl about. The genus is divided into several species, the political kicker, the financia kicker, the religious kicker, the social kicker; and so on, ADINFINITUM. Don't you wish you could escape it? Well, you can't but there is one place where you will find less of him, her, etc., than anywhere else—and that is on the luxurious vestibuled trains of "The Burlington" running between Minneapolis and St. Paul and Chicago and St. Louis. To get as far away from the kicker as possible insist on your ticket agent selling you a ticket over "The Burlington." For any further information about the line, rates, etc., address W. J. C. Kenyon, Gen. Pass. Agent C. B. & N. R. R. St. Paul Minn.

Babylon Still Stands!

Heading Ringling Bros.' ponderous heard of performing elephants is "Babylon" the largest elephant in the world. Among others they have the elephantine wonder, "The Umbrella eared Elephant," which positively possesses the largest ears under the sun. This enormous institution will exibit at Crookston on Friday, June 19th. Be on hand early and see the magnificent free street parade.

Moorhead News:—Let the republican party declare in favor of free coinage of silver; the issuance of fractional paper currency; extension of commerce by building up steamship lines and reciprocal trade relations; and more stringent legislation to prevent as well as prohibit trusts, combinations of capital to oppress the poor, and such other remedial acts as are consistent with justice and common sense. Then with good crops and higher prices for products, which are almost sure to follow under the influence of the tariff bill and more money, the republican party will carry the country in 1892.

BIG WHITE TENTS.

Something About Their Future and the Men Who Invest Fortunes In Them.

Within a little over a year two of the most unique and typical Americans that ever rose from penury to opulence have passed from the arena of life and joined the ever increasing parade to which the "miles of free street pageantry" of their big shows, even when measured by the exaggeration of the the high-soaring, imaginative bill-writer, are but the merest mimicry of the mighty silent majority.

A careful survey of the field reveals the fact that the coming men are not from the rank and file of those we may term the old liners, but from the later and more energetic additions of amusement caterers, among whom by far the most prominent, wealthy, and capable are the Ringling Bros., who have for the last few years lacked only the prestige time alone can bring to place them on an equal footing with Barnum and Forepaugh. As regards the latter two shows the public will look with interest upon their movements and see if they can be successfully run without their former leaders. The greatness of these men's shows was too much centered in their remarkable personality to survive the grave. There are other shows that might come in for a chance in the race, were it not for the fact that they presided over by men grown old in the business, who have long since reached the limit of their possibilities. On the contrary, the Ringling Bros. are young men who have hardly more than started on their career as a leading big show, and when the enormous strides they have made in late years in bringing before the public a show of truly wonderful merit and proportions, is considered, conjecture fails to place a limit on their present as well as future possibilities. Besides these considerations there are five of the Ringling brothers, each one capable of managing any one of the large circus institutions, yet the efforts of the five are directed toward the proper management of the one great show. They have also taken a step in the right direction by never resorting to any of the cheap, woolly-horse and whitewashed-elephant style of features of their older but less conscientious rivals, and, while many are blindly imitating the great showman who said the American people wanted to be humbugged, these self-emulating young men have built a monument to themselves by adhering to the idea that the public wants what it pays for and is entitled to see.

Will exhibit at Crookston Friday, June 19th.

Albert Lea Enterprise:—It is reported that Senator Davis has formed a political partnership with ex Gov. Mc Gill and that Gov. Merriam and Joel P. Heatwole are working together, and we arise right here to remark that if the Republican party has to go into factional fights again, the "other fellows" will hold the offices. Why not let the rank and file of the people say a word or two about who they want for servants?

THE COAST FAKE.

Experience of a Gentleman Recently Returned From Washington.

Grand Forks Daily Herald.

A gentleman lately arrived from the much advertised Puget Sound country, in the new state of Washington, gives the Herald the following account of condition of affairs there at present:

"The Puget Sound country is in a very torpid condition at the present time, and has been so for over a year past. From present indications the reaction is not likely to set in for several years to come. Cause—too much boom. The country has been boomed nigh unto death, until its stock in trade consisting of "glorious climate," "inexhaustible coal and lumber resources," etc., can stand the strain no longer. Its cities are filled to overflowing with men seeking employment and thousands more are pouring in each month only to find out the truth when, having been unable to get work, their money is gone and they find themselves powerless to get back to the solid, conservative East.

In consequence of the great falling off in the amount of eastern capital shipped in for investment the real estate market is sluggish, in fact nearly dead. This has made money scarce and business men are cutting down expenses to the lowest notch in the endeavor to keep from being swamped. No new clearks are being employed and the old ones must work for lower wages or quit; and there are hundreds of men just as competent as they who are glad to work for anything that is offered. I was much amused at a card I saw in a Tacoma shoe dealer's window. He had recently come out from Philadelphia, and occupied a small store perhaps sixteen or eighteen feet front and about thirty or forty feet deep. His anouncement of his closing out sale read somewhat like this: "$200 a month rent for this little store! Can't stand it! If I don't sell out I will have to walk back to Philadelphia. Will sell at twenty-five per cent below cost I can ride back! Am I fooling? Never." And he was not fooling either, for he almost gave shoes away; and succeeded in getting out about the first of May. I suppose he is in slow but sure Philadelphia by this time satisfied that the coast country is not what it is cracked up to be.

Rents are indeed outrageous. A largestore on any of the main business streets in Seattle or Tacoma rent anywhere from $350 to $500 per month, and even higher. An eight or ten room frame house rents from $40 to $75 per month. Real estate is still held at absurdly high figures despite the fact that no one wants to buy it at present prices. Two years ago the real estate men were as princes; now they are not; but they still hang on and hope for better things.

The climate, about which so much has been said in praise, is not a pleasant one, according to my taste: At this season of the year, it is hot during the day, while the nights are uncomfortably cool, and there is so much dampness in the air that one cannot sit on his veranda of an evening without being warmly wrapped. Beginning with the latter part of October and not ending until at least May first is the reign of the rainy season. During these seven or eight months it is rain, rain, and still more rain, with scarcely ever a clear day. As most of the streets are unpaved, and the soil of such a character as to form the stickiest kind of mud, the pleasure of life during the winter months is not unalloyed. NEWSPAPER LAW.

1. Any person who takes a paper regularly from the post office, whether he has subscribed or not, is responsible for the payment.

2. If any person orders his paper discontinued he must pay all arrears, or the publisher may continue to send it until payment is made and then collect the whole amount, whether the paper is taken from the office or not.

3. In suits for subscriptions, the suit may be instituted where the paper is published.

4. The Courts have decided that refusing to take newspapers or periodicals from the post office, or removing and leaving them uncalled for, while unpaid for, is prima facie evidence of intention to defraud.

Absurd and Disgusting.

St. Paul Daily News.

It is about time for the newspaper correspondents to give the public a rest relative to Mr. Blaine's health and mental abilites.

Mr. Blaine is by all odds the ablest man in the republican party and in some respects the strongest. It is not likely that he will ever be President, because a man of ability always creates antagonisms, and it is the negative character, the man who does not have force enough to take position, who is the available politician.

It is not probable that Mr. Blaine will be the republican nominee for President in '92. It is not probable that, if he was, he would be elected, but he is nevertheless the strongest and most popular man in the republican party.

The fact that he is strongest in republican states has heretofore been an element of weakness, because it was felt necessary by the party to cater to the doubtful states, but the states which have been the strongests republican have latterly wheeled into the doubtful column, and consequently a man who is strong in the heretofore solid republican states now become an important factor in politics.

But whether Mr. Blaine is ever the President nominee or not, the attempt to kill him by reports that his big toe is painful with the gout and that his brain never has recovered from the attack of some years ago, is both absure and disgusting.

The Chronic Kicker.

The poet says: "What is more perfect than a day in June?" And nowhere in the world are June days so perfect as in the great Northwest. And yet for some inscrutable purpose, Providence permits the chronic kicker to infest even June days. You have seen the "kicker" haven't you? Of no particular sex or age, "he she or it," is omnipresent, always awake and on the lookout for somthing to growl about. The genus is divided into several species, the political kicker, the financia kicker, the religious kicker, the social kicker, and so on, ADINFINITUM. Don't you wish you could escape it? Well, you can't but there is one place where you will find less of him, her, etc., than anywhere else—and that is on the luxurious vestibuled trains of "The Burlington" running between Minneapolis and St. Paul and Chicago and St. Louis. To get as far away from the kicker as possible insist on your ticket agent selling you a ticket over "The Burlington." For any further information about the line, rates, etc. address W. J. C. Kenyon Gen. Pass. Agent C. B. & N. R. R. St. Paul Minn.

Babylon Still Stands!

Heading Ringling Bros.' ponderous heard of performing elephants is "Babylon" the largest elephant in the world. Among others they have the elephantine wonder, "The Umbrella eared Elephant," which positively possesses the largest ears under the sun. This enormous institution will exibit at Crookston on Friday, June 19th. Be on hand early and see the magnificent free street parade.

Moorhead News:—Let the republican party declare in favor of free coinage of silver, the issuance of fractional paper currency, extension of commerce by building up steamship lines and reciprocal trade relations, and more stringent legislation to prevent as well as prohibit trusts, combinations of capital to oppress the poor, and such other remedial acts as are consistent with justice and common sense. Then, with good crops and higher prices for products which are almost sure to follow under the influence of the tariff bill and more money, the republican party will carry the country in 1892.

BIG WHITE TENTS.

Something About Their Future and the Men Who Invest Fortunes In Them.

Within a little over a year two of the most unique and typical Americans that ever rose from penury to opulence have passed from the arena of life and joined the ever increasing parade to which the "miles of free street pageantry" of their big shows, even when measured by the exaggeration of the the high-soaring, imaginative bill-writer, are but the merest mimiory of the mighty silent majority.

A careful survey of the field reveals the fact that the coming men are not from the rank and file of those we may term the old liners, but from the later and more energetic additions of amusement caterers, among whom by far the most prominent, wealthy, and capable are the Ringling Bros., who have, for the last few years lacked only the prestige time alone can bring to place them on an equal footing with Barnum and Forepaugh. As regards the latter two shows the public will look with interest upon their movements and see if they can be successfully run without their former leaders. The greatness of these men's shows was too much centered in their remarkable personality to survive the grave. There are other shows that might come in for a chance in the race, were it not for the fact that they presided over by men grown old in the business, who have long since reached the limit of their possibilities. On the contrary, the Ringling Bros. are young men who have hardly more than started on their career as a leading big show, and when the enormous strides they have made in late years in bringing before the public a show of truly wonderful merit and proportions, is considered, conjecture fails to place a limit on their present as well as future possibilities. Besides these considerations there are five of the Ringling brothers, each one capable of managing any one of the large circus institutions, yet the efforts of the five are directed toward the proper management of the one great show. They have also taken a step in the right direction by never resorting to any of the cheap, woolly-horse and whitewashed-elephant style of features of their older but less conscientious rivals, and, while many are blindly imitating the great showman who said the American people wanted to be humbugged, these self-emulating young men have built a monument to themselves by adhering to the idea that the public wants what it pays for and is entitled to see.

Will exhibit at Crookston Friday, June 19th.

Albert Lea Enterprise:—It is reported that Senator Davis has formed a political partnership with ex Gov. Mc Gill and that Gov. Merriam and Joel P. Heatwole are working together, and we arise right here to remark that if the Republican party has to go into factional fights again, the "other fellows" will hold the offices. Why not let the rank and file of the people say a word or two about who they want for servants?

THE COAST FAKE.

Experience of a Gentleman Recently Returned From Washington.

Grand Forks Daily Herald.

A gentleman lately arrived from the much advertised Puget Sound country, in the new state of Washington, gives the Herald the following account of condition of affairs there at present:

"The Puget Sound country is in a very torpid condition at the present time, and has been so for over a year past. From present indications the reaction is not likely to set in for several years to come. Cause—too much boom. The country has been boomed nigh unto death, until its stock in trade consisting of "glorious climate," "inexhaustible coal and lumber resources," etc., can stand the strain no longer. Its cities are filled to overflowing with men seeking employment and thousands more are pouring in each month only to find out the truth when, having been unable to get work, their money is gone and they find themselves powerless to get back to the solid, conservative East.

In consequence of the great falling off in the amount of eastern capital shipped in for investment the real estate market is sluggish, in fact nearly dead. This has made money scarce and business men are cutting down expenses to the lowest notch in the endeavor to keep from being swamped. No new clearks are being employed and the old ones must work for lower wages or quit; and there are hundreds of men just as competent as they who are glad to work for anything that is offered. I was much amused at a card I saw in a Tacoma shoe dealer's window. He had recently come out from Philadelphia, and occupied a small store perhaps sixteen or eighteen feet front and about thirty or forty feet deep. His anouncement of his closing out sale read somewhat like this: "$200 a month rent for this little store! Can't stand it! If I don't sell out I will have to walk back to Philadelphia. Will sell at twenty-five per cent below cost. I can ride back! Am I fooling? Never." And he was not fooling either, for he almost gave shoes away, and succeeded in getting out about the first of May. I suppose he is in slow but sure Philadelphia by this time satisfied that the coast country is not what it is cracked up to be.

Rents are indeed outrageous. A largestore on any of the main business streets in Seattle or Tacoma rent anywhere from $350 to $500 per month, and even higher. An eight or ten room frame house rents from $40 to $75 per month. Real estate is still held at absurdly high figures despite the fact that no one wants to buy it at present prices. Two years ago the real estate men were as princes; now they are not; but they still hang on and hope for better things.

The climate, about which so much has been said in praise, is not a pleasant one, according to my taste. At this season of the year, it is hot during the day, while the nights are uncomfortably cool, and there is so much dampness in the air that one cannot sit on his veranda of an evening without being warmly wrapped. Beginning with the latter part of October and not ending until at least May first is the reign of the rainy season. During these seven or eight months it is rain, rain, and still more rain, with scarcely ever a clear day. As most of the streets are unpaved, and the soil of such a character as to form the stickiest kind of mud, the pleasure of life during the winter months is not unalloyed. As to young men going from such a country as you have here to seek their fortunes on the shores of Puget Sound, I would say don't do it. You will find only disappointment. Of the myriads who are coming in there now, all who can start on the return trip East after a few days or weeks in vain search for work, that is, provided they have the means. Unfortunately, many are broke and have to remain. What they will do to earn a livelihood is a problem I cannot solve, and it seems to me an outrage that the railroad companies continue leading innocent men to such a country, when they well know that there are already more men there than the country can support. From what I have seen between the Pacific Coast and the Red River Valley, the latter is good enough for me and your city deserves to be called "City of Destiny" far more than does the present holder of the title "Tacoma."

IN MEMORIAM.

CROOKSTON AND VICINITY

TURNS OUT

To Do Honor to the Nation's Dead.

A Fitting Memorial Address, Rich in Patriotic Sentiment, delivered by Hon. E. M. Stanton.

A Band of Lovely Maidens Representing the States.

Scatter Sweet Flowers.

Sad and sacred though it be, yet there is always something dear to the true loyal American heart in the Annual Memorial Services which perpetuate the memories of the brave and the true who laid down their lives in defense of American liberty and American institutions, and there is no survivor of that time which tried men's souls, who took an active part, whose heart does not thrill with sacred emotions as he lives over again those times in these sacred rites. Early on Saturday morning the people began to flock in from the country, and at 1:30 the parade formed in the following order:

Platoon of City Police.
Queen City Band.
Mayor, Orators of the Day, Clergy and City Council in carriages.
Float containing girls representing the States of the Union.
Crookston Fire Department and Juvenile Fire Department.
St. John's Society.
Independent Order of Good Templars.
Sons of Veterans.
Col. George Post, G. A. R., Fertile.
Col. Cobham Post, No. 90, G. A. R.
School children.

The order of march was from the city hall south to Loring avenue, west along Loring avenue to Main street, north along Main street to Fifth, east on Fifth to Broadway and south on Broadway to the old opera house.

The exercises at the opera house were opened with a dirge by the Queen City Band, after which Adjutant V. D. Carruth read the following general orders:

HEADQUARTERS GRAND ARMY OF THE REPUBLIC.
RUTLAND, Vt., April 22, 1891.

General Orders No. 22.

1. Again the warm spring sun reminds us that Memorial day, with its time-honored observance, is near at hand. Regulations are so explicit upon this subject that no formal order urging this sacred duty upon the post is necessary.

For the twenty-third time since the 30th of May was designated for this purpose by Comrade Logan, that commander-in-chief, it is our privilege to render special homage to the memory of our comrades who answer to roll call on earth no more, to pledge ourselves anew in united and solemn chorus to the great principles for which they died and for the perpetuation of which this mighty order is now maintained.

Let no grave be unvisited, no comrade forgotten, and as our children and children's children shall ask, "What mean ye by this service?" Let us point them to the sacrifice of our comrades whom death has mustered out forever, and whose devotion to duty made possible this golden era of our nation, which today, under one flag, is marching on to its glorious destiny; a future assured to this and the coming generations by the conflicts and victories of the period which this day recalls and signalizes.

Standing by these sacred mounds, let us urge that never, while the flowers shall wake to life, while the released waters shall course from the mountains to the sea, while the emancipated earth shall with each returning spring wave its banners of green, shall these memorial service be unperformed or forgotten Let the day be in no manner diverted from its true purpose, but let it be made to teach to the fullest extent its great lesson of patriotism.

II Post commanders are reminded that their arrangements for Memorial day should invariably include attendance by the post in a body upon some form of divine worship upon the preceding Sunday.

This custom has become, and deservedly so, very general, and its appropriateness and desirability are apparent. Some minister of the gospel should be invited to deliver a suitable sermon upon this occasion, and the post should, if practicable, appear in uniform and display their badges and colors, striving in every way to render this a fitting preliminary to our great annual observance.

III. In some departments the custom prevails of having the school children co-operate, the session of school preceding Memorial day being devoted to patriotic teachings, emphasized by the presence at each school of some comrade of the order, and the children asked to share in providing flowers for the following day, and assured that in so doing they become directly identified with the praiseworthy service of Memorial day. It is recommended that post commanders, so far as possible, detail comrades who, in uniform, may appear before each school and briefly suggest action as above.

IV. All posts will make special reports of the day on or before June 10 to department chaplains, who will consolidate the same and report to comrade Myron W. Reed, chaplain-in-chief at Denver, Col., not later than June 20. Post commanders will be held responsible for these reports and they should be promptly rendered.

By command of
W. G. VEAZEY,
Commander-in-chief,
J. H. GOULDING
Adjutant General.

Reading of orders was followed by the Grand Salute to the dead by the Grand Army Posts. Mayor Alex. McKinnon then delivered a brief address of welcome, which was followed by a song—"Sleep, Soldier, Sleep," beautifully rendered by Mr. and Mrs. Chamberlain, Mrs. T. Adams, Mrs. E. C. Carruth, Mr. Robt. Leick, Mr. Fred Mix and Dr. W. A. Robertson, with Miss. Mamie Ayers presiding at the organ.

Prayer by the Rev. Mr. Savage.

Reading of the Scriptures, by Rev. C. F. Sharpe, followed by a solo and chorous, "Noble Souls, The Boys In Blue," very sweetly sang by Mrs. T. Adams, supported by the improvised glee club. Then followed the address of the day by the Hon. E. M. Stanton, who said:

This morning's sun reddened the shore of our Country were the "Cradle of Liberty" was rocked to the sound of Atlantic thunders. When its parting beams at evening crimsons the shore of our Country, where the "Golden Gate" opens into the Ocean Pacific, it will have kissed the dew drops from the graves of over 300,000 soldiers, who in the defense of Union and Liberty were slain upon the field of battle. How fitting it is, that on this 30th day of May, when the air is fragrant with the beautiful bloom of spring, we garland their graves with the choicest flowers of that fair land they loved so well; that returning spring, clothing all earth with beauty, should touch to green their graves and laurel them with flowers that speak more eloquently than tongue or pen, the praises of a people made free by their heroic deeds. "With tears for the dead and cheers for the living", we again,

> "Crown in our hearts those dead heroes of ours,
> And cover them over with beautiful flowers."

It matters not where their manly forms may be resting; whether beneath the shade of the tall palmetto of that far southern country, or in the vine clad cemeteries of the north; whether their graves be marked by monumental stone, or with naught but the cold damp earth for a winding sheet, they sleep in graves unknown, all share and share alike the tribute of a grateful people. Like tranquil sleepers in a dream, memory to-day carries us back to that eventful period in American history, when the rebel cannon belched forth on Sumpter's walls and the black clouds of rebellious war hung low and heavy over Columbia's fair land.

The war of the rebellion was no sudden embroilment of malcontented minds, no revolutionary insurrection precipitated by traitorous hands; no spasmodic attack of an infuriated mob; but a slumbering volcano waiting the shock of a rebel insolence to pour forth its mighty volume of shot and shell-raining death and destruction. The war of the rebellion was not unlooked for. When Abraham Lincoln said, "This Nation cannot live and prosper one half bond and one half free", he foretold the coming of a terrific storm. Long years it had been gathering, and its pent up furies burst upon us with all the horrors of civil war. It shook from turret to foundation the mighty "Temple of Liberty" which our fathers had builded, and the "old ship of state" that had triumphed in many a storm, was tossed upon the wave of an impending crisis. Did the last experiment of popular Government prove a failure? Did the fires kindled on the alter of liberty by our revolutionary sires die out? No! Green were the memories of Concord's Ridge and Bunker Hill, and the spirit of American liberty which defied haughty England at Lexington and at last trailed her standards in the dust at Yorktown was alive in the hearts of the loyal people of the north, who at their Country's call responded with a might of power and quenched fires of sectional hate and civil strife, again restored the Nation to peace and union—a glorious sisterhood of states. To those of you who heard the "tocsin of war" and lived amid those scenes of death and desolation, how vivid are the recollections of war. To those of us, born amid those stirring times that tried the souls of men, the war is but a knowledge of its chonological events. To you it is a living reality. Swiftly the years have glided into eternity. They have gone glimmering through the dream of things that were. You can scarcely believe that a quarter of a century has elapsed since the last gun of the rebellion died away on the banks of the Rio Grande. Though the survivors of the war step with youthful buoyancy, and time has woven many silver threads among the gold, it seems but yesterday that you stood on the threshold of that place to man of all the world the best, "Home, sweet home", and bidding a long farewell to the dearest associations of life march away "to the wild, mad music of war."

Sad indeed must have been the parting; lonely must have been the homes they left behind; dreary must have been the hours of watching and cheerless the glow of the fireside.

> "No children run to lisp their sire's return,
> Or climb his knee, the envied kiss to share."

Many were the hearts that wearied with waiting for him who never returned; many were the tears that trinkled down the cheeks of sorrow when the news of the battle told of loved ones dead upon the field.

> "Not a morning wore
> Into evening, but some hearts did break."

When I think of war with all its associations—its cruelties, hardships and dangers, the question suggests itself to me, what is it that prompts a man to leave the scenes of his early childhood—the blue skies, the green fields and waving woodlands—the home where he spent his sunny boyhood days and at his Country's call go forth to meet certain death? Love of Country is one of the many manifestations of that love which "springs eternal in the human heart." Next to this love of the Creator, patriotism is the highest and noblest affection of the human soul. Prompted by a patriotic impulse our noble dead poured out their life's blood as a libation upon the altar of our Country and by the sacrifice of their lives atoned for the errors of a misguided statesmanship. How like the love of him who for sinners suffered and died upon the Cross of Calvary is the soldier's love of Country. Of earth these men gave all to country and humanity, gave it in the golden radiance of life's early morn, and closed their career in glorious death. Though they be devotees of no other religion, but the liberty of conscience; followers of no other creed, but the constitution of their country; worshippers at no other shrine, but that of patriotism, their record upon the field of battle in defense of the inalienable rights of humanity, merits for them, a robe of white for the faded coat of blue and God's eulogy, well done good and faithful citizen. How sublime is the courage of the soldier; how profound the love of Country in him, who.

> "When trumpets sound,

dares the dangers of the field.

I wish that I were familiar with the language of eulogy, that I might pronounce a fitting encomium on their courage and with appropriate words estimate the value of their services in the defense of those principles which have made us a great and happy people. I can but faintly lisp their praise, "Bravest of the brave"; due to their memory is the undying gratitude of all who love their native land. The union soldier was exceptionally brave, because like the Spartan soldier, he had a brave and heroic mother. While we honor the patriotism of our forefathers, let us not fail to give due reverence to the patriotism of our foremothers, who during the colonial history of our country developed a patriotism unexcelled in the annals of history.

> "Proud were they by such to stand,
> In hammock, fort or glen,
> To load the sure old rifle,
> To run the leaden ball,
> To watch a battling husbands place,
> And fill it should he fall".

If the women who lived during the revolutionary period were brave and valiant, the women who lived during the civil war were no less brave and heroic. It is impossible to estimate the value of the work done by the loyal women of the North; amidst the terrible scenes of those eventful days the great power and energy of woman's work was conspicuous. Upon the field of carnage, amidst the agonizing groans of the hospital and in the prison dens of the South, the ministrations of her kindness were ever present, shedding a radiance of womanly sweetness around the sick and dying. She never faltered in her allegiance to the old flag nor in her sympathy for the union soldier. The loyalty of the southern women to their cause is indicative of the patriotic character of our American women. They encouraged their husbands and sons to enter the war; deprived themselves of every luxury that they might help the boys in grey; tore their clothing into bandages, cut their wedding dresses into flags, and sold their jewelry for medicine. They carded, spun, wove and colored their own garments. Grand Army of the Republic, it were no compliment to the victorious soldier, to ignore and belittle the bravery of his conquered foe. Would it be ungrateful in me, if in the spirit of Him who taught his children to forgive and forget, in pitying forebearance I should say a kind word by the grave of that brother who wore the grey? This is no time to fan to life the dying embers of sectional hate by unkind allusions to the past.

> "Kindness is to do and say,
> The kindest things in the kindest way."

I cannot impugn the motive of those brave southern soldiers who for four long years withstood the shot and shell of history's bloodiest war. The Southern Confedracy was something more than "a sounding brass, a tinkling symbol"; it was backed by an honesty of opinion and the courage of conviction. They were not mercenary soldiers; they fought not for glory only; they did not engage in a war for conquest nor did they follow the star of a conquering hero. They were a brave and generous foe; heroes in an unheroic cause. Their valor was worthy a better purpose.

With the survivors of the "Lost Cause" we rejoice, that the spirit which actuated the rebellion is fast dying out, and in the South we may see many encouraging signs of prosperity and evidence of loyalty to the union cause. Ere another quarter of a century shall have come and gone, the people of the South will look with horror upon the incredible baseness of their cause, and in the stillness of the night will go forth and tear down the marble shafts they have raised to perpetuate their folly, and "grind to toungeless dust the mementos of confessed and pardoned crime."

A quarter of a century has now rolled into the eternity of the past since the clouds of battle cleared away and the roar of the cannon died away into echoless space. To day we are a grand Nation of states united and people inseparable. How proudly our "ship of State" rides the tranquil waters of peace and prosperity. No storms of discord sweeps o'er her deck; no wild waves of sectional jealousy whistles through her rigging. How calmly she floats, gently rocked by waves of energy and the joy of a grateful people. At her mast-head proudly floats the stars and stripes, to which every loyal heart responds.

> "Long may she wave
> O'er the land of the free,
> And the home of the Brave."

Hope standing amid these scenes of peace and prosperity, its prophetic eye Looking down the dim waste of the future see a pathway bright before us.

No Roman in the palmeist days of that once mighty Roman Empire ever boasted of a more perfect freedom than he who lives beneath the folds of the red, white and blue—glorious trinity of freedom's imperishable colors. May no shadow of sectional jealousy ever dim the light of love and patriotism which now brightens our land sanctified by kindred blood, but.

> "Blest be the tie that binds,
> The sons of our fair land,
> In union, both of hearts and hands.
> One fearless, valiant band."

This unincumbered heritage which we are permitted to enjoy was purchased with the blood of thousande of our noblest citizens.

> On fame's eternal camping ground.
> Their silent tents are pitched."

Though silent in death, the record of their deeds is written upon the imperishable page. We cannot honor the old soldier with a reverence too deep. Each memorial day should help to deepen the impression of their victories upon the tablets of our hearts and the revolving years should add new glory to their achievments.

Grand Army of the Republic, you are but a remnant of that grand body of men, who at the breaking out of the war enlisted in the defense of our country. There is scarcely a soldier among you who has not passed the meridian of life. You are now in the declining years of your manhood. Nearly 40,000 of your number are each year mustered out of life's service, and soon your turn will come to join the innumerable band in that mysterous beyond. Old age and infirmity are fast closing in upon you, and soon the last soldier will be called to his eternal home.

> All that beauty, all that wealth ere gave,
> Await alike the inevitable hour,
> The paths to glory lead but to the grave."

But the legacy of your fame will always be the priceless possession of posterity, and the grand aggregate of your victories will gild the tradition of endless centuries. Coming memorial days will weave bright chaplets of honor around each name and passing years will add new luster to your patriotism.

The presence of so many school children here to day prompts me to say a word which I hope will more deeply impress upon their minds the significance of this memorial day. It is a common fault of men too value to lightly that which has cost them most dearly.

Children of the Republic, you are the heirs of those proud champions of freedom who laid broad and deep the foundation of our free institutions and unfurled to heaven's kissing breezes the purest emblem of liberty that ever floated over land or sea. You are the children of a land where the majesty of the common people sits enthroned; where the humblest citizen wears the imperial purple; where every man is the proud possessor of himself—an uncrowned sovereign of the grandest Republic on earth. Do not forget the sacrifices whereby the privileges which constitute the pride and glory of popular goverment were obtained. The noble example of the hosts of heroes who have died for freedom should enkindle in your hearts a deeper patriotic zeal and awaken in each mind the necessity of cultivating a nobler love of country—a patriotism which knows no north nor south, no east nor west.

To day we are standing by the graves of those martyred sons of liberty, who upon the six hundred battle fields of the Civil War sealed their devotion to country by the shedding of patriotic blood. They are hovering around us today and their spirits are gladdened at witnessing these manifestations of patriotism, but you need not long for battle fields upon which to show your love of country. "Eternal vigilance is the price of liberty." In time of peace there are victories to be won no less renowned than those of war. Go children, inspired by the patriotism of those whose memory we commemorate to-day, and in the great moral and political conflicts of your country, armed with a pure and spotless ballot, win victories for home and native land. For the sake of those who died to make men free, ever hold on high that starry emblem of our country's pride and strength, and make its presence everywhere a withering blight to every foreign institution planted upon American soil. Strive to popularize our American nationality to that superlative degree, that any other flag other than the stars and stripes that dares unfold its filthy sheet in the pure atmosphere of American liberty will not excite an idle curiosity, and may those stars of our country's flag, glittering from their firmament of azure blue, brighter and brighter grow until their brillincy outshines them all. So live that this nation may forever stand as a monument to your patriotism and the heroism of our noble dead.

Study well the history of your own country, for each page you will find replete with incentives to patriotism. Study the lives of those great men whose names shine like bright jewels upon the pages of history, for the noble example of their lives, remind us.

> "That we too may make our lives sublime,
> And departing leave behind us,
> Footprints upon the sands of time."

After a piece finely rendered by the Queen City Band, the Juvenile Fire Department marched upon the stage and sang "When We Were Marching Through Georgia," so nicely that the walls of the old opera house rang again with the applause, and as an encore the little fellows sang "Auld Lang Syne," after which the Rev. R. H. Battey took the stand and gave a brief address of ten minutes, saying, among other good things, that he thought, as he rode along in the carriage with the speaker and and His Honor, the Mayor in this parade, that this thing ought to be reversed, that instead of plodding along in the dust the Grand Army boys ought to be riding in the carriages and the other fellows doing the walking. Mr. Battey's brief but eloquent address captured the hearts of the old boys in blue, and when he came down at the close of the exercises and warmly grasped each veteran by the hand, they unanimously voted him "a trump."

"Shed a tear" was effectively rendered by the Glee Club and then came a band of little girls representing the States in slow and solemn procession, strewing flowers, each one repeating a little verse as she deposited her flowers upon the grave, as follows:

MAINE—OLGA SAMPSON.

I bring this wreath of roses
For those who sleep alone
On many a line of battle
Unnumbered and unknown.

NEW HAMPSHIRE—ELLA C. HANSON.

I bring the victor's laurel
From many a mountain height,
Remembering all our heroes
Who perished in the fight.

VERMONT—ELLA WALSH.

I bring the freshest blossoms
In memory of one
Who sailed away at morning
And died at setting sun.

MASSACHUSETTS—FRANKIE COLEMAN.

I bring the rarest jewels
That love has brooded o'er,
Remembering Antietam
And a hundred battles more.

RHODE ISLAND—FLORENCE JACOBUS.

I bring the sweetest treasures
Both of the shore and sea,
For those who fell with Burnside
In hostile Tennessee.

CONNECTICUT—CORA JEROME.

I bring the fragrant lilies,
And through the tears and flames
My heart will still remember
The Army of the James.

NEW YORK—MAMIE DESJARDIN.

I bring the sprays of myrtle,
Recalling all the brave
Who on the Rappahannock
Gave up their lives to save.

PENNSYLVANIA—PHENA NETZER.

I bring the stateliest flowers
That on the mountains blow,
For those who fell at Gettysburg
So many years ago.

NEW JERSEY—LEONORA DOBSON.

I bring of May's bright garlands
And softly lay them down,
For those who with McClellan
Won glorious renown.

DELAWARE—JENNIE G. MCLAREN.

I bring the honeysuckle,
A type of those who fell
Without a prayer to speed them,
Without a fond farewell.

MARYLAND—GRACE LUSIAN.

I bring the oleanders
And place them with a tear
Above the shrouded silence
Of many a lonely bier.

VIRGINIA—LILLIAN PEAKE.

I bring the rare magnolias
That line Potomac's shore;
Above a hundred battlefields
They whisper evermore.

WEST VIRGINIA—ANGIE RONDEAU.

I bring of treasures many,
On lonely mountain stored,
Remembering the Kanawha,
The graves at Carrick's Ford.

NORTH CAROLINA—TEMPE COLMAN.

I bring the snowy blossoms
From fair Carolina's strand,
For sunken fleets at ocean
And shadowy hosts on land.

SOUTH CAROLINA—VIENNA SARGEANT.

I bring a tribute tender
To lay above the brave,
Whose shrouded forms are moldering
In many a Southern grave.

GEORGIA—MINNIE TRUAX.

I bring the fadeless ivy,
The starry immortelle,
For those who stormed Mt. Lookout
And at Resaca fell.

ALABAMA—KATIE MARTIN.

I bring the flowers golden
From many a Southern plain,
For those no trump shall waken
Until they rise again.

FLORIDA—MARY MONTAGUE.

I bring the splendid beauty
Of tropic-tinted bloom
For those their last sleep taking
Within the tangled gloom.

OHIO—GERTIE MARSHALL.

I bring the Buckeye blossoms,
Remembering Sheridan
And those who fought his battles
Along the Rapidan.

INDIANA—JOSIE LALLY.

I bring for Morton's heroes
The lily and the rose;
Alas, that Time shall never
Their resting place disclose.

ILLINOIS—IDA STONE.

I bring for Abraham Lincoln
And many thousands more
The tenderest oblations
That loyal hearts outpour.

MICHIGAN—ELLA BRUNER.

I bring for Custer's legions
And all the marshal line,
The sprays of stately cedar
The victor-crowning pine.

WISCONSIN—RHODA BATES.

I bring with heart of freedom
The wealth of wood and plain,
For those who bore our standard
And ne'er returned again.

KENTUCKY—MARTHA MUNCH.

I bring the sweet blue grasses,
The harebells nodding low,
And o'er the unmarked legions
A jeweled mantle throw.

MISSOURI—HELEN MONTAGUE.

I bring the stately peony,
A symbol true and grand
Of those who fell with Lyon,
To save our own dear land,

IOWA—ANNIE ENGLEHARDT.

I bring the prairie blossoms,
So wondrous and so fair,
For Shiloh and Fort Donelson,
And all our loved ones there,

MINNESOTA—ANNIE KELLEY.

I bring the rare wild flowers
From many a wide estate,
For those who died to make us
A Union strong and great.

NEBRASKA—HARRIET COUVRETTE.

I bring in proud profusion
The treasures of the plain,
To circle round our heroes
A loving flower chain.

KANSAS—OPHELIA LAROCK.

I bring from sunny Kansas
The land of old John Brown,
The sunflower and the poppy,
Earth's royal sons to crown.

MISSISSIPPI—BELLE GODBOUT.

I bring from lands historic,
The sad sultana knew,
The rarest Southern flowers,
Remembering her crew.

LOUISIANA—LAURA WALSTAD.

I bring the proud palmetto,
And flowers fair and tall,
To smile with tears of pity

ARKANSAS—SUSIE MUNROE.

I bring of blossoms many
And strew them once again,
Remembering Red River
And Island Number Ten.

TEXAS—MAUD KELLEY.

I bring the water-lily
That broods above the dead
In river-bend and bayou,
No braver ever led.

TENNESSEE—TASSIE MCDONALD.

I bring from mountains rocky
A thousand thousand flowers;
The heroes of the Cumberland
Command these gifts of ours,

NEVADA—ORPHA ANDTKE.

I bring from sunsets splendid
The jewelled buds of Spring;
The martyrs of Port Hudson,
Be these the men we sing.

CALIFORNIA—RAI WILKINSON.

I bring with arms full laden
From California's strand
The wreaths for Appomattox
And strew with lavish hands.

OREGON—ALMA FONTAINE.

I bring in all the glory
Of May's bewildering smile,
The flowers for the prisons
Of Libby and Belle Isle.

MONTANA—BESSIE FREEMAN.

I bring the garnered beauty
Of many lands to-day,
For fathers and for brothers
So early passed away.

NORTH DAKOTA—NORA FULLER.

I bring the buds unfolding,
The types so early fled,
Of hearts in anguish breaking
Above the sacred dead.

SOUTH DAKOTA—ALICE TRUAX.

I bring Love's odorous offerings
For Grant, the man of peace,
And the heroes of his armies
God give of such increase.

WASHINGTON—LILY GONYEA.

I bring my choicest garlands
For mother and for wife;
And our dear Army Nurses
Who faced the cruel strife.

COLORADO—LENA LEGUEE.

I bring from mountains hoary,
From crevices of snow,
The rarest flowers that blossom,
Because we loved them so.

DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA—MISS. LIZZIE ZARRACHER.

They know not what sweet duty
We come each year to pay,
Nor heed the blooms of beauty,
The garland gifts of May,
Strewn here to-day.

"The night time and the day-time,
The rise and set of sun,
The winter and the May-time,
To them whose work is done,
Are all as one."

Then o'er mine eyes there floated
A vision of the land
Where their brave souls promoted
To Heaven's own armies, stand
At God's right hand.

From out the mighty distance
I seem to see them gaze
Back on the old existence,
Back on the battle blaze
Of war's dead days.

"The flowers shall fade and perish,"
In larger faith spake I,
"But these dear names we cherish
Are written in the sky,
And cannot die."

After which the States kneeled, the audience arose and joined in singing "America," at the close of which the rear curtain arose disclosing the Goddess of Liberty holding a large flag, with a group of veteran soldiers at one side and sailors on the other. The scene, illuminated by colored lights, presented a grand effect. The curtain fell and the benediction was pronounced by the Rev. F. C. Whitney and the audience dispersed after one of the most impressive seasons of the kind ever witnessed in Crookston.

NOTES.

To the efforts of comrade D. Jacobus, is due much of the success of the States on this occasion.

Miss Frankie Barnes made an exceedingly lovely appearance as the Goddess of Liberty, standing like a statue, and seemingly as breathless, during the tableau.

The Juvenile Fire Department deserves more than a passing notice. It is composed of boys from 13 years old down to 6 who are excellently drilled. Their songs were highly appreciated. They are a credit to their drill-master, Jack McLaren.

The rendition of the post of the District of Columbia, by Miss Lizzie Zarracher, was especially fine and impressive. Miss Lizzie is the brave daughter of a brave comrade.

The Ladies of the Episcopal church will hold a United States apron fair and sociable at the Reading Room on Tuesday Evening, June 11th. Invitation extended to all,

Regular service conducted by the Pastor at the Congregational church next Sunday, 11 a. m. "The Nurseries of Religion." 8 p. m. "The Problem of Life." Sunday school at noon. Y. P. S. C. E. meeting 7 to 7:45 p. m. Kind welcome to all at every service.

F. G. Thompson started with his family for a visit to the old home in Grant County. He has not been there in 'steen years, and says he proposes to wreak sweet vengeance on the black bass that do much abound in the waters of Grant county. From his talk we should judge that he intends to absorb enough "bass" to make himself a singer.

Lewis Larock has sold his city property to his son-in-law, Robert Leick and will go to Rhode Island to live as soon as his son, who is now sick with the measles, is able to travel. Comrade Larock is one of those honest, upright men whom it is a detriment to a city to lose, but in our loss, the place wherein he shall abide in the future, will gain a good citizen.

The thorough manner in which county attorney A. R. Holston is attending to his duties shows that the voters of Polk County made no common error when they elected him to the responsible office of county attorney. Holston will "let no guilty man escape" if he can help it and he generally can.

The three mile race at the skating rink on Saturday evening between E. Moeckel and Albert Halverson, was won by the former by a quarter lap. Halverson had the misfortune to get a bad fall which so demoralized his physical system as to cause him to lose the race. He says he can beat Emil if he can keep his understanding.

W. G. Hunt, editor and propreiter of the new paper at McIntosh—the News, was in the city last week and gave THE JOURNAL a pleasant call. He said that at the meeting in McIntosh week before last the Plano folks took the contract for furnishing binders to the farmers and alliance secretarys will be the agents. Three carloads of binders were ordered. He says crops are looking exceedingly fine this spring.

Seth Abbott the venerable father of the late celebrated actress, Emma Abbott, was in the city this week to establish an agency for the sale of "The Life and Professional career of Emma Abbott," and THE JOURNAL is indebted for a pleasant call, also for a copy of the work which we will review at our earliest convenience. Mr. Abbot is a very entertaining old gentleman and gave us many interesting details of his talented daughter. He arranged with Herb Mason for the sale of his book and left for Fargo on Tuesday evening's train.

In a private letter to the editor of THE JOURNAL, Ed. H. Love, of the Kittsen Enterprise, says of two 18 month Holstein-Friesian heifers that he purchased from our herd in the fall of 1889: "The purchase of those two heifers was the best bargain I ever made and they are the greatest pair of cows I ever saw. They have given me a pair of heifer calves this spring, sired by Everett and perfectly marked." Ed is also a great horse fancier and owns the best stable in Kittson County.

ADDITIONAL LOCALS.

It will pay you to look into Fontaine & Anglim's bargain department.

Congregational lawn social this evening at the residence of S. Ware Esq. Everybody come.

Herb will take pleasure in supplying you with a copy of Emma Abbott's life. It is a very interesting work and one that our music loving citizens can appreciate.

Charlie Misner, will open a barber shop next door to Peake's harness shop on Main Street some day this week. Everything will be kept in first-class city style. Give Charlie a call.

Sheriff Jack Kivel, came in on the N. P. train on Wednesday morning from a few days visit at Duluth and Superior. He arrived just too late for the train north so had to stop over a day.

Chris Houston is erecting a comfortable residence on his farm near the city. It will be 26x16 with an ell 4x18. Chris says he shall not go in as much for style as for comfort and proposes to make that house warm if it takes every colt on the place to do it. It seems he is trading colts for the carpenter work.

Chris Houston wishes us to say that if those people who persist in riding over his wheat on the Greenhalgh place don't quit it, they will hear something drop one of these times. He will load up his old fusee and go into ambush one of these days and somebody will take a sudden tumble to the situation, "and the gobbelins will git you if you don't watch out!"

The entertainments given by the McLean-Prescott combination last week at the Grand Opera house were the finest of the kind ever given in this city. On Wednesday "Spartacus" was presented to a good audience and on Thursday "Cleopatria" filled the house. Miss Prescott is a strong emotional actress while McLean has few superiors now on the stage, though the play of Cleopatria does not call forth his full powers.

Charles Misner, who last year disposed of all his interest in goods and chattels on this mundane sphere and departed for Tacoma to grow up with the country has got his growth—and returns to the land of his first love—the Red River Valley. Charles is not saying much but his very silence is eloquent, indicating that he has a very great sufficiency in him. From what he does say we infer that the great trouble on the coast is not a lack of immigration but too much of it. Too many go there with just means sufficient to get there and the result is about ten men to every job. That country will now have to undergo the usual experience of new countries after a big boom.

RINGLINGS HERE.

Wisconsin State Journal Madison, May 4th.

The small boys are happy. The first circus has struck the town. Ringling Bros.' aggregation has set its tents on the Keyes block, in the Sixth ward, and is exhibiting to the people of Madison and vicinity to day. Long before the time for the parade to come up town the streets were filled with people from the city and country desirous of witnessing the exhibition. The procession came up Main street a few minutes before 11 o'clock, with the bands playing and the glittering wagons shining in the sunlight. It was a grand display, and surpassed anything in the show line that has ever visited the city. The costumes are all new, and the participants in the procession were appareled like princes and princesses.

The Ringling Brothers have indeed shown a spirit of enterprise worthy of patronge in providing a good entertainment for the people. It is clean and devoid of any objectionable features whatever, the gentlemen having made an effort to have a performance that would not be distasteful to refined persons and one which ladies and children can safely attend without discovering anything which would in the least be offensive. Their efforts have not been in vain. The show is replete with novelties, full of good exhibitions of skill and strength and clown fun that is devoid of coarseness.

The paraphernalia is transported from place to place on several trains of handsome cars fitted out with air brakes and all the modern appliances for safety. Will exhibit at Crookston Friday June 19th.

Grand Mastodon Minstrels.

The programme for the event of the season which occurs at the Grand Opera House on Friday, (to-morrow) evening, has been completed and is as follows: Grand Overture—by the whole bilin.' Jubilee song—"Speak Aisy," by W. F. Arnold—a brilliant new star upon the horizon, imported direct from RedRiverValleyRollerMills, a high roller and a general all 'round good man—don't fail to listen at him. "I am Not Baby McKee," You Bet, by Frank Gravel, a new character specialist, imported especially for this event at great expense to the management. As this is his first (and probably last)engagment he should be listened at with wrapt attention by a large and enthusiastic audience. "The Laylock," by W. F. Bugg—and what a Bugg don't know about a lilac, Williams will tell you on "Jasper's Birthday." Lew Theurer, will, (for the present occasion only) be an "Angel in the Sky"—and such an angel! The Times man says this character is a PERFECT "angle" but we imagine Lew will act it on the square all right. After this great act Frank Gravel will bid you all a fond and affectionate "Fare You Well"—snatch his grip and hasten out on the road to wear his well-earned laurels and make up for lost time. The oleo(margerine) will be a mysterious compound, composed of the great and only Gilhooley in an original and impromptu Irish Declamation, which he has spent many hours trying in vain to write and finally borrowed of Hank Murray with the promise to return all that is left of it after he has recited it—then Herb Mason will do some funny business in the conjuring line, Mrs. T. Adams will sing a ballad, Mrs. Casad will play a violin solo, S. Ware will proceed to relate "What I (don't) know about Women's Rights," a double male quartette will figure conspicuously an overture will be made by the orchestra in the vain endeavor to reconcile the heterogeneous mass, and the whole business will wind up with the roaring farce, "Where ish Mine Dog? (ask Henault) or the sausage masheen" If you want to enjoy a good laugh and have a jolly good time don't fail to secure your seat early.

A Perfect Horse.

From time immemorial the horse has been known as man's constant companion. From Homer to Byron this noblest of all animals has been immortalized in verse and even in holy writ. He has been described in language of the most sublime inspiration. He occupies a position in both our admiration, necessities, and affections above all other domestic animals. The Ringling Bros. World's Greatest Show, which exhibits at Crookston on Friday, June 19th, possesses three-hundred of the finest horses and ponies ever bred. Among them are scores of educated performing equines, including "Spider," the great leaping horse; "Captain," the lightning calculator, and "Sultan" the dancing stallion. Be sure and see the fine stock in their free street parade.

MORTGAGE SALE.

[First publication June 4th, 1891.]

WHEREAS, KNUDT H. BERG AND Aguette Berg, his wife, of Polk County, State of Minnesota, as mortgagors, did, on the 19th day of November, A. D. 1883, duly execute and deliver to Horace Alling, of the County of Essex, State of New Jersey, their mortgage bearing date of November 4th, A. D. 1883, whereby they mortgaged to said mortgagee the following described lands situated in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, to-wit: Southwest quarter (sw¼) Section 24, Township 148, Range 45 west, containing 160 acres, to secure the payment, of the sum of six hundred fifty dollars, with interest thereon, according to the conditions of one certain promissory note, with interest coupons attached, bearing even date with said mortgage, and made by said mortgagors to said mortgagee, or order, which said mortgage was on the 19th day of November, A. D. 1883, at 1:30 p. m., duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for said County of Polk, in book 37 of mortgages on page 180; and

Whereas, default has been made in the payment of the sum of fifty-two and 57-100 dollars due as interest upon said mortgage on the 1st day of January, A. D. 1890, and on the further sum of forty-five and 50-100 dollars, due as interest thereon on the 1st day of January, A. D. 1891, and the said interest is still unpaid and due; and

Whereas, it was stipulated by and between the parties to said mortgage, that if default should be made in any of the conditions or covenants therein contained on the part of the mortgagors, to be kept and performed, that then and from thenceforth it shall be lawful for the said mortgagee, his heirs, administrators, executors or assigns to consider and declare the whole sum secured thereby as immediately due and payable without notice to said mortgagors or any other party; and

Whereas, the said Horace Alling has exercised his option to consider and declare, and does hereby consider and declare the whole sum of money secured by said mortgage to be due and payable; and

Whereas, there is now due, and claimed to be due on said mortgage at the date of this notice the sum of seven hundred seventy-three and 87-100 dollars, and no proceedings have been instituted at law or otherwise to recover the same or any part thereof.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of a power of sale in said mortgage contained and therewith recorded, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the land therein described, which sale will be made by the Sheriff of Polk County, at the front door of the Court House, in the city of Crookston, in said County and State, on the 31st day of July, A. D. 1891, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon of that day, at public vendue to the highest bidder for cash, to pay the sum due on said mortgage, together with taxes, if any, on said premises, and fifty dollars attorney's fees therein stipulated to be paid in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the date of sale as provided by law.

Dated June 1st, A. D. 1891.

Notice of Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

(First publication May 28th, 1891.)

DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE IN THE conditions of a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Thomas Allard and Susie Allard, his wife, mortgagors, to Northwestern Guaranty Loan Company, mortgagee, bearing date the 5th day of September, A. D. 1889, and duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the 5th day of September, A. D. 1889, at 9:25 o'clock a. m., in book 47 of mortgages, on page 29.

Whereas, such default consists of the failure to pay the following installments of interest, to-wit: $39.17 that became due May 1st, 1890, $30.00 that became due November 1st, 1890, and $30.00 that became due May 1st, 1891. And whereas the said Northwestern Guaranty Loan Company, the holder of said mortgage, has elected to declare, and hereby does declare, the whole principal sums in said mortgage set forth due and payable at the date of this notice under the terms and conditions of said mortgage and the power of sale therein contained.

And whereas there is actually due and payable at the date hereof upon the premises in said mortgage described the following sum, to-wit: Eleven hundred and twenty-one dollars and forty cents, ($1,121.40) $1,106.90 thereof being principal and interest thereon and $14.50 being for the premiums on insurance necessarily paid by mortgagee, October 7th, 1890, and interest thereon, and whereas the said power of sale has become operative, and no action or proceeding at law, or otherwise, has been instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed, and the premises described in and covered by said mortgage, viz: The southwest quarter (sw¼) of Section thirty-two, (32), in Township one hundred and fifty (150) north, of Range forty-one (41) west, containing 160 acres more or less according to the government survey thereof; said premises situate and being in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances, will be sold at public auction to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt and interest, insurance and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and fifty dollars attorney's fee, as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk County, at the front door of the Court House, in the City of Crookston, in said County and State, on at 10 o'clock a. m. of that day, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale as provided by law.

Dated May 12th, A. D. 1891.

MORTGAGE SALE.

(First publication May 28th, 1891.)

WHEREAS DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE in the payment of the sum of two hundred and forty-six dollars ($246.00) which is claimed to be due at the date of this notice upon a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by David R. McGinnis to P. C. Sletten and John Cromb, of Polk County, Minnesota, bearing date the first day of December, A. D. 1883, and, with a power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the 6th day of December, A. D. 1883, at 11:30 o'clock a. m., in book "H" of mortgages, on page 135.

And whereas P. C. Sletten, one of the mortgagees named in said mortgage, died testate, at Crookston, Polk County, Minnesota, on the 8th day of July, A. D. 1884.

And whereas the last will and testament of the said P. C. Sletten was proved and admitted to probate in the Probate Court of Polk County, Minnesota, on the 26th day of July, A. D. 1884.

And, whereas, by the terms of said will Kari Sletten, the wife of the said P. C. Sletten, was made the sole legatee and devisee of all the real and personal property of which he died seized aforesaid.

And, whereas, the Probate Court of said Polk County issued its final decree in the estate of P. C. Sletten, deceased, dated Aug. 6, 1887, by the terms of which the said Kari Sletten was decreed to have an undivided half interest in the above described mortgage, which said decree was duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for said County of Polk, on the 11th day of May, 1888, at 1:30 p. m., in book 29 of deeds, on pages 574 to 578 inclusive, and no action or proceeding having been instituted, at law or otherwise, to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now therefore, notice is hereby given, that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, viz: Lots four (4) and five (5) in block six (6), in Cromb and Sletten's subdivision of outlots in Hurlbut's addition to Crookston, in Polk County and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances, which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk County, at the front door of the Court House in the City of Crookston, in said County and State, on the 13th day of July, A. D. 1891, at ten o'clock a. m. of that day, at public vendue to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and twenty-five dollars attorney's fees, as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale as provided by law.

Dated May 20th, A. D. 1891.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, County of Polk—ss In Probate Court. Special Term, May 26th 1891.

On receiving and filing the petition of C. A. Johnson, of the county of Polk, representing among other things that Gould C. Johnson, late of the County of Polk in the State of Minnesota, on the 10th day of April, A. D. 1891, at the County of Polk, died intestate, and being an inhabitant of this County at the time of his death, leaving goods, chattels and estate within this County, and that the said petitioner is a brother of said deceased, and praying that administration of said estate be to said C. A. Johnson granted.

It is ordered that said petition be heard before this court, on Tuesday, the 23d day of June, A. D. 1891, at 10 o'clock a. m., at the Probate Office in Crookston, in said county.

Ordered further, that notice thereof be given the heirs of said deceased, and to all persons interested, by publishing this order once in each week for three successive weeks prior to said day of hearing, in the POLK COUNTY JOURNAL, a weekly newspaper printed and published at Crookston, in said county.

Dated at Crookston, the 26th day of May, A. D. 1891.

Notice of Mortgage Sale by Advertisement.

[First publication June 4th, 1891.]

WHEREAS, DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE in the conditions of a certain mortgage executed and delivered by Nettie F. Miller and Paul Miller, her husband, mortgagors, to Johnston Wagner, mortgagee, dated the 12th day of November, A. D. eighteen hundred and eighty-seven, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of the County of Polk, in the State of Minnesota, on the 16th day of November, A. D. 1887, at 11:49 o'clock, a. m., in book "T" of mortgages, on page 417, on which there is claimed to be due at the date of this notice the amount of eight hundred and forty and 60-100 dollars, and no action or proceeding has been instituted at law or in equity to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now, Notice is hereby given, that by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage, and of the statute in such case made and provided, said mortgage will be foreclosed by sale of the mortgaged premises therein described, at public auction, at the front door of the Court House, in the City of Crookston, in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on

MONDAY, THE 20TH DAY OF JULY,

A. D. eighteen hundred and ninety-one, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, to satisfy the amount which shall then be due on said mortgage, with the interest thereon, and costs and expenses of sale, and fifty dollars attorney's fees, as stipulated in said mortgage in case of foreclosure.

The premises described in said mortgage, and so to be sold, are the lot, piece or parcel of land situated in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, and known and described as follows, to-wit: The northwest quarter (nw¼) of Section thirty-two, (32), Township one hundred and forty-nine (149) north, of Range forty-three (43) west of 5th principal meridian, containing 160 acres, more or less, according to the government survey thereof.

MORTGAGE SALE.

WHEREAS, Frank Johnson and Anna Johnson, his wife, of Polk County, State of Minnesota, as mortgagors, did, on the 8th day of March, A. D. 1888, duly execute and deliver to Hannah Amelia Armstrong, of the County of Broome, State of New York, their mortgage, bearing date of March 1st, A. D. 1888, whereby they mortgaged to said mortgagee the following described lands situated in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, to-wit: The southwest quarter of section 33, Township 153, Range 44 west, containing 163 acres, to secure the payment of the sum of six hundred dollars, with interest thereon, according to the conditions of one certain promissory note, with interest coupons attached, bearing even date with said mortgage, and made by said mortgagors to said mortgagee, or order, which said mortgage was on the 8th day of March, A. D. 1888, at 6 o'clock p. m., duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for said County of Polk, in book 37 of mortgages, on page 102; and

Whereas, default has been made in the payment of the sum of thirty-five dollars, due as interest upon said mortgage on the 1st day of January, A. D. 1889, and on the further sum of forty-two dollars due as interest upon said mortgage on the 1st day of January, A. D. 1890, and on the further sum of forty-two dollars, due as interest thereon on the first day of January, A. D. 1891, and the said interest is still unpaid and due; and

Whereas, it was stipulated by and between the parties to said mortgage, that if default should be made in any of the conditions or covenants therein contained on the part of the mortgagors, to be kept and performed, that then and from thenceforth it shall be lawful for the said mortgagee, her heirs, administrators, executors or assigns, to consider and declare the whole sum secured thereby as immediately due and payable without notice to said mortgagors or any other party; and

Whereas, The said Hannah Amelia Armstrong has exercised her option to consider and declare, and does hereby consider and declare the whole sum of money secured by said mortgage to be due and payable; and

Whereas, there is now due, and claimed to be due on said mortgage at the date of this notice the sum of seven hundred forty-two and 32-100 dollars, and no proceedings have been instituted at law or otherwise to recover the same or any part thereof.

Now, therefore notice is hereby given that by virtue of a power of sale in said mortgage contained and therewith recorded, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the land therein described, which sale will be made by the Sheriff of Polk County, at the front door of the Court House, in the city of Crookston, in said County and State, on the 20th day of June, A. D. 1891, at ten o'clock in the forenoon of that day, at public vendue to the highest bidder for cash, to pay the sum due on said mortgage, together with taxes, if any, on said premises, and fifty dollars attorney's fees therein stipulated to be paid in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the date of sale as provided by law.

Notice of Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

First publication May 21st, 1891.

DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE IN THE conditions of a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Charles Kindler and Minnie Kindler, his wife, mortgagors, to Northwestern Guaranty Loan Company, mortgagee, bearing date the 29th day of June, A. D. 1888, and duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the 5th day of July, A. D. 1888, at 3:10 o'clock p. m., in book 36 of mortgages, on pages 234-2.

Whereas, such default consists of the failure to pay the installments of interest that became due December 29th, 1888, June 29th, 1889, December 29th, 1889, June 29th, 1890, and December 29th, 1890, each of said installments being for $28. And whereas the said Northwestern Guaranty Loan Company, the holder of said mortgage, has elected to declare, and hereby does declare, the whole principal sums in said mortgage set forth due and payable at the date of this notice under the terms and conditions of said mortgage and the power of sale therein contained.

And whereas there is actually due and payable at the date hereof upon the premises in said mortgage described the following sum, to-wit: Nine hundred and seventy-three dollars and ten cents, ($973.10) and whereas the said power of sale has become operative, and no action or proceeding at law or otherwise has been instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed and the premises described in and covered by said mortgage, viz: The southeast quarter (se¼) of Section twenty-six, (26), in Township one hundred and fifty-two (152) north, of Range forty-five (45) west, containing 160 acres. Said premises situate and being in the county of Polk and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances, will be sold at public auction, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and twenty-five dollars attorney's fee, as stipulated in and by said mortgage, in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk County, at the front door of the Court House, in the City of Crookston, in said County and State, on

KELLER ON HIS HOBBY.

The Irrepressible Stearns County Statesman Talks Upon Binding Twine.

And Shows How Farmers Can Effect an Immense Saving of Money.

St. Paul Daily Globe.

"It reminds me of old times when the Indians used to bring their buffalo meat and sell it to us and then buy it back again after awhile," quoth Senator Henry Keller at the Merchants' yesterday.

The jolly senator was in a communicative mood and freely submitted to an interview relative to the results of the experiments that have just been conducted by the state at Hastings in preparing Minnesota-raised flax for the binding twine machines that are in operation at the state penitentiary.

"I'll explain what I mean," he continued. "The Minnesota farmer raises the flax; he sends the product off and it is converted into binding twine, and then he buys it back again. They pay the freight both ways, the profit of the various processes under which the flax has to go and the freight back again, besides the profits of all the middlemen. I have demonstrated that this, is all unnecessary. After five years' hard labor I have demonstrated that every farmer can manufacture his own binding twine, and I am on my way right now for Columbia, Tenn., where I am going to put the project into actual operation. I have invented a machine that will make binding twine, 100 pounds tensile strength, out of raw straw of any sort, hay or swamp grass. The flax makes the strong twine I speak of, although any of the other materials enumerated are of sufficient strength.

"My binder is attached to the Deering reaper, and it works to perfection. The machine for making the twine is operated by two men and has a capacity of fifty feet a minute, and the cost cannot exceed a quarter of a cent a pound for manufactured twine. So, you see, any farmer can make twine enough for a whole township at a round profit. The barley harvest is on now in Tennessee, and I am going down there to show what my binder and my twine will do. There is no waste of seed. The machine cuts off all the seed as it makes the twine.

"Now, I want to tell you something about flax culture" resumed the senator after a moment's reflection. "The state prison board deserves great credit for saving thirty one tons of straw that would otherwise have been thrown away at Hastings. We have spent considerable time experimenting with this straw, and we have succeeded admirably. There is a waste of about fifty per cent because of the method employed in rotting the straw. But it makes excellent binding twine. There are several machines in operation in the prison, and I have one there also. I have left it so that the prison board may inspect its workings at the meeting that will be held there early in June.

"The farmers, in order to secure the best results, must keep their straw straight. The common practice has been in this state to raise flax for the seed only, and they have mowed it down and retted it, if retted at all, in a tangled mess. There is a big waste. It should be tied up in bundles. If it is not to be pulled up by the roots, the ground should be thoroughly rolled and made smooth at the time of sowing, and then in harvesting a binder, if set as low as possible, will save the entire length of the straw. This will make live fiber fit for the manufacture of linen goods. Such straw, when properly retted in soft water, is worth from $200 to $300 a ton. Two tons can be grown on an acre of ground, and the seed, in addition, will be worth fully $15 an acre. The rough straw is worth $25 a ton. One and three-fourths bushels of seed should be sown on each acre to raise good fiber. The ordinary rule, where seed is the only object, is to sow half a bushel to three pecks. My machine for breaking this sort of material saves everything. With one operation it pours the seed into a sack, blows the shives away and turns out the fiber. One machine will break a ton in a day and two men operate it. You can figure it out yourself. Flax is surely the most profitable crop the farmer can raise if he cares for it properly."

Mr. Keller, accompanied by his partner, George H. Ellis, left for Tennessee last evening.

THE RED RIVER VALLEY FARMER.

BY FRED W. DAVIS.

Asia and Europe combined
  Will have no use for binding twine.
Completely has their wheat crop failed
  Where 'ere the biting frost assailed.

What will they do? Their farms refuse
  To yield enough for their own use.
With eager eyes, this way, look they
  To the wheat crops of America.

Tinted green is our broad plains,
  With fields of wheat and other grains.
We do not rejoice at their great loss,
  But rejoice in giving them our surplus.

Rains we have from heaven's vault,
  And we have no grounds for finding fault.
Farmers of America, rejoice,
  Our wheat will bring a better price.

We need not use our leisure time
  Spinning by hand our binding twine,
Since our Legislature, for a good reason,
  Has put machinery in Stillwater prison.

Last year the price of twine was tossed
  To its highest limits. But now at cost
It will be sold direct to the farmer,
  To help him the golden grain to garner.

No middle men shall interfere,
  And make the price of twine so dear,
And the husbandman, with a strong right arm,
  Will lift the mortgage from his farm

The farmer will be called, no more,
  "A mossback or a hay seed bore."
His brow with manliness bedecked,
  Will he looked up to in respect.

Beef has taken an upward turn,
  No longer do we the critter spurn.
No longer we'll burn the poplar pole,
  We'll have money to buy Dakota coal.

The Legislature has broken the spell,
  The sugar trust from its height has fell.
Farmers, rejoice, our prospects are bright,
  We'll work our farms with all our might.

Memorial Sunday.

New York Press.

More and more Decoration day is becoming a semi-religious occasion. The custom of holding memorial services in the churches on the Sunday preceding or following the 30th of May, and often on both the preceding and following Sundays, has been for many years increasing. These services are often held in co-operation with local posts of the G. A. R., and the veterans attend in a body. Usually, though not always, the principal address is made by a clergyman, and more frequently than otherwise takes the form of a sermon upon some topic and from some text appropriate to inspire patriotic sentiments. This growing custom is good. It is good for the churches, for the G. A. R. and for the country. The grandly fundamental ideas of religion are in harmony with those lofty motives which sent hundreds of thousands of brave men forth from homes, friends, kindred and chosen pursuits to risk all for the salvation of their country in its hour of peril.

It is altogether fitting, therefore, that patriot thoughts be this morning turned by the press as well as the pulpit toward those aspects of Memorial day which have a religious bearing. And in the first place, it is well to recall the fact that the war for the Union was a war for righteousness. Some hurtful nonsense needs to be firmly put one side. The war was not "a little unpleasantness." It was not "the late misunderstanding." It was not, as to its essential meaning, "a war between the States." It was not even, in any fundamental sense, a war between the North and the South. It was the war of the Rebellion. The Rebellion was treason. It was treason against lawful government, treason against human rights, treason against God. The War of the Rebellion was a renewal on earth of that mystic and awful strife recorded in Holy Writ: "And there was war in heaven; Michael and his angels warred against the dragon, and the dragon fought, and his angels, and prevailed not, neither was there peace found any more in heaven."

Let us not be misunderstood. We are giving utterance to no bitter anathemas with reference to the men who fought on the wrong side in our terrible conflict. Tens and hundreds of thousands of Confederate soldiers were honest in their intentions. They thought they were in the right. Now, if they yet live they know they were in the wrong. If they died too soon to discover their grievous error the mantle of a redeemed nation's charity shall shield their untimely graves from all upbraiding. It is not the men who drew sword to slay their country whom we liken unto enemies of heavenly powers, but the false ideas for which they strove, not knowing, it may be, what they did. We judge them not, but we say that slavery, disunion, rebellion were evil, only evil, and that continually. And we say it without malice. We say it not because we would, but because we must, in the interest of simple truth, in the interest of that common country which is dear, now, to all who deserve the name American, North or South, East or West. We should be false to the memory of the loyal dead whose honored graves we bedeck with flowers if we forbore to declare in all kindness of spirit toward those who once were foes, but now are friends, that these patriot graves contain the sacred dust of men who imperiled their lives in a strife of right against wrong, of truth against falsehood, of loyalty against treason, of heaven against hell.

If it were not so, they died in vain. They died as the fool dieth. Why all that bloodshed if there was nothing to fight about? If one cause was as good as another what was their cause good for? Those four years of carnage would be the foulest years in modern history if there had been no deep difference in character between the principles that triumphed and the principles that failed. By all means let there be every magnanimous sentiment toward the defenders of "the lost cause;" but let there be no maudlin sentimentality which obscures the eternal difference between the cause that was lost and the cause that was won.

If we remember these things there will be no danger of our forgetting to be grateful. Gratitude is divine. Men never rise higher in the scale of moral being than when they are uplifted by gratitude toward benefactors, celestial or terrestrial. Our debt of gratitude is due beyond estimate to them that fought to save our country. They did a service that words cannot describe. Their bravery was sublime. That the nation might live they faced death. That the Union might be preserved they put in jeopardy what man most prizes here below. They were patient in privation, faithful in temptation, undismayed by defeat, sober minded in success. They were worthy of their country. We cannot better prove that we are so, too, than by such marks of grateful appreciation as shall show that we are worthy of them.

THE GLOBE'S FOLLY.

Duluth Evening Herald.

Referring to the Cincinnati convention that crowded the great music hall of that city in which Bob Ingersoll made his famous "plumed knight" speech in '76, the St. Paul Globe says:

"To such people a humbug like Donnelly, mouthing round sentences and blowing forth meaningless platitudes with a bellows-like persistency, seems a John the Baptist preparing the way for a coming Reverance and they listen with distended eyeballs to the wonders of his wisdom. Men of this sort can never exert any permanent influence on the nation's thought, because they cannot secure for themselves a hearing, even if they have anything worthy to be said. * * * But a party with Donnelly as one of its leaders, standing on a platform of his construction, every plank of which is of necessity nailed with ignorance and ornamented with lies, has no more vitality than a weed, and will be trampled under foot as honest men pass over it on their way to their daily work."

Can't get a hearing? Who is it that gets a hearing in Minnesota when Donnelly doesn't? The editor of the Globe, perhaps? Announce their appearance on the rostrum and see. But the Globe belies its own statement by admitting that "they listen with distended eyeballs to the wonders of his wisdom." Suppose the editor of the Globe should compete with the sage by writing a book? No St. Paul paper ever created anything yet that it could sell without aid from the legislature. "Nailed with ignorance and ornamented with lies," sounds well, but when it comes from a sheet that never had any recognized policy and whose columns are for sale, it loses its force and is robbed of its sting. Ignorance! You could run several papers like the Globe on what Donnelly knows that they don't. A paper up in the fifteenth story of a building that it doesn't own can make a loftier fool of itself than any other kind. Donnelly has more honor in his little finger than, as Senator Kellar would say, the "whole——comeboodle" of his defamers.

The Review of Reviews for June will be an exceptionally large number, profusely illustrated, chiefly with portraits of contemporary celebrities. It reviews thorougly all the current movements of the day, and summarizes the important contents of current periodicals of the whole world. The editorial discussions in the popular department, "The Progress of the World," deal largely with questions of American international relations and diplomacy.

The Rank and File Are Not in It.

Minneapolis Evening Journal.

A politician who has probably had as much to do with manipulating Republican politics in the state during the past six or eight years as any man in Minnesota, was found at the Nicollet to-day. The Journal gently led him into a retired corner and "held him up" for his views on the probabilities as to the complexion of the Minnesota delegation to the next national Republican convention, to be held in this city in May or June of next year. In reply to the question as to who gets the delegation, he said after a moment's hesitation:

"It is my opinion that the Alliance party is not losing any votes in this state; and if the Republican convention insists upon a high tariff, the Alliance will gain more votes. Many of the Republican leaders have acted and talked in such a manner as would have a tendency to drive away rather than bring back farmer votes. The farmers in a great many instances have made reasonable demands and these same demands have not been met with the proper spirit. If however, the next Republican convention declares itself in favor of the reciprocity idea, and a moderate tariff, the Republicans will go into campaign with a certainty of success. We can no longer bank upon the large Republican vote which Minnesota has been noted for. There is a general breaking up in regard to parties in this state, all of which has been brought about by the tendency of the leaders to feather their own nests instead of looking after the interests of the people at large."

Babylon Still Stands!

Heading Ringling Bros.' ponderous heard of performing elephants is "Babylon" the largest elephant in the world. Among others they have the elephantine wonder, "The Umbrella eared Elephant," which positively possesses the largest ears under the sun. This enormous institution will exibit at Crookston on Friday June 19th. Be on hand early and see the magnificent free street parade.

BIG WHITE TENTS.

Something About Their Future and the Men Who Invest Fortunes In Them.

Within a little over a year two of the most unique and typical Americans that ever rose from penury to opulence have passed from the arena of life and joined the ever increasing parade to which the "miles of free street pageantry" of their big shows, even when measured by the exaggeration of the the high-soaring, imaginative bill-writer, are but the merest mimicry of the mighty silent majority.

A careful survey of the field reveals the fact that the coming men are not from the rank and file of those we may term the old liners, but from the later and more energetic additions of amusement caterers, among whom by far the most prominent, wealthy, and capable are the Ringling Bros., who have for the last few years lacked only the prestige time alone can bring to place them on an equal footing with Barnum and Forepaugh. As regards the latter two shows the public will look with interest upon their movements and see if they can be successfully run without their former leaders. The greatness of these men's shows was too much centered in their remarkable personality to survive the grave. There are other shows that might come in for a chance in the race, were it not for the fact that they presided over by men grown old in the business, who have long since reached the limit of their possibilities. On the contrary, the Ringling Bros. are young men who have hardly more than started on their career as a leading big show, and by the enormous strides they have made in late years in bringing before the public a show of truly wonderful merit and proportions, is considered, conjecture fails to place a limit on their present as well as future possibilities. Besides these considerations there are five of the Ringling brothers, each one capable of managing any one of the large circus institutions, yet the efforts of the five are directed toward the proper management of the one great shows They have also taken a step in the right direction by never resorting to any of the cheap, woolly-horse and whitewashed-elephant style of features of their older but less conscientious rivals, and, while many are blindly imitating the great showman who said the American people wanted to be humbugged, these self-emulating young men have built a monument to themselves by adhering to the idea that the public wants what it pays for and entitled to see.

Will exhibit at Crookston Friday, June 19th.

Mind Reading.

The feats of mind reading performed by the late Irving Bishop were wonderful, and savored a good deal of the supernatural, though he always claimed there was nothing mysterious about it. Johnson, the phenomenal product of the Northwest, has given some wonderful exhibitions, though skeptics have not been wanting who denounced him as a palpable fraud. There is another kind of mind-reading not so difficult as that attempted by Bishop and Johnson—to read the mind of the public on a subject of great interest. During the past five years. "The Burlington" has carried to all parts of the country thousands and thousands of the bright people of the Northwest, and if you ask any one what he thinks of that line, you can, before he speaks, read his mind on that question, by noting how pleasant recollections of speed, comfort, and safety cause his face to light up and a smile to break from. For assistance in this matter ask your local agent for a ticket via "The Burlington" or write to W. J. C. Kenyon, Gen. Pass. Agent C. B. & N. R. R. St. Paul Minn.

STILLWATER TWINE.

The Washington county Farmers' Alliance met at the court house yesterday afternoon to discuss the matter of purchasing binding twine. Letters have been received by the secretary from an eastern firm who offer to sell their twine at five cents per pound delivered on board cars at Chicago. The farmers take this as a blow at the factory here, and think it is the work of the binding twine trust which is doing every thing in its power to break up the factory now operated by the state. One thing is certain, the establishment of a factory here has caused an unusual stir and a cut in prices, which has resulted beneficially to the farmers throughout the state. Last year twine was sold at from 12 to 16 cents per pound, while this year the same grades can be purchased for from 5 to 10 cents per pound. Standard Manilla twine, which was quoted last year at 16 cents per pound is now offered at 9½ cents. The value of the factory here can thus be estimated. Mr Richmond the secretary of the local Alliance stated yesterday that the state could well afford to support the binding twine plant here regardless of whether or not there was any of the product sold, as it has caused the trust to come down a peg or two, thus giving the taxpaying farmers the benefit of it. The Washington county Alliance will use prison made twine, and will also recommend a similar step on the part of other Alliances in the state. A committee composed of Messrs. S. W. Powell, Hugh Cambell and Andrew Richmond was appointed to meet with Alliance state executive commitee at their meeting in St. Paul next month when the binding twine matter will be further discussed.

Herb Mason's conjuring performance was brief but good what there was of it. He was just chuck full of such little jokes but was evidently fearful of overdoing the thing. If he had been some traveling fakir every body would have pronounced "him just splendied."

Engineer Geo. Ralph, has the surveying job on the Red Lake Reservation nearly completed and sent in most of his crew last week. He will finish up in a day or so and be down until July when he expects another and a larger contract.

One reason why Charlie Misner is so popular as a barber is because he don't know how to talk—many barbers have a habit of talking an arm off a fellow, and will talk from morning till night constantly, but Charlie only talks to a customer while engaged in shaving him.

Pauline S. is said to be a worthy representative of the art preservative, but it is patent to all that a rattling good representative of woman's rights was spoiled when she chose the former occupation. That falsetto voice would make her fortune and—"Oh, them h'eyes!"

Old metal wanted at the Crookston Foundry. The highest cash price paid therefor. J. E. Morrisey.

Whatever has been its status heretofore the marriage of the State Lecturer, Miss. Mc Donald settles the question of a vacancy in that office. Miss Eva Mc Donald was elected State Lecturer and there is now no such person. Mrs, Eva Valesch was not elected State Lecturer.

Call at Vine's meat market on Robert street for choice cuts. He buys only the choicest beeves and always has nice steaks and roasts.

Grand Forks has won the college at last and now Crookston members of the Lutheran Association are going to show them how to act under defeat. Instead of indulging in low abuse as they did, our members will take right hold and help to build up a good strong institution. That's the difference; see?

T. G. Thompson returned on Monday morning from his fishing trip with large sized stories of a catch of from one to two hundred fish per day while away. Several of our citizens received evidences of his prowess in shape of some very fine specimens of the finny tribe by express. His family remains awhile for a visit with relations and friends.

Rev. R. H. Battey and wife, returned on Saturday morning. Owing to the train being late on the evening they intended to start from here they postponed their departure until Tuesday evening and thus avoided being in a wreck and a cyclone. Had they gone as they intended this would have been their experience.

Souvenir spoons with the name of our City etched in Bowl at C. H. Saake's.

Dr. Benedict has performed several successful operations since he has been visiting in the city, the guest of Hon. B. Sampson. One upon Ole Olson an old man who had been blind for several years by which the old man's eye sight was restored and other operations to cure blindness and for other purposes. He seems to be a very skilfull physician.

Alphonse Paradis was in from Terrebonne last week. Reports the cheese factory interests flourishing in his neighborhood although the farmers have not as many cows as they should have. What they need there is a lot of good Holstein cows which would make the receipts of their cheese business 100 per cent greater than it ever can be with the ordinary cows of the country, and we are told they propose to get some.

Last fall W. O. Wilson sent a horse out to a farmer to keep during the winter. About two months ago the man came in and reported the animal had strayed away and that he had been unable to find it. A few days ago Mr. W. was told that a neighbor of the man who had been keeping the horse, had one that looked like Wilson's. When asked about it, the man said it was a horse that had fallen off from some passing train and could not be Wilson's and refused to deliver it up, so Wilson sent Hans Larson out to see about it, and lo! Hans returned with Wilson's horse all right enough. The disappointed would-be speculator was hostile for a time and threatened to bring suit but has not commenced it yet.

Will Arnold unconsciously got onto the ruling idea of this country in relation to cows when he said that he did "not want a Jersey, a Guernsey, an Ayrshire or a Holstein" on his stock farm but would select an ague cow. An ague cow is a poor scrub whose best efforts is confined to the production of a "milk shake" when the winds of winter put her in condition to produce "only this and nothing more." And moreover she is cheap—you can buy two or three for what one good cow would cost. The Jersey, the Guernsey, the Ayrshire or the Holstein will produce four times the profit in milk and butter on the same cost for keep, but too many do not think of this—they only get the idea of the "milk shake" cow and seem content if she gives "milk shake" enough for one drink—and she generally does.

The Journal last week sold like hot cakes -everybody wanted a copy of Stanton's speech and although we made big calculations to supply the demand, we did not calculate quite big enough. A few that were engaged yet remain, but if they are not called for at once we shall continue to fill transient orders until the edition is exhausted. The speaker, Mr. Stanton, is the law partner of Hon. H. Steenerson, and if he can plead equal to that speech he is a dandy.

Wanted:—Board in private family for several students.
Address, Crookston Business College.

Speaking with Mr. Sampson in relation to the college business, that gentlemen informs The Journal that he stands on that question right where he always has; that he desires to see a strictly undenominational college established and simply asks a guaranty that this will be done. He is willing, he says, to deed to the people with a proper guaranty that the object will be accomplished but he objects to unconditionally deeding that property to a board of trustees to do with as they see fit. He says that while Crookston may not get this college she will get one fully as good sometime in the near future.

RINGLINGS HERE.

Wisconsin State Journal Madison, May 4th.

The small boys are happy. The first circus has struck the town. Ringling Bros.' aggregation has set its tents on the Keyes block, in the Sixth ward, and is exhibiting to the people of Madison and vicinity to-day. Long before the time for the parade to come up town the streets were filled with people from the city and country desirous of witnessing the exhibition. The procession came up Main street a few minutes before 11 o'clock, with the bands playing and the glittering wagons shining in the sunlight. It was a grand display, and surpassed anything in the show line that has ever visited the city. The costumes are all new, and the participants in the procession were appareled like princes and princesses.

The Ringling Brothers have indeed shown a spirit of enterprise worthy of patronge in providing a good entertainment for the people. It is clean and devoid of any objectionable features whatever, the gentlemen having made an effort to have a performance that would not be distasteful to refined persons and one which ladies and children can safely attend without discovering anything which would in the least be offensive. Their efforts have not been in vain. The show is replete with novelties, full of good exhibitions of skill and strength and clown fun that is devoid of coarseness.

The paraphernalia is transported from place to place on several trains of handsome cars fitted out with air brakes and all the modern appliances for safety. Will exhibit at Crookston Friday June 19th.

EXCURSION RATES.

For the Northwestern District G. A. R. Encampment, to be held at St. Cloud, Minnesota, June 9th to 13th. The Northern Pacific Railroad Company will make a rate of one and one-third fare for the round trip.

Mothers.

Please see that your boys and girls are on time at Reading Room next Friday at four o'clock, also at same hour Monday and Tuesday of next week. Loyal Temperance Legion will drill for street parade at time of W. C. T. U. convention.

Commencment Exercises

AT THE GRAND OPERA HOUSE,

On Wednesday Evening, June 3d, 1891.

The High School commencment exercises at the new opera house last week called out a full house and were highly enjoyed by all. Prof. Moore made a few interesting remarks, followed by a trio by Mr. Chamberlain, Mr. Shefstaud and Miss Wilson. "The Southern Question" was ably handled by Mr. George Finlayson, followed by Mr. Gay Halvorson in a declamation, "Virginia," which was exceedingly well spoken. The violin obligato, "Spring Flowers," by Mr. Solum, was well received as was the "Morning Song," by Miss Clara Aaker. "Lessons from the Life of Lincoln" was ably presented in an oration by James E. Montague, followed by a declamation, "St. Michaels," well recited by Miss Olive Tweaton. The quartette, "Forest Retreat," was well rendered by Prof Chamberlain and Gay Halverson and Misses Aaker and Walker. Wm. Marin jr. delivered an excellent oration on "Immigration" showing much thought in preparation and the declamation, "How the Old Horse won the Bet" was nicely spoken by Miss. Minnie Walker. "The Bird Song" was nicely rendered by Misses Walker and Aaker and well received. "The Natural Advantages of The Red River Valley an oration by the valedictoran, Mr. Wm. Vannett was an excellent speech. Here followed the presentation of the prize, a copy of Webster's Unabridged Dictionary to Mr. Wm. Vannett and the diplomas to the graduating class of 1891, Wm. A. Marin, James E. Montague, Geo. E. Finlayson, and Wm. Vannett. After singing "America" the audience dispersed well pleased with the exercises.

BINDING TWINE.

Report of the Committee on Binding Twine appointed by the Executive Committee of the Minnesota State Farmers' Alliance.

St. Paul, Minn., May 23, 1891.

To the Executive Committee of the State Farmers' Alliance:

Gentlemen:—We beg leave to report in relation to Binder twine that after examining samples and prices furnished by several of the principal Cordage Companies, we find that the twine handled by our Alliance Business Agency, at 673 Wabasha. St. Paul, Minn., is the most satisfactory of anything in the market, prices and quality considered, and we trust our members will place their orders for twine with them.

Respectfully submitted,
C. F. Bohall,
H. V. Poor,
Thos. J. Meighen.

"KAJANKA."

At this old-time house of the spectacular yesterday the financial glories of the Black Crook days were inaugurated before noon, and at night hundreds were turned away unable to get even standing room. The cause of this theatrical boom here was the coming of Miller Bros'. Parisian spectacular "Kajanka" which has created a furore all over the country. In the first act were shown some very beautiful scenes transformations and charactertisic dances. The second act was devoted to marches, dances and singing by as pretty and shapely a bevy of young girls as over were seen in chorus or ballet. The costumes, in fact all through the piece displayed lavish expenditure and exquisite taste. There are several transformation scenes in this act which were marvels of mechanical and artistic art. The Mariposa dancers, eight in number, beautiful satin skirts, appeared in this act, and to describe what they did in the way of whirling, twisting, deft raising of their skirts, would require space and a thorough knowledge of the Terpsichorean art allied to that of modern London stage. They were simply amazing, and the audiences were in ecstasies; they made a big hit. Mlle Bertoto, a young girl in her change dances, created a furore—another hit. The eight Marhni's, French acrobats, were very fine, active as monkeys, and doing the most remarkable acrobatic feats with the greatest ease. The funmaker in this act, as in fact all through the piece, was Charles Ravel, as Clown. He is acrobat, athlete, juggler and pantomimist, and since the days of George L. Fox, has no equal. William Ruge as Zamello was seemingly made of gutta-percha, and received rounds of applause for his acrobatic contortions. Miss Morrison, as Electra, sang very well, and showed to good advantage. The last act was given over to pantomime, and proved to be a means of pleasing those who had seen such in childhood, and cannot fail to delight the little folks. "Kajanka" is the most pleasing piece of the kind seen here in years—if it was ever equalled.

CHORUS CONCERT.

THE R. B. GEORGE CO.

THE CHORUS CLASS

Of this place, numbering 75 voices, will give their Closing Concert in the Baptist Church, Crookston, Minn.,

Thursday Evening, June 11th, 1891.

The class has been under steady drill three sessions a day, for the past week, and will surely give an excellent entertainment, consisting of Solos, Duets, Quartettes and Choruses, Sacred and Classical, Sentimental and Mirthful.

Every other piece on the program will be rendered by the full chorus; the remainder by the teacher and his assistant, and a number of the prominent singers of this place, selected from the class. The price of admission is made so low that all can avail themselves of this opportunity to hear a

—GRAND VOCAL ENTERTAINMENT—

Each pupil will be furnished with tickets so that they can supply their friends, thereby saving them the trouble of making change at the door. Ask the pupils to sell you tickets.

ADMISSION 25 CENTS.

☞ Do not fail to hear them, and by so doing patronize and encourage home talent. The Pulpit, Press and People speak in the most flattering terms of this company and their closing entertainments.

Doors open at 7. Concert begins at 7:45 p. m.

Carriages may be ordered at 10 o'clock.

No postponement on account of stormy weather.

"Whats the matter with Alger? He's all right"—if Blaine won't have it.

Col. Fred Wright has resigned command of the Third Regiment, State National Guard. Col. Wright has been a model soldier, one of the best in the service, having done as much, if not more, for the good of the cause than any man in it, and the State can ill afford to lose such officers. It was caused by a very unjust order issued by Adj. Gen. Mullen, censuring the Col. in the Bates affair.

Q. C. Minstrel Co.

The celebrated Queen City Minstrel troupe occupied the boards at the Grand Opera house on Friday evening of last week, playing to a crowded house. The grand introductory overture was excellent and highly enjoyed by all. In his make up, W. F. Arnold reminds one of Billy Arlington, and it was not at all necessary for him to get up and sing "Speak Easy," to convince the audience that he could—with such a mug as he had on him, he couldn't help but speak easy, if size is any indication of a flow of language. His bones "pardner," Williams, had an elegant make up and with a bit of practice would make a star performer. His rendition of "Jasper's birthday" "got" the crowd. It was not necessary for Frank Gravel to get up and in a deep basso profoundo (or thereabouts) sing "I'm not Baby McKee." Nobody would have thought he was—besides Frank is a democrat anyhow and could not be a republican one little bit—even so little a one as baby McKee. Frank deprived the world of a good actor, when he packed his grip for the road instead of a minstrel company. And Lou Thuerer when he soared as an "Angel in the sky" proved our prediction true, when last week we said there would be no "angle" in that sky. Oh, no! He was a nice little black angel and took well. Will Bugg was not blacked up for the occasion and seemed to be "skeered" of the crowd and blushed scarlet as the red, red rose—though he had no need to for he was in elegant voice and sung all about "The Lilacs" exceedingly well. Maybe he did not like being a white darkey between such a galaxy of end men. After trying in vain to persuade Frank Gravel to sing an original song, entitled "Fare you well" the great and only Gilhooly appeared upon the stage and told "why we celebrate St. Patrick's Day." This so took the audience that they would not let him go so easy and as an encore he sang, "Up went Guckenheimer" and even this did not satisfy the audience and he came back with another song. Mrs. Adams sang, "Vanieta" nicely. Mrs. Casad's violin solo was excellently rendered, ably aided by Miss Wilson on the piano; and Mrs. Chris Houston's piano playing was well received. Pauline S. Ware appeared, dressed in an old style bonnet and a falsetto voice and loudly inveighed against the foibles and follies of the male sects and thanked her lucky stars she'd never had any on em, though she came mighty nigh it, onct—would 'a had 'im if he had proposed; now she was glad she did not accept him. Pauline is a member of the art preservative—and they do say is a good one—but she should have stuck to the stage—she is a dandy there. The receipts over expenses were $171, not enough to pay for the uniforms. Everything considered, the boys did exceedingly well and much of their success is due to the exertions of the manager, H. A. Mason who also made an excellent interlocutor upon the stage, and to Harry Casad, the leader of the orchestra, who put in two weeks faithful work in arranging the musical part of the program, many of the airs for which he wrote himself. In him the Queen city band has a faithful and efficient leader.

Kittson Co. Enterprise:—Some people have been heard to say that the Holstein cattle were too small and would not make good beefers, should the breeder wish to place them on the market. It will be remembered that a year ago the editor of this paper and I. E. Glidden brought up seven head of young Holstein heifers and one thoroughbred bull. Last year these cows dropped calves that were a credit to any farm, but this year we can beat the record of last season by a long ways. Mr. Glidden has a young Holstein that when 12 hours old weighed 118 pounds. We have a handsome heifer calf that when 11 days old weighed 187½ pounds. We own the mother which is of the Aaggie family, and besides raising the finest calves that have been seen in the county, the milk is as rich as a Jersey and we stand ready to give her a test against any three year old cow of any breed in the valley. These fine calves can be seen at the Glidden farm and at the Kittson Stables, and we believe it will pay every stock raiser in the county to take time to call and see them.

Prof. R. B. George, assisted by Mrs. George and Prof. Green, gave a delightful concert in the Baptist church last Thursday evening, as a preliminary to the formation of classes for instruction in singing and for voice culture. On Friday afternoon there were about seventy-five present at the first lesson, and since then several others have join the convention. The lessons last from an hour to an hour and a half each, and the course is to consist of fifteen lessons. Every member of the convention has already had ample evidence that Prof. George and his colleagues are thorough masters in teaching concert singing and all that pertains to it. Not only are the methods for voice culture admirable:—not only are the theory and technicalities of written music clearly and fully taught, but such is the tact, skill and energy of the instructors that the mental faculties of every member of the convention are kept on the alert, and each one is led through an intelligent practice of what he learns. Prof. George has studied under the most famous teachers in this country and foreign lands, and has conducted conventions in all parts of the continent. It is not often that such an excellent opportunity for training in singing is offered as this is, and, hence, we are glad to know that so many are taking advantage of this course of musical instruction.

It Will be a Hotel.

THE JOURNAL is informed that Charlie Jefferson has the contract for the brickwork for the new building on corner of Main and Second Street and Will Walker will do the carpenter work. It will be a four story hotel.

It seems that the above item is a little previous, as, upon interivewing Charlie Jefferson on Wednesday morning he informed us that the contract has not been awarded yet further than for the excavation and underpining walls for the C. O. D. The contract for the hotel is to be let on the 25th inst.

EDITOR JOURNAL,
Dear Sir:—

The Polk County Alliance will hold its annual meeting at court house, Crookston, July 1st. 1891 at 10 o'clock a. m.

NILS MUUS,
Secretary.

A Perfect Horse.

From time immemorial the horse has been known as man's constant companion. From Homer to Byron this noblest of all animals has been immortalized in verse and even in holy writ. He has been described in language of the most sublime inspiration. He occupies a position in both our admiration, necessities, and affections above all other domestic animals. The Ringling Bros. World's Greatest Show, which exhibits at Crookston on Friday, June 19th, possesses three-hundred of the finest horses and ponies ever bred. Among them are scores of educated performing equines, including "Spider," the great leaping horse; "Captain," the lightning calculator, and "Sultan" the dancing stallion. Be sure and see the fine stock in their free street parade.

The Phrenological.

The man who fills so large a page of German history in this era, Marshal von Moltke, is given the first place in the June number of the Phrenological Journal and Science of Health. A few thoughts on practical humanity are embodied in "The Lever of a thought," that follows. What is being done on the Nicaragua Ship Canal is told, and a glimpse of the Chief Engineer given. A pretty poem by Belle Bush is prettily illustrated. Mrs. Wells continued her vigorous sketch of Charles Calwell, and Professor Sizer puts a fresh batch of "Hits" in his department. The Necessity for Moral Education is discussed in capital essay from Professor Dunton, and the editor supplements his statements by showing the want of "systematic" education in that line. "Answer the Child's Questions" and "Miss Bridgman at a Kindergarten" are among the features of Child Culture. Vegetarianism and advice in the simple treatment of Nasal Catarrh are notable topics in the Health Department. In the Editor's Department a protest is entered against Criminal Anthropology as taught by some, a criticism of Dr Kenealy's inferences in the Talent of Motherhood, and a good suggestion with regard to the proposed Summer Congress of Phrenologists. A very full Index of the Volume XCII., of which this number is the sixth and closing, is bound in with it. The Journal is published monthly at 15 cents a number and $1,50 per annum. Address Fowler & Wells Co., Publishers, 777 Broadway New York.

Eric's Soliloquy.

My name is Eric.
I was born, where,
On Scandia's hills my father feeds his flocks
And my mother darns his socks.
She was a noble woman, so was he,
Therefore am I duplex nobility;
Sawed off they say
And, true my frame is brief.
Like great Napoleon
Who was of chiefs, the chief,
He flaxed the world, he did,
And made its history,
And bound it up in book form
In Russia leather,
Turkish, Morrocco,
Or Egyptian calf,
With the tale
On the inside.
But that was long ago,
Before me,
Or Henry Kellar,
Or either of us,
Was born to blush unseen,
Till Henry did invent his twine machine,
Then I flew high, I did,
And flaxed the world myself,
And made it into binding twine at Stillwater,
And saved the nation,
Which before was bound
With ropes of sand, and brick
Without long fiber straw.
For I am an ass, and,
With my great ear upon the earth,
I can hear the grain grow,
And the wheat stool,
And these many moons ahead can tell,
Whether it will be ground for flour
Or will be ground—for investigation.
In which of either cases I should win,
And earn my daily bread by sweat of chin,
My only other support being a wife
And nine children in Martin county.
My nom de plume is Eric Olson,
And my son's, like my faher's, is Ole Erickson,
For thus like a rail fence
With the corners full of jimpson weed,
Our pedigree does run
Adown the vista of the ages.
And now by Thor and Woden,
It was you know, a fool that set Rome free,
And I'm a bigger fool than most folks think I be.
The great palladium of our liberty,
Which is my right name,
And in English means
The Napoleon of Nincoompoops,
Or the prince of bugbeaters.
And now, by gosh, in erring reasons spite,
One thing is sure, whatever is, ain't right.

Among the many specially interesting and rare specimens of zoology to be seen with Ringling Bros. World's Gratest Rail Road Shows is the Largest Living Hippopotamus in captivity. His weight is greater than the hugest elephant. This mammoth amusement institution will spread its "city of snow white tents" in Crookston on Friday June 19th.

MORTGAGE SALE.

[First publication June 11th, 1891.]

DEFAULT HAVING BEEN MADE IN THE sum of two hundred forty-seven and 30-100 dollars, ($247.30) which is claimed to be due at the date of this notice upon a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by John Hunter and Lizzie A. Hunter, his wife, to John Cromb, bearing date the 23d day of April, A. D. 1885, and, with a power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the first day of May, A. D. 1885, at 11 o'clock a. m., in book T of mortgages, on page 21, and in addition thereto the further sum of sixty-four and 90-100 dollars, taxes duly assessed and levied against said premises described and conveyed by said mortgage for the years 1887, 1888, 1889 and 1890, paid by said mortgagee, and no action or proceeding having been instituted, at law or otherwise, to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now therefore, notice is hereby given, that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, viz: The north half of southwest quarter and the southwest quarter of northwest quarter Section fourteen (14), Township one hundred and forty-eight (148), Range forty-four (44) west, containing one hundred and twenty acres, more or less, according to the government survey thereof, in Polk County and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances; which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk County, at the front door of the Court House, in the city of Crookston, in said County and State, on the first day of August, A. D. 1891, at ten o'clock a. m. of that day, at public vendue, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt and interest, and the taxes as above on said premises, and the disbursements allowed by law; subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale, as provided by law.

Dated June 9th, A. D. 1891.

MORTGAGE SALE.

[First publication June 4th, 1891.]

WHEREAS, KNUDT H. BERG AND Aguette Berg, his wife, of Polk County, State of Minnesota, as mortgagors, did, on the 19th day of November, A. D. 1888, duly execute and deliver to Horace Alling, of the County of Essex, State of New Jersey, their mortgage bearing date of November 19th, A. D. 1888, whereby they mortgaged to said mortgagee the following described lands situated in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, to-wit: Southwest quarter (sw¼) Section 24, Township 148, Range 45 west, containing 160 acres, to secure the payment of the sum of six hundred fifty dollars, with interest thereon, according to the conditions of one certain promissory note, with interest coupons attached, bearing even date with said mortgage, and made by said mortgagors to said mortgagee, or order, which said mortgage was on the 19th day of November, A. D. 1888, at 1:30 p. m., duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for said County of Polk, in book 37 of mortgages, on page 180; and

Whereas, default has been made in the payment of the sum of fifty-two and 57-100 dollars due as interest upon said mortgage on the 1st day of January, A. D. 1890, and on the further sum of forty-five and 50-100 dollars, due as interest thereon on the 1st day of January, A. D. 1891, and the said interest is still unpaid and due; and

Whereas, it was stipulated by and between the parties to said mortgage, that if default should be made in any of the conditions or covenants therein contained on the part of the mortgagors, to be kept and performed, that then and from thenceforth it shall be lawful for the said mortgagee, his heirs, administrators, executors or assigns to consider and declare the whole sum secured thereby as immediately due and payable without notice to said mortgagors or any other party; and

Whereas, the said Horace Alling has exercised his option to consider and declare, and does hereby consider and declare the whole sum of money secured by said mortgage to be due and payable; and

Whereas, there is now due, and claimed to be due on said mortgage at the date of this notice the sum of seven hundred seventy-three and 5-100 dollars, and no proceedings have been instituted at law or otherwise to recover the same or any part thereof.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of a power of sale in said mortgage contained and therewith recorded, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the land therein described, which sale will be made by the Sheriff of Polk County, at the front door of the Court House, in the city of Crookston, in said County and State, on the 31st day of July, A. D. 1891, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon of that day, at public vendue to the highest bidder for cash, to pay the sum due on said mortgage, together with taxes, if any, on said premises, and fifty dollars attorney's fees therein stipulated to be paid in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; subject to redemption at any time within one year from the date of sale as provided by law.

Dated June 1st, A. D. 1891.

Notice of Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

(First publication May 28th, 1891.)

DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE IN THE conditions of a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Thomas Allard and Susie Allard, his wife, mortgagors, to Northwestern Guaranty Loan Company, mortgagee, bearing date the 5th day of September, A. D. 1889, and duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the 5th day of September, A. D. 1889, at 9:25 o'clock a. m., in book 47 of mortgages, on page 29.

Whereas, such default consists of the failure to pay the following installments of interest, to-wit: $39.17 that became due May 1st, 1890, $30.00 that became due November 1st, 1890, and $33.00 that became due May 1st, 1891. And whereas the said Northwestern Guaranty Loan Company, the holder of said mortgage, has elected to declare, and hereby does declare, the whole principal sums in said mortgage set forth due and payable at the date of this notice under the terms and conditions of said mortgage and the power of sale therein contained.

And, whereas there is actually due and payable at the date hereof upon the premises in said mortgage described, the following sum, to-wit: Eleven hundred and twenty-one dollars and forty cents, ($1,121.40) $1,106.00 thereof being principal and interest thereon and $14.50 being for the premiums on insurance necessarily paid by mortgagee, October 7th, 1890, and interest thereon, and whereas the said power of sale has become operative, and no action or proceeding at law, or otherwise, has been instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed, and the premises described in and covered by said mortgage, viz: The southwest quarter (sw¼) of Section thirty-two, (32), in Township one hundred and fifty (150) north, of Range forty-one (41) west, containing 160 acres more or less according to the government survey thereof; said premises situate and being in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances, will be sold at public auction to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt and interest, insurance and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and fifty dollars attorney's fee, as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk County, at the front door of the Court House, in the City of Crookston, in said County, and State, on

MORTGAGE SALE.

WHEREAS DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE in the payment of the sum of two hundred and forty-six dollars ($246.00), which is claimed to be due at the date of this notice upon a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by David R. McGinnis to P. C. Sletten and John Cromb, of Polk County, Minnesota, bearing date the first day of December, A. D. 1882, and, with a power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the 6th day of December, A. D. 1882, at 11:30 o'clock a. m., in book "H" of mortgages, on page 483.

And whereas P. C. Sletten, one of the mortgagees named in said mortgage, died testate, at Crookston, Polk County, Minnesota, on the 8th day of July, A. D. 1884.

And whereas the last will and testament of the said P. C. Sletten was proved and admitted to probate in the Probate Court of Polk County, Minnesota, on the 30th day of July, A. D. 1884.

And, whereas, by the terms of said will Kari Sletten, the wife of the said P. C. Sletten, was made the sole legatee and devisee of all the real and personal property of which he died seized aforesaid.

And, whereas, the Probate Court of said Polk County issued its final decree in the estate of P. C. Sletten, deceased, dated Aug. 6, 1887, by the terms of which the said Kari Sletten was decreed to have an undivided half interest in the above described mortgage, which said decree was duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for said County of Polk, on the 11th day of May, 1888, at 1:30 p. m., in book 29 of deeds, on pages 574 to 578 inclusive, and no action or proceeding having been instituted, at law or otherwise, to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now therefore, notice is hereby given, that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, viz: Lots four (4) and five (5) in block six (6), in Cromb and Sletten's subdivision of outlots in Hurlbut's addition to Crookston, in Polk County and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances, which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk County, at the front door of the Court House in the City of Crookston, in said County and State, on the 18th day of July, A. D. 1891, at ten o'clock a. m. of that day, at public vendue to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and twenty-five dollars attorney's fees, as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale as provided by law.

MORTGAGE SALE.

WHEREAS, Frank Johnson and Anna Johnson, his wife, of Polk County, State of Minnesota, as mortgagors, did, on the 8th day of March, A. D. 1888, duly execute and deliver to Hannah Amelia Armstrong, of the County of Broome, State of New York, their mortgage, bearing date of March 1st, A. D. 1888, whereby they mortgaged to said mortgagee the following described lands situated in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, to-wit: The southwest quarter of Section 30, Township 153, Range 45 west, containing 160 acres, to secure the payment of the sum of six hundred dollars, with interest thereon, according to the conditions of one certain promissory note, with interest coupons attached, bearing even date with said mortgage, and made by said mortgagors to said mortgagee, or order, which said mortgage was on the 8th day of March, A. D. 1888, at 6 o'clock p. m., duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for said County of Polk, in book 37 of mortgages, on page 102; and

Whereas, default has been made in the payment of the sum of thirty-five dollars, due as interest upon said mortgage on the 1st day of January, A. D. 1889, and on the further sum of forty-two dollars due as interest upon said mortgage on the 1st day of January, A. D. 1890, and on the further sum of forty-two dollars, due as interest thereon on the first day of January, A. D. 1891, and the said interest is still unpaid and due; and

Whereas, it was stipulated by and between the parties to said mortgage, that if default should be made in any of the conditions or covenants therein contained on the part of the mortgagors, to be kept and performed, that then and from thenceforth it shall be lawful for the said mortgagee, her heirs, administrators, executors or assigns, to consider and declare the whole sum secured thereby as immediately due and payable without notice to said mortgagors or any other party; and

Whereas, The said Hannah Amelia Armstrong has exercised her option to consider and declare, and does hereby consider and declare the whole sum of money secured by said mortgage to be due and payable; and

Whereas, there is now due, and claimed to be due on said mortgage at the date of this notice the sum of seven hundred forty-two and 22-100 dollars, and no proceedings have been instituted at law or otherwise to recover the same or any part thereof.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of a power of sale in said mortgage contained and therewith recorded, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the land therein described, which sale will be made by the Sheriff of Polk County, at the front door of the Court House, in the city of Crookston, in said County and State, on the 20th day of June, A. D. 1891, at ten o'clock in the forenoon of that day, at public vendue to the highest bidder for cash, to pay the sum due on said mortgage, together with taxes, if any, on said premises, and fifty dollars attorney's fees therein stipulated to be paid in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the date of sale as provided by law.

DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE IN THE conditions of a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Charles Kindler and Minnie Kindler, his wife, mortgagors, to Northwestern Guaranty Loan Company, mortgagee, bearing date the 29th day of June, A. D. 1888, and duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the 9th day of July, A. D. 1888, at 3:10 o'clock p. m., in book 36 of mortgages, on pages 29-2.

Whereas, such default consists of the failure to pay the installments of interest that became due December 29th, 1888, June 29th, 1889, December 29th, 1889, June 29th, 1890, and December 29th, 1890, each of said installments being for $25. And whereas the said Northwestern Guaranty Loan Company, the holder of said mortgage, has elected to declare, and hereby does declare, the whole principal sums in said mortgage set forth due and payable at the date of this notice under the terms and conditions of said mortgage and the power of sale therein contained.

And whereas there is actually due and payable at the date hereof upon the premises in said mortgage described the following sum, to-wit: Nine hundred and seventy-three dollars and ten cents, ($973.10) and whereas the said power of sale has become operative, and no action or proceeding at law or otherwise has been instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that, by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed and the premises described in and covered by said mortgage, viz: The southeast quarter (se¼) of Section twenty-six, (26), in Township one hundred and fifty-two (152) north, of Range forty-five (45) west, containing 160 acres. Said premises situate and being in the county of Polk and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances, will be sold at public auction, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and twenty-five dollars attorney's fee, as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk County, at the front door of the Court House, in the City of Crookston, in said County and State, on

Notice of Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

(First publication May 28th, 1891.)

DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE IN THE conditions of a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Thomas Allard and Susie Allard, his wife, mortgagors, to Northwestern Guaranty Loan Company, mortgagee, bearing date the 5th day of September, A. D. 1889, and duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the 5th day of September, A. D. 1889, at 9:25 o'clock a. m., in book 47 of mortgages, on page 29.

Whereas, such default consists of the failure to pay the following installments of interest, to-wit: $30.17 that became due May 1st, 1890, $30.00 that became due November 1st, 1890, and $30.00 that became due May 1st, 1891. And whereas the said Northwestern Guaranty Loan Company, the holder of said mortgage, has elected to declare, and hereby does declare, the whole principal sums in said mortgage set forth due and payable at the date of this notice under the terms and conditions of said mortgage and the power of sale therein contained.

And whereas, there is actually due and payable at the date hereof upon the premises in said mortgage described the following sum, to-wit: Eleven hundred and twenty-one dollars and forty cents ($1,121.40), $1,106.90 thereof being principal and interest thereon and $14.50 being for the premiums on insurance necessarily paid by mortgagee, October 7th, 1890, and interest thereon, and whereas the said power of sale has become operative, and no action or proceeding at law or otherwise has been instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed, and the premises described in and covered by said mortgage, viz: The southwest quarter (sw¼) of Section thirty-two (32) in Township one hundred and fifty (150) north, of Range forty-one (41) west, containing 160 acres, more or less, according to the government survey thereof. Said premises situate and being in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances, will be sold at public auction, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt and interest, insurance and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and fifty dollars attorney's fee, as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk County, at the front door of the Court House, in the City of Crookston, in said County and State, on MONDAY, THE 13TH DAY OF JULY, A. D. 1891, at 10 o'clock a. m. of that day, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale as provided by law.

BIG RAILROAD PLAN.

The Duluth, Red Lake Falls & Northern to be Pushed to Completion.

And the Coming Town of Lakeport to be Established on Superior.

A Wondrous and Rich Country Will Thus be Thrown Open.

Glittering Prospects Backed by Unlimited Capital and Enterprise.

St. Paul Daily Globe.

There is considerable interest in a new railroad venture being taken in three important circles, viz.: The railroads, the owners of pine lands and the owners or lessees of state mineral lands. The railroad is the proposed Duluth, Red Lake Falls & Northern. Some months ago this proposed road leaked out and was fully exploited, but the capitalists interested succeeded in keeping it quiet while they gathered in certain franchises, terminal and station rights and considered propositions from interested parties concerning the line the road would take across the state. Interest has again been revived by a movement made public at Duluth during the week, by a syndicate interested in the townsite at the Lake Superior terminus. This is the key to the railroad situation. The lake terminus will be at Sucker bay, about midway between Duluth and Two Harbors, where exists a harbor said to be infinitely better than either of those at Two Harbors and considerably nearer both mineral field and timber tracts. The syndicate controlling this site has quietly bought up the land, and was endeavoring to keep it quiet and prevent a fictitious, speculative boom; but it leaked out and created a great stir in and about Duluth.

The Duluth, Red Lake Falls & Northern railroad is as yet a lock-bound mystery, but those interested say there is unlimited capital behind it, beside the interest maintained by the pine and iron land men, the value of whose possessions is entirely dependent upon a railroad penetrating that country. Such a road has already been begun by the Duluth & Winnipeg and a line opening up that country has long been contemplated by the Great Northern, which accounts for the bitter hostility of that road to the Duluth & Winnipeg or any other line threatening to reap benefits of developing those northern counties. The benefits to the state of such a road are incalculable. Locked up in St. Louis and Itasca counties are millions of tons of iron and millions of feet of pine and hard timber. Until placed within reach of a market by a railroad line, they are entirely valueless. The Duluth, Red Lake Falls & Northern proposes to cross the state from Sucker bay to Crookston, piercing a country now without railroad facilities, carrying to market the mineral of the eastern counties and the wheat of the western.

S. O. Brooks, assistant general freight agent of the Kansas City road, has just returned from Duluth, where he went on a mission connected with the new road. To a Globe reporter he said yesterday:

"There is no reasonable doubt that the Duluth, Red Lake Falls & Northern road will be pushed through as rapidly as possible. Affairs are now in such a condition that there can be no possibility of the plans falling through. A large amount of capital is interested, and the prospects for such a line are so flattering that more can be commanded when necessary. The preliminary survey has been made, and the line of the road practically determined from Sucker bay west to about Crookston, with a line into Duluth. The two points of interest are the shipping port at the lake and the country to furnish traffic business for the road. As far as the first is concerned, Sucker Bay has a fine harbor, and, with a suitable breakwater, will be second to none on the lakes. A syndicate has bought up the land and proposes creating a townsite there, with the certainty that a live town will soon be a reality. The demand for property in that vicinity is already great, though half of the magnitude of the plans have not been realized."

"What mineral land will the road tap?"

"It will pierce the heart of the greatest iron range in the world, running directly to the mountain range of the Mesaba, with a million tons of high-grade iron ore in sight, as well as the Zenith, Great Northern and McComber mines. It will also go through the heart of the mineral land of Itasca county, of which so little is known and from which so much is expected. Then the great timber lands of the Winnebegoshish country will be traversed and finally the wheat country of the northwestern part of the state. It is a great country and its development means millions to the first railroad that traverses it. All of the ore, timber and grain will be handled at Sucker bay, at the new town of Lakeport, and we expect to see docks and elevators line that harbor before long. The whole affair is a greater enterprise and will be brought to a successful issue."

The Big Show Coming!

Ringling Bros. World's Greatest Rail Road Show, Three Ring Circus and Elevated Stages, Museum, Menagerie, Roman Hippodrome and Roman Gala Day Sport and Spectacles is billed to appear at Crookston on Friday June 19. Owing to arrangements made by the American Showmen's Pooled League this will be the only large Rail Road Show that will visit Crookston this year. Be in town early and see the magnificent free street parade. Don't forge the date, Friday June 19th.

K. D. Chase, of Faribault, Is Enthusiastic Over the Mineral Wealth of the State.

A Company Organizing to Tap Some of the Richest Districts in the North.

St. Paul Dispatch.

K. D. Chase, of Faribault, was at the Clifton to-day on his way home from Duluth, where he has been on business.

"A great deal of work is being done in the mining country north of the lakes," said he. "A company is now preparing to build a railroad Northeast from Duluth, to be called the Duluth, Mesaba & Northern. The proposed road is about seventy miles in length and will tap some of the richest mining country in the state, and that is saying a good deal, for the mineral wealth of that section is something wonderful. The incorporators of the company are having very good success in selling the stock, and there is little doubt that the road will be built at an early date. While it is a hard year to start a new enterprise, the monied men generally are more willing to provide funds for a road going into a country rich in ores and timber than for one extending into an agricultural country. There is a vast country up there, about which very little has been learned. It is a difficult country to explore, and only the most determined men go very far into it. We have had men up there for three years past, however, and have met with very fair success. The Mountain Iron Company is now developing some valuable properties northwest of Duluth, and the road will reach these. A great deal of the land located by explorers has, of course, no mineral on it as far as has yet been discovered. It requires a great deal more patience to hunt for ore than for timber, for the indications of the former are often very faint. Our suit against Jamison will probably come up at the October term of court. It is probable that the case will not be settled for four or five years. Meanwhile the company will develop other lands owned by them. It is unfortunate for the state as well as the owners of the land that the trouble should have come up, as it is deprived for some time of the income that would have accrued from the development of these lands. On the other hand, the system of leasing the lands will bring the state thousands of dollars every year, where their sale as ordinary lands at $5 per acre, according to the old system, would have brought only hundreds. It may seem visionary now, but it is my opinion that if that mining country is fully developed it will one day support all of the public institutions of the state.

A Perfect Horse.

From time immemorial the horse has been known as man's constant companion. From Homer to Byron this noblest of all animals has been immortalized in verse and even in holy writ. He has been described in language of the most sublime inspiration. He occupies a position in both our admiration, necessities, and affections above all other domestic animals. The Ringling Bros. World's Greatest Show, which exhibits at Crookston on Friday, June 19th, possesses three hundred of the finest horses and ponies ever bred. Among them are scores of educated performing equines, including "Spider," the great leaping horse; "Captain," the lightning calculator, and "Sultan," the dancing stallion. Be sure and see the fine stock in their free street parade.

SUGAR BOUNTIES.

Nearly Fifteen Million Dollars to be Disbursed in the Year to Our Sugar Growers.

Something the McKinley Bill Will do for the Planters and Farmers.

New York, June 12.—A Washington special says: Within a year from July 1, the treasury department will pay to citizens of the United States between $12,000,000 and $15,000,000 as a bounty for raising sugar. This sum will be disbursed in various parts of the country. The most of it will go to Louisana for the production of cane sugar. Over $1,000,000 will be paid to the farmers in New England states, New York, Ohio, Illinois and the Northwestern states for the production of sugar from maple sap. A large sum will be distributed in Kansas, Nebraska Iowa and California, among those who make sugar from beets and sorghum cane. The distribution of such a great sum of money among so many people so widely separated, and the pains that must be taken to prevent fraud upon the government, will be an undertaking of considerable magnitude. Every ounce of the millions of pounds of sugar produced must be weighed and samples of it tested and inspected by government inspectors, who will be appointed for that purpose. This work will be done under the direction of the internal revenue bureau of the treasury department and will be conducted with such thoroughness and system as to prevent and detect fraud. The bounty to be paid for the production of American sugar is authorized by the tariff law, commonly known as the McKinley bill. The law provides that the producers of sugar which tests 90 degrees by the polariscope shall receive a bounty of two cents per pound, and those producing sugar testing less than 90 and not less than 80 degrees shall receive a bounty of one and three-quarters per pound. The law also provides regulations under which the bounty shall be applied for and paid.

There is every indication that the farmers of the West who raise beets and sorghum, the planters of the South with their immense plantations of cane, and the farmers of the North with their groves of maple trees are fully alive to the fact that the government intends to pay them for their industry in addition to the market price they will receive for their products, and they mean to get all they can for their products.

An Alliance Experiment.

The Kansas Farmers Propose to Try the Sub-Treasury Scheme.

Topeka Kan., June 8:—The Alliance Executive committee of Kansas is considering a scheme which practically places the sub-treasury plan of the National Farmers' Alliance in the hands of private capitalists. J. C. Hopkins, who was a delegate from the New York Economic Club at the Cincinnati convention, is the originator of the scheme. The plan is to establish a bank in each county of the state under the direction of the local Alliance exchange. The capital stock is to be furnished by private subscription. In connection with each bank an elevator or store house is to be built. A farmer may then dump his grain, corn or cotton into the store house, receiving a check for 80 per cent of the value of the grain deposited by paying a small percentage for storage and insurance. He will be allowed to keep the grain in the depository until such time as he may deem it best to place it upon the market. The amount of produce deposited in this way must not exceed the amount of stock subscribed for the bank. The checks to be issued by these banks are peculiarly devised, and are printed in colors. These checks are made payable in gold or silver at any of banks run in this manner. It is intended that they shall be circulated as money.

A NEW PENSION RULE.

Pensioners Need not Hereafter pay Attorneys any Amount of Postage Unless They Choose To Do So.

St. Paul Dispatch.

Special Examiner J. C. Cassidy said today: "It has been the custom to allow pension claim agents to charge applicant a sum not exceeding $2 for postage in addition to the regular fee. On the 26th of May the commissioner of pensions ordered that hereafter attorneys prosecuting claim be allowed no greater sum than 50 cents, but it is not obligatory with the claimant to give such sum."

The commissioner says: "No attorney will be allowed to demand a sum of postage as a right, nor refuse to prosecute a claim when the request for postage is not allowed. In short, an applicant need pay his attorney only the fee $5, $10 or $25, and can altogether refuse to give money or stamps for postage."

Regular meeting of Col. Cobham Post No. 90 to morrow evening. Turn out boys. Business in relation to the Encampment at Moorhead next week.

Geo. P. Endress, agent for the Diebold Safe & Lock Co., has been in the city for the past week. Christianson Bros. ordered doors for their new vault of him.

Geo. P. Endress fixed up the vault door for Register John H. Locken, so that he can now be locken it—something that could not be done several days previously.

And to-morrow is circus day—when the small boy will be in his element and verily the deacon will put on his nice biled rag and take the boys in to see the animals—of course.

Appearances indicate a bountiful crop of wild strawberries this season as the vines are loaded with blossoms. These copious showers are just what the berries need to round 'em out.

We heard somebody remark that it was exceedingly hot, last Saturday. And so it seemed to be despite a high wind blowing all day. Good corn weather and also good for grass,

Dont forget, when you come to the circus to morrow that you can get an excellent dinner for only 20 cents at Mrs. E. Benjamin's four doors south of the old opera house on Broadway.

Sheriff Grundysen went below on Monday evening with two prisoners, Joe LeCount and Fred LeCount, one for a year in Stillwater and one for a year in the St. Cloud penitentiary.

The delegates to the Congregational convention at Ada this week are A. A. Miller, Miss Evelyn Hall and the pastor of the Congregational church, Rev. R. H. Batty. They return this morning.

Lawrence Larson, of Grand Forks, reports the arrival at his house on Monday, of a fine bouncing baby boy. Our cigars have not arrived yet but we expect them to arrive with the next male.

O. H. Richardson has bought of Chas. Lowe the old Ralston place in Andover. It seems that our old settlers know the value of Polk County dirt and are sharp enough to catch onto it while it is dirt cheap.

Geo. Brady, of Grand Forks went north on Monday morning to take charge of a station on the Great Northern road. His father used to be landlord of the Revere House in this city.

Cyprien DeMers was in to attend the Board meeting last week. Says that crops appear well in his neighborhood and prospects are excellent. Demers is developing into a faithful and efficient public servant.

This breaks our heart. Hugh Robertson says that the lettuce in his garden beats that in our little garden all hollow. Well it is easy to say that Hugh, but how are we to know unless you lettuce try some of it.

Mr. Endress also carries with him a cane, in the interior of which is an iron ramrod that was carried through the war by a soldier in Hood's Texas regiment, and which was presented to him by a friend fifteen years ago.

O. Snyder is breaking 100 acres on the south half of section 8 in the town of Crookston. Is rolling over an average of 8 acres a day with two teams which is pretty good work for these hot days. He expects to complete his job next week.

Geo. Vine, of the Robert Street meat market, informs us that his trade is excellent this summer. He purchases nothing but the choicest beeves and well understands the art cutting up into nice choice steaks. Try Vine once.

M. W. Jenson, the McIntosh miller was in the city last week. Says the mill has used up nearly all of the surplus wheat up there and probably will soon shut down till after harvest. Says the posepects for a good crop are very fine.

A woman from East Grand Forks was on Tuesday committed to the county jail for robbing an ancient tender-foot from Fergus Falls of a sum of money and a gold watch. The watch and $140, were recovered.

Ira D. Blanchard was over from Grand Forks County on Wednesday, to be examind for pension by the board. He is canvassing for the sale of a book and would do exceedingly well but for his old army trouble which interferes with his work.

News of the burning of Swan Anderson's house at Black River, reaches the JOURNAL. Loss said to be almost total. We are sorry to hear of Swan's misfortune, who is a sober industrious man and this severe loss must fall heavy on him at this time.

On Thursday, of last week F. O. Sustad, the railroad land agent made seven sales of land; on Friday six sales and on Saturday five. These sales were all made to old settlers, men who perfectly know these lands. This land averages $6,50 per acre.

Geo. W. Sprague was in the city last Friday in the interest of his insurance companies. He says they anticipate a larger business this season than ever before as the field is full of live agents and everybody seems to want hail insurance this year.

James M. Jones informs THE JOURNAL that although his wheat looks finely now a great deal of it was killed by the early frost which will necessarily effect the yield more or less. He says there is much more of that kind in the county than people will admit.

Col. A. L. Conger, of the Republican National committee says: "With Blaine as our standard-bearer, we would have a man who would give to farmers, business men and laboring men of all classes just such an administration as this country needs."

That chap we spoke of last week as having W. O. Wilson's horse brought suit this week and got—beaten, of course. Wilson says he dont object to paying for the keep of the horse though he was fooled out of the use of him but he wont be bulldozed.

Gus. Felsing came down from Maple Lake on Saturday. Reports business on the lake lively this year and the Maple Lake Belle has all she can attend to. They are going to have a big celebration up there on the 4th of July and the grandest time you ever he ard of.

M. E. Bartlett intends to start next week for a business trip to the old home in New York. His father, who is well along in years, is very much out of health and it is for this reason that he is obliged to go at this time. He expects to be gone from four to six weeks

Dept. Sheriff Losey brought one of the indicted madams of East Grand Forks before his honor Judge Mills, on Monday morning. By her attorney she waived reading the indictments and the case went over till Tuesday morning where she was given 60 days in the county jail.

Hugh Robertson returned from Minneapolis on Friday morning where he had been to attend a meeting of the Republican State League. He reports a large attendance and an enthusiastic meeting. His little child has been very sick with measles for a few days but is convalescing.

Glyndon News:—A Fargo wedding of Tuesday will interest Glyndon people. The parties were Mr. Edwin J. Nicholson of Crookston and Miss Lizzie D. Vannet, daughter of David Vannet. Many relatives of the Vannet family were present from the old home in Elkton township.

James Greenhalgh Jr. has sold his farm to Fred Anderson and Hans Larson, consideration $1400. It is something less than a quarter section but not one-half its actual value, and it is likely to be worth three times that sum inside of a year. What Jim intends to do we have not heard.

Comrade Bratton attended services at the Congregational church on Sabbath day, He has finished his month on the farm and secured an agency for the sale of machine extras of all kinds. We hope the comrade will do well for we think nothing is too good for the old boys in blue. If we had our way about it they would all be independently well off.

Mrs. E. Benjamin is keeping a nice boarding house on the corner of Broadway and Loring Ave, (Mrs. Pierce's old place) where you can get a first class dinner for only 20 cents. Farmers, when you come to the circus on Friday with your family remember the place—four doors south of the old opera house.

Earnest Buse arrived from British Columbia this week on a business visit. He does not hold up the western coast country in glowing terms. Says that some of the farmers who went to Washington to coin wealth in that new State are wishing they had money enough to return with. Comrade Buse was a tent-mate of comrade Kistenmaker in the army.

The Loyal Legion has been busy drilling for the past week all the same as though they expect to engage in action soon—and indeed they will, for it will be only a few short years when the actual warfare of life will begin for them. We trust that the drill they are now getting they will not forget during life. May they ever follow their leader under that banner.

Jas. Jenks was over from Grand Forks this week in the interest of his fence business. He is going to put up a fence for S. M. McKee for a sheep pasture and has a few orders in the city. He is prepared to put up an ordinary pasture fence or a neat dooryard fence just as you desire. Jenks was once a Polk County boy, and as a deputy sheriff he had no superiors.

It is a little late to mention it as news but it is nevertheless a fact, that we have not seen mentioned before, that W. W. Attix, of Mentor, was married to miss Susie Barker, of Argyle, on June 4th, Geo. M. Swift Esq. performing the interesting ceremony with dignity and grace—thus illustrating the prime essential doctrine of the alliance—unity. THE JOURNAL extends congratulations.

In the big wind that prevailed on Saturday afternoon fire broke out in a lumber-pile near the T. B. Walker planing mill. The big whistle on the sawmill sounded the alarm to which the fire department promptly responded and very soon subdued the angry flames. Had the wind been in the northwest it would have been a close call for the planing mill. One or two boxcars caught but no damage of any account resulted.

Gervais, the Hustler.

The R. B. George concert at the Baptist Church last Thursday evening was well attended and proved a fine entertainment. Evidently the instructors understand their business. The doll drill was very fine and highly enjoyed. Prof. and Mrs. George went from here to Grand Forks to organize a musical convention.

Lewis Ellington:—You may tell the JOURNAL readers that we will have a college here yet, as good if not better in every way as the late lamented. We are now negotiating with an association that is fully able to give us a first class instution and with good prospects of success. I for one do not propose to give up the idea of Crookston's having a first-class college. I have set my heart on it and am bound to see it accomplished.

Herb Mason is on deck for that wicked punster who, the other morning sprung a pretty good one on him. The chap called in right early in the morning and asked Herb: "Have you got any bananas?" "No," said Herb, "there isn't a banana in the city." Quick as a flash the chap replied: "How do you know that? Have you banana where this morninging to see?" and skipped out before Herb could recover presence of mind sufficient to kill him right there.

St. Vincent is making great efforts to capture the county seat of Kittson County. Hallock, the present county seat is located very near the center of the county and it does not seem possible that the people will vote to change the location to one end of the county thus doubling the expense and distance to the majority of the tax-payers but you can't tell what people will do these days,

Mrs. Anna LaChappilie was summoned to St. Paul last week by the death of her brother, Charles Colter. Mr. Colter was at one time a resident of Crookston, and had a meat shop on Front street near the Sherman house which was destroyed in one of the biggest fires that Crookstoon had in the early day. The fire destroyed several buildings and threatened the Sherman house but by extra hard work it was saved. Later on Mr. Colter removed to St. Paul where he has sinced lived.

A special car will leave Crookston for Moorhead on Monday evening next with excursionists for the encampment. It is expected that the Post of Stephen will come in a body to go along and comrades from Argyle, Warren, Angus Euclid and Fisher are expected to join. Round trip fare, $3. Many of the comrades will take their families. Adjutant V. D. Carruth desires all who intend going to notify him beforehand so that if possible the number of tickets needed may be ascertained. "Git on board, chillun" let's all re-une.

Call at Vine's meat market on Robert street for choice cuts. He buys only the choicest beeves and always has nice steaks and roasts.

Jos. Simpson: "I saw in the Times that Judge Montague considers $25 an enormous price for a good cow. I do not think so although I just offered to sell A. M. Childs a good new milch cow for $16. However, I think the Judge is way off in his reasoning. Last fall, when Chris Houston said he would take $10 for the best cow he had, he probably meant it, as I well remember that cows had to be good ones to bring that sum; now, these same cows have had to be wintered and most of them giving no milk to pay that expense, and, moreover, cows are worth more in this market than they were a year ago this spring and summer. The Judge should also remember that the first year he was on the equalization board, when the farmer paid a tax on an assessed value of $15, cows in the fall were sold in this market at from $5 to $7 frequently. To equalize that matter cows should not now be assessed higher than $10."

How The Col. Returned from the Fire.

Eh! what? But we said we wouldn't—

LOST.

On Sunday evening June 7th, somewhere between Odd Fellows Hall and the Baptist church, a lady's gold chain. Finder will be suitably rewarded by returning the same to A. A. Olds.

We print the above to show how well it pays to advertise in THE JOURNAL. It had been in type but a short time before Mr. Olds came in and announced that the chain had been found. Having found that it was advertised in THE JOURNAL, the finder knew it would be useless to try to keep it so he returned it to Mr. Olds at once.

Business.

On the 4th of June, Simon N. Pederarrived from Benson, Swift Co., and after looking about awhile, selected three quarters of section 29, in Andover, secured it by paying $10 down and returned to Benson for his traps. Returning on the 10th with ten good horses, breaking plows &c., &c.; he completed his purchase and went out to the land to build a house and break up enough for next season's crops. The land is about 8 miles from the city and he pays $7 per acre for it.

The Polk County Alliance is called to meet on Wednesday July 1st.

Among the recent transfers is the W. P. Bailey quarter near E. S. Corser's farm for $3,200.

John Cromb has bought the lot on Robert street adjoining the Fournet block on the west. Consideration, $2-500.

Several of our citizens went over to the Forks last Friday to take in the ball game. It was not very interesting—to them.

Great preparations have been made for the celebration of St. John Baptiste day in Crookston. That there will be a big time goes without saying.

For job work of any kind in the line of printing, call at THE JOURNAL job rooms. We are prepared to supply your wants promptly and well. Give us a trial.

See Dr. Thomas' new ad. in this issue. The doctor has secured a new patent business by which even a bald-headed man can fill his mouth with grinders if he has a root to anchor to. And he can fill up the ranks when a faithful grinder gets weary and drops out, without having to carry around the Brooklyn bridge in his mouth, as this is a system that requires no bridge in the mouth.

Mrs. and Miss Bailey are crowded with work in dressmaking, but are ready to attend to all orders. They cut by the United States system which is all the style nowadays. The ladies are invited to call and see them when they need anything in the line of millinery and dressmaking. Their trade in millinery has been deservedly good, as their goods are of the finest quality, stylishly trimmed and extremely reasonable in price.

Now is the time to invest in Red River Valley lands while the prices are away below the actual value. The prospects are that next spring these same lands will bring double what they can be had for now. Every day the Register records deeds of transfers for lands sold at a nominal figure, but while these changes will no doubt continue, the prices will be higher. To-day our lands are exceedingly cheap and now is the time to catch on.

Chas. D. Bailey told our reporter that he took a drive around through Andover, Russia and Fairfax on Sunday and says that he never saw crops looking so nicely in his life before. He also said: "The Crookston Fire Department deserves a very high compliment for the hard and faithful work they did at our fire on Saturday. I never saw men work harder and it did not take them very long to utterly discourage that blaze. They deserve a good long credit mark."

On Saturday evening a boy, driving a team hitched to a gang sulky plow, was driving along Fletcher street, between Broadway and Main, when for some reason or other the team started throwing the boy off the plow. The team ran furiously, but the boy hung to the lines and this so hampered them that they could not make great headway but soon ran into the sidewalk in rear of Alderman & Sylvester's hardware store and stopped and the boy crawled out from beneath the plow, went to their heads to quiet them and then began coolly to examine things to see what, if any, damage had been done. Nothing about the plow was broken and the boy's escape seemed miraculous.

Comrade Carruth and several old settlers were talking with Jas. Jenks on Monday evening about the old times, when Mr. Jenks said: "I might have secured the townsite of either Crookston or Grand Forks, if my foresight had been as good as my hindsight, as I was one of the first two men to settle in Polk County, and both of these thriving cities were then a howling wilderness. However, I am satisfied with the showing I have made and am as fully convinced now as I was then that the Red River Valley contains unlimited opportunities for acquiring wealth—in fact, if anything, I have more unbounded faith in the Valley than ever." Jenks has been a resident of the Valley over 20 years, and if experience counts for anything he ought to know more than a tender-foot.

Mr. Widenhoefer, an old Polk County resident died at his home in Fisher on Monday June 8th, at the age of 86 years. The Fisher Bulletin says:

"William Widenhoefer was born at Oberkochen, Germany, September 14th, 1854. He lived there until 1873, when he came to this country, locating at Beaver Bay, this state. In 1875 he removed to Hancock, Mich., where he resided until 1880, when he "came west" to Fisher. Those were the "boom" days in Fisher and everything was lovely hereabouts. He went into the hotel business here with his father, John Widenhoefer. "Billy" prospered, and February 6, 1883, was married to Annie Wentzle. Their happiness was not of long duration, as Mrs. Widenhoefer died in May of the same year. In September, 1884, he married Amelia Jance, the present Mrs. Widenhoefer. Up to the last few months he had been running the Northern Tier Hotel. He leaves no children. He was one of the most generous and genial gentlemen of our acquaintance."

ADDITIONAL LOCALS.

Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Morissey buried their little baby boy on Tuesday.

Attorny Sorley and wife, of Grand Forks, spent the Sabbath with Adolph and Mrs Rauch.

Mrs. Jack Bunell and Miss Dollie returned from St. Paul on Sunday morning, and-s-a-y—you ought to see that smile on Jack.

Comrade McLaughlin was down from McIntosh enjoying life with the boys on Tuesday. Mac. was a soldier boy in West Virginia when the writer was raiding the Kanawha Valley with the 1st N. Y. Vet. Cavalry in 1864.

Register Locken informs THE JOURNAL that lots of transfers of Polk County farms are taking place now-a-days Pretty well considering that we do not claim to be booming.

Our boys went over to Grand Forks on Friday and just to be courrteous and social allowed the G. F. team to wax them to the tune of 8 to 3—and Grand Forks went wild over the "gloriuos victory"! It does take so little to enthuse our sister city.

The first meeting of the season took place at the Crookston driving park on Thursday and was well attended. Sorrel Ned, Dufresne's sorrel won in the 3 minute class. In the green race, E. O. Flanders' colt took the ribbon. In the driving race S. L. Collins' team won, and "Broncho" owned by J. Rich won the pony race. The next event occurs on June 24th.

It is not often that landlord Bemis is at his wits end to take care of his guests but on Monday morning he was like the old woman you read about, who "had so many children she did not know what to do," for with an already "full house" he was "called" to "fill his hand" from the show people and the circus car. Bemis never denies trump however, and he managed to deal so that all were satisfied with their hand.

Children's Day at the churches last Sabbath was highly enjoyed by all, both great and small. At the Congregational church in the morning the pastor gave a nice little talk to the children and they did the rest of it. The altar was beautifully decorated with bright flowers and the services very appropriate. One venerable father in Israel remarked to the writer after the close of the services. "I enjoyed those services very highly. How plainly they brought back to me my first Sunday School, 75 years ago."

The Sarsparilla man was an object of wonder to the small boy last week while putting up his placards. He would walk up to a telephone pole and with a long handled hammer put a placard up ten or twelve feet from the ground and nail it to the post while he stood upon the ground, and it puzzled the boys to know how he did it. The hammer he used was so highly magnetized that a tack would stick to it until driven into the post and that solves the riddle.

Capt. W. P. Spaulding, the oldest conductor on the Northern Pacific line, died at his home in Brainerd on Wednesday June 10th at the age of 68 years. Capt. Spaulding took the first train into Duluth that ever ran in over the N. P. and has been in the employ of that company ever since—about 21 years. He entered the service as a Lieutenant in a Vermont company and was later promoted to a captaincy for gallant action in service. Almost every dweller on the N. P. line in the '70s knew "Cap." Spaulding, and he was highly respected by all. For the past few years he has been acting as paymaster of the machinery department east of Fargo. He was also Judge of probate of Cass Co., having been re-elected last fall for his second term.

FIRE BELLS.

On Tuesday morning, about 2 o'clock, our citizens were awakened by the clanging of the fire bell and the sharp whistle of a railroad engine, and hastily assuming presentable shape rushed out upon the streets to find that Wyatt's furniture store was in flames. When the department arrived at the scene the show room was wrapt in flames, but they soon discouraged that and in a very short time had the fire under perfect control. The cause of the fire is supposed to be from the explosion of a lamp that had been left burning in the show room. A. C. Schmidt had been papering the room and left a lamp burning to dry the papering. A few moments before the alarm was given Mr. Crawford's folks, in the bakery adjoining, heard a loud explosion that seemed to shake the building, and from that and other circumstances it seems beyond doubt that that was the origin of the fire. The stock was insured for $300, about two-thirds its value, in the Hartford and New Home, Christianson Bros. agents. The loss will be promptly adjusted, meanwhile Mr. Wyatt will be on deck for business as though nothing had happened. The fire ate through the wall into Slocum's grocery store and he suffered slight loss from damage by water. Fully covered by insurance in companies represented by Christianson Bros.

Beltrami Pointers.

Cool and rainy weather still continues, but so long as the ground is good and wet and the wheat on the jump, our farmers are not kicking if there is a lack of sunshine; indeed, the prospect for an old time crop is splendid in this vicinity, and it seems to be general, not a single farmer complaining.—In the District Court this week, R. L. Elder was given judgment against Jos. Gilsoul for $86. This was an appeal from Justice Hallock's court.—Capt. Webb and Judge Boddy attended court this week in the interests of their respective clients.—C. E. Ford Jr., and his best girl visited Maple Lake last Sunday.—W. J. Nickle has been in Crookston the past week getting used to the ways of city life, so he will know how to carry himself when he gets that silk hat and goes to little Rhody the coming fall.—At the sale of school lands last Friday, F. B. Dykeman bought 80 acres joining his place on the west which increases the size of his farm to 880 acres with 845 acres in crop this year.—Miss Kirsch, Miss Howind and Miss Smith are the teachers in this vicinity who will close school Friday so their scholars can go to the circus, and perhaps yourselves dear ladies. Mr. Editor, we were somewhat under the weather the past week but a kind friend has helped us out and we are able to send you a few items.

EDNA.

The attention of the whole country seems centering upon the Red River Valley this year, and if we get good crops of wheat and what it is worth—say one dollar per bushel—the result will be a greater influx of settlers than we have seen before. There has never been any question as to the fertility of our soil and that there is money in our wheat is amply attested by the large fortunes that have been made by those who have handled and those who have ground it, and just as soon as that day arrives when the producer shall be an equal partner in the receipts, then will this country see such a boom as she never saw before, and we believe that day is near at hand. To-day we have millions of acres in this Valley yet uncultivated—acres that can be bought at from one-third to one-half what it is worth for actual cultivation, and these lands will soon be sought after and occupied. In addition to this are many acres of cultivated lands that can be had as cheap from men who have tried to farm too much land and who desire to dispose of some of it. With a good crop and a good price this fall all of these lands will find ready sale by next spring and summer and then will begin that era of prosperity for which we have all waited so patiently.

A War Reminiscence.

The Glyndon News.

Mr. Geo. P. Endress of Canton, Ohio, traveling agent of the Diebold Safe and Lock company, was a guest at the Commercial Tuesday evening on his way to Crookston. Mr. Endress, who is a pleasing conversationalist, served during the war of the rebellion on a gunboat, and relates many interesting experiences of the days that "tried men's souls." He had in his possession the photograph of a letter written by Jefferson Davis to Judge L. A. Evans of St. Cloud, Minn., some three years since, and of which the following is a correct copy.

BEAUVOIR, MISS., June 13, 1888.

L. A. Evans, Esq.,

Dear Sir: Accept my thanks for your kind letter of the 4th. Your expectations of the coming of that harmony which is essential to the peace and prosperity of the Union may, I trust, be fully realized. As the "signs of the times" are satisfactory to so earnest a Democrat as yourself, it is cheering to one who likes to hear the cry from the tower—"all's well." Again thanking you, I am respectfully and truly yours.

JEFFERSON DAVIS.

CHILDRENS DAY.

The Minneapolis Times.

There used to be a beautiful custom (which seems to have fallen into desuetude) in the Methodist church which gave the 10th day of June wholly over to the children. The little folks were gathered into the church from the highways and byways. Each little one, however poor, had its bunch of roses. The sermon was usually the simple story of Jesus, told to them; the prayers were for them; the music was only the hymns going in their sweet, untaught voices up to heaven. It is a custom which should never have been permitted to become obsolete.

In the Moravian church there is a similar anniversary of the day on which Christ, entering into Jerusalem, was met by children, who shouted hosannas and strewed palm branches in his way. The Moravian children assemble in church and sing anthems of praise, which are answered by the congregation: In both cases they are an actual acting part of the church, that they are only the younger children of the Heavenly Father, the little ones whom He takes into his armes and carries where He will; that they, too, have something to do for Him, like those children ages ago whose palms thrown in His way are not yet faded, and whose feeble hosannas still echo in the world. It is not the children only that are helped by so beautiful a festival, but probably, still more, their fathers and mothers. The poor drunken sot who never enters a church door throughout the year will creep into the back pews on "Children's Day" to see his little girl go in with her clean dress and bright face and bunch of roses, and hear her voice in the hymns. The religion in which his child believes, and which makes her happy, will be true to him, and the story of Christ told to her will have a new meaning for him. It is the little child that leads us all. It is the child, too as we all know, that leads the future man against all other influences—against reason itself. No force of public opinion, no argument no conviction even in the adult man's own mind can do away with the impressions and faith of childhood. If, then Christian churches wish to establish Christianity more securely in the world forty years hence, they cannot devote too much time to training of their children in a firm faith in Christ. Sunday schools are well enough in their own way; but there is in their teaching necessarily the machinery of every organized movement, and the effect produced is measurably mechanical. The little scholar brings away with him a more lively sense of picture cards, banner classes, heathen penny boxes and entertaining library books than of the deep reverence and love for that Saviour which these things hint at rather than teach.

Outside of the Sunday school, too, little is being done by the churches for the training of children or young people. How many sermons preached during the year in any pupil would be understood by a child of ten or twelve? They are levelled at adults, and usually the most intelligent of them in the congregation; and very often are heavy literary efforts meant for certain critics, and in no wise intended to help the gaping boys and girls upward on the long way before them. Yet children followed the First christian, and any child can understand the Sermon on the Mount. The Roman Catholic church, with its shrewd, farsighted policy, begins almost in infancy to instruct the children in the tenets of its faith, and to give them the consciousness of their own part and duty in it; hence the strength of its hold upon the faith of its adults. The Episcopalian, Lutheran and Moravian sects follow the same policy, though not so far, and measurably with the same results.

The festival of Children's Day was a step in the right direction by the Methodists, and they have committed a grave error in suffering it to fall into disuse. No child participating in such a festival ever quite loses the gracious influence out of its life of the sacred story of Jesus told in the midst of sunshine, roses and music.

THE SPICE OF LIFE IN EUCLID.

[By our Special Correspondent.]

Crops are looking finely; but, although they are not suffering from drouth, a little rain would do a great deal of good.

The "blind pig," a house standing about two miles north of this village, which well deserves the name it carries, was the scene of a promiscuous "blowout" Sunday and Monday nights, June 7th and 8th, and one man got "done up." If it occurs again, in all probability a personal account will be given to the public.

On Tuesday Michael Kelley was harrowing down the race-course with a four-horse harrow, to which was hitched two of his own horses and two belonging to E. Fisk. Mr. Kelley left the horses standing and went some distance to speak to another person, and while he was gone the horses started up and ran toward town. When near the church one of Mr. Fisk's horses fell and the harrow was drawn completely over him, cutting him badly in the legs and head. One of Mr. Kelley's horses was cut in the hind legs.

James Tracy is recovering from a long seige of Red River fever, which has confined him to his bed for the last four weeks.

Mr. Hancock was in town Tuesday. He says he intends to break about 80 acres this season.

Mr. Hancock's children are all at home enjoying their vacation. After vacation Miss Ida will return to the Normal school to complete her education. Miss Anna will teach the school in Sampson's Addition, Crookston, and Louis and Miss Della will take the high school course in Crookston.

Mr. Severson, a real estate agent, was in town on Wednesday. He says crops look better around here than they do anywhere this side of St. Paul.

The members of the Presbyterian church gave an ice cream and strawberry festival Wednesday evening. It turned out a success in every respect, about 128 persons being present. The receipts were $19.25.

Mr. M. P. Losey and Mr. F. Tiedt came up from Crookston to spend the Sabbath with their families. They will go back to attend court on Monday.

The Presbyterian church observed "Children's Day" and gave a very good exhibition.

EUCLID.

Fisher Fancies.

From The Bulletin.

Elias Steenerson, of Crookston was in Fisher on Thursday. When asked about himself, Eli said: "I am agent for the Continental Insurance Co., the best insurance company on earth, by gum. I am also manager of the Rainy Lake, Crookston & Pacific railroad." —Al Mito was over from Crookston to visit his folks on Sunday.—Geo. O'Reilly is Capt. and manager of our base ball club. A better selection could not made.—Dr. and Mrs. Lankester returned from their visit on Monday morning. —L. C. McKnight has returned from his trip to Montana bringing very rich specimens of quartz from the mines.—He did not enjoy his trip very much on account of LaGrppe.—S. L. Collins came over with his hearse on Wednesday to attend the Widenhoeffer funeral. —August Wentzel and Chris Hoch were over on Wednesday.—Hugh Thompson has a four-year-old flyer that he is getting ready for the track.—The cutworms are playing sad havoc with the gardens and with potatoes. It is feared that potatoes will have to be replanted.

The July number of Peterson begins Volume 100 and shows many evidences of the continued improvements that have been made in this magazine during the present year. It is becoming noticeable for the number and excellence of its illustrations, and this month they are unusually good. There are two illustrated articles and an illustrated story and poem admirably done. Miss Kent's excellent serial, "A Lady of Labor," ends in a satisfactory manner and the opening chapters of "The Gap Between," by Frank Lee Benedict, present some very original situations and promise a story of great power. Peterson has become a charming family magazine, it always contains matter to interest the entire household. The children will be delighted with Totty Towersby's sketch of "Our Donkey," and its delicious series of illustrations. The number is brimfull of capital stories, poems and miscellaneous articles. The fashion and needlework designs are invaluable to the ladies. Everybody who wants one of the best periodicals going should subscribe for the new volume of Peterson, $2.00 per year, $1.00 for six months. A sample number will be sent for five cents. Address PETERSON'S MAGAZINE, 306 Chestnut St, Philadelphia, Pa.

OUR CITY DADS.

At the meeting of the city council on Tuesday evening June 9th. Four aldermen were absent and seven answered to roll call, and transacted the following business:

Committee in the matter of the N. P. crossing asked further time. Both granted.

Committe on removal of slaughter-houses recommend that they be not removed but that the health officers be empowered to enforce sanitary regulations. Report accepted and adopted.

The purchasing agent reported the purchase of an antique oak table, an office chair for each alderman and a table and chair for the president, clerk and attorney at a cost of $174 in St. Paul.

The invitation of St. John Baptiste Society to the Mayor and Council to join the procession on St. Johns Day was formally accepted.

A communication from W. E. McKenzie in relation to city printing was referred to Ald.'s Marshall, Marlette and Schmidt.

The city attorney gave his decisions that it is incumbent the bridge across the Great Northern R. R. at Seventh Street.

In ordinance relating to "Rescue and Attempted Rescue" was adopted also one establishing dumping grounds and regulations therefor.

Mortgage Sale.

(First Publication June 18th. 1891.)

WHEREAS OLE PEDERSON AND CAREN Pederson, his wife, of Polk County State of Minnesota, as mortgagors, did, on the 26th day of July A. D. 1886, duly execute and deliver to the New England Mortgage Security Company of the County of Windham, State of Connecticut, their mortgage bearing date of July 17th A. D. 1886, whereby they mortgaged to said mortgagee the following described lands situated in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota to-wit:

The North half of Southeast quarter, and South half of Northeast quarter of Section 1, Township 145, Range 45 west, containing 160, acres to secure the payment of the sum of Five hundred and Fifty Dollars, with the interest thereon, according to the conditions of one certain promissory note, with interest coupons attached, bearing even date with said mortgage, and made by said mortgagors to said Mortgagee, or order, which said mortgage was on the 27th day of July A. D. 1886, at three o'clock P. M. duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for said county of Polk in Book 27 of Mortgages, on page 211; and,

WHEREAS, default has been made in the payment of the sum of Thirty-eight and 50-100, Dollars, due as interest upon said mortgage on the 1st day of January A. D. 1891 and the said interest is still unpaid and due; and

WHEREAS it was stipulated by and between the parties to said mortgage, that if default should be made in any of the conditions or covenants therein contained on the part of the mortgagors, to be kept and performed, that then and from thenceforth it shall be lawful for the said mortgagee, or its assigns to consider and declare the whole sum secured thereby as immediately due and payable without notice to said mortgagors or any other party; and

WHEREAS, The New England Mortgage Security Company has exercised its option to consider and declare, and does hereby consider and declare the whole sum of money secured by said mortgage to be due and payable; and

WHEREAS, There is now due and claimed to be due on said mortgage at the date of this notice the sum of Six-hundred seven and 24-100 Dollars, and no proceedings have been instituted at law or otherwise to recover the same or any part thereof.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of a power of sale in said mortgage contained and therewith recorded, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the land, therein described, which sale will be made, the sheriff of Polk County, at the front door of the Court House in the city of Crookston in said County and State on the 8th day of August A. BIG WHITE TENTS.

Something About Their Future and the Men Who Invest Fortunes In Them.

Within a little over a year two of the most unique and typical Americans that ever rose from penury to opulence have passed from the arena of life and joined the ever increasing parade to which the "miles of free street pageantry" of their big shows, even when measured by the exaggeration of the the high-soaring, imaginative bill-writer, are but the merest mimicry of the mighty silent majority.

A careful survey of the field reveals the fact that the coming men are not from the rank and file of those we may term the old liners, but from the later and more energetic additions of amusement caterers, among whom by far the most prominent, wealthy, and capable are the Ringling Bros., who have for the last few years lacked only the prestige time alone can bring to place them on an equal footing with Barnum and Forepaugh. As regards the latter two shows the public will look with interest upon their movements and see if they can be successfully run without their former leaders. The greatness of these men's shows was too much centered in their remarkable personality to survive the grave. There are other shows that might come in for a chance in the race, were it not for the fact that they presided over by men grown old in the business, who have long since reached the limit of their possibilities. On the contrary, the Ringling Bros. are young men who have hardly more than started on their career as a leading big show, and by the enormous strides they have made in late years in bringing before the public a show of truly wonderful merit and proportions, is considered, conjecture fails to place a limit on their present as well as future possibilities. Besides these considerations there are five of the Ringling brothers, each one capable of managing any one of the large circus institutions, yet the efforts of the five are directed toward the proper management of the one great shows They have also taken a step in the right direction by never resorting to any of the cheap, woolly-horse and whitewashed-elephant style of features of their older but less conscientious rivals, and, while many are blindly imitating the great showman who said the American people wanted to be humbugged, these self-emulating young men have built a monument to themselves by adhering to the idea that the public wants what it pays for and is entitled to see.

Special to the Journal.

WASHINGTON, June 11.—From what the politicians who now and then find their way to Washington say, the silver question is still the predominant one with the people throughout the country. The legislation on the subject at the the last session of congress is not considered at all permanent in settling matters. It is evident from talk with the visiting gentlemen referred to that there are some Republicans, and also many Democrats, who wish that the silver agitation were a thing of the past. The Republicans who hold this desire are mainly from the east and like nearly all people in that section are opposed to any further enhancement of silver or enlargement of the currency based upon that metal. The Democratic opponents are men who have the Cleveland idea so imbued as to constitute an integral part of their very existence. The Republicans referred to want the silver statu quo to continue for fear that further agitation might cause serious dissension in their ranks; while the Democrats of the east fear that continued prominence of the consideration given to silver would detract from the supremacy of their pet idea, free trade, and in the same degree endanger the prospects of their pet candidate, Mr. Cleveland.

But neither will find politics taking the trend they would have. It can be said that silver is "in it" and "in it" to stay. It is not only the Farmers Alliance and similar political offshoots that demand further legislation in favor of silver, but there is a sentiment of this kind among the people so strong that something will have to be done in conformity with it. This is recognized by the leaders on both sides. They have as far as possible consulted on the subject. The Republicans have had the advantage of such consultations, because they will have fewer men in the next congress. On the other hand there will be so many democrats in the next house who have not yet appeared in the congressional field that it is with great difficulty anything like a general understanding can be reached by that side before congress reassembles and members settle down into their seat. The general statement can, however, be made that a large majority who go into the democratic caucus will be for free coinage. As to the Republicans there has not yet been a sufficient precipitation of the various elements in their ranks to tell with any definite accuracy what their program will be.

A hand which will have much to do with the delineation of the Republican program is one which has not hitherto appeared in the party's councils when silver was the subject under consideration. That hand belongs to Secretary of State, James G. Blaine. Mr. Blaine has not been heard from in regard to silver since his speech in 1878 when he was in the senate, Mr. Blaine then in discussing the remonetization bill which had come over from the house, took the middle ground. He was opposed to the dollar of 412½ grains, but said he was in favor of one of 487 grains, or a silver dollar containing $1 worth of silver. That speech is the last direct pronouncement as regards silver that has been had from Mr. Blaine. He has, however, been consulted in the last few months by Republican leaders and there are the best reasons in the world for saying that his ideas about silver have undergone a material change. He no longer for instance, holds that the dollar should contain 487 grains of silver and yet he is not in favor of free and unlimited coinage. When he made his speech in 1878 he, like so many other able public men, thought that the remonetization of silver would run gold up to a premium. He has realized that he was mistaken in the view which which he took and has changed with the light of experience as a guide. He recognizes the fact that a vast majority of the people of the West want free coinage and knows that there are none of sufficient prescience to say exactly what the result of financial legislation in any direction would be. He thinks that the present time, inasmuch as the credit of the country is almost unparalelled in the history of nations, would be the proper period in which to test what many people so earnestly wish to be inaugurated. He would have a bill passed providing for the free coinage of all silver produced in the United States, it is said. If the inauguration of such a policy as this should prove, as some prophets hold it would, detrimental to the national finances, there would be no difficulty in providing an estoppal.

As stated, there are very good reasons for believing the policy here outlined to be that held in favor by Mr. Blaine. It also finds favor among some other Republican leaders. So there need be no surprise if the stand which the Republican party will take upon the disputed silver ground is embraced in the sentence: "Free coinage of the American product." The more some Republicans think and talk about this the more do they become convinced that the course outlined in the quoted sentence is for them and their party generally the proper safe and popular one. Until the Republican National convention at Minneapolis has adjourned sine die, however, no one can tell what will be the exact outcome in this respect.

BINDING TWINE.

Report of the Committee on Binding Twine appointed by the Executive Committee of the Minnesota State Farmers' Alliance.

ST. PAUL, Minn., May 23, 1891.

To the Executive Committee of the State Farmers' Alliance:

GENTLEMEN:—We beg leave to report in relation to Binder twine that after examining samples and prices furnished by several of the principal Cordage Companies, we find that the twine handled by our Alliance Business Agency, at 673 Wabasha St. Paul, Minn., is the most satisfactory of anything in the market, prices and quality considered, and we trust our members will place their orders for twine with them.

Respectfully submitted,
C. F. BOHALL.

MORTGAGE SALE.

[First publication June 4th, 1891.]

WHEREAS, KNUDT H. BERG AND Aguette Berg, his wife, of Polk County, State of Minnesota as mortgagors, did, on the 19th day of November, A. D. 1888, duly execute and deliver to Horace Alling, of the County of Essex, State of New Jersey, their mortgage bearing date of November 4th, A. D. 1888, whereby they mortgaged to said mortgagee the following described lands situated in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, to-wit; Southwest quarter (sw¼) Section 24, Township 143, Range 45 west, containing 160 acres, to secure the payment of the sum of six hundred fifty dollars, with interest thereon, according to the conditions of one certain promissory note, with interest coupons attached, bearing even date with said mortgage, and made by said mortgagors to said mortgagee, or order, which said mortgage was on the 19th day of November, A. D. 1888, at 1:30 p. m., duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for said County of Polk, in book 87 of mortgages, on page 160; and

Whereas, default has been made in the payment of the sum of fifty-two and 57-100 dollars due as interest upon said mortgage on the 1st day of January, A. D. 1890, and on the further sum of forty-five and 50-100 dollars, due as interest thereon on the 1st day of January, A. D. 1891, and the said interest is still unpaid and due; and

Whereas, it was stipulated by and between the parties to said mortgage, that if default should be made in any of the conditions or covenants therein contained on the part of the mortgagors, to be kept and performed, that then and from thenceforth it shall be lawful for the said mortgagee, his heirs, administrators, executors or assigns to consider and declare the whole sum secured thereby as immediately due and payable without notice to said mortgagors or any other party; and

Whereas, the said Horace Alling has exercised his option to consider and declare, and does hereby consider and declare the whole sum of money secured by said mortgage to be due and payable; and

Whereas, there is now due, and claimed to be due on said mortgage at the date of this notice the sum of seven hundred seventy-three and 57-100 dollars, and no proceedings have been instituted at law or otherwise to recover the same or any part thereof.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of a power of sale in said mortgage contained and therewith recorded, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the land therein described, which sale will be made by the Sheriff of Polk County, at the front door of the Court House, in the city of Crookston, in said County and State, on the 31st day of July, A. D. 1891, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon of that day, at public vendue to the highest bidder for cash, to pay the sum due on said mortgage, together with taxes, if any, on said premises, and fifty dollars attorney's fees therein stipulated to be paid in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the date of sale as provided by law.

MORTGAGE SALE.

WHEREAS DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE in the payment of the sum of two hundred and forty-six dollars ($246.00) which is claimed to be due at the date of this notice upon a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by David R. McGinnis to P. C. Sletten and John Cromb, of Polk County, Minnesota, bearing date the first day of December, A. D. 1882, and, with a power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the 6th day of December, A. D. 1882, at 11:30 o'clock a. m., in book "H" of mortgages, on page 435.

And whereas P. C. Sletten, one of the mortgagees named in said mortgage, died testate, at Crookston, Polk County, Minnesota, on the 8th day of July, A. D. 1884.

And whereas the last will and testament of the said P. C. Sletten was proved and admitted to probate in the Probate Court of Polk County, Minnesota, on the 30th day of July, A. D. 1884.

And, whereas, by the terms of said will Kari Sletten, the wife of the said P. C. Sletten, was made the sole legatee and devisee of all the real and personal property of which he died seized aforesaid.

And, whereas, the Probate Court of said Polk County issued its final decree in the estate of P. C. Sletten, deceased, dated Aug. 6, 1887, by the terms of which the said Kari Sletten was decreed to have an undivided half interest in the above described mortgage, which said decree was duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for said County of Polk, on the 11th day of May, 1888, at 1:30 p. m., in book 29 of deeds, on pages 574 to 578 inclusive, and no action or proceeding having been instituted, at law or otherwise, to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now therefore, notice is hereby given, that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, viz: Lots four (4) and five (5) in block six (6), in Cromb and Sletten's subdivision of outlots in Hurlbut's addition to Crookston, in Polk County and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances, which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk County, at the front door of the Court House in the City of Crookston, in said County and State, on the 18th day of July, A. D. 1891, at ten o'clock a. m. of that day, at public vendue to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and twenty-five dollars attorney's fees, as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale as provided by law.

Notice of Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

First publication May 21st, 1891.

DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE IN THE conditions of a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Charles Kindler and Minnie Kindler, his wife, mortgagors, to Northwestern Guaranty Loan Company, mortgagee, bearing date the 29th day of June, A. D. 1888, and duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the 9th day of July, A. D. 1888, at 3:10 o'clock p. m., in book 36 of mortgages, on pages 224-2.

Whereas, such default consists of the failure to pay the installments of interest that became due December 29th, 1888, June 29th, 1889, December 29th, 1889, June 29th, 1890, and December 29th, 1890, each of said installments being for $28. And whereas the said Northwestern Guaranty Loan Company, the holder of said mortgage, has elected to declare, and hereby does declare, the whole principal sums in said mortgage set forth due and payable at the date of this notice under the terms and conditions of said mortgage and the power of sale therein contained.

And whereas there is actually due and payable at the date hereof upon the premises in said mortgage described the following sum, to-wit: Nine hundred and seventy-three dollars and ten cents. ($973.10) and whereas the said power of sale has become operative, and no action or proceeding at law or otherwise has been instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed and the premises described in and covered by said mortgage, viz: The southeast quarter (se¼) of Section twenty-six, (26), in Township one hundred and fifty-two (152) north, of Range forty-five (45) west, containing 160 acres. Said premises situate and being in the county of Polk and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances, will be sold at public auction, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and twenty-five dollars attorney's fee, as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk County, at the front door of the Court House, in the City of Crookston, in said County and State, on

Notice of Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE IN THE conditions of a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Thomas Allard and Susie Allard, his wife, mortgagors, to Northwestern Guaranty Loan Company, mortgagee, bearing date the 5th day of September, A. D. 1889, and duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the 5th day of September, A. D. 1889, at 9:25 o'clock a. m., in book 47 of mortgages, on page 39.

Whereas, such default consists of the failure to pay the following installments of interest, to-wit: $39.17 that became due May 1st, 1890, $30.00 that became due November 1st, 1890, and $30.00 that became due May 1st, 1891. And whereas the said Northwestern Guaranty Loan Company, the holder of said mortgage, has elected to declare, and hereby does declare, the whole principal sums in said mortgage set forth due and payable at the date of this notice under the terms and conditions of said mortgage and the power of sale therein contained.

And whereas there is actually due and payable at the date hereof upon the premises in said mortgage described the following sum, to-wit: Eleven hundred and twenty-one dollars and forty cents, ($1,121.40) $1,106.90 thereof being principal and interest thereon and $14.50 being for the premiums on insurance necessarily paid by mortgagee, October 7th, 1890, and interest thereon, and whereas the said power of sale has become operative, and no action or proceeding at law, or otherwise, has been instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now therefore notice is hereby given that by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed, and the premises described in and covered by said mortgage, viz: The southwest quarter (sw¼) of Section thirty-two, (32), in Township one hundred and fifty (150) north, of Range forty-one (41) west, containing 160 acres more or less according to the government survey thereof; said premises situate and being in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances, will be sold at public auction to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt and interest, insurance and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and fifty dollars attorney's fee, as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk County, at the front door of the Court House, in the City of Crookston, in said County and State, on

NEWSPAPER LAW.

1. Any person who takes a paper regularly from the post office, whether he has subscribed or not, is responsible for the payment.
2. If any person orders his paper discontinued he must pay all arrears, or the publisher may continue to send it until payment is made and then collect the whole amount, whether the paper is taken from the office or not.
3. In suits for subscriptions, the suit may be instituted where the paper is published.
4. The Courts have decided that refusing to take newspapers or periodicals from the post office, or removing and leaving them uncalled for, while unpaid for, is prima facie evidence of intention to defraud.

THE FARMER BOY.

BY FRED W. DAVIS.

Quite a good deal has been said
About farmer boys leaving the farm,
And, indeed! it has of late
Caused no small alarm.
But I can see no harm in it,
Since there's others to fill their place,
Each human being should choose his course
On which to run life's race.

Why shouldn't farm lads be merchants?
Or, why shouldn't they practice law?
Or, as far as that's concerned,
Why not run a buzz-saw?
As long as they prefer it to plowing,
Or hoeing corn and beans,
And as long as they like "slinging ink"
Better than grooming the teams,

There are some old fogies
That would like to see the boys
Trudging o'er the acres,
While the dust blows in their eyes,
Instead of seeing them comfortably
Settled in some town,
With no other business
Than talking temperance down.

Then they say "The attraction
That draws boys toward the city,
Is the sound of some lass'es voice
Singing a charming ditty."
Is this true? I tell you, no!
It is all a hoax,
For farmer boys possess as much
Sense as other folks.

It's because they like it better
In a thriving town,
Than twenty miles from nowhere,
Trudging o'er plowed ground.
So I say, "If they like it better
Let them work in a store,
Or give them a good fair chance
On the wings of fame to soar.

Wants to Know, You Know.

ED. JOURNAL: I clip the following rom the Times, which really needs ventilation, as it has a very strong odor of the most putrid of conceit, and such an intolerant statement I can hardly believe has ever been uttered by Mr. Steenerson, unless it was made in a moment of haste, without due consideration. If this should not be his sentiment all the political philosophers and reformers in this part of the country would like to hear from him. If Steenerson thinks he makes an ass of himself with any such people as Nationalists, then he throws a direct insult in the face of all Nationalists, and we would like to know whether this insult comes from the attorney or from the Times; you see, "we want to consider where it comes from," as the Irishman said when the mule kicked him. I will further say that if either the Times or the attorney can point to any ignorant Nationalists I can point to ten thousand ignorant democrats or republicans. The fact is that the Nationalists have sprung from the republican and democratic parties by their moral awakening to the necessity for political reform. They shudder at the sight of the present system, where competition breeds war, hate and jealousy between mankind where peace and love should reign. If this government would try to remove the cause of crime in the place of punishing it they would do far more than they are doing at present for mankind; at least no one needs to be ashamed to talk about it.

A BELIEVER IN CO-OPERATION.

"Do you remember the Nationalist Club that was organized here last winter? Yes, and you know, possidly, also that they held a number of meetings to which the public was invited. I did not attend any of those meetings but learn that they were not very highly successful at first. The speakers were all imbued with the idea of Nationalism and the oratory was all on one side. It needed opposition to create an interest and one of the members noticing this fact invited speakers to come and take the other side of the question. Among those invited were Attorneys Halvor Steenerson, R. J. Montague and A. L. Gossman. There were some pretty good speakers who has espoused the cause of Nationalism and the expectation that there was to be a lively debate brought out a good crowd. Gossman was the only one of the trio of attorneys who put in an appearance. He had prepared himself and when called upon to give his views he shot such a broadside into the Nationalist camp as to entirely route the enemy. But Gossman was somewhat disappointed that the two disciples of Blackstone had left him to do battle alone and the next day, meeting Steenerson on the street, he approached him with a frown and said:

"I thought you were coming up to the meeting last night. We had a big crowd, and I went up as I had promised and gave them a little talk, but I was disapointed that you and Montague were not there to help me out."

"No, I am glad to say I did not go," said Steenerson.

"But why not;" persisted the first speaker.

"Well" said Steenerson, "when I have fully decided to make an ass of myself I want to choose a more secluded place and a much smaller crowd for the accomplishment of the deed."

Thief River Falls Items.

From the Press.

Cut worms are doing considerable damage in gardens.

Fred Besette, of Red Lake Falls, was in town the first of the week.

Mr. Kretzschmar is making repairs on his mill, amnother other things he is cleaning out and deepening the tail race.

Ed. Evenson returned from Otter Tail County yesterday, bringing with him a thoroughbred Durham bull. It is a fine animal and worth any man's time to look at.

Some excellent work has been done on the main road in the town or Norden east of the east sand ridge. It is now passable for heavy loads, but the good work should not stop until the road farther west is made as good. There are only a few rods that are almost impassable and of course it makes the good road useless. Work is being done on the roads west of the village and poor roads in the town of North will soon be a thing of the past.

Levi LaDue, of Crookston, is spending a few days in town.

Chas. Meyer, Will Porter, C. A. Robbecke and son Charlie, have gone to Crookston on business and circus.

John Pederson started to-day as guide for a party from Hawley who are here for the purpose of looking over the reservation soon to be opened.

DIRT IS FLYING.

Mr. A. Wright is here with sleeves rolled up and is setting the foundation, getting out the timbers and with a crew of men is placing the fact of a saw mill for Thief River Falls in a few weeks a fact indeed. We told you so! There are other good things on the way.

St. Hilairities,

From St. Hilaire Spectator.

Mrs. C. G. Rapp returned last Friday from a two weeks visit to relatives in Goodhue county.

Fred Anderson, the Crookston wholesale fruit dealer was in town last Monday selling goods.

It is surprising to see the number of business appointments our citizens profess to have at Crookston the last of this week. They wouldn't think of going to the circus if they didn't have some business to attend to. Oh no!

We regret to announce the death of Mr. Peter Bramsness last Saturday night from typhoid fever. Mr. Bramsness was well and favorably known here and his death will be mourned by many. He leaves a young wife and baby to mourn his loss. The funeral took place Sunday afternoon.

Dr. Dunlop, of Crookston, was called to attend the Bramsness family last Saturday and pronounced them all sick with typhoid fever. Mr. L. R. Bramsness, Willie and Mary Bramsness are now very sick with the disease. They are now under the care of Dr. Hennemuth who has hopes of bringing them through all right.

The smiling countenance of Supt. of Schools Grefthen was noticeable in Fertile the first of the week.

There is quite a demand for land in this locality. T. A. Bakken has disposed of two farms within the past week to parties hailing from North Dakota.

K. J. Bolle died at his home in the town of Liberty Monday morning, after a sickness of only a few days. The deceased was highly esteemed by all who knew him.

Ole Stromsmo is all smiles this week. It is all on account of that boy that arrived at his home Tuesday morning.

The new road from Kankel's new mill to Beltrami is now an assured fact. At a meeting of the supervisors of the town of Liberty last Saturday, at which several of our citizens were in attendance, it was decided to go ahead with the project. Mr. LaDue, whose land the road passes through, gave them permission to run the road through his farm for the small consideration of $100 and then donated half of that amount towards the building of the road. Mr. LaDue is to be praised for his generosity as the road passes through the best part of his land and also cuts off the water from his stock, but this will try and be remedied by putting in a culvert which will give them excess to the river. A subscription paper was circulated here previous to the meeting and about $125 was raised towards building the road. Work has already been commenced on the new road and will be pushed until completed. This will not only make one of the prettiest drives in the county but will open up a new territory of trade for Fertile and the amount of good derived from its construction will be beyond the hopes of the most sanguine.

McIntosh Itums.

From The Times.

H. L. Peake of Crookston, was looking over our city Saturday with a view to opening a harness shop.

Gunder, the little two month's old son of Gunder and Mrs. Danielson died at the home of his parents last week. He was buried Thursday.

The latest acquisition to the McIntosh menagerie is a cinnamon bear, was sent east by a son of Mr. Bolstad, of this city, to be educated. Nordby and Nuckelby have him in training.

Moorhead News:—Mr. F. J Burnham and his daughter, Miss Bessie, last evening took the business men's special over the Great Northern for New York, where they will take a steamer for Liverpool. A large number of friends were at the depot to see them off and bid them a pleasant trip.

East Grand Forks Courier:—On Tuesday Jeremiah Driscoll purchased the nw ¼ of 34-152-49, of Patrick Cunningham for $3,000 spot cash. Mr. Cunningham retains the crop. This purchase gives Jerry half a section of land in a lump, worth easily $7,000 to $8,000. Mr. Driscoll is comparatively a young man, hardly 30 years of age, and has accumulated this property, which is clear, together with stock and machinery sufficient to farm a whole section, during the past few years right here in the Red River Valley. Mr. Driscoll and his brothers, John, Michael, James and Thomas, now possess nearly 2,000 acres, while Mrs. Driscoll, their mother, owns three quarters, all lying close to the city, and under cultivation. A conservative estimate of the value of this land would be $30 per acre. The success of the Driscoll brothers as farmers since coming to the Red River Valley may seem phenomenal, but it is due chiefly to the manner in which they have farmed. They carry on farming as a business, and not as too many farmers do in the country—as a side issue—a mere speculation.

A Democrat Warns His Party.

New York Press.

The public record of ex-Congressman George L. Converse of Ohio is that of a thorough paced Bourbon Democrat. In no particular has he ever departed from the doctrines for which his party contended, and he has been a powerful factor in Ohio by reason of his high position and ability. Mr. Converse, however, is imbued with the spirit of Americanism, and he has so little sympathy with the free trade theories now forced upon his party as its shibboleth that he has given voice to an earnest protest against them and a warning that persistence in following those theories will bring certain defeat. Mr. Converse, not only believes that the Democratic party has made a grave and serious mistake, as he says, in antagonizing protection as an American principle and policy, but declares that its only hope of success lies in dropping its opposition to the McKinley law and formulating other and more popular issues.

The warning he thus gives his party is sound and practical. If for no other reason than that business of the country has had enough of tariff discussion and uncertainty it would be prudent for the Democratic party to follow his advice. With each succeeding day business affairs are more and more regulated upon the basis of the schedules of the law. The annoyances incident to any new tariff bill are virtually over and persons whose affairs are affected by the tariff have accommodated themselves to the new. By another year they will be the most earnest opponents of any propositions to change it. Thus from the standpoint of practical politics, as well as upon the broad platform of principle, Mr. Converse is wise in notifying his party that it must give up either free trade or all hope of ruling the American nation.

BLAINE FOR 1891.

An Opinion That Mr. Harrison is Not an Available Candidate.

BLOOMINGTON, Ill., June 16.—Gen. John McNulta attended the republican conference at Indianapolis last week. In answer to a general question Gen. McNulta said: "It was agreed unanimously that it was inadvisable to renominate President Harrison; that he had by his persistent refusal to listen to his own friends and party and constitutional advisers in their efforts to harmonize and strengthen the party made his renomination an impossibility; that he was out of the list of available candidates." The purpose, clearly, was to hold the matter open for public discussion, and select the man best fitted for the place, who would give the greatest strength to the party in the election. If, when the proper time came, it was deemed wise to nominate Mr. Blaine, and he manifested a purpose to accept, then it was thought best to unite on him. Until then, every state and district should go for its own favorite, and in the end, go for the man who is strongest before the people.

Good News For Business Men.

THE AUTUMN EXPORT TRADE WILL BE THE BIGGEST ON RECORD.

SHIPMENTS OF AMERICAN BREADSTUFFS TO BE SO LARGE THAT STEAMSHIP ROOM IS NOW ENGAGED SIX MONTHS AHEAD IN THIS CITY.

New York Press.

Conservative business people have been looking forward with some apprehension to the condition of business next fall. Their chief anxiety springs from the loss of the $60,000,000 in gold which American bankers shipped abroad within five months to help European countries out of their financial difficulties and wildcat speculations.

But there are some very hopeful signs which every business man will be cheered to read in The Press this morning, because they tend to allay apprehension for the future. In the first place, investors and money lenders alike are exercising remarkable caution in business transactions, and are fortifying themselvess against the promised financial stringency in the fall. The actual passage of money plays a very small part in the commercial transactions of to-day. Confidence or credit is the great circulating medium, and in that respect New York banks were never better off than to-day.

CHARTERS NOW SIX MONTHS AHEAD.

But the new and most promising phase of the situation, now made known for the first time, is that all the great European steamships sailing from this port have their spaces reserved for cargoes engaged months ahead. The American crop of breadstuffs promises to the largest ever known. In Europe the crops are very small. Europe will will be more than usually dependent on the United States for food, and the transcontinental railroads and the transatlantic steamships will have an uncommonly busy and profitable time sending it to them. The American farmer will get higher prices and will be correspondingly happy.

In addition to the regular line steamers a large number of outside vessels, with capacities ranging from 8,000 to 13,000 quarters each, have been chartered for September and October shipment to load for Cork for orders at four shillings per quarter. The term, "Cork for orders" is a comprehensive form of charter and means that the shippers can order the vessel to certain direct ports in the United Kingdom or Continent at threepence less than the charter rate.

BIG FREIGHT ENGAGEMENTS.

Efforts have been made to keep these freight engagements secret, but The Press has the very best authority for stating that they have been made. Furthermore, purchases of millions of bushels of the coming crop have already been made by foreign houses, and all these preparations for a heavy fall and winter export movement are but the natural consequence of the failure of the foreign crops. Exporters purchased no less than 700,000 bushels of wheat on yesterday's market.

The United States is, of course, the greatest grain producing country in the world. France comes second, but this year she will have a shortage of 30 per cent., and will want for her own consumption between 100,000,000 and 120,000,000 bushels of foreign grain, in consequence of which she has lowered her grain duties 40 per cent.

Germany raises chiefly rye, and this crop is in a very bad condition, though her wheat crop is about an average one. Crop accounts from England are good, though it is very strange that under the same conditions that have caunsed great shortages in other western crops she should have sustained no loss, and conservative authorities here are very skeptical about the English reports. Spain has a short crop, and so has Italy. Portugal, Holland and Belgium are up to the average.

Of the exporting countries Austria-Hungary has a fair crop, but advices from Russia are very unreliable. Winter wheat, which constitutes one-third of the Russian grain production is badly hurt, and spring wheat is reported in danger by drought. Rye is officially reported as showing a large deficit. The Indian crop is a little above the average.

A CHEERFUL OUTLOOK.

It is an old saying that "As go the grangers, so goes the stock market.' The grangers are certainly destined to have exceptionally fine business when they begin to haul the crops, and it is safe to say that the higher prices which farmers will realize for their crops will make an equally favorable return flow of tonnage in the form of purchases by farmers. Prices of wheat to-day range about fifteen cents per bushel more than at the corresponding time last year.

Opinions as to the time that the return flow of gold will set in the differ. The fact remains, however, that the United states has more than paid any trade balance against her, and as soon as the crop exports begin in earnest earnest we can demand gold in payment if we require it.

Moorhead News

In our opinion the new party will never show the life and vigor of the old party which died that the new might live. Let the Republican party declare in favor of free coinage of silver; the issuance of fractional paper currency; extension of commerce by building up steamship lines and reciprocal trade relation; and more stringent legislation to prevent as well as prohibit trusts, combinations of capital to oppress the poor, and such other remedial acts as are consistent with justice and common sense. Then with good crops and higher prices for products, which are almost sure to follow under the influence of the tariff bill and more money, the republican party will carry the country in 1892.

LOW TARIFF MEN

A Move to Organize the Low Tariff Republicans of the State,

RECIPROCITY IS IN IT, TOO

The Proposed Club is to Be Educational Rather than Political.

SAM HILL ITS REPUTED FATHER

The Movement Enveloped in Some Mystery which Mr. Hill is Not Ready to Clear Away.

Minneapolis Journal.

"To the Low Tariff Republicans of Minnesota, Greeting."

This is the burden of the very latest political movement in this state. Its object? Educational rather than political. At least so declares its leaders. And yet there is a mystery about it which seems to whisper to political wiseacres portentous things which they know not how to interpret. Certain it is—as the investigations of a Journal man to-day demonstrated—that a healthy move in the direction of organizing the Republican low tariff sentiment of the state is on foot. There may be, and probably are, other principles working in the movement, notably the the sentiment for reciprocity. The men at the head declare emphatically, however, that they have no private axes to grind and no offices to ask. They are in it for the good of party and state, and for the elimination of what has come to be called McKinleyism in their party. Politics, except in this broader sense, does not enter into their plans, and they are building not for the campaign of '92 but for the future. The organization of the club has not yet been perfected, and that such a scheme is working only came to light this afternoon.

Samuel Hill is credited with being at the head of the low tariff movement, and he admitted it very frankly to a Journal man to-day.

"But I cannot give any particulars," said Mr. Hill. "The organization is not perfected, and it is better not to say anything until it is. No I prefer not to say anything further to-day. I will say, however, that the club has no political candidates, and none of the proposed members want office."

It was learned from another source that at least 75 prominent Republicans in the state have signified their desire to join the club. The organization is to be carried into every county in the state. The principles of the club, as reported, are to favor a low tariff, modified from the present schedules, and, it is understood, the reciprocity idea.

The new club will be incorporated, the declaration of principles being ready now, but a good deal of secrecy is maintained as to its personnel. It is intimated that there is considerably more back of the organization than appers simply in the low tariff idea.

DIED.

East Grand Forks Courier.

James Kenn, on Tuesday, June 9th 1891, of bronchial troubles, aged 71 years. Notwithstanding the fact that Mr. Kenn had been sick more or less during the past three months, the intelligence of his death was a surprise to his many friends. Deceased has resided here during the past thirteen years, settling on the homestead some four miles north of this city, soon after his arrival in this country from Scotland, where he was born. Of a genial nature and thorough in his business relations with his fellow men he possessed to an unusually large degree the confidence and respect of all with whom he came in contact.

During his residence here he has repeatedly held the office of town clerk, town treasurer and town assessor, and the records of the respective offices which he filled are models of neatness and accuracy. He leaves a wife and six children, two girls and four boys, in good circumstances. His funeral occured yesterday, Rev. Mr. Pence officiating, the interment being in the Protestant cemetery. The funeral was the largest which ever passed through this city.

Geo. Vine, of the Robert Street meat market, informs us that his trade is excellent this summer. He purchases nothing but the choicest beeves and well understands the art cutting up into nice choice steaks. Try Vine once.

Alderman I. U. Jennings returned from Chicago on Thursday morning. While there he visited Libby prison to see the place where his brother, W. H., was a prisoner of war. He says the old prison is just the same as it was during war times.

While in this city last week I. K. Messelt went out to Pete Cornelius' residence and bought a grade Polled Angus bull to take out to his stock farm. Pete delivered the animal at Fertile. I. K. says he means to diversify his farming operations.

C. A. Johnson is agent for hail and fire insurance in alliance companies. Charlie is an A. 1 man and can give perfect satisfaction. He is prepared to write insurance in the northeast part of Polk County. His address is Thief River Falls.

We learn that Henry Peterson, who went to Hot Springs for his health awhile ago, has purchased a team of William Go-ats, is breaking them to harness and intends to bring them up to Polk County to beat Will's Star Bashaw trotter.

Mrs. E. E. Bangs, informs our reporter that her business has been so good this season that she is obliged to order new supplies every week. Never before has she sold so many goods and her prices are extremely low. She invites the ladies to call.

Judge Benson appeared at his office on Monday morning in disguise—beats all how a clean shave does disfigure a man. By the way, the Judge is disappointing his enemies who freely predicted before election, that he would make a poor Judge of Probate, as they now have to admit that he makes a capable and efficient official.

The Diamond Stars will cross bats with the lawyers at the Ball Park on Thursday, July 2nd. The Stars will make their appearance in their new uniforms. Gossman & George will be in the points for the lawyers, and for the Stars Martin will pitch, Will Cleary doing the McNeil act behind the bat. Game called at 3 p. m.

O. P. Cahoon is having an elegant door-yard fence built by James Jenks. We went down on Monday evening and saw them weave some of it, and it is truly wonderful to see the machine tending to its knitting all the same like an old lady, without dropping a stitch. They wove S. M. McKee's pasture fence at the rate of forty rods a day, but a door yard fence is slower business.

T. O. Bergland reports that he has wheat that is heading out. This is the first of the kind we have noticed.

Mrs. E. Bangs is prepard to give better figures than ever before. This accounts for her large trade this season.

The Swedish chapel opposite the Hotel St. Louis, has been taken down and taken over to Sampson's Addition where it will be rebuilt opposite the residence of Mr. Munch, on Mill street.

J. O. Buhn was down from Mentor to take in the Grand Circus and arrange matters for the Grand celebration at Maple Lake on the 4th. The people of Mentor and vicinity are getting up the biggest kind of a show and J. O. is in speaking for fireworks etc. etc.

At the meeting of the directors of the Merchants' National Bank last week, L. D. Marshall was elected a director and A. D. Stephens, cashier. Mr. S. is too well known in Polk County to need an introduction, having been in business here for many years. He has been a successful business man and accumulated much shekels and will no doubt make an A 1 cashier.

W. C. Kelso, ex-cashier of the Merchants' National Bank, bids farewell to his many friends in this city and leaves for his old home in Iowa in a few days. Mr. Kelso came to this city ten years ago for the first time and has made it his home here a great deal since. His father, Judge Kelso, has been connected with the bank ever since it started.

Ladies, have you seen those elegant dresses Miss Minnie Bailey is making for her customers? She cuts and fits by the United States system and all her work is stylishly made. This we have on the authority of ladies who have had work done there, and the fact that she is having a very large business is significant, for the ladies are very quick to find out where they can have work done to suit them.

Last week a couple of hilarious individuals in a buggy got into a row and fell out in the road. The one who was driving hung on to the lines which caused the horse to back and they were in danger of being stepped on. Seeing the danger, a bystander took hold of the bridle and led the horse up a few steps which caused the buggy wheel to run over the face of one of the men, cutting it somewhat.

Owing to continued ill health, Mrs. E. E. Bangs has decided to close out her business and remove to Utah to live. For this reason she offers to dispose of her goods at and below cost. As she intends to close by August first, all who wish to secure a rare bargain should call early as she now has a large and elegant stock to select from. This is no humbug as you can readily ascertain by a call at her store on Second Street.

Speaking with Mr. E. D. Childs about that Duluth News interview which appears elsewhere in this issue, he said that the News did not get his dockage statement strong enough. Where the News makes him complain of two and one-half pounds per bushel dockage being excessive, Mr. Childs added, "and my wheat was all thoroughly cleaned before it was shipped," which makes quite a difference in the significance of the remark.

Arne Higdem was over from Grand Forks last week with a new patent broadcast drill that he has recently invented. From photographs which he showed us we should think the machine would do good work, and the beauty of the thing is, that it broad-casts the seed from one to three inches deep. If it proves practical it will be liable to revolutionize the seeding operations in this Valley. They expect to put out some machines next spring.

Our reporter was misinformed as to who left the lamp in Wyatt's undertaking rooms on the night of the fire. A. C. Schmidt informs us that he did not leave it there as stated, and naturally does not like to have that impression prevail. THE JOURNAL well knows that A. C. is one of the most careful of workmen as well as one of the best, but many a man, fully as careful, leaves a lamp burning in his store over night and thinks nothing of it.

Our report of Wyatt's insurance last week was written $3,000, but an intelligent compositor cut off one figure, dwarfing the amount to $300. Mr. W. informs us that though slightly disfigured he is still in the ring, and will continue to do business as of old and invites all of his old patrons and friends to call and see him whenever they have business in his line. For the present he may be found in the old Jacobus building, on the corner of Broadway and Robert Street.

Bids on the new hotel were opened on Monday and the results cabled to England, where the award will be made. The following named parties submitted bids: Kilroe Bros., Minneapolis, C. E. Joy, Geo. Deeks, Wm. Ulmer, Allen Black, Mr. Creigh and Mr. Singer, of St. Paul, and R. McMillan, & Co., C. E. Wenckler and Porter Steam Heating Co., Minneapolis, Mr. Turner, of Grand Forks, G. F. McDonald, of Winnipeg, W. E. Walker, Chas. Jefferson and J. E. O'Brien, of this city.

Charlie Misner received an express box from Warren on Saturday evening. Being busy at the time, he did not open the box until about 12 o'clock, when he quit work and then he discovered a huge mud turtle cosily ensconsed therein. The first words Mr. Turtle said was to get out of the box and call for a smooth shave and a hair-cut at the alliance shop, then he marched 'round and interviewed things to find out if Charlie had everything in apple-pie order. Finding everything O. K. he curled up in a corner for a snooze. Charlie says he is going to fat him up for an apple pie at the grand opening of the big hotel.

The pop-corn business must be a lucrative calling judging by the fact that another Richmond appeared in the field against Commodore Bailey last week. The ship was anchored one block ahead of the commodore's fleet—fernist the Fournet block on Robert street; but hardly before it had cleared its decks for action the stern arm of the law was stretched forth and gobbled up both institutions, or rather a mandate was issued commanding them to up anchor and sail into more sepuestered quarters—"far from the madding crowd," or thereabouts. The commodore hoisted sail and came to anchor on the lee side of the walk on the corner of Fletcher and Broadway where he has kept the watch fires burning fiercely ever since, quietly nursing his wrath against the time when he can use it to good advantage, while the other craft came to anchor in the shade of the Fortier block, on Broadway.

Work on the new hotel will soon be commenced.

District court adjourned on Saturday until July 18th.

Andrew Eiken was down to Duluth last week to see Tom Olafson and other friends.

Mr. S. Emery, of the Jewell Nursery, Lake City spent Friday in the city, the guest of Frank Haseltine, who showed him all about the city. This was his first visit here and he expressed much pleasure in what he saw. Said he had heard much about Crookston, but finds that it exceeds what he had imagined of it. He says Hasletine has the best nursery in the northwest and complimented Frank highly on its appearance. Mr E. is on his way to Great Falls, Montana.

Miss Minnie McKinnon received a serious injury on Saturday evening last week, which for a time seemed likely to result fatally. She with several others was at the house of a friend across the track and when on their way home they reached Second Street, a freight train blocked the street. In attempting to climb over the coupling between the cars her dress caught and she pitched headlong to the ground receiving a deep cut in the chin and fracturing her chin, and rendering her insensible. She was taken up for dead but recovered shortly sufficiently to be able to be taken home, to the residence of her uncle, John R. McKinnon. She is liable to have a pretty serious time.

F. O. Sustad, agent for the sale of railroad lands, informs our reporter that from Jan. 1st 1891 up to date he has sold 9,000 acres of land, about one-half of it to new settlers and the balance to old residents in 40 and 80 tracts to add to their present holdings and to parties who have worked here for several years and saved up enough to start in farming for themselves. At the rate these lands have been sold it will not be long before all the railroad land in the county will have been sold and become assessable for taxes which will make a vast difference in that industry. Even the quantity sold within the past six months will make an appreciable difference in this particular, and it is that much out of the way of other sales.

The churches on Sunday were rather slimly attended, owing, no doubt to the showers. In the evening Union temperance serevices were held, Rev. R. H. Battey, of the Congregationalist church delivering a strong, practical address. Among other views presented the speaker took the ground of economy as one strong reason for total abstinence and made a very strong argument. His idea of total abstinence might not be wholly endorsed by such prohibitionists who can see no other way to bring about total abstinence than by the strong arm of the law; he said the best way to bring about total abstinence is for every man to abstain from drinking. When one stops to compare the amount of money spent in the liquor traffic in Polk County with that spent for clothing and provisions, it does seem as though the subject was ample food for thought and that there is room for improvement in this particular. The collection taken was for the expenses of the W. C. T. U., the chief item of which is maintenance of the reading room, an institution of much benefit to the city.

J. S. Nichols, one of the prominent farmers of Liberty, gave THE JOURNAL a pleasant call on Saturday and we enjoyed a pleasant chat with him. He believes we are going to have a generally good yield and good prices this fall. Speaking of potatoes, he said he thought there should be a law passed compelling all who plant potatoes to fight the bugs. "Why," said he, "I do not find it a difficult matter to get rid of the bugs that appear in my vines, but when one has to fight bugs for the whole neighborhood it is a different matter. I use a sprayer and dose them well with Paris Green and if every one who raises potatoes would do the same the problem would be easily solved. I notice that some will plant three or four times the area that they can well attend to, and beyond going through them once or twice with a cultivator no further attention is paid them, and the natural result is a big crop of bugs and a small crop of potatoes. I sent a carload to Chicago last spring, which sold for $1.50 per bushel netting me $550 for the carload." Mr. N. has rye headed out, a fine crop of wheat coming on and plenty of oats and barley. He will also be prepared if potatoes bring a good price, to make some money in them. Mr. N. is one of those alliance men who does not relax his efforts on the farm while he is trying to cure evils that exsist by political methods. "Work and pray" is his motto and a pretty good one it is.

The dwellers of Polk County have every reason for encouragement and and renewed confidence in our fertile soil and healthy climate. With the prospects of fair crop and good prices which we have, every one should take courage and with re-doubled efforts hope on. Never before in our experience in this country has there been so much cause for rejoicing as this year when everything indicates good prices for wheat, barley, oats, potatoes, hay, cattle, sheep, hogs and in fact everything a farmer has to sell. This will have a tendency to increase the demand for our lands and hence the value of them, to bring in new settlers to share in the burdens of taxation and lessen them, and in many other ways aid in bringing permanent prosperity to our doors. There are other prospects, which we may not mention just now that are fraught with great good to the dwellers of Polk County, and that will play a very important part in developing our resources that will be revealed in the near future by the course of events, which in their fruition will make this country far more prosperous than is that land so far to the west of us that many of our former citizens have sought with a view to bettering their condition. We predict, in the next decade that our farmers will all be well-off and as happy as financial independence can make them. We have never lost our faith in this country and we have never before seen the time when our future seemed so bright and promising.

That was a big rain on Tuesday morning. We seem to be getting plenty of rain this year.

Supt, James, of the Great Northern road came up on Tuesday morning and went out to Fosston.

Try Anton Erickson for a choice smoke. He has any brand of cigars that you can name.

The jury in the Mehn case, involving title to valuable property in East Grand Forks, disagreed.

J. P. Lunden, of Stephen, passed through the city on Saturday evening, en route for Federal City.

Charlie Jefferson is at work putting a new foundation wall under the north side of the C. O. D. store,

Jos. Simpson has drawn plans for his new farm house. It will be a model of convenience and a neat, trim dwelling.

Cleary & Buckingham will be on the street to buy wheat next fall. We are told that there will be more independent buyers in the field this fall than ever before.

The Grand Forks Plaindealer says 10,000 people witnessed the Ringling Bros. show in Grand Forks. If that is true 20,000 people witnessed it in Crookston.

The Detroit Free Press, by C. C. Knappen, formerly of the Fisher Bulletin, came to our table last week. Knap seems to be getting up an excellent paper.

A corps of surveyors started out over the line of the Rainy Lake & Pacific R. R. on Monday morning. We expect the dirt will fly all along that line in a few days.

A. Sture has rented the remaning room in the opera house building and expects to take possession about July 1st. W. E. Walker will put in the counters and shelving.

Anton Erickson has a large and choice stock of cigars among which you find the famous "Tansill's Punch," with which the shrewd guesser gets a chance at a valuable money prize.

The state Fair will be held from Sept. 7th to 12th inclusive on the fair grounds this year. The management promises to make it the best event of the kind that ever occurred in the State.

On or about July 1st. I shall move my business into the new opera house block and will be ready to greet all of my old customers and as many new ones as will favor me with a call. Come and see me at the new stand. A. STURE.

It is estimated that over 10,000 people came to Crookston on circus day. They came from the east and the west, from the north and the south, from 30 to 50 miles to see the animals and have a good time and we should judge they had it.

Comrade Cleveland was down from Mentor last Thursday. Says he thinks that if Jas. G. Blaine is nominated for president in '92 he will be elected no doubt, as his ideas are well known to be in a harmony with the wishes of the farmers.

One agreeable feature of the Ringling Bros circus was the absence of fakirs, gamblers and sneak thieves. We never saw as quiet and gentlemanly lot of humanty gathered together in one circus before, and we never saw a circus before that gave such general satisfaction.

Tom Harris goes to St. Hilaire tomorrow to move the old Utzinger building. That building has not been moved for about a year now and needs limbering up. It was originally built on Crocker's Additon adjoining Thief River Falls and has been moved about once a year ever since.

Polk County Good Enough For Gene.

Eugene Besse, who a few weeks since came up from Benson on his way to Tacoma, writes THE JOURNAL: "Send my copy to Red Lake Falls in the future," which shows that Eugene finds Polk County good enough for him to tie to and that is where Gene's head is level.

H. B. Davis, one of Crookston's old-timers came down from Red Lake Falls on circus day and after a pleasant call at THE JOURNAL office his subscripton was one year ahead. H. B. is very hopeful for good crops and good prices this fall which will do much to restore confidence.

Anton Erickson is agent for the famous "Tansill's Punch" cigar, the leader of the five cent cigars. With every five cent cigar you get a guess on the largest day's attendance on the coming World's Fair and the nearest guess gets a $5,000 prize. It is not often you get a chance at a fortune with a five cent smoke.

Some twenty of the members of Col Cobham Post, together with G. A. R. boys from Stephen, Argyle and other points along the line, left for Moorhead on Monday evening to attend the encampment. Some of the comrades whose business engaegments would not admit of their going at that time went down on Tuesday evening.

Comrade O. H. Lucken says he had a grand time at Duluth—had a nice ride on the bay, went on a rail road excursion to Grand Rapids on the D. & W. road and attended a G. A. R re-union where he met our old comrades, A. N. Hopkins and J. O. Milne and enjoyed himself hugely. O. H thinks Duluth a nice city—to vesit.

Guess we will have to own the corn after all, and admit that Hugh Robertson was right about that lettuce patch of his for on Saturday morning he marched in with four or five bunches to lettuce try it. It was large, juicy and crisp but then, ours is of the late kind, planted late and grows late, but with time will no doubt compare favorably with Hugh's. We shall see.

Miss. Helen Halvorson met with quite a loss on Friday evening. She took the Great Northern train for a trip to Duluth and when the conductor came round for tickets she discovered that she had no ticket—nor pocket book, some sneak thief having dextrously relieved her of that incumbrance in the crowd at the depot. She got off the train at Carman and returned. Her loss was nearly or quite $35.

Old metal wanted at the Crookston Foundry. The highest cash price paid therefor. J. E. MORRISEY.

Droping in at Vine's Robert Street meat market on Tuesday our reporter found Charlie McKay seated at the desk busy with the books and quietly singing: "I stood on the bridge at midnight, two moons rose o'er the city when there should have been but one" &c. &c. Inquiring "what bridge" he replied in an absent minded way: "Oh, Id'no! St. Louis bridge, I reckon."

Notwithstanding the crowds in town on Friday the day was remarkably free from accident. A team belonging to Robert Cochrane, but not driven by him, took a notion to have a little fun after the big show was over and started to run along Broadway. The driver was thrown out and bruised somewhat and a boy who was in the wagon climbed out in safety. What became of the team we did not learn.

C. A. Johnson was down from Rockstad on probate business this week. Says crops are looking extra fine up that way this year, standing up high with a fresh green color that denotes a healthy growth. He was negotiating for a hay-fork with which to handle his immense crop of hay, which crop, he says, is univesally large this year. Charlie thinks if farmers can only obtain a good price for their wheat this fall every thing will be all right in this country.

Ladies call at Mrs. E. E. Bangs millinery store on Second Street and examine the bargains she is offering in millinery.

Ringling Bros,' big show captured the town and the people on Friday. The parade was fine, the circus a good one and the price, only 50 cents, was a surprise as everybody had expected to pay a dollar. Over 7000 people crowded the mammoth tent in the afternoon and highly enjoyed the performances. Among the many attractions in the menagerie tent was a lioness and three small cubs only a few days old. Everybody seemed immensely pleased and well paid for their visit to Ringling Bro's. big show.

D. T Herriott was up from Edna on Friday to take in the circus and say good bye to his many friends in the city. He leaves for Carlisle, Pa., in a few days where he will in the future reside and he orders THE JOURNAL to follow him so that he may keep posted on what is going on in Polk County as he does not intend to lose his interest here. Mr. H. has been a resident of this county for several years, coming in the '70's, and he has a deep and abiding faith in its future. He will leave many friends to regret his departure and who will wish him a long and pleasant life.

Just as Judge C. O. Christianson was about to hand his pasteboards to the circus fakir to obtain an entrance into the presence of the animals at the show-grounds on Friday afternoon, a heavy hand was laid upon his shoulder and a deep sepulchral voice said in tragic tones: "You are my prisoner, I am required to conduct you at once to the court house then and there to show cause why, &c. &c. "Gazing upon his interlocutor, the Judge saw at once that resistance was useless and so he ambled along as meek as one of those little ponies that you saw in the parade. Upon reaching the court house he was confronted by Gilbert O. Strommoen and Carrie Olsen and in just about 8 seconds less than a York minute, Gilbert was ready to go to the circus with his wife, who up till that time had been Miss. Carrie Olsen. The Judge accompanied them on that bridal tour and seemed to enjoy the show immensely.

Band Program.

Hereafter, the Queen City Band will give a concert on Friday evening of each week on one of the principal business corners. To-morrow evening the concert will be given at the corner of Main and Fletcher Sts., with the follow program:

1. March, Commercial Travellers, by R. Williams.
2. Polanaise, Happy Youth, by Swan.
3. Overture, Rip VanWinkle, by E. Brooks.
4. Waltzs Schatz, by Strass.

OUR COUNTY DADS.

And What They Did.

In Special Meeting, June 10th.

Petition of Nicholas Englis, asking that the sw¼ Sec. 30, T. 152, R. 46, Belgium, be detached from school district No. 179 and be added to school district No. 47, in Euclid, was granted.

In the school petition of A. Anderson, J. O. Sargeant and others, the hearing was set for next regular meeting.

The school petition of Gilbert Abrahamson was rejected.

School district No. 204 was dissolved and the territory thereof attached to districts No. 102 and 88. Hearing in the school petition of Geo. Shank and others set for next meeting. Petition of R. H. Walker and others that sections 4, 5 and 6, in Tp. 151, be attached to district No. 193 for school and taxable purposes, granted. Taxes of Mary L. Hamel, granted. The Treasurer was authorized to receive taxes from McKinnon Bros. on lots 7 to 13, blk. 6, less penalty, when sewer tax on said lots is adjusted.

Road petition of Gendrow and others submitted with evidence of proper service of notice, and a committee consisting of DeMers, Kirsch and Rhinehart appointed to meet in Gentilly on June 30th, at 1 o'clock, to consider the matter.

Delinquent personal tax matters occupied much time and the attorney was instructed to bring action in several cases.

Road petition of W. G. Hunt and others presented, and the road described was declared to be a legal highway and ordered recorded as such. The sum of $150 was appropriated to the town of Terrebonne for ditching and grading a road on a petition signed by Ovide Moreau and others. The sum of $310 was appropriated for use on the McIntosh and Woodside road. The sum of $50 was appropriated for use on the Euclid and Crookston road, and $50 to be used on road in town of Knute. Road petition from town of Badger was referred to Johnson.

Application for correction of assessment and abatement of taxes of Chas. E. Sawyer and Chas. Kruger, allowed.

(Communicated)

TERREBONNE, June 16, 1891.

ED. JOURNAL:—In your issue of June 11th, inst., there is an article headed "Stillwater Twine," in which it is said; "The Washington County Farmers' Alliance met at the Court House to discuss the matter of purchasing binding twine. Letters have been received by the Secretary from an eastern firm who offer to sell their twine at five cents per pound delivered on board cars at Chicago. The farmers take this as a blow at the factory here, and think it is the work of the binding twine trust, which is doing all in its power to break up the factory now operated by the State. One thing is certain, the establishment of a factory has caused an unusual stir and a cut in prices, which has resulted beneficially to the farmers throughout the state." It may be that the binding twine trust is trying to break up the factory at Stillwater; In that there should be no wonder, and it is also probable that the factory is helping to lower down the price of binding twine, but I am not of their opinion in giving all the credit to the factory or to the alliance, as they do. They say "Standard Manilla twine, which was quoted last year at 16 cents per pound, is now offered at 9¼ cents. The value of the factory here can thus be estimated." Well, I do not, with them, estimate the value of the factory for all that. I do, also, estimate the value of the reduction which the McKinley bill has made on the material with which to make binding twine, which cannot but help lowering down the prices of binding twine. My motto is "Give to Ceasar what belongs to Ceasar, and to the Alliance what belongs to the Alliance," but not all to the alliance, as they claim. I believe there is a great deal of good in the Alliance, but there is also a great deal of good in the other parties. I am willing to give the Alliance credit for what it does, but at the same time I like to give credit to the others for what they are doing; for in spite of the factory or the Alliance, if the McKinley bill had made no reduction on the material for making binding twine, it should not be offered at so low a price as it is now offered.

Northern Pacific Conference.

This is the name of the district organization of Congregationalists that held its annual conference at Ada last week. One could see by the movement of affairs at the Ada meeting that this body of ministers and churches is a pretty wideawake affair. Its territory is the whole north end of Minnesota; Stephen, Crookston, Wadena, Duluth and intervening localities being in its territory. A fair representation of the numerous churches of the denomination in this region was present. Rev. Mr. Wallar, of Detroit, was moderator. He also read a stirring paper on "Inter-Denominational Comity," setting forth the broad humanity-loving spirit of Christianity and Congregationalism.

State Superintendent, Rev. J. H. Morely, gave a patriotic, rousing address on religious work in Minnesota, on Tuesday. On Wednesday there were four thoughtful addresses—one on the Bible and its Study, and another on the Coming Sunday School, both by the talented Geo. R. Merrill, pastor of the 1st Congregational church in Minneapolis. State S. S. Superintendent, R. P. Herrick, of Minneapolis, addressed the conference on the Progress of Sunday School Missionary Work in Minnesota. Rev. R. H. Battey, of our city, gave an address on Wednesday evening to a crowded house, his subject being "The Young People." The conference besides expressing itself intelligently upon a variety of subjects, closed by a strong vote favoring the progress of the temperance reform and against opening the Columbian Fair on Sunday. The next year's meeting will be held at Detroit, Minn.

A FARMER TALKS.

E. D. Childs of Polk County Reviews the Investigating Committee's Work, Duluth News.

Alexander McMinnon, mayor of Crookston, and E. D. Childs, a prominent farmer of Polk county, arrived in this city Thursday morning. The former is a prominent Democrat, and was a candidate for state senator at the last election. He was defeated, however, by the Alliance candidate, who polled a large majority over both the old party candidates. "I had one satisfaction," said he to a News reporter Thursday night, "I got more votes than my Republican opponent." Mr. Childs is one of the director of the Duluth & Winnipeg road. Speaking of the crops, he said that his wheat never looked finer than it does this year. It is green and thick and looks like a velvet carpet. "I am not over estimating the prospects," said he, when I predict that the four counties of Polk, Marshall, Kittson and Norman will harvest at least 15,000,000 bushels this fall. Yes, indeed, the outlook is very encouraging."

Mr. Childs, in common with Senator James Hill of Wisconsin, owns about 9,000 acres of land close to the city of Crookston. He is one of the pioneers of the Red River Valley. Thinking that he might have something interesting to say in relation to the investigations of wheat handling at public elevators now going on, the reporter broached the subject. Nor was he disappointed for Mr. Childs was loaded with some very spicy opinions on the subject. "I don't lay so much stress," said he, "upon the testimony of discharged employes like Ario, Lynch and the others; but what strikes the average farmer in our neighborhood as the most damaging evidence of crookedness is the fact that Shely testified that he allowed 2,000,000 bushels of wheat to be shipped out without inspection, simply because he was told by the elevator people that some of it was damaged. Now, the average farmer cannot be made to believe that so great an amount as that could be damaged in one elevator. The storage bins are all small, and 2,000,000 bushels would take up considerable room. The testimony alone convinces them that dishonesty exists somewhere. Think of it. He took the say-so of an elevator man for fact! It is an admission of unpardonable irregularity and carelessness. There is another which the farmers don't like, and I am free to admit that it will be made an issue in the next campaign: That is the unusual interest the state railroad and warehouse comissioners are taking in this investigation. Instead of being neutral, as they should be, they have sent Clausen to the committee room to look after the interests of the state inspection department. They are not on trial. The legislature appointed this committee to investigate the elevators. Now if the state inspectors are honest and have nothing to hide, why does Clausen hang around and cross-examine and insult witnesses? I am friendly to Mr. Severance, but I am inclined to think that he is making a sad mistake. The farmers think that the railroad and warehouse commissioners are trying to whitewash the whole business, and and as we are certain to get two reports from the committee, one exonerating everybody and the other the reverse, the Alliance will raise this as an issue and will win on it." Mr. Childs said his chief complaint against the public elevators was that the dockage on his wheat had been continually growing greater, until it reached in some cases 2½ pounds per bushel.

To Whom It May Concern.

WHEREAS, my wife, Mary Zeidlick has left my bed and board without just cause or provocation I hereby forbid all persons to harbor or trust her on my account as I shall pay no bills of her contracting after this day and date.

LOST.

On Sunday June 7th one dark brown broncho, with light red nose, no white hairs on animal. Has hard bunch on tail and brand mark on left shoulder. A suitable reward will be paid for his recovery by E. B. Bruly, Gentilly, Minn., or leave word at THE JOURNAL office.

ST. JOHN'S DAY.

The celebration of St. John's Day, notwithstanding the threatening weather, was a very pleasant affair. THE JOURNAL goes to press too soon for an extensive write up. The parade began to form at 10:30 but it was 11 o'clock before it commenced to march in the following order:

Platoon of police; Col. Cobham Post G. A. R.; Mayor and Council in carraiges; carriage containing the little St. John; Juvenile Fire Department; Crookston Fire Department; The Great Northern Railroad represented by 42 employes; The Northern Pacific R. R., represented by its employes, mounted D. L. Lusian furniture; Fontaine & Anglim dry goods and groceries; Christianson Bros. real estate and insurance; N. S. Gervais, the Hustler Dry Goods; J. E. O'Brien Hardware and tinware; Mossefin & Lindell Merchant tailors; C. H. Saske Jewelry: a float containing a farming scene—sheep and calves and men at work at the fanning mill; a float containing an old fashioned canoe on its way down the Red Lake River with the voyaguers singing an old fashioned boating song; citizens in carriages. The exercises at the grounds were highly enjoyed by all and the affaiar was pronounced a great success.

EUCLID ITEMS.

We had a fine rainfall of two inches early Monday morning, June 15th, and all the farmers are happy.

The grader was started up a mile west of town on Tuesday, but work was suspended on account of the ground being too wet.

A deer was seen near this place on Tuesday which was something of a curiosity. It had a tail fully two feet long.

E. Murney, our blacksmith, is rushed with work this week. He cannot keep up with the orders.

Quite a string of emigrants went through town on Wednesday, going north.

The Minneapolis & Northern elevator men shipped four carloads of wheat on Wednesday.

On Tuesday, Mr. Kelley's colts got into Mr. O. Anderson's grain and did some damage, and on Wednesday Mr. Anderson caught one of Mr. Kelley's horses on the G. N. right of way, and winding the halter strap around his arm and taking a stone in one hand and a club in the other he started toward the pound. Before he reached his destination he was met by Michael Kelley, Jr., who was around with a pick handle. Things were just getting in a critical condition when Ole Anderson, Jr. appeared upon the scene and held the horse while the other two fought. Just then Thomas Kelley came up and while Ole Anderson's attention was with occupied the pugilists he let the horse loose and it galloped home, and then the two boys got to slugging. H. C. Misner saw the fight and parted them. It is feared it will end in a lawsuit.

Ringling Bros. hippodrome races had quite an effect on the Euclidites, working them up to such a pitch of excitement that they ran horses all the way home.

Had a delightful rain on Sunday morning.

The young lady who borrowed a revolver to shoot cats some time ago is now convalescent.

BINDING TWINE.

Report of the Committee on Binding Twine appointed by the Executive Committee of the Minnesota State Farmers' Alliance.

ST. PAUL, Minn., May 23, 1891.

To the Executive Committee of the State Farmers' Alliance:

GENTLEMEN:—We beg leave to report in relation to Binder twine that after examining samples and prices furnished by several of the principal Cordage Companies, we find that the twine handled by our Alliance Business Agency, at 673 Wabasha St. Paul, Minn., is the most satisfactory of anything in the market, prices and quality considered, and we trust our members will place their orders for twine with them.

Respectfully submitted,
O. F. BOHALL.

Irresponsible Wealth.

From Stock and Home.

Great combinations of capital are organized to enhance unreasonably the price of various necessaries of life, and to extinguish that fair competition in their production which is the safeguard against monopoly and extortion. A burdensome tax is thus laid upon all who have their living to earn, in order to swell unduly the profits of concerns already plethoric with wealth. And when courts of justice interfere against these conspiracies and declare them illegal, fresh devices are resorted to in order to evade the law and to continue the plunder of the public.

In the financial centers, also, there are going on, all the while, fraudulent schemes which impoverish those whose small investments are the fruit of their industry and the provision for their families, to the enrichment of men who through large wealth are able to control transactions. The surplus that in ordinary employments is slowly accumulated, rarely large enough to be called wealthy, must be invested somewhere and somehow, in order to produce any return. Its disposition is anxiously and carefully made, in thousands of instances, in apparently trustworthy securities, and upon such light as can be obtained, in the hope that from 4 to 6 per cent per annum may fairly be realized with safety to the principal. But the control of the corporation to which these securities belong acquired by great operators, often through adroit manipulation, not with a view to the honest discharge of the fiduciary relation thus assumed, nor for the protection of the property of others thus intrusted to their charge, but for the purpose of enriching themselves at the expense of their trust. Gradually, by one scheme and another, and by various expedients of managements and mismanagement, the property of the corporation is absorbed or turned into indebtedness. The stockholders are plundered, while the wealth of the managers rises into the millions. This is no fancy picture or casual instance. It is a regular course of business, of which the examples are not far to seek. It is true that many corporations are most uprightly and honorably conducted. Malversation is the exception, not the rule. But the exceptions are so numerous as to have become a great and flagrant evil.

These methods of what is called business prey upon individuals. There is a much greater iniquity of wealth which attacks the general public, and even threatens the national life. It is the employment of vast sums of money for the purchase of high places of political trust and the control of the results of important elections. Places that should be of the highest dignity, as they certainly are of the largest influence, are pretty well known to be obtained by direct bribery of the electors in whose gift they are. Posts of much distinction are more than suspected to be the consideration of enormous contributions to electioneering funds. Great sums are generally believed to be raised to carry elections by those who are accumulating excessive fortunes through a system of revenue which not only casts the burden of taxation upon the industry of the country, instead of its property, but, far beyond the legitimate requirements of government, burdens the many for the benefit of the few. And these sums, which could not possibly be requisite for any proper election expenses, are well understood to be employed in the direct purchase of votes in the market, to a decisive extent.—E. J. Phelps in N. A. Review.

Sockless Simpson Changing His Mind.

From the New York Post.

Congressman Jerry Simpson has returned to Washington after travelling over the Eastern and Middle states, and his conversation bears evidence that his mind is working in several important directions. He gives unmistakable evidence of having discovered that many of the economic ideas with which he was posessed when he was elected to congress in Kansas will not stand examination, for he is dropping them one by one from his list of "views." For example, he says little or nothing any more about free coinage of silver being a good thing for the people since it would put more change into the farmers' pocket. His inability to give a definite answer to the question of how the money was to be got into the pocket without earning it or buying it with products has made him pause on that subject for a time at least. He talks freely about the tariff, however, says he discovered in New England that the people there are rapidly becoming free-traders, and predicts that the manufactures will discover that protection is as much a mistake as slavery was for the South, and that protection will have to be uprooted as slavery was, by bold, radical action, not little by little.

Demmocrats and the Alliance.

Cleveland Leader.

Nothing is plainer than the democratic managers of Ohio are trying to make the Farmers' alliance subservient to their party. The scheme is hardly disguised enough to conceal it from the most superficial observe. Without doubt many alliance men are sincere in their movement for a new party, but they will find in the end that their organization is being worked in the interest of the democracy. The Democrat press will openly champion their cause, and democrats in the alliance will zealously advocate the third party, but in the end they will vote the democratic ticket. Their sole aim is to draw republicans into their ranks to defeat Major McKinley for governor. "He is the very man we are organizing against," says the democratic paper of Canton. Does this correctly represent the opinions of the farmers of Stark county? Are they willing to be made the catspaw of the Ohio Democracy? We think not. The farmers are much more intelligent than their petty scheming leaders who are seeking to use them solely in the interest of a few corrupt politicians who are at the head of the Ohio Democracy.

WHEREAS, CORNELIUS ANDERSON AND Kjerste Anderson, his wife, of Polk County, State of Minnesota, as mortgagors, did, on the 3d day of September, A. D. 1883, duly execute and deliver to James John Fulton, of Edinburgh, Scotland, their mortgage bearing date of August 25th, A. D. 1883, whereby they mortgaged to said mortgagee the following described lands situated in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, to-wit: East half of northwest quarter and lots one (1) and two (2) of Section 30, Township 153, Range 44 west, containing 161 21-100 acres to secure the payment of the sum of five hundred and one dollars, with interest thereon, according to the conditions of one certain promissory note, with interest coupons attached, bearing even date with said mortgage and made by said mortgagors to said mortgagee, or order, which said mortgage was on the 5th day of September, A. D. 1883, at 11 o'clock a. m., duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for said County of Polk, in book 37 of mortgages, on page 148; and

Whereas, default has been made in the payment of the sum of thirty-five and 07-100 dollars, due as interest upon said mortgage on the 1st day of January, A. D. 1891, and the said interest is still unpaid and due; and

Whereas, it was stipulated by and between the parties to said mortgage that if default should be made in any of the conditions or covenants therein contained on the part of the mortgagors to be kept and performed, that then and from thenceforth it shall be lawful for said mortgagee, his heirs, administrators, executors or assigns, to consider and declare the whole sum secured thereby as immediately due and payable without notice to said mortgagors or any other party; and

Whereas, the said James John Fulton, mortgagee, has exercised his option to consider and declare and does hereby consider and declare the whole sum of money secured by said mortgage to be due and payable; and

Whereas, there is now due, and claimed to be due on said mortgage at the date of this notice the sum of five hundred fifty-three and 05-100 dollars, and no proceedings have been instituted at law or otherwise to recover the same or any part thereof.

Now, therefore notice is hereby given that by virtue of a power of sale in said mortgage contained and therewith recorded, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the land therein described, which sale will be made by the Sheriff of Polk County, at the front door of the Court House, in the City of Crookston, in said County and State, on the 8th day of August, A. D. 1891, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon of that day, at public vendue, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay the sum due on said mortgage, together with taxes, if any, on said premises, and fifty dollars attorney's fees therein stipulated to be paid in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the date of sale as provided by law.

MORTGAGE SALE.

WHEREAS DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE in the payment of the sum of two hundred and forty-six dollars ($246.00) which is claimed to be due at the date of this notice upon a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by David R. McGinnis to P. C. Sletten and John Cromb, of Polk County, Minnesota, bearing date the first day of December, A. D. 1882, and, with a power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the 6th day of December, A. D. 1882, at 11:30 o'clock a. m., in book "H" of mortgages, on page 453.

And whereas P. C. Sletten, one of the mortgagees named in said mortgage, died, testate, at Crookston, Polk County, Minnesota, on the 5th day of July, A. D. 1884.

And whereas the last will and testament of the said P. C. Sletten was proved and admitted to probate in the Probate Court of Polk County, Minnesota, on the 30th day of July, A. D. 1884.

And, whereas, by the terms of said will Kari Sletten, the wife of the said P. C. Sletten, was made the sole legatee and devisee of all the real and personal property of which he died seized aforesaid.

And, whereas, the Probate Court of said Polk County issued its final decree in the estate of P. C. Sletten, deceased, dated Aug. 6, 1887, by the terms of which the said Kari Sletten was decreed to have an undivided half interest in the above described mortgage, which said decree was duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for said County of Polk, on the 11th day of May, 1888, at 1:30 p. m., in book 29 of deeds, on pages 574 to 578 inclusive, and no action or proceeding having been instituted, at law or otherwise, to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now therefore, notice is hereby given, that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, viz: Lots four (4) and five (5) in block six (6), in Cromb and Sletten's subdivision of outlots in Hurlbut's addition to Crookston, in Polk County and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances, which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk County, at the front door of the Court House in the City of Crookston, in said County and State, on the 18th day of July, A. D. 1891, at ten o'clock a. m. of that day, at public vendue to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and twenty-five dollars attorney's fees, as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale as provided by law.

Notice of Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

WHEREAS, DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE in the conditions of a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Ida Marcotte and Francois Marcotte, her husband, mortgagors, to Northwestern Guaranty Loan Company, mortgagee, bearing date the 22d day of March, A. D. 1889, and duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the county of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the 6th day of April, A. D. 1889, at 10:30 o'clock a. m., in book 41 of mortgages, on pages 625-28.

Whereas, such default consists of the failure to pay the following installments of interest, to-wit: $39 that became due November 1st, 1889, $39 that became due May 1st, 1890, $39 that became due November 1st, 1890, and $39 that became due May 1st, 1891, and whereas the said Northwestern Guaranty Loan Company, the holder of said mortgage, has elected to declare, and hereby does declare, the whole principal sum in said mortgage set forth due and payable at the date of this notice under the terms and conditions of said mortgage and the power of sale therein contained.

And whereas there is actually due and payable at the date hereof, including principal and interest upon the premises in said mortgage described, the following sum, to-wit: Eleven hundred and twenty-nine dollars and sixty-five cents. ($1,129.65), and whereas the said power of sale has become operative and no action or proceeding at law or otherwise has been instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed, and the premises described in and covered by said mortgage, viz: The northeast quarter (ne¼) of Section twenty-two, (22), in Township one hundred and fifty (150) north, of Range forty-two (42) west, containing 160 acres, more or less, according to the government survey thereof. Said premises situate and being in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances, will be sold at public auction to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and fifty dollars attorney's fee, as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law, which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk County, at the front door of the Court House, in the City of Crookston, in said County and State, on at 10 o'clock a. m. of that day, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale as provided by law.

MORTGAGE SALE.

(First publication June 4th, 1891.)

WHEREAS, KNUDT H. BERG AND Aguette Berg, his wife, of Polk County, State of Minnesota, as mortgagors, did, on the 19th day of November, A. D. 1885, duly execute and deliver to Horace Alling, of the County of Essex, State of New Jersey, their mortgage bearing date of November 4th, A. D. 1885, whereby they mortgaged to said mortgagee, the following described lands situated in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, to-wit: Southwest quarter (sw¼) Section 21, Township 148, Range 45 west, containing 160 acres, to secure the payment of the sum of six hundred fifty dollars, with interest thereon, according to the conditions of one certain promissory note with interest coupons attached, bearing even date with said mortgage, and made by said mortgagors to said mortgagee, or order, which said mortgage was on the 19th day of November, A. D. 1885, at 1:50 p. m., duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for said County of Polk, in book 37 of mortgages, on page 169; and

Whereas, default has been made in the payment of the sum of fifty-two and 57-100 dollars due as interest upon said mortgage on the 1st day of January, A. D. 1890, and on the further sum of forty-five and 50-100 dollars, due as interest thereon on the 1st day of January, A. D. 1891, and the said interest is still unpaid and due; and

Whereas, it was stipulated by and between the parties to said mortgage, that if default should be made in any of the conditions or covenants therein contained on the part of the mortgagors, to be kept and performed, that then and from thenceforth it shall be lawful for the said mortgagee, his heirs, administrators, executors or assigns to consider and declare the whole sum secured thereby as immediately due and payable without notice to said mortgagors or any other party; and

Whereas, the said Horace Alling has exercised his option to consider and declare, and does hereby consider and declare the whole sum of money secured by said mortgage to be due and payable; and

Whereas, there is now due, and claimed to be due on said mortgage at the date of this notice the sum of seven hundred seventy-three and 57-100 dollars, and no proceedings have been instituted at law or otherwise to recover the same or any part thereof.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of a power of sale in said mortgage contained and therewith recorded, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the land therein described, which sale will be made by the Sheriff of Polk County, at the front door of the Court House, in the city of Crookston, in said County and State, on the 31st day of July, A. D. 1891, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon of that day, at public vendue of the highest bidder for cash, to pay the sum due on said mortgage, together with taxes, if any, on said premises, and fifty dollars attorney's fees therein stipulated to be paid in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the date of sale as provided by law.

Whereas, default has been made in the payment of the sum of twenty-eight dollars, due as interest upon said mortgage on the 1st day of January, A. D. 1891, and the said interest is still unpaid and due; and

Whereas, it was stipulated by and between the parties to said mortgage, that if default should be made in any of the conditions or covenants therein contained on the part of the mortgagor, to be kept and performed, that then and from thenceforth it shall be lawful for the said mortgagee, her heirs, administrators, executors or assigns to consider and declare the whole sum secured thereby as immediately due and payable without notice to said mortgagor or any other party; and

Whereas, the said Mary D. Brine has exercised her option to consider and declare, and does hereby consider and declare the whole sum of money secured by said mortgage to be due and payable; and

Whereas, there is now due, and claimed to be due on said mortgage at the date of this notice the sum of four hundred thirty-eight and 56-100 dollars, and no proceedings have been instituted at law or otherwise to recover the same or any part thereof.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of a power of sale in said mortgage contained and therewith recorded, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the land therein described, which sale will be made by the Sheriff of Polk County, at the front door of the Court House, in the city of Crookston, in said County and State on the 11th day of July, A. D. 1891, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon of that day, at public vendue, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay the sum due on said mortgage, together with taxes, if any, on said premises, and twenty-five dollars attorney's fees therein stipulated to be paid in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the date of sale as provided by law.

ISSUES OF THE DAY.

Permanency of Agricultural Production.

C. Wood Davis, in American Agriculturist.

The April report of the Department of Agriculture contains a remarkable essay by the Statistician of the Department under the above title, which is epitomized in the June number of the American Agriculturist. The essay is as remarkable for its omissions as for its contents, as well as for the fact that it contains nothing relating to the subject indicated in its title. It is simply an attempt to demolish hypothetical disciples of Malthus who are engaged in the reprehensible business of giving farmers encouragment by showing that the world is about entering upon an era when consumption will overtake production, and possibly get a lead in the race,—to result in satisfactory prices for all the products of the farm.

It is not the purpose of the writer to review the essay as a whole, as space does not permit, but to show how unwarranted are some of the assertions and conclusions when viewed in the light of well established facts. This will be done by an examination of the world's production of breadstuffs and by showing that the essayist has overstated the average product of Europe by counting Turkey as well as its dependencies twice.

A vitally fatal mistake of the essayist is that he ignores the fact that for ten years there has been practically no increase in the world's wheat area and but little increase of product. It is true that the acreage shows an increase of some 3,275,000 acres, but this has been in such areas as give a very low average yield. Yet there has been a decrease of 600,000 acres in Britain, where the average is nearly thirty bushels per acre. The result is that the net increase of productive power is equal to but 15,000,000 bushels, or the product of about 1,250,000 average acres. Facts of this character are ignored, although they are of such vital importance in determining the productive power of the wheat fields of the world. Admitting, for the moment, the Statistician's contention that the Russian fields must have increased, what is the significance? The Russian average yield is about seven and a half bushels per acre, and for each acre that the wheat fields of Britain are reduced at least four acres must be added in Russia to keep up the yield. During the entire decade such reductions as have occurred have been where the yield has been greatest, while the additions have been in the areas of lightest yield.

A second fatal error is the ignoring of the fact that in the ninth decade the bread-eating populations have increased by more than 60,000,000, or 15 per cent, as against an increase in the wheat acreage (any part of the product of which finds its way into the channels of commerce) of but 2.8 per cent; while, as has just been shown, the productive power has increased less than two per cent owing to the reduction of the productive area of Britain as against an increase in less productive regions.

A third and quite as fatal an error is the complete ignoring of the diminishing supply of rye, while four-fifths of the bread-eaters of the world live in Europe where forty-seven per cent of the bread consumed is made from rye. The production of rye has not only declined relatively, but has actually diminished during the past twenty years, if acreage is any criterion. Meanwhile the ratio of rye to population shows a remarkable diminution, as in 1870 the proportion of rye to wheat consumed in Europe was 52 to 48, whereas now it is but 47 to 53.

So great has been the increase in the population of Europe that the yearly quota of rye, for each unit of the population, has diminished from 4.2 bushels to 3.4, such decrease being eight-tenths of a bushel. This multiplied by the present population would give a deficit of some 296,000,000 bushels. For this great deficiency wheat or other food must be substituted. The extent to which wheat has taken the place of the lacking rye accounts for the absorption of the vast volume of wheat produced in excess of ordinary requirements from the middle of the eighth to near the close of the ninth decade. During this time little or no heed was given to the scarcity presaged by the diminishing rye fields, as there was no pinch, but when the supplies of a population, so great as that of Europe, falls in the rear of augmenting numbers at such a rate that the yearly bread ration—counting half the European ration as rye—is diminished 10 per cent, the pinch will assuredly be felt just as soon as the article substituted also becomes relatively scarce. Such is now the case with wheat, owing to the clearly established fact that for ten years the wheat fields and the bread-eaters have increased in the ratio of one to six and a half. When we consider both the wheat and the rye fields the divergence is such that the ratio is as one to ten.

In dealing with this question it has been customary in this country and England to pay no attention to the rye fields; probably from the fact that neither people are eaters of rye. Now the rye fields are just as important factors as are those of wheat and the official who ignores so important an element of the problem is hardly warranted in making such sweeping assertions as those which characterize the essay.

THE SUPPLY OF OTHER FOODS.

For more than a year the writer has been engaged in gathering official data as to the acreage in potatoes, and each kind of grain, at the close of the seventh, eighth and ninth decades, in every grain-growing country of the temperate zones where an effort has been made to collect such data. He has so succeeded that he has been able to complete a tabulation showing the acreage in such crops at the times named. It is doubtless the first tabulation attempted, taking in the whole grain-growing areas of the world.

From these tables we learn that in twenty years the European area, in all kinds of grain and potatoes, has increased 4,662,000 acres, being 1.26 per cent. The area of the world, in such staples—exclusive of the United States—has increased 14,473,000 acres, being 4.1 per cent, as against an increase in the bread-eating population of 23.1 per cent. Including the United States the increase, in the area devoted to grain and potatoes, has been 100,793,000 acres or 20.5 per cent. In other words the consumers have increased one-third faster than the great food staples.

Of the increase of 100,793,000 acres, no less than 82,134,000, or seventy-six per cent, must be credited to the United States. As our additions of new acreage are now less than half what is required to meet home needs, we can no longer increase our contribution to the wants of Europe, but must curtail them in the same measure in which new acreage fails to meet home requirements. Hence it looks as though a period of scarcity was not far off. This appears the more probable when we remember that the per capita acreage of wheat and rye, for the bread-eaters of the world, is now one-tenth less than twenty years since, and that the pinch would long since have been felt but for the great reserves resulting from the excessive increase of acreage during the eighth decade and the development of Indian exports.

ANOTHER FALLACY.

The Departmental essayist says; "Another fallacy relative to cereal production is that it is perceptibly declining in Europe." He then tabulates five years' production of one cereal (wheat) to show that there has been no such decline. The curious part of this table (and another purporting to show the world's production) is that he includes Turkey in the table, and then goes on to say: "It should be remembered, however, that Poland, Finland, European Turkey, Bulgaria, Roumelia, and certain principalities having an area of more than 320,000 square miles are not included." The same statement is made in relation to these countries being excluded from the table of the world's production, with the absence of any mention of the "certain principalities;" although in the table Turkey and its dependencies are explicitly included and every school boy knows that Bulgaria and Roumelia are Turkish dependencies, as does every tyro in statistics that the estimate of 37,000,000 bushels, which he credits to Turkey, includes the product of both Bulgaria and Roumelia and is, at best, but a commercial estimate that was current even before these provinces had a separate autonomy.

Can there be any value to statistics that twice include the same area and product and speak of "certain principalities," when the entire continent has been included by name except Montenegro, Andorra and San Marino which, combined, produce less than 300,000 bushels of wheat?

What reliance can be placed on the figures furnished by a Department in the official reports of which such errors are published?

The Statistician, in this essay, credits Greece with a yield, in 1890, of 12,278,240 bushels of wheat, whereas the Hon. A. Loudon Snowdon, United States Minister to Greece, writes me on March 6th, 1891, that the wheat product of Greece was, in 1890, but 1,807,200 bushels harvested from 142,200 acres, and that the acreage ten years earlier was 141,900.

THE REAL FACTS.

Accepting the figures published from time to time by the Department, when they do not vary too much from other official data, a careful tabulation shows the wheat crops harvested in Europe and the world during each of the last ten years, to be as follows:

	European product. Bushels.	World's Product. Bushels
1881	1,142,967,000	1,977,477,000
1882	1,298,503,000	2,263,178,000
1883	1,159,150,000	2,050,288,000
1884	1,278,427,000	2,263,183,000
1885	1,198,754,000	2,075,959,000
1886	1,099,820,000	2,042,528,000
1887	1,260,165,000	2,257,056,000
1888	1,275,186,000	2,162,678,000
1889	1,125,102,000	2,043,372,000
1890	1,294,239,000	2,185,051,000
An'l averages	1,222,731,000	2,185,676,000

As these figures are larger than those published by the Department, it is clear that the statistician overstates the product of Europe when he asserts that "the real average in the last five years may be fairly stated in round numbers at 1,250,000,000 bushels," as he overstates the world's product by nearly or quite 100,000,000 bushels when he says that "the grand aggregate cannot be made much less than 2,250,000,000 bushels."

THE POINT INVOLVED.

When we reflect upon this question we see that it is of little significance whether Europe or the world produces this or that amount of wheat; the real marrow of the question is whether the production of wheat and rye—and the subject cannot be properly treated unless both are included—has of late years increased in the same proportions as the consuming populations and whether the supply of 1870 was over abundant? The prices obtaining twenty years since are conclusive as to the character of the supply at that time, and show it was not excessive, as prices current in later years show that the supply has since been overabundant, while the ascending scale now indicates the exhaustion of the reserves.

Although the European crop of 1890 has been exceeded but once in ten years, and the world's 1890 out-turn equaled only by the crops of 1882, 1884 and 1887, yet we see prices steadily advancing. This would be a most anomalous state of affairs were current productions (with average yields per acre) sufficient for the world's current needs. There was no such advance when the world's harvest was 143,000,000 bushels less, as in 1886, because at that time there were great reserves, and the bread-eating world's needs were less by fully 140,000,000 bushels of wheat and rye.

A TOUGH QUESTION.

If the pinch is not now upon us how is it that with a European product, from the harvest of 1890, greater by more than 70,000,000 bushels than the average of the last ten years, and that of the world greater by 50,000,000 bushels, that wheat is scarce and the price so much higher than of late years.

With the world's product (from an average acreage yield) now about 100,000,000 bushels less than the world's current needs, and the growing European crop estimated at 200,000,000 bushels below an average, and the rye crop estimated as likely to be from 50,000,000 to 100,000,000 bushels short, what are the probabilities as to the price of wheat this day twelvemonth?

With current production 100,000,000 bushels less than current needs, and acreage increasing not one-sixth as fast as population, when are the reserves likely to be replenished?

THE EXPERT REPORT

They Found 279,095 Bushels of Wheat Unaccounted for in the Records.

Minneapolis Journal.

The wheat experts who have been overhauling the books at Duluth—at so much perhaul—have at last made their somewhat expensive report to the legislative committee. First however, they handed in their bills, made out at $5 a day and extras. They ran from $233 to $312 apiece for the month's work. The committee scaled them all down to a straight 50 cents an hour. Witness Scott, who gave testimony against F. H. Irons' methods, nervily asked $157 for "detective work," but the committee said "no" in a loud tone of voice.

Then came the experts' report. It was a huge sheet of paper covered with figures and its purport was that 279,095 bushels of wheat had been traced that were shipped out of Duluth, leaving no record of inspection behind. Mr. Severance said that the elevators would show that of the shortage of 279,095 bushels, 260,000 was the "burnt" wheat shipped out without inspection by permission of the state board. The remaining 19,095 bushels shortage would be nearly, if not quite, explained away by showing clerical errors and other mistakes in the records.

When the government was buying Indian supplies this year it bought some all wool blankets which ten years ago cost $5 52 a pair. What do you suppose they cost per pair this year? $3.81

Eggs were on the free list in April, 1890, and we imported 450,633 dozen.

The McKinley bill made them dutiable, and in April of this year we imported only 24,892 dozen.

That turned over the market for 425,781 dozen eggs to the American producer. Did it hurt the consummer? It dosen't seem to have done so; it must have benefited him from the price. The imports for April, 1890, were valued at $47,786, or 10.6 cents a dozen while those of April, 1891, were valued at $2,070, or 8.816 centst a dozen.

Ada Herald: Soon after the passenger train left Lockhart Tuesday night the engine ran into a pile of oak ties that had been piled up to do damage, but luckily no damage was done and the train started again only to run into another pile, and was as fortunate this time. A man went ahead to examine the track after this and found still another pile. Three tramps were noticed by the engineer near the place, who were undoubtedly the ones who intended to do the dastardly deed of wrecking the train.

Farm Wages Here and in England.

New York Press.

In New England farmers have been offering $25 a month, with board and lodging, for farm hands, and have been obliged to draw upon the newly arrived immigrants for the requisite help to put in their crops. In Old England, on the other hand, the wages for farm labor for this year, as shown by actual "hirings," are given by a London paper as follows:

Farm Foremen	$93 50 to	$136 25 per annum
Plowboys	58 25 to	92 40 per annum
Women servants	48 66 to	97 23 per annum
Young girls	29 20 to	58 90 per annum

These wretched wages formed part of Cobden's "cheap loaf" scheme. So American Cobdenites would sacrifice the wages of labor on the altar of cheapness.

'Tis said that arrangements will be perfected by Crookston parties to open a roller rink here. The Gods forbid! This craze would certainly be the finishing touch to a comparatively evenly balanced mind. For our own benefit and those of our readers, we hope the arrangements will fall through.

'Tis gently hinted that C. C. Knappen will again abide in Fisher. That's right—the more the merrier. We think June 1st, 1892, would usher two busted editors out of town. Come on, Chawly. You can, maybe, give us some needed information as regards our mail list and several other matters.

He will complete the hotel this season, making it the first-class hotel which our city is in need of. The present hotels have been all that were required in the past and will no doubt continue to do a good business in the future, but with the present outlook for the future, there will be a demand for hotel accommodations that cannot possibly be secured now on account of the size of the hotels. The State Fair.

SECRETARY'S OFFICE,
Minn. State Agricultural Society.
Hamline Minn., June 8th, 1891.

To The Farmers of the State of Minnesota: The Thirty-third Annual Minnesota State Fair will be held at Hamline, commencing Monday, September, 7th, continuing the whole week, Ending September 12th, and promises to surpass any previous Fair yet held on these grounds. The location unexcelled, the buildings and stalls handsome and commodious, are ample and will accommodate the large exhibit we anticipate. We want the people of the state to feel that they have an interest in the State Fair, and to contribute liberally of the best, so as to surpass any exhibition hitherto made of Live Stock, Farm Machinery, Poultry, Dairy and Vegetable products, Textile fabrics, etc., etc.

But, the success of the next State Fair depends largely upon the interest taken by you, as a class, in it. Heretofore there has not been any especial features in the way of work or display, by the farmers of the State; this year the management intend to make you farmers prominent at the Fair. In order that you may take an active part in Institute work during the fair week, tents and cots will be provided on the grounds by this society, for the use of such parties as may make application for them to Mr. O. C. Gregg, Superintendent of Farmers' Institutes, with the view of attending the Institute meetings that will be held in the evenings of the 8th, 9th, 10th, 11th, of September. (Parties will be expected to provide their own blankets.) Experts in all branches of agriculture will be in attendance as speakers, and the meeting will be made interesting and instructive. Any information desired relative to this subject can be had of Supt. O. C. Gregg, or at this office.

The Premium List has been carefully revised, and liberal prizes run through all departments. Your attention is particularly called to the premiums offered for the best "displays of Agricultural and Horticultural products" by counties, they are $200, $100, and $50. Your county should advertise itself by making a good exhibition at the fair, and by taking one of the premiums. As individuls, you should also prepare something to help swell the aggregation of the products of the farm, the shops of our State.

Ample provision will be made for reaching the fair grounds by railroad and by electric street cars. All freight is unloaded and reloaded on the grounds.

Take this paper home with you, talk it over with your neighbor, make up a party and Come To The Fair.

As a Fair could not be a success without some amusement connected with it, we will promise you an attractive programme for each afternoon of the week so that you can combine pleasure with profit.

New York Press.

The Mugwump organs that were disappointed when the Itata was surrendered to the United States fleet are now howling vociferously about the cost of the coal consumed in the Charleston's chase. It's a funny characteristic of the Mugwump that when the vindication of the laws and authority of the United States is concerned he suddenly becomes penurious to a marked degree. He believes in millions for tribute to British manufacturers, but not in giving one cent for defense of American rights.

Warren Register:—Aleck Bolton and James Rafferty got back from Demersville, Mont, last Saturday. They are glad to be at home again. They say the boom in that part of the country has collapsed, and that thousands of men there are out of work and out of money. They took in the National Park and various other points of interest, on their return. They report the friends out there as doing fairly well. Mr. W. S. Brown is keeping hotel and restaurent, and making money. Wm. and John Bolton and P. Ruedy are running a wagon and cabinet shop, and doing well. Fred Tripp and family are at Demersville, but expect to return to Spokane Falls soon, as Mrs. Tripp thinks it agrees with her health better there than at Demersville. Geo. Holden expects to return to Warren in the near future. This is the substance of the news as we get it from the boys. We give them welcome and believe they are willing to stay in Marshall County.

The Mesaba Road.

Duluth Tribune.

K. D. Chase, of the Mesaba road, was in the city yesterday. He stated to a Tribune reporter that matters relative to the road were progressing very nicely, "We have three wealthy gentlemen who promised to build the road if their agent made a good report on the property through which it passes. That agent has now submitted his report, and it is a very favorable one. He told me that his report would be the most favorable he could make. He further stated that we had not said enough for the country; that the ore was the finest there was in the country and that there was lots of it."

"It is not our intention to build to our own property and stop there. The road will be built over the range. When we get one tie laid, we will lay another, and so on till we have 300 or 400 miles of track."

The county board will meet on 13th inst.

Farmers are not complaining for lack of rain.

J. G. McGrew, Esq., went over to the Forks on Friday.

Wheat opened out on Monday morning at 82 cents.

Judge Montague and daughter went to St. Paul, on Friday evening.

Only one runaway on St. John's Day and no serious damage from that.

Mrs. Casper Sands left this week for a visit to her mother at Montevideo.

Comrade O. H. Lucken went to Twin Valley on Friday evening of last week.

Ladies, do not forget that Mrs. E. E. Bangs is in earnest in her clearing out sale. Call and see.

The Grand Forks club have secured Walker to play with them against Fargo on the 2d and 3d.

Mrs. A. A. Olds and son departed last week for a two months visit with old friends at Hudson, Wis.

The Fargo club arrived on Tuesday morning all ready for the bloodless fray on the diamond. They are a fine looking lot.

M. E. Bartlett, started on a business trip to the old home in New York on Monday evening. Expects to return just as soon as possible.

Miss Minnie Bailey is prepared to make seamless waists or any style desired. It will pay you to see her before you order your work elsewhere.

Charlie Jefferson commenced slinging brick in the wall under C. O. D. on Monday. He will have that job done almost before you can turn around twice.

Mrs. Wm. Ross and family, who have been in the city awhile visiting friends, left for Seattle on Sunday evening to join Mr. Ross who is in business out there.

The band gave a pleasant concert on Friday evening at the corner of Main and Fletcher sts. Next Friday they will occupy the corner of Main and Robert.

Charlie Misner now wears a smile "a yard wide and all wool" all because of the arrival on Tuesday morning of his wife and little ones from a visit to Waupan, Wis.

Dr. Denniston left last week for his new home in Salt Lake City, Utah. His wife has been gone for two months or more. The doctor's many friends wish him unlimited success.

At the business meeting of the G. A. R. Encampment last week, Maj. C. H. Mix was elected Department Commander and Crookston selected as the next place for the encampment.

Bro. Rutledge, of the Fisher Bulletin, gave us a pleasant call on Monday. Since he took charge, the Bulletin has improved wonderfully and he says that it is because it is a republican paper again.

In the ball game on the grounds on Monday last between the Grand Forks club and Crookston our boys got badly left. Grand Forks has secured a professional pitcher who rattled our boys a good bit.

Wm Munch has an ingenious arrangement attached to his lawn mower which will pick up every spear of grass as fast as it is cut when it can be deposited in piles to suit the will of the manipulator. He invented the business himself.

C. J. McCollom went through the city on Friday evening of last week, bound for his new home in Superior, Wis. Mr. McCollom is doing a good business at that point but says he has not lost his love for nor his interest in the Valley yet.

Fisher is laying herself out for a big time on the ever glorious. Besides an attractive program, they will offer Judge Montague as orator of the day, who will soar the American eagle amid the blue empyrean, and Prof. Casey will read the Declaration of Independence.

L. E. Gossman was interviewed in relation to what he was accused by "snap shots" of having said to Steenerson and he said that the interview was purely imaginary on the part of the writer; that he said no such thing or any thing that could be so construed.

Ed. Barrette has opened a new harness shop on west Broadway in the building just south of the old Times building and will be ready to attend to all calls in his line. Ed is an old experienced hand at the business and knows all of the wrinkles. Give him a call and satisfy yourselves.

U. S. Marshall Brackett came up on Sunday morning with two prisoners who were before the U. S. Dist. Court charged with cutting timber on government lands. They were sent here for the purpose of procuring bail to to appear in court at the September term. Their homes are in Kittson Co.

Sam Wilkinson was up from St. Paul this week.

A. G. Gallasch was up from St. Paul on Monday.

Geo. Q. Erskine came up from Fargo on Tuesday morning.

There is a full attendance at the County Alliance meeting.

K. O. Gigstad came in from St. Hilaire to transact business at the county seat.

W. W. Attix came down on Tuesday to be in time for the Alliance meeting.

Attorney O'Brien went to St. Paul on Friday of last week returning Sunday morning.

Everybody goes for wild strawberries nowadays. They are said to be very plentiful.

Remember the social at the residence of N. P. Stone this evening. Supper ready at six o'clock.

Conductor J. B. Copeland has 50 acres of as fine wheat as grows in Dakota—so they say.

Mrs. Fred Hall arrived on Saturday morning from a pleasant visit at the old home in Illinois.

Eugene Besse was down from Red Lake Falls on Tuesday. He is talking of a trip to La Belle France.

H. C. Tatro, H. G. Mitchel and a lot of the good boys from Woodside shook hands with us on Wednesday.

Write to your friends at the old home and tell them the plain truth about this country, is a pretty good immigration plan.

The bright prospects for crops still continue. If hail and blight does not interfere we shall harvest the best crop that we have had in years.

W. J. Nickels was up from Edna on Tuesday to give notice to all mankind and the rest of the world that he intends to prove up on his homestead in due and ancient form.

On Friday last a son of Ira McDaniels, was drowned while bathing in the river. The body was recovered on Saturday about a mile below where the accident occurred. The boy was a member of the Juvenile Fire Department and about nine years old.

A special containing General Manager A. L. Mohler and Chief Engineer Miller of the Great Northern railroad arrived on Tuesday. The gentlemen spent some time looking about, with a view, it is said of putting in a sidetrack to the Valley Roller Mills.

"Bread from Heaven" and "A Night in an Egyptian Jail," are Mr. Battey's morning and evening subjects next Sunday at the Congregational church. Communion of the Lord's Supper after the morning service. The evening subject is the second in a series of Sunday night talks on "Night Scenes in Bible History." Invitation to all.

Owing to continued ill health, Mrs. E. E. Bangs has decided to close out her business and remove to Utah to live. For this reason she offers to dispose of her goods at and below cost. As she intends to close by August first, all who wish to secure a rare bargain should call early as she now has a large and elegant stock to select from. This is no humbug as you can readily ascertain by a call at her store on Second street.

John Wyatt informs The Journal that the insurance companies have adjusted his insurance satisfactorily and that he will be on deck in the Jacobus building ready for business until his old place is again ready for occupancy. When you need anything in his line be sure and call on John for not only will he attend to everything in first-class shape but he needs the assistance of all his friends to aid him to get started again and he will appreciate their efforts on his behalf.

Geo. Vine, of the Robert Street meat market, informs us that his trade is excellent this summer. He purchases nothing but the choicest beeves and well understands the art cutting up into nice choice steaks. Try Vine once.

J. T. Knight was down from Red Lake Falls last week, chatting with his old friends in this city. J. T. has been down to Superior, Wis., for some time making a big fortune in the restaurant business, but has sold out and returned to Red Lake Falls to spend it with the boys. Says he took in a million or so a day down there but it took too much time to count it, so he sold out at a good figure and came back to the farm in old Polk. He is so entirely out of conceit with the cities at the head of the lake that he says we don't need direct connection with them, but that the present round-about way of reaching them is the best.

The Times man never neglects an opportunity to sneer at the farmer or anything a farmer writes, and so he proceeds to haul The Journal correspondent over the coals who dared to criticise Judge Montague's "Snap Shots," in which the Judge makes Hon. H. Steenerson call the Nationalists opprobious names. Interviewing Steenerson on that point that genleman said emphatically that he never used the expression that "Snap Shots" accused him of using. The Times man frets because our correspondent writes under a nom-de-plume, forgetting that the attack upon the Nationalists in the Times was made in the same way. If you will require Montague to sign his name to "Snap Shots" we have no doubt that our correspondent will gratify you by giving his name.

A BAD GIVE AWAY.

Dr. Henault has given away that dog—a bad give-away for the fellow who got him.

Detroit Record:—J. A. Bemis, the veteran hotel man of the northwest, came down from Crookston last night, and to-day is renewing old acquaintances in Detroit. He made us a pleasant call this morning and we are glad to state that he looks as hale and hearty as ever, and also that he is prospering as he deserves.

Ole Omlie, of Grafton, went through on the N. P. R. R. on Friday evening, bound for Iowa, for a carload of horses. Ole was formerly a dweller of Polk County and has not lost his love for the old stamping ground. He says our crops beat the world this year (as well as every year). He expects to be gone a fortnight or so.

"Im going to be a grass-widower for three months," quoth our genial dentist, Dr. W. A. Robertson, on Tuesday morning to our reporter. And this remark was made all because Mrs. R. and the bonnie sweet lassie, the little two-year-old Miss R., was to start that evening for a three-months visit to the old home at Kingston, Ont.

One can get a little better idea of the excellent work our fire department did at the Wyatt fire now that the carpenters' work reveals how the fire had eaten into the walls. The wonder is how Slocum and the bakery could be saved, and it was only by the most heroic efforts that it was accomplished. The boys got right into that fiery furnace and stubbornly fought the flames until they conquered. That is the kind of a department Crookston has got.

Do you want people from the older states to come in and help develope the country? If so, you can do a good deal to that end by writing them the plain facts in relation to the country. Such letters would be worth far more than all the newspapers can say or all the immigration pamphlets that could ever be published. One thing this country needs to make it more prosperous is more settlers and these could be had if all the facts could be known.

Rev. C. F. and Mrs. Sharpe have been called upon to mourn the loss of their bright little daughter, Ruth, who died on Saturday from a combination of troubles arising from the measles. The little child was about three years old, just that period of child-life that is the most lovable and interesting, and the blow will fall heavily upon the hearts of the parents who will have the earnest sympathy of many friends as far as such poor help can alleviate such sorrows. The funeral services occurred at the family residence on Monday afternoon.

Talking with a prominent business man on Tuesday, he remarked: "I have a neighbor who is the greatest crank I ever saw. For several years now he has occupied half of a lot that I own which he has used as a cow-yard. This year the rains have rendered it uncomfortable for his cows, and instead of cleaning it up, as most any man would do, what did he do but go and complain to the Board of Health that I was maintaining a nuisance and they ordered me to abate the nuisance at once—but I'll bet that man will hunt a new cow-yard hereafter. If the rent of the lot was not worth keeping it in order he don't can use it some more times pretty quick."

The boys all say that they had a big time at the Encampment at Moorhead and returned bringing the big canteen and the cannon will arrive later. Adj. V. D. Carruth is all broke up over the notice the Moorhead News of Saturday gives him, when it says that "Col. Paluse, of Crookston, made an eloquent speech." The boys all speak in glowing terms of the right royal way in which the loyal citizens of Moorhead treated them and they say that when the Encampment meets at our city next year that the best wish they have is that our people will do equally as well by their guests. They were given the freedom of the city and in every way made to feel perfectly at home, and they highly appreciate the efforts that were made to entertain them.

The report having gone abroad that there were 'hoppers in the land, Prof. Luger came up from St. Paul on Tuesday morning to investigate. After a careful investigation he informs The Journal that there are no Rocky Mountain grasshoppers, (Celoptenus Spretus) here, and nothing to be apprehended from that source. Every year there are more or less of the native 'hopper in this as well as every other country, and we have noticed that in a year like this when we have plenty of rain these little chaps seem to be more than ordinarily hungry. But this kind of 'hopper is not able to do very much damage, and if he should ever acquire that habit he is very easily discouraged by Paris green, tar, kerosene, &c. We can see no cause for a panic this year.

The Journal acknowledges a pleasant call from Gen. Geo. B. Winship, Commander of the Grand Army of North Dakota, whose H'dqrs. are in his mammoth Daily Herald building in Grand Forks, on Wednesday of last week. Senator Winship was over to see the G. F. ball club wipe up the earth with our fellows and yet he isn't proud. He is the man who carried North Dakota for the drys—a thoroughbred republican, and yet our third party prohibition brethren in this State will tell you that the republican party is not in favor of temperance. George is a living example of what this country can do for a poor but ambitious young farmer man. He came to Grand Forks in the seventies, opened up a farm near there and to-day he owns a seven or eight story building, runs a metropolitan blanket-sheet daily, with an army of employes under him, is a general in the army, a State Senator and a United States Senator, (that is to be,) and yet he is not proud one little bit—shook hands with us just as heartily as he used to do when we both used to own a stock farm in the early day and used to meet on the iron bridge across the dividing line—the Ruby—and swap lies about our respective crops, our stock and what our respective counties could do for the poor but industrious settler. We never could agree upon this point wholly, both claiming to live in the banner county, but finally agreeing that both Polk and Grand Forks were pretty good counties to live in, and then we would "smile" and agree to disagree as to which was a huckleberry ahead. George has built up a great fortune on his farm, and now, in his old age, full of honors and leisure to enjoy himself, he is prepared to take life as easy as the head of a great daily always does.

Prof. and Mrs Moore started on Tuesday evening for their vacation visit in Canada. They expect to remain away until Sept, 1st.

On Tuesday afternoon, a few minutes before 3 o'clock, a team belonging to Anton Ronne became frightened at the sprinkler and started to run. Mr. Ronne, who was standing on the ground holding the lines, was unable to control them and they dashed up Main street at a furious rate; turning on Fletcher, they ran east to Ash street where they collided with a buggy in which were Maurice Porrier, his wife and two children. The woman and children escaped unhurt and no damage done the buggy except the wrecking of one wheel. The team ran on along Ash street as far as the Catholic church, where they stopped, and where, a few minutes later, the owner found them. The wagon box was thrown off on the sidewalk in front of the Baptist church, and the wagon was damaged to a small amount, but the team was apparently uninjured.

Fisher Items.

Fisher Bulletin.

On Thursday, Friday and Saturday of next week the lady bicycle riders, who are now riding at Minneapolis, will ride a race at Grand Forks.

Home grown potatoes and green peas, will garnish several Fisher dinner tables, ere the Fourth of July echoes have died away.

Capt. Nels Peterson contemplated an excursion to Crookston on Wednesday last, but the fixtures for the steamer failed to arrive.

A brand new baby boy arrived at the residence of Mr. Joseph Cline on Monday last.

While the contortionist was tying himself in a doble knot, Hugh Lankester asked: "Mamma, does that man drink snake oil?"

L. C. McKnight and lady left for St. Paul last evening. They will be absent from Fisher two weeks, and will take in West Superior during their excursion.

The marriage of Donald Bain and Miss Delia Freeman, was solemnized last Tuesday evening, at the home of the bride in Crookston, Rev. J. C. Campbell officiating The marriage was a quiet affair. The happy young couple will go to Maple Lake to enjoy their honey moon.

Euclid Items.

Had a nice rain on Tuesday.

An increased force of men are at work repairing the Great Northern track which needs it badly north of this place.

M. M. Davis has rented the old McKibben place, and will summer fallow it for crop next year.

The prospects are very favorable for hay this year. A good many will begin haying the last of this week.

Why is it that so many of the Euclidites are looking south through telescopes about ten minutes of nine every morning? It is because Jim Hill has got his steam ox hitched to a few cars and they have to look through a telescope to see it move.

Miss Mabel Duntley came up from Crookston Thursday to visit friends.

M. M. Davis has a ninety acre field of wheat partially headed out.

Mr. Harris, of Warren, went through town on Wednesday on his way to Crookston.

Victor Tiedt and Albert Losey went to Crookston on Wednesday to see the celebration, and Mr. Losey won one of he foot races.

Had a heavy rain on Sunday afternoon.

M. P. Losey was out to his farm on Friday and reports his grain looking better than ever before since he came to the country.

While Mr. Teal was driving to town on Sunday his horse ran away, tipping him out and demolishing the cart, but, strange to say, neither him nor the horse was hurt.

A shaggy black and white dog with white ring around neck. He is a Coolie and his name is Rover. Any one informing F. W. Davis of his whereabouts will be suitably rewarded.

Ladies, have you seen those elegant dresses Miss Minnie Bailey is making for her customers? She cuts and fits by the United States system and all her work is stylishly made This we have on the authority of ladies who have had work done there, and the fact that she is having a very large business is significant, for the ladies are very quick to find out where they can have work done to suit them.

Last week THE JOURNAL reporter in his rambles met a young man from Fergus Falls who had just been to his old home in northern New York, and in the chat that followed he gave us something of his experience. Said that when he came of age, a few years ago, his father, who was then a well-to-do farmer, offered to help him to buy a farm there if he wanted to go to farming but, after duly considering the matter, he concluded to come west and see what he could do for himself, so west he came and using his government rights soon had a large farm and much of it under cultivation. This spring he took a notion to visit the old home in New York, so he rented his farm and went back, where he found that his father was having pretty hard work to make his expenses on the old home farm and about discouraged with trying; his farm, that he had often been offered $65 per acre for would not sell to-day for half of that sum and would not do more than pay running expenses, and the son, in the few years he had been in this country had made enough so that he could have bought the old man out with something over. "I tell you," said he, "if the people in this country would farm as they have to back east, and be as economical, they would all be independently rich in a few years. Why, what we actually waste here on our farms would be good wages to those fellows back there, and then what we more than waste for liquors is a bigger item than most of people stop to consider. We can raise here two bushels of grain to their one there, and while they get a few cents a bushel more than we do, the balance is largely in our favor on yield and in economy of harvesting. Back there they are selling butter at 8 cents per pound and cheese in proportion, and during the winter they have to feed $15 and $20 hay. Next winter hay is liable to be extremely high, as the long continued drouth there has burned up all the meadows and pastures. You bet they are a blue lot there and many would like to come out here if they had the means to get here." We wished that all who feel disposed to complain of this country could have talked with this young man a few minutes.

Norman County Herald:—The Great West in a scathing article repudiates the organization of the congressional district committee at Fergus Falls recently. It says hard things against Hompe, Lommen, Hall and others. What with the Donnelly and the Great West element, the Hall, Lommen, Juelson element, the whisky and prohibition elements, all pulling in different directions the new party is badly handicapped.

FOURTH OF JULY EXCURSION RATES.

The Northern Pacific Railroad Company will sell Excursion tickets from Crookston, to all points in Minnesota, Wisconsin and North Dakota at rate of one and one third fare for the round trip.

Tickets on sale July 3rd and 4th, good to return until July 5th, 1891.

The Millionaire Moses of the 19th Century.

Every season has its man who, for one reason or another, are of special note. It is one of the functions of the Review of Reviews to present to English-speaking readers every where, just at the right moment, the man who are really the men of the month. Thus the Review in May made a hit with its sketches and pictures of the great colonial statesmen, Sir John Macdonald, Sir Henry Parkes the federator of Australia, and Mr. Cecil Rhodes, the brilliant young Englishman, who has annexed half a continent in Africa to the British Empire, and whose South African company owning the diamond fields and gold mines has made Mr. Rhode a millionaire many times over, although he is still in the thirties. In the June number of the Review the wonderful character sketch of Pope Leo XIII., written by an Italian editor and illustrated with pictures of the Pope, and the leading ecclesiastics at Rome, was a stroke of first-class journalism, since the appearance of labor encyclical made the Pope the most prominent figure of the month. Portraits of the most immediately conspicuous men of all countries were also published in the editorial review of the Progress of the world. In the forthcoming July number the Review of Reviews publishes a striking picture of a man who is unquestionably more talked about at the present moment than any other, namely, Baron Hirsch, who was the friend of the Prince of Wales, and who to-day, in the language of the Reviews is. "The Millionaire Moses of the Nineteenth Century," and whose energy and money are finding ways of deliverance for the oppressed Jews of Russia, It is a happy stroke of journalism that brings the face of Baron Hirsch, the rich Jew, young, suave, modern, well dressed, side by side with the face of Dr. Pobedonostzeff, the procurator of the Holy Synod, whose policy of persecution is the shadow on the reign of Alexander III, of Russia. The procurator is a frigid-looking old theologian. Neither face has been seen in any American periodical before. Baron Hirsch is destined to leave his mark upon the history of the last quarter of the Nineteenth Century.

Forty-Four Beautiful States.

Minneapolis Journal.

MOORHEAD, June 27.—The third day of the G. A. R. encampment was a fine one. The encampment parade was participated in by three bands and two drum corps, and the different fire departments and secret societies of Moorhead and Fargo. The prettiest feature of the parade was "The States" represented by 44 young girls dressed in white, and each carrying a flag with the name of the state for which she stood. The goddess of liberty was seated on a throne behind the states. The goddess was a beautiful girl, whose long flaxen hair hung nearly to her waist and whose shapely arms rested gracefully on the back of the throne. The young ladies were seated on a large float prettily decorated and drawn by four prancing horses. The girls sang patriotic songs as they were driven through the sreets and elicited much applause from the spectators. Hon. Albert Scheffer addressed the veterans. A large camp fire around which speeches are made and songs sung has occurred each evening. The officers of the association elected was as follows: Commander, C. H. Mix, Crookston; senior vice-commander, S. S. McKinley, Park Rapids; junior vice-commander, Alex. Holden, Ada; chaplain, Thos. J. Martin, Detroit. There was quite a fight for the encampment next year, Crookston and Park Rapids both being in the field. The majority of votes were cast for Crookston.

The Pintsch System of Lighting Passenger Trains with Gas.

The Pintsch system of lighting by means of compressed gas is pronounced by competent judges to be the best known means of car illumination.

It is safe under any and all circumstances. It is not affected by atmospheric changes. Burns more steadily than any other light in use. It emits no smoke, is odorless and perfectly clean.

It is so effective and evenly distributed that travelers in any part of the car can read easily and comfortably.

Although this system has been in use on some of the leading lines in the East and in Europe for some time, the credit of first introducing it in the North-West belongs to "The North-Western Line"—C., St. P., M. & O. Ry.

The vestibuled trains on this line, leaving Minneapolis at 6:50 P. M., St. Paul, 7:30 P. M., daily, for Chicago and Milwaukee, are lighted throughout with this gas.

In addition to the superior arrangement and comfort of the sleeping cars on the vestibuled limited, this brilliant light adds to the appearance of the car, and passengers have expressed themselves as delighted with this method of lighting.

The Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis & Omaha Railway Company is now constructing a plant in Minneapolis for manufacture of Pintsch Gas in order to supply the entire passenger equipment.

No line keeps its equipment more completely up to the standard than does "The North-Western Line," and it has never failed to provide any improvement likely to add to the comfort, safety or pleasure of through travel.

Excursion Rates.

The Great Northern Railroad Company will sell excursion tickets, from Crookston to Minneapolis and return at one and one-third fare for the round trip, to attend the convention of the Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor, to be held in that city from July 9th to 12th. [11-12]

"The Day we Celebrate."

This week, the day we celebrate will be the anniversary of that ever-memorable one on which what is now about the most prosperous, smartest, livliest, strongest and most intelligent nation on earth was born. We join pretty generally in this celebration, and yet it cannot have the same significance to everybody. The Irishman has a peculiar feeling for St. Patrick's Day; the Norwegian is particularly enthused by the 17th of May; the Afro-American has two great days, August 1st and January 1st. Birth-days and wedding-days are numerously celebrated, but they interest only small circles of people. But for each individual of all the millions who have traveled over the Burlington line, there is a day which he can join all the rest (whatever be their nationality) in celebrating; and that is the day that each took his first ride on "The Burlington," the line that goes everywhere. For tickets, rates, etc., you should apply to the nearest railroad ticket agent or write to W. J. C. KENYON, Gen. Pass. Agent, St. Paul Minn.

BINDING TWINE.

Report of the Committee on Binding Twine appointed by the Executive Committee of the Minnesota State Farmers' Alliance.

ST. PAUL, Minn., May 23, 1891.

To the Executive Committee of the State Farmers' Alliance:

GENTLEMEN:—We beg leave to report in relation to Binder twine that after examining samples and prices furnished by several of the principal Cordage Companies, we find that the twine handled by our Alliance Business Agency, at 673 Wabasha St. Paul, Minn., is the most satisfactory of anything in the market, prices and quality considered, and we trust our members will place their orders for twine with them.

Respectfully submitted,

MORTGAGE SALE.

(First publication July 2d, 1891.)

DEFAULT HAVING BEEN MADE IN THE payment of the sum of two hundred seventy-nine and 50-100 dollars, ($279.50) which is claimed to be due at the date of this notice upon a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Charles Boucher and Margaret Boucher, his wife, to Joseph Kelso, bearing date the 9th day of March, A. D. 1887, and, with a power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the 11th day of March, A. D. 1887, at 9 o'clock a. m., in book 29 of mortgages, on pages 305 to 307 inclusive, and the further sum of fifty four and 79-100 dollars for taxes duly assessed and levied against the land conveyed by said mortgage for the years 1886, 1887, 1888, 1889 and 1890, and paid by said mortgagee, and no action or proceeding having been instituted, at law or otherwise, to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, viz: Lot number twenty-six (26) block seven (7), in Sletten & Cromb's subdivision of Lots in Hurlbut's Addition to Crookston, according to the plat thereof on file in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for Polk County, Minnesota, in Polk County and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances, which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk County, at the front door of the Court House, in the city of Crookston, in said County and State, on the 22d day of August, A. D. 1891, at ten o'clock a. m. of that day, at public vendue to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt and interest, and the taxes on said premises, and twenty-five dollars attorney's fees as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale, as provided by law.

Dated June 26th, A. D. 1891.

DEAR BREAD IN ITALY.

A Likelihood That the Duty on Wheat May be Reduced.

ROME, June 17.—There is some likelihood that the duty on wheat will be reduced. The duty was fixed at a time when the wheat imports were very large, with a view of producing a large revenue; but the abundant crop of last year entirely stopped importation and thus impoverished the government though it enriched the farmers. The price of wheat, however, did not fall with the abundant crop, but rose in sympathy with the wheat markets of the world, so that wheat and bread are now extremely dear in Italy. It may be that the question will not be decided without a prolonged parlimentary struggle. The minister of finance said in the chamber the other day that a modification of the duty would have a serious consequence. At any rate it was too near to estimate what the Italian crop would be, though it was known that the crop of wheat would be poor in the East and abundant in the West.

FARMERS GROW SHARP.

The Will Hold Their Wheat in Nebraska for High Prices.

Minneapolis Times.

Omaha, Neb., June 21.—Railway traffic managers of lines operating in Nebraska are agitated over a business complication which promises to very materially reduce the earnings of the various companies so far as the immediate movement of the present crop is concerned. Since the usual arrangement to distribute grain cars throughout the state for the purpose of facilitating the handling of the crop after harvest, it has developed that under the new law declaring all elevators public warehouses, so much of the grain will be stored to await better prices that comparatively a small portion of the crop will be placed on the market at once. The law becomes operative next week. It is a measure of the alliance legislature, and that organization has actively encouraged its members to resort to elevators whenever possible and borrow money required for immediate expenses on warehouse receipts thus reserving the enormous crop of the state from the market indefinitely, or until prices have materially advanced. The grading will be similar to that in vogue in Minnesota, and the rating of Chicago, St. Louis, New York and other grain centers will in no wise affect the Nebraska grading, as in the past.

Francis Murphy Says Legislation Cannot Make Men Good.

St. Paul Pioneer Press.

Francis Murphy, the great temperance orator is, with his wife, a guest at the Ryan. Mr. Murphy is about forty-eight years of age, short and stout, with a pleasant face adorned by an iron gray mustache. His expression is frank and open, and when speaking he has rare powers of personal magnetism. In the lapel of his coat is the blue ribbon, in the cause of which Mr. Murphy has made his name prominent all over the world. The distinguished orator is on his way to Spokane, where he is to deliver addresses in behalf of temperance, after which he goes to the coast.

"Prohibition," said Mr. Murphy, "is making rapid strides and its advancement is to be seen on all sides. The high license is doing every thing to help prohibition, it is making men more temperate. There is but little drunkenness now as compared with a few years ago, and it is due to high license and the extermination of low grog shops, also to the enlightenment of our people, who realise that drunkenness ruins both social and business life. My idea of prohibition is to let every man pass his own temperance laws and then appoint himself an officer to see that the law is enforced. By this means the supreme court cannot repeal the law on technical points. Prohibition is partisan politics, and that cannot succeed because no party can have a monopoly on the morals of the people. The strife and discord and denunciation of good men in connection with the enforcement of prohibition have been the great causes of its defeat at the polls. You cannot legislate men into sobriety; you cannot by legislation control the appetites and passions of the people. It requires a higher power, the gospel of Jesus Christ, and it alone can control the passions. He came to save us from our sins, and our appetites and passions are the infirmities of our nature, and he alone has the sovereign remedy to control them. If legislation was to save humanity Moses would have been the Christ. As I said before, partisan politics must not enter into prohibition; it is not a political, but an individual matter."

Mortgage Sale.

[First publication June 18th, 1891.]

WHEREAS, CORNELIUS ANDERSON AND Kjerste Anderson, his wife, of Polk County, State of Minnesota, as mortgagors, did, on the 3d day of September, A. D. 1888, duly execute and deliver to James John Fulton, of Edinburgh, Scotland, their mortgage bearing date of August 25th, A. D. 1888, whereby they mortgaged to said mortgagee the following described lands situated in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, to-wit: East half of northwest quarter and lots one (1) and two (2) of Section 30, Township 153, Range 44 west, containing 161 21-100 acres to secure the payment of the sum of five hundred and one dollars, with interest thereon, according to the conditions of one certain promissory note, with interest coupons attached, bearing even date with said mortgage and made by said mortgagors to said mortgagee, or order, which said mortgage was on the 5th day of September, A. D. 1888, at 11 o'clock a. m., duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for said County of Polk, in book 37 of mortgages, on page 148; and

Whereas, default has been made in the payment of the sum of thirty-five and 07-100 dollars, due as interest upon said mortgage on the 1st day of January, A. D. 1891, and the said interest is still unpaid and due; and

Whereas, it was stipulated by and between the parties to said mortgage that if default should be made in any of the conditions or covenants therein contained on the part of the mortgagors to be kept and performed, that then and from thenceforth it shall be lawful for said mortgagee, his heirs, administrators, executors or assigns, to consider and declare the whole sum secured thereby as immediately due and payable without notice to said mortgagors or any other party; and

Whereas, the said James John Fulton, mortgagee, has exercised his option to consider and declare and does hereby consider and declare the whole sum of money secured by said mortgage to be due and payable; and

Whereas, there is now due, and claimed to be due on said mortgage at the date of this notice the sum of five hundred fifty-three and 05-100 dollars, and no proceedings have been instituted at law or otherwise to recover the same or any part thereof.

Now, therefore notice is hereby given that by virtue of a power of sale in said mortgage contained and therewith recorded, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the land therein described, which sale will be made by the Sheriff of Polk County, at the front door of the Court House, in the City of Crookston, in said County and State, on the 8th day of August, A. D. 1891, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon of that day, at public vendue, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay the sum due on said mortgage, together with taxes, if any, on said premises, and fifty dollars attorney's fees therein stipulated to be paid in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the date of sale as provided by law.

Dated June 13th, A. D. 1891.

MORTGAGE SALE.

(First publication May 28th, 1891.)

WHEREAS DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE in the payment of the sum of two hundred and forty-six dollars ($246 00) which is claimed to be due at the date of this notice upon a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by David H. McGinnis to P. C. Sletten and John Cromb, of Polk County, Minnesota, bearing date the first day of December, A. D. 1882, and, with a power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the 5th day of December, A. D. 1882, at 11:30 o'clock a. m., in book "H" of mortgages, on page 453.

And whereas P. C. Sletten, one of the mortgagees named in said mortgage, died testate, at Crookston, Polk County, Minnesota, on the 8th day of July, A. D. 1884.

And whereas the last will and testament of the said P. C. Sletten was proved and admitted to probate in the Probate Court of Polk County, Minnesota, on the 30th day of July, A. D. 1884.

And, whereas, by the terms of said will Kari Sletten, the wife of the said P. C. Sletten, was made the sole legatee and devisee of all the real and personal property of which he died seized aforesaid.

And, whereas, the Probate Court of said Polk County issued its final decree in the estate of P. C. Sletten, deceased, dated Aug. 6, 1887, by the terms of which the said Kari Sletten was decreed to have an undivided half interest in the above described mortgage, which said decree was duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for said County of Polk, on the 11th day of May, 1888, at 1:30 p. m., in book 29 of deeds, on pages 574 to 578 inclusive, and no action or proceeding having been instituted, at law or otherwise, to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now therefore, notice is hereby given, that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, viz: Lots four (4) and five (5) in block six (6), in Cromb and Sletten's subdivision of outlots in Hurlbut's addition to Crookston, in Polk County and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances, which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk County, at the front door of the Court House in the City of Crookston, in said County and State, on the 13th day of July, A. D. 1891, at ten o'clock a. m. of that day, at public vendue to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and twenty-five dollars attorney's fees, as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale as provided by law.

Dated May 30th, A. D. 1891.

MORTGAGE SALE.

[First publication July 2d, 1891.]

WHEREAS, HENRY SMITH AND EMMA Smith, his wife, of Polk County, State of Minnesota, as mortgagors, did, on the 10th day of May, A. D. 1887, duly execute and deliver to Austin Corbin, Trustee, of the County of New York, State of New York, their mortgage, bearing date of April 28th, A. D. 1887, whereby they mortgaged to said mortgagee the following described lands situated in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, to-wit: The northeast quarter of Section 26, Township 152, Range 45 west, containing 160 acres, to secure the payment of the sum of six hundred dollars, with interest thereon, according to the conditions of one certain promissory note, with interest coupons attached, bearing even date with said mortgage, and made by said mortgagors to said mortgagee, or order, which said mortgage was on the 10th day of May, A. D. 1887, at 11:15 o'clock a. m., duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for said County of Polk, in book 30 of mortgages, on pages 581 to 583; and

Whereas, default has been made in the payment of the sum of sixty dollars, due as interest upon said mortgage on the 1st day of January, A. D. 1890, and on the further sum of sixty dollars due as interest thereon on the 1st day of January, A. D. 1891, and the said interest is still unpaid and due; and

Whereas, it was stipulated by and between the parties to said mortgage, that if default should be made in any of the conditions or covenants therein contained on the part of the mortgagors, to be kept and performed, that then and from thenceforth it shall be lawful for the said mortgagee, his heirs, administrators, executors or assigns, to consider and declare the whole sum secured thereby as immediately due and payable without notice to said mortgagors or any other party; and

Whereas, The said Austin Corbin, Trustee, has exercised his option to consider and declare, and does hereby consider and declare the whole sum of money secured by said mortgage to be due and payable; and

Whereas, there is now due, and claimed to be due on said mortgage at the date of this notice the sum of seven hundred sixty and 80-100 dollars, and no proceedings have been instituted at law or otherwise to recover the same or any part thereof.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of a power of sale in said mortgage contained and therewith recorded, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the land therein described, which sale will be made by the Sheriff of Polk County, at the front door of the Court House, in the city of Crookston, in said County and State, on the 22d, day of August, A. D. 1891, at ten o'clock in the forenoon of that day, at public vendue to the highest bidder for cash, to pay the sum due on said mortgage, together with taxes, if any, on said premises, and fifty dollars attorney's fees therein stipulated to be paid in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the date of sale as provided by law.

MORTGAGE SALE.

[First publication July 2d, 1891.]

WHEREAS, RICHARD CARIVEAU AND Minnie Cariveau, his wife, of Polk County, State of Minnesota, as mortgagors, did, on the 19th day of July, A. D. 1887, duly execute and deliver to Caroline C. Moulton, of the County of Chittenden, State of Vermont, their mortgage bearing date of July 1st, A. D. 1887, whereby they mortgaged to said mortgagee the following described lands situated in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, to-wit: The southeast quarter of Section 22, Township 150, Range 42 west, containing 160 acres, to secure the payment of the sum of four hundred dollars, with interest thereon, according to the conditions of one certain promissory note, with interest coupons attached, bearing even date with said mortgage, and made by said mortgagors to said mortgagee, or order, which said mortgage was on the 20th day of July, A. D. 1887, at 11:20 o'clock a. m., duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for said County of Polk, in book 37 of mortgages, on page 8; and

Whereas, default has been made in the payment of the sum of forty dollars, due as interest upon said mortgage on the 1st day of January, A. D. 1890, and on the further sum of forty dollars due as interest thereon on the 1st day of January, A. D. 1891, and the said interest is still unpaid and due; and

Whereas it was stipulated by and between the parties to said mortgage, that if default should be made in any of the conditions or covenants therein contained on the part of the mortgagors, to be kept and performed, that then and from thenceforth it shall be lawful for the said mortgagee, her heirs, administrators, executors or assigns to consider and declare the whole sum secured thereby as immediately due and payable without notice to said mortgagors or any other party; and

Whereas, the said Caroline C. Moulton, has exercised her option to consider and declare and does hereby consider and declare the whole sum of money secured by said mortgage to be due and payable; and

Whereas there is now due, and claimed to be due upon said mortgage at the date of this notice the sum of five hundred seven and 82-100 dollars, and no proceedings have been instituted at law or otherwise to recover the same or any part thereof.

Now therefore notice is hereby given that by virtue of a power of sale in said mortgage contained, and therewith recorded, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the land therein described, which sale will be made by the Sheriff of Polk County, at the front door of the Court-house in the City of Crookston, in said County and State, on the 22d day of August, A. D. 1891, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon of that day at public vendue to the highest bidder for cash; to pay the sum due on said mortgage, together with the taxes, if any, on said premises, and twenty-five Dollars attorney's fees therein stipulated to be paid in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law subject to redemption at any time within one year from the date of sale as provided by law.

Dated, June 24th, A. D. 1891.

NEWSPAPER LAW.

1. Any person who takes a paper regularly from the post office, whether he has subscribed or not, is responsible for the payment.

2. If any person orders his paper discontinued he must pay all arrears, or the publisher may continue to send it until payment is made and then collect the whole amount, whether the paper is taken from the office or not.

3. In suits for subscriptions, the suit may be instituted where the paper is published.

4. The Courts have decided that refusing to take newspapers or periodicals from the post office, or removing and leaving them uncalled for, while unpaid for, is prima facie evidence of intention to defraud.

A Platform that Contradicts Itself.

New York Press.

Workingmen, contrast the seventh and eleventh planks of the platform adopted by the Iowa Democratic Convention, and see how hollow are that party's professions of friendship for you:

On behalf of our laboring and producing masses we renew that devotion to their interests and rights which has always been a fundamental doctrine and practice of the Democratic party. We favor all other fair and lawful methods by which labor may secure laws establishing free public employment agencies and adequate compensation, undiminished by any device for the enrichment of the few at the expense of armies of toilers. And we condemn the practice of importing contract labor for work in mines or elsewhere.	We denounce the McKinley bill, the motives of its authors and defenders, and the theory under which it is submitted for the approval of the American people. Such legislation increases the cost of the necessaries of life, promotes dishonest manufactures, trusts and combines, creates sectional envy, despoils the many for the benefit of the few, threatens the country with an aristocracy based upon ill gotten gain, and, above all, corrupts the politics of the country to as to seriously endanger the perpetuity of popular government.

Look at this, and look at that. In one breath the Iowa Democrats profess great devotion to the interests of the laboring masses and demand free public employment agencies, and in almost the next breath they denounce the greatest employment agency ever created by law, the protective tariff system. Remember what the McKinley bill does; it raises duties on goods of which we have been importing $200,000,000 a year so that we can make them in this country instead of importing them. It is building new mills and enlarging old mills in almost every corner of the land. The measure of the opportunity it gives to such mills by providing them with the home market is the success with which it keeps our imported goods. Here are seven schedules of dutiable goods on which the McKinley bill raises duties, and the amounts opposite to them are the amounts by which the imports of them for the first four months of this year are less than the imports for the first four months of last year, according to the official reports of the Government Bureau of Statistics:

Animals	$ 835,958
Breadstuffs	1,179,507
Chemicals	861,828
Cotton goods	2,023,887
Flax	6,540,022
Flax manufactures	1,357,118
Woolens	6,261,465
Total	$18,460,185

In other words the McKinley bill has cut down the imports of these dutiable goods eighteen millions and a half in four months, or at the rate of more than fifty-five millions a year. American labor on the farm and in the mill has been employed this spring in producing these eighteen millions and a half of goods. And these are only seven of the schedules of the bill. The increased duty on tin plate goes into effect on July 1st, which is next Wednesday. We import $21,000,000 of tin plate yearly, and the new duty will enable us to make a very large part of that here. If you want to see what sort of an "employment agency" that is, go over to Brooklyn and see the tin plate mill, over 300 feet long, that Somers Brothers are building.

Now honestly, workingmen, what do you think of a party that professes to want to get work for you and that howls against the greatest agency ever set on foot to make work for you? What would you think of a village councilman who promised to get work for you and then voted against giving a site to the owners of a factory who had promised to come and locate in that village if they got a site to build their mill on?

Excursion Rates.

The Great Northern Railroad Company will sell excursion tickets, from Crookston to Minneapolis and return at one and one-third fare for the round trip, to attend the convention of the Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor, to be held in that city from July 9th to 12th. [11-12]

Trade and Money.

New York Press.

"Every prospect pleases," as the missionary hymn says, "and only man is vile." Legitimate business all over the United States is waiting to be done, in volume great enough to call for enormous activity. The clearing up sales in the metropolitan dry goods district showed that there was a steady demand for bargains whenever concessions were offered, and often when none were offered. Pittsburg sold 309,339 tons of raw iron during June to date, as against 199,460 for the corresponding weeks of 1890, 121,915 for 1889, 93,085 for 1888, and 78,890 for 1887. Iron stocks are light and prices steady as before. There is an active demand for merchant iron, and even here in New York there is a little more business in pig iron. Our exports of wheat and wheat flour from both coasts for four weeks of June are 9,193,155 bushels, as against 6,406,157 in June last year, and 5,749,202 in June, 1889. And yet in spite of all these decidedly favorable signs the public shakes its head because $5,350,000 gold was exported last week, bringing the total for the year close up to $70,000,000.

What is the matter? The renewal of gold exports, when everybody but a couple of newspaper prophets thought they were about over, is easily explained. The Bank of England was satisfied, but the Bank of France and the Bank of Germany now want gold, the former offering five days' interest for gold and the latter ten. Now both of the countries represented by these banks will want our breadstuffs badly, and our large exports of the latter already show the drift of the general foreign demand. And yet money is easy here with the ease of stagnation and distrust, and nobody borrows or takes any other risk unless it is necessary. Edward Atkinson, who certainly cannot be accused of partisan bias, writes Bradstreet's that the trouble is caused by the votes of the South, the Southwest and the West in favor of reckless silver legislation. They have simply stopped investment in their own enterprises, and yet, as Mr. Atkinson puts it, "every condition exists that might bring about activity in trade, induce enterprise with a corresponding ready investment of capital upon credit." In proof of this he quotes the new figures of "Poor's Railway Manual" concerning the traffic of 1890, and we will reproduce them as a clincher to the argument furnished by the volume of the iron trade and the exports of breadstuffs for June:

	1890.	Increase per cent.
Miles of railroad operated	157,976	3.40
Freight moved, tons	701,344,437	13.28
Freight moved, tons, 1 mile	79,192,985,125	15.42
Passengers carried	520,439,087	5.13
Passengers carried, 1 mile	12,521,165,649	4.78
Earnings from freight	$740,374,844	11.08
Earnings from passengers	$273,644,439	5.41
Miscellaneous earnings	$72,000,024	8.00
Total gross earnings	$1,086,040,237	9.40
Net earnings	341,066,869	7.40
Earnings per ton per mile	0.935c.	*4.30

*Decrease.

In view, however, of the action of the Cabinet last Friday in all but unanimously backing up Secretary Foster in his determination not to coin into silver dollars the 4,500,000 ounces purchased monthly, after July 1, we think business men have grounds for greater confidence in the outlook. It moreover seems to the Press that not enough importance has been attached to the inroads that the McKinley bill will make on our imports, and on the amount of gold that we send abroad. Already our exports of domestic merchandise for the seven months from the approval of the bill to the 30th of April exceed the imports by $82,288,977, and every business man knows that in many lines of goods large enough stocks were imported to supply the market for at least a part of another season. So it seems reasonable to expect a great slump of the imports in a few months, which means that more money is to stay at home, as American products take the place of the imported. In view of the operations of the McKinley bill and the Harrison administration's firm stand on silver, The Press expects to see this gold come back to us from Europe.

The St. Paul Globe:—Senator Halvor Steenerson, every time he comes to St. Paul, somebody says he is a candidate for congress. Well, he is at the Merchants', but he unkindly dampens the ardor of sensational writers with a simple declaration: "I am not in politics." I have some little business to attend to, and if I know my business, I will not accept a nomination for anything. I can't afford the luxury. It's all right if a man is wealthy, you know. Crookston is growing," he said, to divert the attention of the reporter. "We have just opened an opera house that cost $50,000. It is the best west of the Twin Cities, and then there is our hotel. It will be a beauty. The crops are all we can ask, and we pastoral people are happy, even without political concomitants. And there is our new railroad scheme. You know we are going to have the Duluth & Winnipeg at our place. Oh, we are a progressive city, and your metropolitan people will begin to think about us the next few years."

D. & W. TERMINALS.

Practically Settled That They Will Be Located in West Superior.

Duluth Sunday Tribune.

It is now believed by those in a position to know that the question of locating the terminals of the Duluth & Winnipeg has been settled, and that the city across the bay is to have them. The terms of agreement were given exclusively by the Tribune four days ago, and have been accepted by the company.

"This surmise is further confirmed," said the Tribune's informant, "by the fact that when, recently, Mr. Fisher was told that there was a proposition being considered by the people to bond St. Louis county for a certain amount and to divide the fund between the different Duluth roads with terminals here, he stated that he did not wish to be bound on the matter of locating the terminals of the Duluth & Winnipeg in Duluth."

"You will find that this change will be effected, and that the change in the route to Crookston as stated in the Tribune, will also be carried out, as the inducements offered by the people in the Red River Valley and the weighty judgment of Sir Roderick Cameron, has made it worth the while of the company to abandon their land grant through an undeveloped and profitless territory for the new one through a fairly well settled country. Besides, Mr. Brice, who owns large timber tracts on the new route, and is a large stock holder in the company, also desires the change."

Women and Bicycles.

New York Press.

When Bishop Coxe, in a recent public address, condemned the practice of bicycle riding by women he raised a considerable breeze. The small army of feminine cyclists throughout the land didn't like the Bishop's remarks. They felt that their own judgment and the wishes and beliefs of their natural masculine protectors were competent to govern their conduct in the matter of bicycle riding, and they objected, not unnaturally, to the Bishop's declaration that a woman on a bicycle put him in mind of a witch on a broomstick.

The newspapers of the country have commented freely and cheerfully upon the good Bishop's anti-bicycle deliverance. With characteristic American gallantry they have generally side with the ladies in the contest, holding, evidently, to the belief that the American woman should have full liberty to adopt any mode of locomotion that suited her, and that, whether she rode bicycle or a broncho, she was sure to do it with a degree of grace and skill that rendered the act highly becoming.

Some of our contemporaries, indeed, have gone so far as to poke fun at the Bishop in a highly irreverent manner. One of them, published in the fine old conservative town of Baltimore, even asserts that "though he may know a great deal about some things" he is in "painful ignorance" of the necessity of vigorous outdoor exercise for women and girls. Such treatment of the Bishop is to be deprecated. It is disrespectful and uncalled for. And we think our contemporary's argument respecting the necessity of vigorous outdoor exercise for women is a lame one. There are several occupations that furnish such exercise besides bicycle riding.

There is chopping wood, for instance. Chopping wood is universally admitted to be a healthful exercise. And it is undeniably vigorous. The Bishop, so far as we know, has not declared against the practice of feminine woodsmanship. Conscientious women who are troubled by his opposition to their riding the wheel might compromise by chopping wood.

The reverend gentleman's remark that the American girl on a bicycle looked like a witch, is susceptible of two interpretations. The Press prefers to adopt the more agreeable of the two. The typical young woman of this republican land is certainly a good deal of a witch. And it must be confessed that, clad in her dainty bicycling costume and spinning, with eyes and cheeks aglow, on her steel steed through the smooth parkways by the side of brother or lover, she is bewitching enough to be publicly called a witch—even by a Bishop.

COUNTY NEWS.

McIntosh.

From the McIntosh Times.

A large amount of breaking is being done this year.

When completed, J. P. Johnson's residence will be the handsomest in the city.

The editor visited Crookston, for dental repairs last Thursday. Dr. Robertson was the architect, and as a skilled D. D. S. he is unexcelled.

H. L. Peake, of Crookston, arrived in the city Saturday with a complete stock of harnesses etc, and commenced business at once. He will occupy the rooms formerly occupied by Dr. McEachran.

Two car loads of Plano harvesting machinery, one for McIntosh and one for Fosston, were received last Tuesday and are being rapidly disposed of. The Plano Co. condesended to come down to a reasonable figure and deal with the Alliance, and in return they should receive the patronage and support of every member of the Alliance.

A social hop, thoroughly enjoyed by all present, was given at John Koppang's new building Saturday evening.

A time game of base ball between the McIntosh Stars and the Mentor Club, was played in the city on Saturday last, between trains. The score stood 27 to 29 in favor of Mentor, and the boys left for home highly elated over the way they scooped the champions of the Thirteen Towns.

FERTILE ITEMS.

From the Fertile Journal,

A Boddy was in Fertile Tuesday. He reports crops are looking the best he ever saw them in this neighborhood.

Mrs. A. Nelson, is visiting her parents in Wisconsin. During her absence the Dr. is staying at the Fertile House.

Tom Nesseth's team made things lively on our streets Monday night by running away. The occupants of the buggy got out of it before anything serious happened.

Richard Ohm has bought a mill at Thief River Falls and expects to move there with his family soon,

A jolly party was held at the residence of J. S. Nichols in the town of Liberty Tuesday night. Quite a number from this place were in attendance.

Henry Gaylord sold two farms this week. Land around this locality is being bought up rapidly. All we need is a good crop this fall and things will boom here next year.

AN EASY CHAIR.

A large share of men's inventive genious has always been devoted to making himself comfortable, but it is only within the present century that his efforts have been crowned with success. Take the matter of chairs, for instence. It was a long time before the descendents of Adam and Eve could devise anything better for a seat than a log or a boulder. And even when chairs were invented, they were reserved for Kings, Emporors, Priests and high personages. Among some so-called civilized nations of the present day, sitting cross-legged on a mat is the only method recognized as the correct thing, even in Japan, whose people are styled the "Yankees of the Orient."

Of all the people of the world, the American is the leader in that which conduces to comfort, and it is in our own country improvements are eagerly adopted. The inhabitant of the cottage, as well as the dweller in the palace, insist that his furniture shall be easy and luxurious. Accustomed to his cushioned chair and slippers at home, the American when he travels requires the same attention paid to his comfort. He will journey not only swiftly but softly and easily. Every effort is made to satisfy the demand, and hence the evolution of the sleeping, parlor and dining cars for railroad travel. These, however, were so far luxuries that their enjoyment involved expense beyond the cost of a railroad ticket, and thus many worthy people were debarred from the enjoyment of the rich. The question confronted the railroads. Must thousands of independent American sovereigns be made to feel that they are only just common people? Perish the thought! We will provide them better than even the luxurious coaches now in use, and this accommodation shall be free." The result of this determination was the reclining chair car. To be sure, the traveler bound for St. Paul, Minneapolis or the bright and bustling cities that dot the shores of the majestic Mississippi could enjoy the Pullman sleeper or the parlor car, but a uniformed guard stood at the portal and exacted a round fee for entrance. The Burlington has been quick to discern and prompt to supply what would add to the comfort of the traveling public, and now places in its day trains a service of reclining chair cars, free of all charges, fees or exaction of any sort. Its day trains, thundering along the east bank of the Mississippi for full three hundred and fifty miles, unroll before the traveler's eye such a panorama of scenery, grand, beautiful and charming, that has gained the title of the "Scenic Mississippi River Route." To these trains, leaving Minneapolis and St. Paul every evening, except Sunday, and Chicago every evening except Saturday, are now attached the chair cars, No. 550, No. 553 or No. 556. Let us board one of these for a trip southward. Entering the vestibule we are in a short aisle, on one side of which, neatly inclosed, is a Baker heater, which maintains an agreeable temperature by circulation of hot water in pipes running the whole length of the car. On the opposite side is the ladies' lavatory. Enter the body of the car. From the floor, composed of narrow strips of dark and light woods alternating, to the richly polished dark paneling of the sides, and the lighter and more brightly decorated ceiling, from which depend double lamps of crystal glass and glistening nickel, we find nothing but what is pleasing to the eye, speaking of comfort and of ease. Passing through, in the other extremity is a commodious smoking room and lavatory for the use of gentlemen, the size of which is a surprise to those who are familiar with the narrow limits of other cars. Now that we have had our smoke, let us sit down with our fellow passengers. The seat is roomy—no crowding from your fat neighbor; let the side arms back a couple of notches and you could not be more delightfully ensconced in your easy chair at home. To your left is the placid and beautiful Lake St. Croix The lofty bluffs and the magnificent sweep of the river are wonderful in their loveliness. And now we swing around the towering heights of "Maiden's Rock," and the broad blue expanse of Lake Pepin comes into view. There is a flutter of ribbons among the ladies on the right, a craning of necks out the windows, and exclamation of delight are heard. This is the luxury of day travel, and among these well-pleased people the uniformed porter moves quietly, adjusting a window here and handing a glass of water there. It is after dinner and we have left La Crosse. You feel like taking a nap? Pull out that foot rest and let your chair-back fall another notch or two. Well, just one more word—you have seen almost "all kinds and conditions of men" here, but the "railroad hog," who spreads himself over two double seats and gets his feet on the cushions, is "not in it" in this place. What, dropped off to slumber already? Well goodbye, and we are sure whenever you have a daylight journey to make up or down the river, you will travel by The Burlington, the only free reclining chair car line between the Twin Cities and Chicago.

The Pintsch System of Lighting Passenger Trains with Gas.

The Pintsch system of lighting by means of compressed gas is pronounced by competent judges to be the best known means of car illumination.

It is safe under any and all circumstances. It is not affected by atmospheric changes. Burns more steadily than any other light in use. It emits no smoke, is odorless and perfectly clean.

It is so effective and evenly distributed that travelers in any part of the car can read easily and comfortably.

Although this system has been in use on some of the leading lines in the East and in Europe for some time, the credit of first introducing it in the North-West belongs to "The North-Western Line"—C., St. P., M. & O. Ry.

The vestibuled trains on this line, leaving Minneapolis at 6:50 P. M., St. Paul, 7:30 P. M., daily, for Chicago and Milwaukee, are lighted throughout with this gas.

In addition to the superior arrangement and comfort of the sleeping cars on the vestibuled limited, this brilliant light adds to the appearance of the car, and passengers have expressed themselves as delighted with this method of lighting.

The Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis & Omaha Railway Company is now constructing a plant in Minneapolis for manufacture of Pintsch Gas in order to supply the entire passenger equipment.

No line keeps its equipment more completely up to the standard than does "The North-Western Line," and it has never failed to provide any improvement likely to add to the comfort, safety or pleasure of through travel. [11-16]

P. J. Russel celebrated the arrival of a 12 lb, boy at his house on July 4th. Our office force were smoking good cigars on Monday to the health of the young attorney.

Grand Forks Herald:—Mrs. Mix and Mrs. Walker, daughters of Major Mix and Col. Shapleigh of Crookston, were in the city, shopping and visiting with Mrs. H. P. Rucker.

WHAT THEY DID

On July 4th.

Although no regular set program had been arranged, Crookston people celebrated the good old day in a thoroughly independent manner, some going to suburban towns, others remaining quietly at home taking a large-sized rest, some going strawberrying, some fishing, hunting, &c.

Ald. Jennings hitched Billy to a two seated buggy and took Ned and the family out to see how snipes are shot in season. Max went along to see that no chickens were raked in by mistake.

When asked how he should celebrate, Bankrupt Wilson sat down on Misner's steps and remarked in a tuneful manner: "Oh, I'm too young to know I and besides every livery rig in the city is engaged for all day. That makes my Foote tired."

Charlie Misner celebrated by shutting up the alliance barber shop one whole half-day and devoting the time to getting acquainted with his family.

The Central house put up a line of shade trees, flung out the Starry Banner to the breeze, fired anvils and cannon crackers and celebrated on the true Amerian plan.

Cashier Ellington sat on the bank steps and mourned because there had not been a big program arranged. He said: "Fourth of July is the only day when I feel like turning myself loose for a royal good time; it is the only proper day for Americans to celebrate and we make a mistake here, whenever we allow it to pass unnoticed, no matter whatever else may happen. I tell you I don't believe in crowding out the good old day of American freedom and it makes me tired to think of it."

Rapin sent his corn parer over to the barber-shop to be honed, after which—we don't know what he did with it.

Post-master Dawley shut up and shaved.

C. W. Foote talked strongly of buying a rig, when he was told that every livery rig in town was engaged, said they "needed it in their business," anyhow. In the afternoon we observed that he was nicely rigged out all right.

Dept. postmaster McLean got a handsome rig, an elegant girl, (that sentence will read right both ways) and went out on the prairie four miles to chaw gum. He took a doctor along—a lock-jaw specialist—but didn't require his services Just then. About 5 o'clock he came back to town on foot and alone still struggling manfully with that gum.

Attorney Montague went down to ask Fisherites: "Is it wise?" They say he made an eloquent speech, which he can do if Levi Myers is not there to comment.

Dr. Just threw physic to the dogs for the nonce, and dressed in a handsome smile, went out on the prairie to help postmaster McLean chaw gum and shoot crackers.

Clerk of the Court, Nels Muns, spent the day at Fertile. Says they had a big time.

City Attorney O'Brien and Dept. Sheriff Losey went out upon the broad prairie to commune with nature. As they had good company they did not get tired.

Sheriff Grundysen went to Dakota to skelebrate.

Atty. Ed. George shot off his mouth down at McIntosh, and they do say he did exceedingly well.

His Honor, Mayor McKinnon, after giving the freedom of the city to all who should come, took the train for Grand Forks.

John C. Welles is up visiting the farm at Edna. Says that his crops are looking nicely this year, and he is satisfied that, barring hail or drouth, he will have a very large harvest.

The Journal is informed that Sivert Hoff had his nose smashed one day last week, by his partner in the saloon business. A little misunderstanding arose, then a beer glass arose and broke Severt's nose; thus the beer business goes.

Last year Remi Fortier bought a pair of Toulouse geese of Jos. Laframboise and this year has 28 fine thrifty goslings. The old goose laid 40 eggs most of which were set under hens. That is a pretty fair rate of increase.

We have some choice Holstein Friesian heifers and cows for sale cheap if taken at once, or will accept payment in good paper due Nov. 1st '91. Now is your chance to get a good bargain in cows. [12-tf]

S. M. McKee says that he kept book account with a lot of hogs while fattening them and that for the feed they ate the amount of money they brought when slaughtered paid double the market price for the grain. He says: "Of course it pays to raise hogs here."

Lands For the Landless.

By the kindness of Hugh Robertson, of the Land Office, we are enabled to present to our readers the amount of government land yet remaining in the district, as follows:

	Acres subject to entry.	Acres unsurveyed.
Kittson County	543,700	348,600
Marshall County	66,585	57,600
Polk County	29,004	1,280
Norman County	None	None
Clay County	2,949	"
Becker County	37,692	"
Otter Tail County	2,080	"
Beltrami County	48,233	116,200
Total	730,243	523,680

An agricultural exchange asks: "Do hogs pay?" Our experience leads us to remark that some of 'em don't.

Very many have commenced to cut the immense grass crop than which a larger never grew in the Valley. New hay is a familiar sight on our market—in fact there is not much else.

Jos. Laframboise returned last week from his trip to Montana. Says he sold his stock to good advantage. He says our crops are far ahead of any he saw in the west and he thinks we have every reason to be hopeful of our future.

Prof. Luger returned to St. Paul on Saturday evening. M. E. Kirsch went with him into Marshall County the latter part of the week where they found the conditions similar to those existing here. To be on the safe side the farmers will use the dozer freely.

It would cramp you to see Mayor McKinnon breaking in his new bicycle. If he don't get the critter more tractable pretty soon he will have to get an ordinance passed to widen the streets or turn the bike loose on the prairie to give him plenty of room for side tracking. He thinks if he can only get the machine used to his motions it will be very convenient to have in the family.

If you are looking for a bargain on a farm call at this office and see what we can do for you. We can sell you two farms with little improvement upon them for a small sum each; we can sell you a half section with 220 acres in crop, 100 acres broken, 80 acres fenced good artisian well and good buildings; or we can sell you ¾ section with buildings and improvements, all of which is near the city of Crookston. Call and see us.

Regular services at the Congregational church next Sunday conducted by the Pastor. 11. A. M, subject of sermon "Men and Religion." 8. P. M. "The Night Before the Exodus." A general invitation is extended to all; but to men and boys in particular to attend the morning service. Then the evening discourse will be the 3d in the historical course on "Night Scenes in Bible History." Kindly greeting, seats free, come early.

Chief Gonyea went to Fergus Falls on Monday night with a crazy man, named Geo. Palzer. The man was first observed to be slightly off on Sunday and he soon became violent and tried to break windows out of St. Ann's church. After he was arrested and put in a cell he would dash his fist against the sides with all his might and he had to be secured. He seemed to have rational moments when he was apparently as sane as anybody. After he was put on the train he gave no further trouble.

Meeting our reporter on Tuesday Louis Berthiaume said: "I've been around a great deal since the reports of 'hoppers in our midst got into circulation and my opinion is that there is no danger to the present crop to speak of, but that, to my mind, does not relieve us of the necessity for using every endeavor to kill off as many as possible of them on account of the mischief they may do an other year. I believe that you cannot too strongly urge farmers to use the dozer thoroughly wherever a 'hopper be found.

The Journal has more than once spoken about the advisability of a public watering trough, but so far our city authorities have seemed to be content to have things rub along sort o' free and easy, and we never have had one, except when some individual was public spirited enough to furnish it. A public watering trough should be put in on Market street and maintained, and if the water works company did not see fit to supply the water for that purpose the city should do it at its own expense. It shows a great lack of enterprise for the city to force her farmer patron to take his team to the river for water or go thirsty, and we believe it must be charged more to negligence than anything else, for certainly the small expense necessary to put up and maintain such an institution can cut no figure. By all means let us have a watering trough on one of the market streets and let it be done at once so that the thirsty teams of our patrons may be refreshed on these hot days. What say you, gentlemen of the council?

Polk County Alliance.

At the annual meeting of Polk County Alliance at the Court House on Wednesday, July 1st, H. G. Mitchell, of Woodside, was elected president; J. D. Knudson, McIntosh, secretary; Rev. S. Currie, of Euclid, lecturer, and A. Berthiaume, of Gentilly, treasurer. About 70 delegates were present and resolutions favoring action with the People's Party adopted. Rev. Geo. Muller, of St. Paul, was present and gave an address urging harmony and unity.

Marshall County Leader:—Mr. Bert Bivins, our old hardware man, was in town from Argyle as bright and happy as ever. He says he was out to see the Gas well near Warren a few days ago, and that there is no doubt whatever, about its being a Gas well all right with a big G. The well is about a mile and a half due west from Warren on the farm of a Mr. Huggard of Crookston. It is ninety feet deep and piped, the pipe extending perhaps seven feet above ground. It is fully under control, a cap being used to close the end of the pipe. When the cap is first removed a stream of water shoots high in the air for a short time and is followed by the gas which burns readily and with such intense heat that it is very uncomfortable at a distance of fifteen feet. Mr. Huggard says the flow of gas does not appear to diminish in the least, although it has now been escaping most of the time for several weeks. If there should be no cessation in the flow Warren will doubtless conduct the gas into town through pipes and utilize it. It is a well known fact, that there is also coal underlying parts of this county. The resources of the Valley have never half been told,

Owing to continued ill health, Mrs. E. E. Bangs has decided to close out her business and remove to Utah to live. For this reason she offers to dispose of her goods at and below cost. As she intends to close by August first, all who wish to secure a rare bargain should call early as she now has a large and elegant stock to select from. This is no humbug as you can readily ascertain by a call at her store on Second street.

COUNTY NEWS.

St. Hilaire Items.

St. Hilaire Spectator.

C. A. Johnson was in town last Monday and says that he has found an infallible remedy for cut worms which are doing considerable damage this year. He says to saturate rags with kerosene and put in the garden and the pests will leave. It is worth trying.

Mrs John Lundeen has been taken sick with typhoid fever and Dr. Dunlop of Crookston was up today. He says that the rest of the family are all doing fairly well but that Mrs Lundeen is very sick. The Doctor also attended C. G. Rapp's baby and Anders Kolsted's daughter while here.

D. E. Hatlestad came up from Crookston last Friday to act as attorney for C. A. Bergstrom in the case of Bergstrom vs Hendrickson. The case came up last Saturday before Justice Hanson and was taken upon a charge of venue before Justice Ives. J. C. Mathews acted as attorney for the defendant Judgement was found for plaintiff for $10:75.

C. G. Rapp's baby has been dangerously sick the past week but is now much better.

Dr. J. L. Hennemuth left last Friday for California where he expects to make his home in the future.

We learn that the Bramsness family are all recovering slowly and there is little doubt but that they will all recover.

Euclid Items.

The farmers Alliance met Tuesday and elected delegates to send to the county convention. The names of the delegates are Mr. Hancock and Rev. Mr. Curriey.

Victor Tiedt went to Crookston Tuesday to interview Dr. Dunlop in respect to his shoulder. Dunlop knows how to cure them up in good stlye.

Andrew Shee is up from Minneapolis visiting his brother in Numedal. He says this county looks fine and Numedal is the boss town.

N. C. Rukke was over from Grand Forks trying to induce some of the Euclidites to take a threshing rig.

C. E. Harrington's horse left him at Belgian Park July 4th, and now Harrington is going around asking "Where am my hoss."

M. P. Losey is compelled to enlarge his barn on account of his growing trade. Mr. Losey spares no pains in making his guests a "home of comfort."

The Farmers Alliance will elect their new officers July 14th. M. P. Losey and Mr. S. Currie's term expires on the day. The order regrets the loss of such competent officers.

A number of the Euclid people had a private picnic at Lake Belgnina July 4th. They report a good time.

A number of people went to Warren Saturday and had a good time.

Warren is the place to go to have a good time. The people did all they could to entertain their guests. The races were of special note.

A number of the Euclid boys inspected the new Warren Jail Saturday. Call on the boys if you want to know how it looks.

Thief River Items

Thief River Falls Press,

Wheat is beginning to head out and bids fair to surpass all other years in yield.

Chas. and Thomas Henderson and George Walker were in town the first of the week on their return from an exploring expedition on the head waters of the Red Lakes. They found a settlement on the Tamarac and Mosquito river from Sparta, Wis. They found plenty of good pine on all these streams the best being on the streams mentioned. They are no doubt working in the interest of Wisconsin parties.

Mr. Richard Ohm, who with Mr. Jacklin lately purchased the North Spring mills, started for St. Paul Monday to secure a competent millwright to repair the mill and also a supply of new machinery. They intend to make great improvements in this mill which will take about six weeks, when they are in hopes to start up and run it to its fullest capacity this fall.

Fisher Items.

From the Bulletin.

While at Crookston, Monday last, we called on the Journal and swapped yarns with Editor Cooke. Mr. Cooke seems to hold his own, in spite of opposition. He intimated that there might be another "new plant, which will knock 'em all out."

Let every resident of Fisher do his utmost to royal entertain visitors today. Show the denizens of Crookston what a genuine Fourth of July celebration is.

We notice, by the Twin City papers that Deputy Grand Master, Dr. Lankester, did himsel proud at the laying of the corner stone of the new Odd Fellows block at Minneapolis, Friday evening of last week. He made the proclamation laying the corner stone and also delivered a speech. The Doctor is appreciated in behalf of his earnest work for the order.

Verily, the road of a baseball manager is not always laid out in a bed of roses. The Crookston Times, when the team of that place beat Grand Forks, could not say too much for the baseball boys. Now, when Grand Forks wins, the Times calls them "babies" and jumps onto them with both feet. It certainly must encourage Manager Cleary, to receive such support from the press.

What we believe to be the oldest mower in active use was found last week on the farm of J. Paulson, Sec. 56, Town of Shelly, Norman county. It has been run each season for twenty-six years, and Mr. Paulson says it "is good for fifty more."

Excursion Rates

THE RAIL SITUATION.

What Jim Hill is Expected to do Just Now.

Duluth Herald.

A St Paul newspaper writer says that Twin city railway circles are considerably interested in the probable location of the Duluth & Winnipeg extension. A great effort is being made to induce the stock-holders of the road to tap the Red River Valley and compete with the Great Northern in that country. The proposed move would take the route of the Duluth, Red, Lake Falls & Northern recently surveyed from Grand Rapids west, going north of Leech lake, while Hill's system, lying south of Leech lake, would be either via Brainerd to Milaca, a still shorter line from Leech lake into the Eastern Minnesota not far out from Duluth.

Whatever routes or lines are laid it is very evident that Northern Minnesota is on the eve of some important railway development. It is whispered about that the Duluth & Winnipeg proposes to get even with the Great Northern line, which it holds responsible for the defeat of the celebrated Duluth & Winnipeg land grant bill in the senate last winter. This claim is of course the merest buncome and can only injure both roads.

WHALEBACK TOBOGGAN.

The Steamer Colby's Exciting Plunge Down The Rapids of the St, Lawrence Last Week

Running With the Speed of an Express Train Directly at the Fearful But Tried Dangers of the Rapids.

Duluth Herald.

Last Sunday's New York Press contains a graphic account of the Whaleback Colby's perilous trip through the rapids of the St. Lawrence, of which the following is a part.

The steamer left Prescott at 3 o,clock Tuesday morning. She had water ballast and drew 6 feet 9 aft and 5 feet 6 forward. On board besides the crew were: A. D. Thompson of Duluth, a director of the American Steel Barge company; Capt. McDougall, of Duluth, manager of the company; an insurance agent and your correspondent. Three miles down the pilots experimented with the steering gear to see how soon they could turn her, as there are so many short turns to be made in the swift water and rapids. Three sharp turns were made, the boat obeying her helm instantly' "quicker than a flash," said the pilots, and he was right. The pilot who have been in the business forty years said that never before had they stood at the wheel of a boat which could be handled so easily, and that the trip down the river could surely be made without accident.

As the steamer gathered headway the absence of all heaving was noticeable. She was as steady as a log. She entered the first rapids, the Galops, flying, increasing her headway eight miles an hour. As she pointed her head into the edge of the rapids and her bow sank in the swift water she seemed like a mammoth toboggan starting down a chute. At the pitch in the Galops the water runs twenty miles an hour, and the Colby plowed into it. She went through the few breakers perfectly. At the foot of the Galops a sharp swing was made toward the American shore. She obeyed her helm like a yacht. The Iroquois rapids were run easily. At Morrisburg the small tug Alert steamed out and followed the Colby the balance of the trip, so as to be near with a line in case of an accident.

Farran's Point was passed at 5:55. Here the water begins to run at an alarming rate of speed. A sharp turn was made into a very narrow channel. At 6:20 the Long Sault, a rapid nine miles in length with breakers like ocean waves at the head, was in sight. This is the first of the really dangerous rapids. The Press man stationed himself at the extreame bow of the boat. Imagine standing on the back of a huge whale going at the rate of a passenger train, with spray flying, the mist drenching and a sensation that every moment the animal would sink, leaving you at the mercy of the waves.

The breakers ahead looked impassible, but she heads into them. Down hill she plunges. There is not a roll, not a shake, only a gentle undulation as she tosses through the waves. On she went, in and out from point to point, running so close to the shore at times that it seemed as though she must strike the bank, but the pilot was ready at every turn and brought the steamer around with seemingly marvelous skill.

Cornwall was passed at 6:50. Lake St. Frances was enteted at 9:20. Four miles from the foot of the lake the steamer was stopped to await the Alert. The steamer once more started ahead, and commenced the most perlious part of her voyage, Coteau, Cedar, Split Rock and Cascade rapids.

At 10:05 she passed the Canadian Atlantic bridge, and Coteau rapids were entered. Here the engine was stopped, as the Coteau and the following rapids are extremely shallow, and the bottom is full of sharp rocks. She jammed into the first rapid with terrific speed, and was within ten feet of Rocky Shoal, that stood far out in the water, and sailors became suddenly quiet and looked at the old French pilot with intense interest. She grated the bottom three times, but she passed safely. Cedar Rapids are seven miles below, and the water runs mad the whole distance.

With the Cedar in sight the cord of the signal whistle broke. There was silence on the steamer for some minutes. Everybody aboard realized the danger and everyone was gazing intently at Willette, who stood firmly clasping the wheel looking neither to right nor left. The signals to the engineer were made by the big whistle and also repeated by men stationed at convenient points The steamer grated the bottom, a dozen times between the two rapids. At 11 o'clock she entered the Cedar. The waves here are so choppy that the vessel was given a most peculiar rolling motion, but she did not strike, and went on to the most dangerous rapids yet, the Split Rock. Every person on board held his breath. The entrance into these rapids is a narrow passageway between two masses of rock, the sight of which is enough to appall a passenger on a steamer running with great speed directly toward them. One can imagine the sensation it gave the people on board the great whaleback.

Capt. McDougall stood silent and immovable, but great beads of perspiration broke out upon his forehead. If the Colby was wrecked the attempt to get a fresh water whale back to the ocean would not be made again. If she passed through safely more would follow, and every trade on the ocean would be open to his unique craft. On, on, she rushed, gaining speed at every second, until she was in the entrance, and with fearful speed dashed through. There were long breaths of relief, but the cascades were right ahead, the last rapid to pass on the perilous trip. Through the cascades she went in rapid time and was safe on Lake St. Louis. Time—11:20.

The little Alert, which had plunged through the swift water a short distance behind Colby, came alongside, and Pilot Lafrance came aboard.

It was the most daring and crafty piece of piloting that has ever taken place in the rapids. The Colby is the first screw steamer that has ever attempted to run them, and great credit should be given not only to those who risked their lives in bringing her through but to the company who placed their property at such a risk.

The Colby will probably sail for Baltimore this week. Her sister steamer, the Wetmore, now that the Colby is safely through, will undoubtedly run the rapids soon. Her trip will not be so perilous, as she daaws less water than the Colby.

Notice of Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

(First publication May 28th, 1891.)

DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE IN THE conditions of a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Thomas Allard and Susie Allard, his wife, mortgagors, to Northwestern Guaranty Loan Company, mortgagee, bearing date the 5th day of September, A. D. 1889, and duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the 5th day of September, A. D. 1889, at 9:25 o'clock a. m., in book 47 of mortgages, on page 29.

Whereas, such default consists of the failure to pay the following installments of interest, to-wit: $39.17 that became due May 1st, 1890. $30.00 that became due November 1st, 1890, and $30.00 that became due May 1st, 1891. And whereas the said Northwestern Guaranty Loan Company, the holder of said mortgage, has elected to declare, and hereby does declare, the whole principal sums in said mortgage set forth due and payable at the date of this notice under the terms and conditions of said mortgage and the power of sale therein contained.

And whereas there is actually due and payable at the date hereof upon the premises in said mortgage described the following sum, to-wit: Eleven hundred and twenty-one dollars and forty cents, ($1,121.40) $1,106.90 thereof being principal and interest thereon and $14.50 being for the premiums on insurance necessarily paid by mortgagee, October 7th, 1890, and interest thereon, and whereas the said power of sale has become operative, and no action or proceeding at law, or otherwise, has been instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed, and the premises described in and covered by said mortgage, viz: The southwest quarter (sw¼) of Section thirty-two, (32), in Township one hundred and fifty (150) north, of Range forty-one (41) west, containing 160 acres more or less according to the government survey thereof; said premises situate and being in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances, will be sold at public auction to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt and interest, insurance and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and fifty dollars attorney's fee, as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk County, at the front door of the Court House, in the City of Crookston, in said County and State, on at 10 o'clock a. m. of that day, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale as provided by law.

MONDAY, THE 13TH DAY OF JULY, A. D. 1891,

Dated May 12th, A. D. 1891.

MORTGAGE SALE.

[First publication July 9th, 1891.]

WHEREAS, Eugene St. Mars and Marie St. Mars, his wife, of Polk County, State of Minnesota, as mortgagors, did, on the 10th day of February, A. D. 1887, duly execute and deliver to Mary V. Martin, of the County of New York, State of New York, their mortgage, bearing date of January 27th, A. D. 1887, whereby they mortgaged to said mortgagee the following described lands, situated in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, to-wit: The northeast quarter of Section 11, Township 150, Range 44 west, containing 160 acres, to secure the payment of the sum of seven hundred dollars, with interest thereon, according to the conditions of one certain promissory note, with interest coupons attached, bearing even date with said mortgage, and made by said mortgagors to said mortgagee, or order, which said mortgage was on the 10th day of February, A. D. 1887, at 2:15 o'clock p m., duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for said County of Polk, in book 27 of mortgages, on page 339; and

Whereas, default has been made in the payment of the sum of forty-nine dollars, due as interest upon said mortgage on the 1st day of January, A. D. 1890, and on the further sum of forty-nine dollars due as interest thereon on the 1st day of January, A. D. 1891, and the said interest is still unpaid and due; and

Whereas, it was stipulated by and between the parties to said mortgage, that if default should be made in any of the conditions or covenants therein contained on the part of the mortgagors, to be kept and performed, that then and from thenceforth it shall be lawful for the said mortgagee, her heirs, administrators, executors or assigns to consider and declare the whole sum secured thereby as immediately due and payable without notice to said mortgagors or any other party; and

Whereas, the said Mary V. Martin has exercised her option to consider and declare, and does hereby consider and declare the whole sum of money secured by said mortgage to be due and payable; and

Whereas, there is now due, and claimed to be due on said mortgage at the date of this notice the sum of eight hundred seven and 80-100 dollars, and no proceedings have been instituted at law or otherwise to recover the same or any part thereof.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of a power of sale in said mortgage contained and therewith recorded, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the land therein described, which sale will be made by the Sheriff of Polk County, at the main door of the Court House, in the city of Crookston, in said County and State, on the 29th day of August, A. D. 1891, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon of that day, at public vendue, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay the sum due on said mortgage, together with taxes, if any, on said premises, and fifty dollars attorney's fees therein stipulated to be paid in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the date of sale as provided by law.

Dated July 1st, A. D. 1891.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, County of Polk—ss. In Pro[illegible]ate Court, Special Term, July 7th, 1891.

In the matter of the estate of William G. Cooke, deceased.

On receiving and filing the petition of Harvey B. Cooke, of the County of Polk, representing, among other things, that William G. Cooke, late of the County of Polk, in the State of Minnesota, on the 18th day of March, A. D. 1891, at the County of Polk, died in[illegible] estate, and being an inhabitant of this county at the time of his death, leaving goods, chattels and estate within this county, and that the said petitioner is a brother of said deceased, and praying that administration of said estate be to him gra[illegible].

It is ordered that said petition be heard before this Court, on Friday, the 31st day of July, A. D. 1891, at 10 o'clock a. m., at the Probate Office, in the City of Crookston, in said county.

Ordered further, that notice thereof be given to the heirs of said deceased, and to all persons interested, by publishing this order once in each week for three successive weeks prior to said day of hearing, in THE POLK COUNTY JOURNAL, a weekly newspaper printed and published at Crookston, in said county.

Dated at Crookston, the 7th day of July, A. D. 1891.

By the Court, C. M. BENSON,
[13-14] Judge of Probate.

SUMMER TRAINING SCHOOL AT Detroit Minnesota.

In accordance with the provisions made by the State for the improvement of the teachers of the common schools, a training school will be opened at Detroit, July 20th, 1891, at 2 o'clock P. M., and continue four weeks. This school will be held under the auspices of the Department of Public Instruction, and will be open to applicants on the following conditions:

1. All persons of sufficient maturity to do a teacher's work and all who expect to teach will be admitted.
2. Those enrolling as members of the school will be expected to give their time to its work, and to be present at each session.
3. There will be no charge for tuition.

INSTRUCTION.

Instruction will be given in all common branches, vocal music, penmanship, and methods of teaching. Provision will also be made for reviewing those branches requisite to the qualifications for a first grade certificate, provided there are enough desiring to take such review to warrant the formation of classes. In order that the conductor may know what classes are to be formed each one should send a list of the studies he desires to take to Supt. F. B. Chapin, at Detroit, as soon as he has decided upon them.

STUDIES.

The following directions regarding studies are taken from a circular issued by the Supt. of Public Instruction for the government of the training schools.

"Each student shall, subject to the approval of the county superintendent, select three and not more than four academic studies, in addition to work he may do in drawing, music, penmanship, reading or lectures; and no one shall take advanced studies except with the special approval of the county superintendent."

BOOKS.

Each subject will be taught from outlines which will be furnished members of the school free of expense. The Board of Education of Detroit has very kindly placed the excellent library of the High School at the disposal of the training school. Each member of the school should bring all his text books such reference books as he can. The work in methods of teaching will be based on Page's "Theory and Practice of Teaching."

ARRANGEMENT OF WORK.

The work of the school will be distributed over the six days of the week. There will be one session each day, beginning at 8 A. M., and closing at 12 M. This session will be given wholly to recitation. Such portions of the afternoon and evening as may be necessary for the successful accomplishment of the work assigned will be devoted to study. It is expected that each pupil will devote at least four hours a day to study.

BOARD AND ROOMS.

Board can be obtained at from $3 to $5 per week. Those desiring to furnish their own bedding can rent rooms at reasonable rates, and save some expense. Table board, $2.50 and $4 per week.

ADVANTAGES OF LOCATION.

Detroit is situated on one of the most attractive lakes in Minnesota, and is an excursion point on the Northern Pacific Railway. Excursion tickets to Detroit and return can be obtained at all stations for one and one-third fares for the round trip. These tickets are good for 30 days, and can be used by those desiring to reach Detroit by rail.

The citizens of Detroit are taking an active interest in the school and will extend a hearty welcome to all who attend.

A sufficient number of competent instructors will be employed to meet the demands of a large school, and all teachers within convenient reach of Detroit are invited to come and avail themselves of the advantages so liberally provided by the State.

All having a standing of 70 in any study will be excused for examination in that subject at the Fall Examination.

For board, rooms or further information, address Superintendent F. B. Chapin, Detroit, Minn.

F. B. CHAPIN, Co. Supt.,
W. F. ROCHELEAU, Conductor.
MRS. E. K. JAQUES, Instructor.
B. F. BUCK, Instructor.

The Phrenological Journal for July has something to say of Prof. C. A. Briggs and the church controversy, and says it clearly and well' giving a portrait of the reverend critic. A remarkable Irishman and public character was Mr. Kavanagh, who is described, and how he made his way in the world, despite the fact he had neither hands nor feet. The charater of Haydn, the great musician, is well limned, and Dr. Reynolds relates certain interesting incidents of animal intelligence. In the department of Practical Phrenology the reader will be much entertained. It contains a striking and profusely illustrated article on the study of character by photographs, and the first prise essay on the "Utility of Phrenology." "A pink of Perfection" hits off a certain type of childhood capitally, and "Wrong Side Out" is a good illustration of motherly tact. "Refined Physical Culture" takes up the subject of exercise on a line that has novelty, and "Grape Juice" will probably open the eyes of some of the temperance people. In his second article on "Systematic Moral Culture," the editor opens a new field, and shows the fallacy of expecting moral stability without a definite training of the moral faculties. Many other titles in this number (631) are deserving mention. Price, only 15 cents, or $1.50 a year. It is offered "on trial" six months from this number, the first of the 92d volume, for 50 cents. Send on this amount and try it. Address Fowler & Wells Co., Publishers, 777 Broadway, New York.

The New Third Party.

Duluth Herald.

Yesterday there was born at Cincinnati, a political party likely to wield great influence in the campaign of '92. It may be ridiculed and reviled in every way known to the art of political warfare, but it's aroused and enthusiastic members have votes that will be cast and counted. The party may not be a long lived one, nine chances in ten it will not be, but it will make hay while the sun shines, and next year's campaign will be one of the most interesting in the annals of the nation.

The human mind and heart are attracted and inspired by the enthusiasm of a great moral issue. The echoes of the old anti-slavery and war campaigns almost linger in the air today and are re-awakened by a touch on some mystic chord. That there are grievances yet unsolved and more than one emancipation to be made needs no affirmation. Fortunes undreamed of when our government was formed are now massed in a few or perhaps in single hands, and the poor man is deemed a crank whose opinion is deemed unworthy of consideration. This is one of the natural results of a developing civilization, but none the less deserving of thoughtful treatment. Society alone makes such fortunes possible and society therefore has the moral right to interpose for its own safety or highest good. If a few men speculate unmolested on the earnings of a whole people, that people will in time speculate on how to right such wrongs. If a combination of capitalists can dictate the price of meat, as is being done now, or fuel as is often the case in winter, or of sugar as has been notorious for years, it is the people's right, it is their duty, to abolish such monopolies and secure to themselves the advantages which the natural resources of the country afford.

It is such conditions as these, for is not a tax on tea less odious than a tax on meat, that has created the anti-slavery sentiment exhibited at Cincinnati? When it is realized that a raise of $1 a ton in the price of coal means more deaths in northern cities in a single winter than all the lives that yielded to the tortures of a century of slavery, the motive back of this new movement may be fully understood. The western yeoman who has lived in a dugout and delighted in the luxury of a sod overcoat doesn't fully understand the need of a tariff on lumber and clothing. Nor do these simple minded folks very clearly see why Uncle Sam should furnish money cheap to bankers while they, hard pressed, must pay from 1 to 5 per cent a month. Until these and kindred subjects are solved or explained away there will be a growing demand for the principles espoused by the latter day followers of Cincinnatus.

The leaders have tickled an acute sentiment of the people by singing patriotic songs and fixing Washington's brithday as the date of their first national nominating convention. Wisely, too, they declined to mix up with probibition, and resolved only for such principles as all industrial classes, whether from farm or shop could endorse. The party can hardly hope to split up the vote of the South, where the race problem is still paramount to all others, but in Kansas, Illinois, Ohio Nebraska, Minnesota, South Dakota, and possibly Missouri, surprises are in store, and a new unknown quantity has entered the next campaign. Kansas, more likely than any other, will be carried by the wildfire movement. Naturally the republicans have most to fear from these Philistines, but if the grand old party would maintain its name, in all of its original luster, these discordant elements might be gathered under its banner in the coming crusades. We shall see.

Their Only Point of Attack.

New York Press.

The condition of the United States Treasury has produced a panic nowhere except in Democratic newspaper offices. Every other point of attack on Republican policy and performance having failed, the Democratic and Mugwump organs have united in a frenzied assault upon Republican management of the public finances, which has fulfilled every promise made by Republican conventions, and disproved every prophecy of Democratic organs. The promise was made that the revenue should be reduced as nearly as possible to the actual needs of the government. This has been done.

The hostility of Democratic critics and the vague charges of "extravagance," find no more definite expression or specification in any quarter than that "the pensions have done it." This opposition is directed against the whole pension system, not against any one class or kind of pensions, and is directed as much against the policy and history and achievments of the Republican party as it is against pensions. Our critics have no other point of attack just now, and they are trying to make the most of this one which time alone can take from them. Their indefinite charges of extravagance have no more explicit explanation than "pensions." Their criticism evinces the same spirit of intolerance which found pictorial expression a few months ago in the leading comic Journal of the party in a cartoon showing a G. A. R. veteran in the guise of a wolf asking President Harrison what he was going to do about pensions. The G. A. R. veteran is still a wolf in the eyes of some Republican opponents.

The Democratic organs, in their strenuous efforts to create a panic over pensions and the surplus, studiously ignore the fact that in 1867 the interest charges on the bonded debt were $143,000,000 and the pension charge only $20,000,000; that the soldiers afterward waited while the bondholders were being paid; that the interest on the public debt is now $26,000,000, while the pensions amount to $182,000,000.

If it were not for the soldiers the bonds would have been worthless, and yet the soldiers are now receiving annually in principal less than the interest on the bonded debt twenty-four years ago. And this result is all a part of the Republican policy which withheld what was meet when it was necessary for the country; which now gives freely, it is true, but ungrudgingly, for to these soldiers and to this party is due a national credit which is now the highest among nations of the world.

The Democratic calamity editors will find it as difficult to destroy this credit as they have found it impossible to alter Republican principle and purpose.

(First Publication June 18th. 1891.)

WHEREAS OLE PEDERSON AND CAREN Pederson, his wife, of Polk County State of Minnesota, as mortgagors, did, on the 28th day of July A. D. 1886, duly execute and deliver to the New England Mortgage Security Company of the County of Windham, State of Connecticut, their mortgage bearing date of July 17th A. D. 1886, whereby they mortgaged to said mortgagee the following described lands situated in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota to-wit:

The North half of Southeast quarter, and South half of Northeast quarter of Section 1, Township 148, Range 45 west, containing 160, acres to secure the payment of the sum of Five hundred and Fifty Dollars, with the interest thereon, according to the conditions of one certain promissory note, with interest coupons attached, bearing even date with said mortgage, and made by said mortgagors to said Mortgagee, or order, which said mortgage was on the 27th day of July A. D. 1886, at three o'clock P. M. duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for said county of Polk in Book 27 of Mortgages, on page 211; and,

WHEREAS, default has been made in the payment of the sum of Thirty-eight and 50-100, Dollars, due as interest upon said mortgage on the 1st day of January A. D. 1891 and the said interest is still unpaid and due; and

WHEREAS It was stipulated by and between the parties to said mortgage, that if default should be made in any of the conditions or covenants therein contained on the part of the mortgagors, to be kept and performed, that then and from thenceforth it shall be lawful for the said mortgagee, or its assigns to consider and declare the whole sum secured thereby as immediately due and payable without notice to said mortgagors or any other party; and

WHEREAS, The New England Mortgage Security Company has exercised its option to consider and declare, and does hereby consider and declare the whole sum of money secured by said mortgage to be due and payable; and

WHEREAS, There is now due and claimed to be due on said mortgage at the date of this notice the sum of Six-hundred seven and 24-100 Dollars, and no proceedings have been instituted at law or otherwise to recover the same or any part thereof.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of a power of sale in said mortgage contained and therewith recorded, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the land therein described, which sale will be made the sheriff of Polk County, at the front door of the Court House in the city of Crookston in said County and State on the 8th day of August A. D. 1891, at 10 o'clock in the fore-noon of that day at public vendue, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay the sum due on said mortgage, together with taxes, if any, on said premises, and fifty dollars attorney's fees, therein stipulated to be paid in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the date of sale as provided by law.

MORTGAGE SALE.

(First publication May 28th, 1891.)

WHEREAS DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE in the payment of the sum of two hundred and forty-six dollars ($246.00) which is claimed to be due at the date of this notice upon a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by David H. McGinnis to P. C. Sletten and John Cromb, of Polk County, Minnesota, bearing date the first day of December, A. D. 1882, and, with a power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the 6th day of December, A. D. 1882, at 11:30 o'clock a. m., in book "H" of mortgages, on page 425.

And whereas P. C. Sletten, one of the mortgagees named in said mortgage, died testate, at Crookston, Polk County, Minnesota, on the 8th day of July, A. D. 1884.

And whereas the last will and testament of the said P. C. Sletten was proved and admitted to probate in the Probate Court of Polk County, Minnesota, on the 30th day of July, A. D. 1884.

And, whereas, by the terms of said will Kari Sletten, the wife of the said P. C. Sletten, was made the sole legatee and devisee of all the real and personal property of which he died seized aforesaid.

And, whereas, the Probate Court of said Polk County issued its final decree in the estate of P. C. Sletten, deceased, dated Aug. 6, 1887, by the terms of which the said Kari Sletten was decreed to have an undivided half interest in the above described mortgage, which said decree was duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for said County of Polk, on the 11th day of May, 1888, at 1:30 p. m., in book 29 of deeds, on pages 574 to 578 inclusive, and no action or proceeding having been instituted, at law or otherwise, to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now therefore, notice is hereby given, that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, viz: Lots four (4) and five (5) in block six (6), in Cromb and Sletten's subdivision of outlots in Hurlbut's addition to Crookston, in Polk County and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances, which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk County, at the front door of the Court House in the City of Crookston, in said County and State, on the 18th day of July, A. D. 1891, at ten o'clock a. m. of that day, at public vendue to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and twenty-five dollars attorney's fees, as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale as provided by law.

Dated May 30th, A. D. 1891.

WHEREAS, HENRY SMITH AND EMMA Smith, his wife, of Polk County, State of Minnesota, as mortgagors, did, on the 10th day of May, A. D. 1887, duly execute and deliver to Austin Corbin, Trustee, of the County of New York, State of New York, their mortgage, bearing date of April 28th, A. D. 1887, whereby they mortgaged to said mortgagee the following described lands situated in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, to-wit: The northeast quarter of Section 26, Township 152, Range 45 west, containing 160 acres, to secure the payment of the sum of six hundred dollars, with interest thereon, according to the conditions of one certain promissory note, with interest coupons attached, bearing even date with said mortgage, and made by said mortgagors to said mortgagee, or order, which said mortgage was on the 10th day of May, A. D. 1887, at 11:15 o'clock a. m., duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for said County of Polk, in book 30 of mortgages, on pages 531 to 535; and

Whereas, default has been made in the payment of the sum of sixty dollars, due as interest upon said mortgage on the 1st day of January, A. D. 1890, and on the further sum of sixty dollars due as interest thereon on the 1st day of January, A. D. 1891, and the said interest is still unpaid and due; and

Whereas, it was stipulated by and between the parties to said mortgage, that if default should be made in any of the conditions or covenants therein contained on the part of the mortgagors, to be kept and performed, that then and from thenceforth it shall be lawful for the said mortgagee, his heirs, administrators, executors or assigns, to consider and declare the whole sum secured thereby as immediately due and payable without notice to said mortgagors or any other party; and

Whereas, The said Austin Corbin, Trustee, has exercised his option to consider and declare, and does hereby consider and declare the whole sum of money secured by said mortgage to be due and payable; and

Whereas, there is now due, and claimed to be due on said mortgage at the date of this notice the sum of seven hundred sixty and 80-100 dollars, and no proceedings have been instituted at law or otherwise to recover the same or any part thereof.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of a power of sale in said mortgage contained and therewith recorded, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the land therein described, which sale will be made by the Sheriff of Polk County, at the front door of the Court House, in the city of Crookston, in said County and State, on the 22d day of August, A. Notice of Mortgage Forclosure Sale.

[First publication May 28th, 1891.]

DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE IN THE conditions of a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Rhesa Godfrey, unmarried, mortgagor, to Northwestern Guaranty Loan Company, mortgagee, bearing date the 13th day of December, A. D. 1888, and duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the 13th day of December, A. D. 1888, at 3 o'clock p. m., in book 39 of mortgages, on pages 415-18.

Whereas such default consists of the failure to pay the installments of interest that became due June 13th, 1889, December 13th, 1889, June 13th, 1890, and December 13th, 1890, each of said installments being for $24.50, and whereas the said Northwestern Guaranty Loan Company, the holder of said mortgage, has elected to declare, and hereby does declare the whole principal sum in said mortgage set forth due and payable at the date of this notice under the terms and conditions of said mortgage and the power of sale therein contained.

And whereas there is actually due and payable at the date hereof upon the premises in said mortgage described the following sum, to-wit: Eight hundred and thirty dollars and seventy-eight cents, ($830.78), and whereas the said power of sale has become operative and no action or proceeding at law or otherwise has been instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed, and the premises described in and covered by said mortgage, viz: The west half of the southwest quarter (w½ sw¼) of Section seventeen, (17), and west half of the northwest quarter (w½ nw¼) of Section twenty, (20), in Township one hundred and forty-nine (149), of Range forty-four, (44), containing 160 acres, more or less, according to the United States government survey thereof. Said premises situate and being in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances, will be sold at public auction, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and fifty dollars attorney's fee, as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk County, at the front door of the Court House, in the City of Crookston, in said County and State on MONDAY, THE 13TH DAY OF JULY, A. D. 1891, at 10 o'clock a. m. of that day, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale as provided by law.
